BASIC TRAINING MANUAL FOR CORRECTIONAL¹ WORKERS

Prepared by Gary Hill

Instructor's Manual
GENERIC VERSION

¹ The term “corrections” and prison has the same meaning in this manual. The use of “corrections” has been chosen because most nations have moved from a system that is only punitive to one that is meant to help the offenders live a life that is crime free once they are released from custody.

THIS IS A GENERIC DRAFT VERSION

DATE OF DRAFT is June 2006

BASIC TRAINING MANUAL COMMITTEE OF PRISON EXPERTS

This draft manual is the result of a collaborative effort with input, review, examples and suggestions received from a variety of sources. Following are some of the major players who participated. I must apologize in that I am sure some individuals have been left out.

The original members of the committee which initiated the development of the Basic Training Manual Project are:

Adedokun A. ADEYEMI (Nigeria), Rohi BAALBAKI (Lebanon), Emilia BOUZON DE TERZANO (Argentina), Vincent DEL BUONO (Canada), Gary HILL (United States), Konrad HOBE (Germany), Luigi DAGA (Italy), Anthony TRAVISONO (United States), A. NAGASHIMA (Japan), J. FEEST (UNICRI), Gerhard MUELLER (United States), R. WAREHAM/ Viola PLUMMER (North American International Association Against Torture), Joseph A.A. ETIMA (Uganda), Mohamed. ZEID (Saudi Arabia), Roy D. King (United Kingdom), Cristiina HUKKILA (HEUNI), Giacomo CANEPA (Italy).

Providing significant input were:

Martine BIRLING (France), Mark BYERS (New Zealand), Robert CLARK (Scotland), Lynn CUDDINGTON (Canada), Harold FOSKER (Norway), Robert GOBLE (United States), David MATHER (Australia), Leo R. JANSEN (Netherlands), Joe MCDERMOTT (Ireland), James MCDONALD (Scotland), Randy POLTARUK (Canada), Nicolas ROGGO (Switzerland), Josep Maria TAMARIT (Spain), Nuria TORRES (Spain), Dmitrij USIK (Lithuania), Jan VAN DEN BRAND (Netherlands), Nadia VIGEL (France)

Reviewing the material and providing input were:

Ujo AGOMOH (Nigeria), Soraya Beumer (Netherlands), Nicholas BROOKE (England), Bob BROWN (Canada), Dr. Johnson O.R. BYABASHAIJA (Uganda), Titus KONG LING CHICH (Singapore), James CHISHOLM (Scotland), Doris Y Y CHOW (Hong Kong), William CONNOLLY (Ireland), Sione FALEMANU (Tonga), Daniel GUNN (Scotland), Matthew Hamidullah (United States), Dr. M. Enamul HAQUE (Bangladesh), Isabel HIGHT (New Zealand), Helen HILTON (Scotland), HIROYUKI (Japan), Sio MEI HO (Macao), Lenin HOV (Cambodia), Mukete Tahle ITOE (Cameroon), Peter KAKOLA (Namibia), Christer KARLSSON (Sweden), Major Rashed Said GHANIM AL KHAYAREEN (State of QATAR), Ahnshik KIM (South Korea), Diane KNOPF (Canada), Leung-Ming KWOK (China), Jacqui LAW (Scotland), Roy LOUIS (Canada), Stephanie MACPHERSON (Canada), Joe Marchese (United States), Fidelis M. MBOYA (Tanzania), Marena MCLAUGHLIN (Canada), John MINJA (Tanzania), Paul MOYLE (Australia), Barry MULCAHY (United States), Dr. Robert NAGLE (United States), Rene NGWENYA (South Africa), Lt. Col. Zaal AL NOAIMI (State of Qatar), Slavi NOVAK (Slovenia), Lt. Col. John NURSE (Barbados), Sirilawan PANMADEE (Thailand), Chong Fung PING (Singapore), Bill RATTRAY (Scotland), Somphop RUJJANAVET (Thailand), Setha SAK (Cambodia), Sokhan SAMKOL (Cambodia), Akena SAMUEL (Uganda), Jabu SISHUBA (South Africa), Terry SMITH (Turks & Caicos Islands), Marinela SOTA (Albania), Manap SRISUPHANTHAVORN (Thailand), Vitaya SURIYAWONG (Thailand), Ernest SYLVER (Ghana), Jenny THOMAS (England), Sebonyane Alfred TSETSANC (South Africa), Sonia WALLACE (Jamaica), Bill WILKEY (United States), Yu XIAO (China), Dick YEUNG (Hong Kong), Lam YICK-KEI (Hong Kong).

Multi-national conferences to discuss the Draft Manual were held in:

Italy, Brazil, Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Barbados, Uganda and Kyrgyzstan held multi-day meetings where the Draft Manual was the only topic. Discussion on the Manual were held at international conferences in Austria, Canada, South Africa, United States, China, Thailand, Lebanon, Ethiopia, Costa Rica, Hungary, Australia and Scotland.

Versions of the Draft Manual was used as a template by prison departments reviewing their own training programs in:

Somalia, Cameroon, Bosnia & Herzegovina and the Republika Surpska

Versions of the Draft Manual have been translated by nations reviewing it into:

English, Spanish, French, Portuguese, Russian, Arabic and Somalia.

The review and update process of the Draft Manual continues and it is therefore considered a work in process.

THIS MANUAL IS DEDICATED TO LUIGI DAGA

During his career with the department of prison administration in Italy, Luigi Daga confronted many of the most pressing issues facing correctional systems, such as drug addiction, overcrowding, aids, lack of resources and alternative sentencing. Though highly educated and respected in both academic and political circles, Luigi Daga concentrated on the practical solutions to the current needs of correctional systems around the world. He did write and do research geared towards long-term solutions, but he never forgot that those currently serving in prisons either as inmates or staff had real and immediate needs. His work to insure both the development and implementation of humane standards for prisons and proper training and recognition of staff was responsible for many positive changes in prison systems worldwide. Luigi Daga died as a result of a random act of terrorism. Though he was not specifically targeted, he became a victim of a violent and tragic crime. It is ironic that the way society and specifically the justice and correctional system treated the person who killed him was based on much of the work carried out by Luigi Daga. The treatment of that offender, like millions of others around the world was fair and humane -- just as Luigi would have demanded. As the initial chair of the group responsible for the development of this manual and the process to make sure it is both practical and effective, his contributions will live on in better correctional practice for years to come.

The idea of preparing a manual for correctional workers took its origin from the awareness on the part of the Resource Committee on Correctional System and Rights that a set of guidelines was necessary in order to reconcile two aspects underlying correctional systems the world over: the safeguard of prisoners' rights and the recognition of the role of prison officers. A correctional worker who has been given the means and skills proper to his or her job, and who feels confident about what he/she has got to do, will be fully enabled to deal with people in his/her charge in a fair and humane way.

The Resource Committee's members, among which was the late lamented Luigi Daga, were well aware of the fact that each country had its distinct legal and correctional system as well as cultural, economic and social features; this, together with the consciousness that a practical approach was needed in order to give correctional workers the effective means to do their job, has led to the preparation of a manual which is at the same time comprehensive and open in conception; that is to say that it offers the foundations on which each correctional administration will build up its internal organization, taking into the account the characteristics peculiar to each one.

Training programs and interviews with trainers from around the world were used to develop this Manual. However, because each nation is unique in terms of its laws, policies, culture and customs, this Manual must be considered a draft to be modified for use by each nation.

The reader is encouraged to write if more information on anything covered in this manual is desired. Comments, criticisms, and suggestions are also invited.

1 BACKGROUND ON THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE TRAINING MANUAL

1. Importance of prison staff training in the policy of the international agencies

Staff training activities form a subject that is at the crossroads of some fundamental problems within corrections. At the same time, the production of "codes of conduct" and the informing and training of personnel in working within that code and other international standards and norms is a subject of direct commitment of the United Nations. In later chapters of this manual detailed information on the nearly forty international documents that govern correctional treatment will be provided. However, it is important here to note that no standards or norms or hopes or plans of any national or international body can be carried out without acceptance and proper practice by prison staff. What people in a far off room can dictate as acceptable or unacceptable practice means little if the prison guard is not trained in how to carry it out.

The increasing sophistication of individuals and international criminal organizations in all sections of the world make the work of the individual correctional officer more demanding than ever before. The amount of technical equipment, the rapid growth of new laws and court mandates, the increased scrutiny of media, human rights groups and international organizations means that the correctional officer must be among the finest-trained personnel working in any field. It must also be noted that it is the corrections system of each nation that is charged with keeping citizens in conditions that deprive them of what would normally be their basic rights. That alone demands a highly trained and competent staff.

2. Some of the methodological considerations used in preparation of the staff training manual

The initial training and updating of the prison staff, although having much in common with the training of the remaining personnel of the penal system, presents particular problems from the methodological and subject-matter aspects. A general and satisfactory reflection on these problems is lacking in the international literature, even if practical initiatives in the training field are numerous.

There is, above all, a problem of resources, of the cost/benefit ratio. In general, the prison staff, because of the heavy work commitment necessary, has little time for training: either initial training or during their careers. This is especially true in developing countries where the resources devoted to training are very small, in view of the already very low percentage of the national expenditure earmarked for the prison system. The need to supply the delicate service in prisons hinders, in fact, in almost all prison administrations, the possibility of organizing the training course on a satisfactory basis. For this, the preparation of intensive training modules which optimize the time/training ratio is essential.

A second consideration in preparing this manual is that the subject matter of prison staff training can only, in part, be standardized at an international level. It is possible, in fact, to predetermine the training on international documents, in the fundamental rights universally recognized in international agreements, on the standard minimum rules, and on the main UN codes of conduct; but it is certainly not possible to predetermine from the outside the training on the internal prison regulations and, in general, on all that which concerns the level of the internal legislation.

From this point of view, no standpoint of imposing the contents could be acceptable, and the risk of "cultural colonization" must be borne in mind. It is, moreover, a common risk to coordinate support activity to the developing countries (which in addition, may also be countries of long-standing judicial civilization). In addition, it must be remembered that (unlike the police and court personnel) prison is characterized by constant contact between the operators and the clients, twenty-four hours a day. Thus, the training cannot be limited to imparting theoretical subject-matter, nor mere technical information.

It is necessary, therefore, to create an effective interaction between training and working activity, and, thus, a real two-way communication between instructors and prison staff. To this end, a multi-disciplinary approach to tackle the training problems in an integrated way is important.

The analysis of the situation of the country's correctional structure will help considerably in the definition of the contents and methods of teaching: It is important to note that despite some basic homogeneity, the purposes of various correctional systems differ slightly (i.e. some may stress rehabilitation or reintegration back into society as a crime-free person and others might stress punishment for committing acts against society, while other systems might have victim or state compensation as their major purpose), and that, consequently, a precise analysis of the main purpose of imprisonment must be made by each country prior to using this training manual and/or developing their own material.

In the development of this manual, care was taken to attempt to account for the differences in local cultures, social-cultural environments, economic differences and the wide variation in prison systems.

HOW THE MANUAL IS ORGANIZED

- Section I Contains a list of the basic training every person who supervises prisoners or detainees should be given. The section provides a brief description of each section, an approximation of the minimum time necessary to teach it and any special notes about the activity.
- Section II Contains a list of the minimum on-going or annual training necessary for correctional personnel to maintain a minimum standard of proficiency. An article on conducting a training needs assessment is included as a reminder that in training, as in all of corrections, the program must be tailored to the needs as they actually exist and the development of training should be based on those needs as identified through a specific and detailed process. Additional samples of training course summaries are included here.

- Section III Contains sample training modules and lesson plans on certain items that should be taught in a consistent manner in all correctional systems. These include certain staff safety and human rights subjects. Included also, where appropriate, are the applicable international standards, sample post orders, mentoring guidelines and procedures and alternate lesson plans.
- Section IV Contains information on the training of trainers and on training techniques, including the use of experienced staff as on-the-job trainers, mentors and coaches.
- Section V Contains information on testing mechanisms and processes.
- Section VI Contains information on specific skills and traits necessary to be an effective correctional officer.
- Section VII Credits and index of sources and references for material used in the manual.
- Section VIII Contains information on the various UN and other international standards that impact on corrections.
- Section IX Supplemental information which may be useful to those working in special situations such as peacekeeping/peacebuilding operations, areas with a high Muslim population, having to work through interpreters or other special challenges which those developing training must consider when preparing their material.

1SECTION I - BASIC CORRECTIONAL OFFICER TRAINING COURSE

The material in this chapter has been gathered by a review of training programs conducted in individual correctional institutions, training academies and educational institutions from literally every part of the world. Though most of the information comes from organizations located in North America and Europe, material from six continents was reviewed. In some cases, where no formal written material was available, ISPAC Resource Committee members interviewed individuals responsible for training or gleaned material from articles. The material in this section is what was found to be an almost universally agreed upon set of the basic and minimum information people working in a correctional facility should have included in their initial training. The times suggested here for each course is, again, a compilation of what was gathered from the material reviewed. It is suggested that each correctional training program develop a summary of the course content that can be distributed to the students when they first enter the training program. This will allow them to see how all the various subjects fit together. The material was presented to groups of correctional personnel and trainers at workshops/training sessions in several nations. Their input was used to modify the initial material.

It is important to remind the user that this manual is a generic version, using sample laws and policies, and must be modified for the unique needs of each correctional facility and nation's legal and social system. Thus, each reader is encouraged to use the following as a guide and to rewrite the material as deemed appropriate.

Before working in a jail, prison or other correctional facility, it is important that certain basic elements are taught to each new employee. This is especially true for personnel who will be working directly with inmates. Following is an outline of what those basic elements should be.

The individual institution may wish to change the order suggested for some of the training modules, or may wish to add to or modify some of the topics. In Section III some suggested lesson plans will be provided for some of the subjects covered below. In other instances, each institution will have to develop their own.

The amount of time suggested for each module is based on the experience of similar training modules as operated in several correctional institutions in different parts of the world. The time is the minimum needed to cover the subject and is meant as a guide to help you develop your own module or modify one of the enclosed samples for your own use. Additionally, Section IV contains information on various ways of presenting the training depending upon the time, expertise and resources each institution has available

Though physical fitness training is important, it is not mentioned in this manual. Many correctional systems bring their recruits into an academy and provide them with as much as six months to a year of basic training which includes many additional elements not included here. Those who do more are to be commended and, if possible, copied by others. However, this manual is intended to present the minimum subject matter necessary for the efficient, effective and humane performance of duties. It goes without saying that without proper supervision and constant reinforcement of both the philosophy of the correctional system and the appropriate behavior of the staff, the training is of little value.

Finally, what is presented here is the minimum classroom material. It is strongly suggested that the training include several practical sessions where the recruits spend time with experienced officers inside of correctional facilities. After the initial orientation, a visit to one or more prisons is an important way to help the recruit to better understand what he or she will be exposed to during the individual lessons. It is also recommended that experienced officers be trained as "coaches" (see the section on training of trainers) so when they are working with recruits, they can help reinforce and enhance the basic training.

THE FIRST WEEK -- AN OVERVIEW OF CORRECTIONS AND WORKING IN IT

1. ORIENTATION TO THE NATION'S PRISON SYSTEM AND THE OFFICER'S OBLIGATION UNDER THE LAW

This is the student's introduction to the corrections system. It begins with an overview of the nation's criminal justice system and moves to the specifics of the laws covering the prison system. It ends by covering the general duties and expected behavior of prison personnel. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

2. OVERVIEW OF THE PRISON SYSTEM

This module looks at the purpose of prison within the nation. Emphasis is given to the legal difference of the status of a confinee in pre-trial detention and an offender imprisoned as a condition of the court-imposed sentence. It will also cover the different classifications of inmates which must, by law, be kept separate from each other. The final section will list and define the various prisons within the nation and describe their general purpose, population capacities and security levels. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

3. WHO IS IN OUR PRISONS AND WHY?

This module provides information on the race, sex, age, offense, and average term served by the nation's inmates. It also covers the types and numbers of inmates from foreign nations. The lesson ends with a discussion among the students to help identify any false stereotypes and prejudices they might have concerning inmates in general. It will include a discussion on the causes of crime, especially violent crime, within the nation. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

4. INTERNATIONAL STANDARDS AND NORMS IMPACTING ON PRISON WORK AND INMATES

This module provides an in-depth introduction of the United Nations and other appropriate Standards and Norms defining the minimum standards of treatment required for detained and sentenced individuals. It covers inmate rights and staff responsibilities. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 4 hours.

5. PRISON POLICIES AND PROCEDURES

This module identifies the authority under which the prison system works and provides an overview of the policies. Sample policies and procedures are presented. Group discussions and exercises are conducted to enable participants to find solutions to policy questions they might encounter. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 6 hours.

6. CROSS-CULTURAL AWARENESS

The purpose of this module is to provide participants with the knowledge and skills necessary to supervise and effectively communicate with all members of today's culturally diverse prison community, thereby improving the overall effectiveness of prison operations and avoiding culturally related supervision problems. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

7. INMATE DISCIPLINE

This module presents an introduction to the discipline process by reviewing the established rules for inmate behavior. The concept of due process in the discipline program is explained as well as punishment options. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 3 hours.

8. INMATES AND THE PRISON ENVIRONMENT

This module begins with a brief discussion of the impact of prison and confinement on both inmates and staff. It covers the various stages inmates go through from reception to discharge from the system. This is followed by discussions of the subtle, destructive manipulation by some inmates that can lead staff into criminal activity while working in a prison. The manipulation techniques of the criminal personality are explored as a way of developing insights to protect against the "games" that some inmates play. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 4 hours.

9. VIOLENCE IN PRISON

This module looks at the issue of inmate violence from the point of view of controls available in prison settings. An analysis of previous disturbances or violent incidence is presented. Discussion of inmate needs and the physical conditions helping lead to prison disturbances is also provided. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 1 hour.

10. EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS

The previous lessons have laid the legal, operational and philosophical base of the prisons and the prison environment. This module looks at the types of emergencies for which correctional staff must be prepared. Though some potential emergency situations may be specific to a particular institution, several common factors do exist. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

11. HOSTAGE SURVIVAL

This module answers the question, "What should I do if I were taken hostage?" Mental and emotional preparedness is stressed along with a discussion of the emergency planning that is part of the institutional response to hostage situations. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

12. FIRE SAFETY

Fires in a prison are especially dangerous due to the security arrangements of prisons. All staff are expected to respond to fire emergencies as well as be aware of their role in fire prevention. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 1 hour.

13. SUPERVISION OF INMATES

This module looks at the duties, responsibilities and techniques of inmate supervision. It provides some specific supervision activities when dealing with inmates who are members of organized gangs.

THE SECOND WEEK -- MANAGING PROBLEMS IN A PRISON SETTING

14. INTRODUCTION TO SEARCHING TECHNIQUES

This program is divided into sub-sections that deal with techniques for clothed body searches, unclothed body searches and cell or area searches. A consistent "head to toe" approach to the frisk search is demonstrated as one of the security skills that will be tested at the end of the week. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 4 hours.

15. DRUG AWARENESS

This module introduces the drugs commonly found in prisons. It provides information on the use, effect and identification of chemicals and substances abused by inmates. It provides information concerning safety issues for staff who may come into contact with these substances. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

16. SUICIDE PREVENTION

This module helps the staff identify the warning signs that people contemplating suicide often exhibit. Correctional Staff need to be aware of their role in identifying and preventing inmate suicide. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 1 hour.

17. SIZING UP THE SITUATION – BEING AWARE OF YOUR ENVIRONMENT

This module helps the staff know what is happening in any situation. Sizing up helps avoid costly mistakes and maximizes the chances that decisions will be effective and accurate. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

18. COMMUNICATING WITH INMATES

This module provides the skills to help staff open up communications with inmates. It provides staff with the ability to get another person to tell them more about what he or she knows or thinks. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

19. CONTROLLING INMATE BEHAVIOR

Besides the need to protect the due process rights of inmates, there is a need to effectively deal with inmate behavior on an on-going basis that requires good management and communication skills on the part of prison workers. This module focuses on various proven ways to effectively correct behavior. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

20. FIRST AID AND HEALTH PROMOTION

This program includes an introduction to Emergency Action Principles as well as correct procedures for patient assessment prior to rendering or summoning aid. Techniques for rescue breathing, clearing an obstructed airway, and CPR are taught as well as other procedures for emergency conditions that, if not treated, can become life threatening very quickly. The session ends with a discussion of health and disease issues, such as TB, AIDS and other communicable diseases. It also covers information on what officers can do to help promote general health and sanitary conditions within the facility. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 8 hours.

21. PERSONNEL PROTECTION TECHNIQUES

This module introduces some fundamental principles of personal protection. A variety of defensive release techniques are demonstrated and practiced. The course concludes with several practical control techniques. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

22. KEY AND TOOL CONTROL

The secure use of tools and keys is an important aspect of every institutional operation. Basic ideas on acquisition and control of these devices is explored and discussed. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 4 hours.

23. INMATE COUNTS

This module introduces important security supervision techniques that are required in inmate management. The focus is on developing good observation skills along with procedures for conducting various types of inmate counts. An exercise in counting is a concluding activity for this module. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 1 hour.

24. REPORT WRITING

This module provides an introduction to basic report writing skills as a background to the legal and administrative requirements for reports of the Prison system. The program is divided into two sessions and concludes with a Practicum where each participant will complete several reports that are reviewed under the supervision of the instructor. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

25. STRESS MANAGEMENT

This module demonstrates stress management techniques and has participants practice some of them. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

THE THIRD WEEK -- SECURITY PROCEDURE AND FIREARMS

26. USE OF FORCE

This module investigates the types of force to use in controlling inmates, always keeping it to the least amount of force necessary. Practice in identifying potentially dangerous situations and how to handle them in as non-combative a manner as possible is given each participant. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

27. WEAPONS

This module prepares the trainees for the specific weapons they will use in corrections. The basics of weapon and range safety are carefully presented as the most important aspect of weapons handling. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 1 hour.

A. INTRODUCTION TO WEAPONS

This module prepares the staff for the potentiality of carrying firearms and chemical agents as a job responsibility related to the authority granted them by the State. This course presents basic introductory skills and a familiarization with the handling characteristics and functional operation of each of the weapons they will use in their job. Classroom demonstration is provided for each weapon. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

B. WEAPONS – CLASSROOM PRACTICE

Each trainee is given ample time to become physically acquainted with the operation of each weapon as a prelude to range practice and qualification. A series of drills and simulations are used to develop and enhance good shooting skills prior to range use of these weapons. Special training on the handling and use of chemical agents will be covered. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

C. RANGE PRACTICE AND QUALIFICATION

Each trainee will have an opportunity to practice with each weapon and then demonstrate a minimum of 70% proficiency with each weapon that they may be authorized to use in the course of their working duties. The courses of fire are designed to demonstrate accuracy and timeliness in weapon use. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

D. LOW-LIGHT AND NIGHT FIRING COURSES

Firing at Dusk and during night conditions provides an important familiarization with the limitations of using a weapon in these conditions. The course of fire includes the use of all basic weapons under both low-light and full night darkness conditions. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

28. USING RESTRAINING DEVICES

The skills needed to safely and securely apply restraining devices are demonstrated in this module. The participants will learn the functional capability of restraints along with special skills used in the preparation for the transportation of prisoners. A safe transportation method is demonstrated. This is one of the security skills that will be tested at the end of the week. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 3 hours.

29. TRANSPORTATION OF PRISONERS

This module introduces the security problems involved in motorized transportation of prisoners. A review of common problems is presented. A variety of seating arrangement scenarios are analyzed in preparation for this portion of the security skills evaluation at the end of the week. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

30. USE OF RADIO/TELEPHONES

This module demonstrates the different types of radio and telephone equipment used in corrections. Each trainee will be given an opportunity to practice with each type of radio.

Communication security and methods of clear and concise communications are covered. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

SECTION II – ADDITIONAL TRAINING INFORMATION AND OUTLINES

ANNUAL AND ON-GOING TRAINING

The material in this chapter has been gathered by a review of training programs conducted in individual prisons, training academies and educational institutions around the world. In some cases, where no formal written material was available individuals responsible for training were interviewed or material was gleaned from articles. The material in this section is what was found to be an almost universally agreed upon set of the basic and minimum information people working in a prison should have included in their annual and refresher training. The times suggested here for each course is, again, a compilation of what was gathered from the material reviewed and is considered the minimum necessary to cover the subject.

Training Needs Analysis

A Training Needs Analysis (TNA) should be conducted as a first step in the process of developing a training framework.² TNAs should focus on identifying and solving performance issues. Part of this process includes identifying knowledge and competency gaps and determining whether training is an appropriate remedial response. This determination is a key aspect of a training needs analysis since training when used to address issues which cannot be resolved by a training response is both wasteful of resources and damaging to the credibility and integrity of the broader training program. It is important to note that in the context of a TNA ‘need’ is the gap between “what is” and “what ought to be” rather than a “want” or a “desire.” The learning required, i.e. the skills and knowledge to be learned, competencies needed and attitude change desired, should be clearly specified.

The purpose of a Training Needs Analysis is:

- To determine training relevant to prison staff jobs
- To determine training that will improve performance
- To determine whether training will make a difference
- To distinguish training needs from organizational problems
- To link improved job performance with the organization’s goals, and
- To determine what, if any, training has already been given, when and to whom.

A TNA may be conducted as a written survey or audit completed by individual staff. It may be conducted or supplemented by individual interviews or focus groups. National prison staff should be involved in both developing the questionnaires and conducting the analysis. Following is a sample form which can be used in conducting a Training Needs Analysis:

1SECTION III – TRAINING MODULES/LESSON PLANS

Though most of the sample lesson plans come from organizations located in North America and Europe, material from continents was reviewed. In some cases, where no formal written material was available, ISPAC and ICPA Resource Committee members interviewed individuals responsible for training or gleaned material from articles. The material in this section is what was found to be an almost universally agreed upon set of the basic and minimum information people working in a correctional facility should have included in their initial training. The times suggested here for each course is, again, a compilation of what was gathered from the material reviewed. The primary lesson plan format is explained below. In some cases, supplemental lesson plans are provided which utilize different types of lesson plan formats.

Many of the lesson plans included have been taken directly from existing training academies and modified only slightly. This has been done when it is felt that the particular plan presents a good general picture of the type of subject matter that should be presented. By using various styles of lesson plans, it is hoped that the reader might find which model suits his or her style best and will give a variety of choices when the person writes their own lesson plans.

When electronic, video or other equipment was suggested in the original lesson plan, it has been eliminated here in recognition that many training facilities lack the necessary equipment. However, for just about every lesson presented, video and computer programs have been developed in many nations. If the reader feels that such programs or material might be helpful, he/she is encouraged to contact us for more information. Some supplemental lesson plans which are based on video or computer programs (primarily PowerPoint presentations) have been included.

It is important to remind the user that this manual is a generic version and must be modified for the unique needs of each correctional facility and nation's legal and social system. Thus, each reader is encouraged to use the following as a guide and to rewrite the material as deemed appropriate.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES :

In between lines like this will be notes to the instructor on the material that follows. Some of the notes will indicate specific suggestions on how the material should be presented. Other items might include reasons for the presentation of the material and/or specific ways to involve the students.

DISCUSSION GUIDE :

In between lines like this will be material that can be used by the instructor to lead group discussions with the students. Depending upon the size of the class and the amount of individual student participation desired, the instructor can either lead a discussion (or question and answer session) with the entire class or the class can be divided into smaller groups with each group discussing specific items (each group can discuss the same item or each group can discuss separate items assigned by the instructor). If the class is divided into groups, a spokesperson for each group should give a brief summary of their conclusions to the entire class.

Material in the lesson plans written in bold italics generally mean that it is taken directly from the laws, policies, or standard operating procedures of a particular nation to be used as an example. The reader is reminded that these laws, policies or standard operating procedures are the ones available to the writer and may be out-of-date or may even have been eliminated. They are used as examples and must be reviewed and changed as necessary to fit the applicable laws, policies or procedures of the nation for which the training manual is being modified.

1 LESSON PLAN 1 – Orientation to the nation’s prison system and the officer’s obligation under the law.

NOTE: The data used as an example is from the nation of Cameroon. This entire lesson plan must be rewritten by personnel within the nation using it to reflect their laws and procedures.

Method of Instruction: Lecture, Discussion, Question and Answer

Time Frame: 2 Hours

Performance Objectives: At the conclusion of this block of instruction the student will:

1. The student will correctly name the major components of the nation's justice system.
2. The student will correctly identify the nation's Prison Law and the legislative source of the Prison rules.
3. The student will list at least 3 things permitted of correctional officers identified in the legislation.
4. The student will list at least 3 things a correctional officer is prohibited from doing.

References: Penal Code (Law No. 65-LF-24 of 12 November 65 and Law No. 67-LF-1 of 12 June 67); Constitution of Cameroon, revised 18 January 1996.

Training Aides Required: Blackboard or Flip Chart, copy of handout material for each student. Copy of Penal Code (Law No. 65-LF-24 of 12 November 65 and Law No. 67-LF-1 of 12 June 67).

INSTRUCTOR’S NOTES:

The following introduction should be read pretty much as it is written. The instructor may wish to change some of the wording to better fit his or her style and to include some specific mention of the local or national identity. This is the time to insure that the students understand the importance of this material to themselves, to the organization, to the nation and to the citizens they are hired to protect and serve. This would be a good time for a high ranking government or police official to be present to either deliver this introduction or to help give credibility to how seriously this material is viewed by the leadership.

INTRODUCTION

A prison is not a democracy! Having said that, it is important for all staff to know that it is also not a private kingdom ruled over by all-powerful staff. Not even the top prison administrator in our nation has total power over the lives of the inmates. We operate by a system of laws and procedures. Just as the police in the free world can only arrest, charge and convict a person for activities that have been declared illegal by the governmental process, so it is in the prison. We operate under a set of laws. We can only discipline a prisoner for a violation of those specific laws. Just as a free person has certain rights to a properly handled arrest and trial, so do we within the prison.

The justice system is composed of three elements. Operating under the law of the country it has the police who arrest, the courts which convict and the prisons to carry out the decrees of the court. The police do not give out punishment, they are to only arrest those suspected of a crime. They must remember that the person is innocent until a court says they are guilty. The court, using the laws established by the legislative branch and hearing the evidence, determines the guilt or innocence of the person and decides on the sentence. That sentence is also prescribed in accordance with established law. The prison is to keep the person away from other citizens to help protect the public. The prison is also charged with doing all it can to help the person acquire whatever skills or treatment possible so as when the prisoner is released, he or she will be equipped to live a crime-free life if they so choose. Finally, a person is sent to prison as punishment, not for punishment. That means that the prison staff is not given the responsibility to make the person suffer through the application of abuse, mental or physical. The mere fact that the person is deprived of freedom of movement, has limits placed on his or her ability to visit with family and friends is the punishment.

The Constitution of Cameroon and the Penal Code (Law No. 65-LF-24 of 12 November 65 and Law No. 67-LF-1 of 12 June 67) defines the disciplinary and penal provisions under which we operate.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Break the class into small groups and ask each of them to discuss the substance of the following material in terms of how they see it defining their roles.

On January 18, 1996, the 1972 version of the Constitution of Cameroon was amended. The Preamble says, in part:

“We, the people of Cameroon,

Proud of our linguistic and cultural diversity, an enriching feature of our national identity, but profoundly aware of the imperative need to further consolidate our unity, solemnly declare that we constitute one and the same Nation, bound by the same destiny, and assert our firm determination to build the Cameroonian Fatherland on the basis of the ideals of fraternity, justice and progress;

Jealous of our hard-won independence and resolved to preserve same; convinced that the salvation of Africa lies in forging ever-growing bonds of solidarity among African Peoples, affirm our desire to contribute to the advent of a united and free Africa, while maintaining peaceful and brotherly relations with the other nations of the World, in accordance with the principles enshrined in the Charter of the United Nations;

Declare that the human person, without distinction as to race, religion, sex or belief, possesses inalienable and sacred rights;

Affirm our attachment to the fundamental freedoms enshrined in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the Charter of the United Nations and the African Charter on Human and People’s Rights and all duly ratified international conventions relating thereto, in particular, to the following principles:

-all persons shall have equal rights and obligations. The State shall provide all its citizens with the conditions necessary for their development;

- the State shall ensure the protection of minorities and shall preserve the rights of indigenous populations in accordance with the law;
- no person may be compelled to do what the law does not prescribe;
- no person may be prosecuted, arrested or detained except in the cases and according to the manner determined by law;
- the law may not have retrospective effect. No person may be judged and punished, except by virtue of a law enacted and published before the offence committed;
- the law shall ensure the right of every person to a fair hearing before the courts;
- every accused person has a right to life, to physical and moral integrity and to humane treatment in all circumstances. Under no circumstances shall any person be subjected to torture, to cruel, inhumane or degrading treatment;
- no person shall be harassed on grounds of his origin, religious, philosophical or political opinions or beliefs, subject to respect for public policy;
- freedom of religion and worship shall be guaranteed;
- the State shall guarantee all citizens of either sex the rights and freedoms set forth in the Preamble of the Constitution.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

This is an excellent time to remind the students that the nation and its prisons work under a system of laws. Point out that the reason they are to learn these and other laws and policies is because it is their responsibility not only to carry out the dictates of the law, but to recognize when they are asked or encouraged to something that is against the law. When that happens they have the right to refuse the order on the grounds that it is not lawful. This will be a rare occurrence, but should be especially followed in regards to the treatment of offenders and fellow officers. Be sure the students understand that all personnel, including the Warden, are responsible to insure that all who are imprisoned are done so under the direction and protection of the laws of Cameroon.

Part II of the Penal Code deals with the provisions of punishment and prevention. It is the intent of the criminal law of Cameroon that both the correction of the offender and the protection of the public be considered. As stated in the preliminary Circular 3-DL-1129, "public protection, to be effective, and particularly in the case of first offenders and young persons, even if not minor, demands a wide range of penalties and measures at the disposal of the courts, thus enabling them to make the punishment fit not only the crime but also the criminal, taking account of his chances of reformation, to avoid so far as at all possible the risks of contamination, relapse and repetition producing persistent (habitual) offenders who can be dealt with only by preventive confinement.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

Point out that the following specific sections of the Penal Code have direct bearing on the work of the prison officer. For example, Section 17 tells the prison officer that they can not add to the punishment of the prisoner on their own. Make sure each group discusses the following sections in terms of how it impacts on them and their work.

Following are some specific provisions of the Code that have a direct impact on the job of a correctional officer.

Section 17: No penalty or measure may be imposed unless provided by law, and except in respect of an offence lawfully defined.

Section 24: Imprisonment. Imprisonment shall mean loss of liberty during which the offender shall be obliged to work, subject to any contrary order of the court for reasons to be recorded in the judgement.

Section 25: Prisoner's Fund

The proceeds of every prisoner's work shall be allocated as follows:

2/3 to the Treasury

1/3 to the building up of a personal savings fund for the prisoner.

Section 26: Detention. Detention shall mean loss of liberty imposed for a political felony or misdemeanor³, during which the offender shall not be obliged to work, and shall be confined in a special establishment, or failing such establishment separately from those convicted under the ordinary law.

Section 27: Commencement of Sentence.

Where the offender has not been in custody pending trial, and where no warrant of arrest or remand is issued against him at the time of judgment in the circumstances authorized by the Criminal Procedure Code, no sentence of loss of liability may be enforced until it has become final.

No woman who is with child or who has been recently delivered may begin to serve her sentence until six weeks after delivery.

1. A woman with child already in custody pending trial shall continue until the expiry of the said period to be in custody as if awaiting trial.

Note: Part (2) and (3) also means that a woman giving birth when in custody awaiting trial continues to have the advantage of this less rigorous custody for six weeks after, despite conviction. Since custody awaiting trial is compulsorily counted towards the duration of the sentence, her ultimate release is not postponed by reason of her starting to serve her sentence later.

Where a husband and wife have been sentenced for the same or different offences to imprisonment for less than a year, and are not in custody at the time of sentence, and show that they have a fixed common residence and a child under the age of eighteen supported by them and in their charge, the sentence on one may be suspended until expiry of the sentence on the other.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

As the individual groups begin to discuss Section 28, ask the class as a whole if they know why it is important for individual officers to know how sentences are calculated. The class should be helped to understand that the main question all inmates have and the most important item to them is when they will be released. Thus, it is important for all officers to be able to explain how sentences are calculated.

³ The instructor should be prepared to define legal and other terms the students might not be familiar with.
BASIC TRAINING MANUAL FOR CORRECTIONAL WORKERS – GENERIC DRAFT – June 2006

Section 28 – Calculation of sentence.

In a sentence of loss of liberty expressed in days, each day shall mean twenty-four hours.

2. Sentence of one month shall mean thirty days.

3. Sentence expressed in months or years shall be specified by calendar date/

4. . . . the duration of the sentence shall include and run from:

the day on which the offender was taken into custody under that sentence; or in a case of concurrent sentences passed on different dates, the day on which he was first taken into custody under any such sentence.

In case of escape, the period of unlawful liberty shall not be counted in the duration of the sentence.

Section 29 – Separation of Minors. An offender under the age of eighteen shall serve his sentence in a special establishment, or, failing such establishment, shall be separated from offenders over that age.

Section 37 – Preventive Confinement shall mean confinement for from five to twenty years under a programme of work and social reformation, during which the offender shall, in default of a separate establishment, be confined separately from convicts serving a sentence of imprisonment.

Section 83 - Obedience to Lawful Authority

No criminal responsibility shall arise from an act performed on the orders of a competent authority to whom obedience is lawfully due.

This section shall not apply where the order is manifestly unlawful.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Section 83 is clear that even if a superior officer orders a subordinate to carry out a clearly unlawful order – such as to confine a person under the age of 10 in the same cell with adult offenders – the subordinate can be prosecuted for a criminal act. Have the class discuss how they can tell what is “manifestly unlawful” as opposed to something that they might not know for sure is unlawful. Section 84 poses another area of judgment on the part of the officer. His “defence” or use of force must be proportionate with the perceived threat.

Section 84 -- Lawful Defence

No criminal responsibility shall arise from an act dictated by the immediate necessity of defence of the person acting or of any other person, or of any right of himself or of any other, against an unlawful infringement.

Provided that the means of defence be proportionate to the seriousness of the infringement threatened.

Intentional killing shall be proportionate to an attack causing a reasonable apprehension of death, of grievous harm as defined by the Penal Code, of rape or of sodomy.

Section 89 – Public Servant. Subject to any special penalties provided for felonies or misdemeanors committed by public servants, the fact of being a public servant established or otherwise shall aggravate the responsibility of any such person guilty of any other felony or misdemeanor against which it is his duty to guard or to take action.

NOTE: Examples would be the policeman who commits a theft, the customs officer who commits smuggling -- a prison warder who abets a punishable escape incurs as accessory to the same penalty as the escaping prisoner, but doubled under this section.

Section 132 – Aggravation for Public Servant. Any public servant who uses force to any person shall be punished, where no heavier punishment is provided, with imprisonment for from six months to five years.

Section 134 – Corruption

Any public servant or government employee who, for himself or for a third party, solicits, accepts or receives any offer, promise, gift or present in order to perform, refrain from performing or postpone any act of his office shall be punished with imprisonment for from five to ten years and with fine of from two hundred thousand to two million francs.

The term of imprisonment shall be from one to five years and the fine from one hundred thousand to one million francs where the act does not lie within the competence of the person corrupted but was however facilitated by his office.

5. Any public servant or government employee who solicits or accepts any reward in money or fund for himself or for a third party as remuneration for having already performed or refrained from any such act shall be punished in like manner as under the foregoing subsection (2).

Section 138 – Failure to report deficiency. Any public servant having knowledge of any cash or book deficiency in the accounts of a public official under his orders or supervision, and not reporting the deficiency to the legal authorities or to his immediate superior, shall be punished with imprisonment for from one to five years.

Section 140 – Oppression. Any public servant who takes advantage of his position to infringe any private right or interest shall be punished with imprisonment for from three months to one year, or with fine of from five thousand to fifty thousand francs, or with both such imprisonment and fine.

Section 147 – Denial of Justice. Any person exercising judicial functions who declines, after having been duly moved in that behalf, to issue a decision, shall be punished with imprisonment for from three months to two years.

Section 156 – Assault on Public Servant.

Whoever uses force to a public servant or otherwise interferes with him, shall be punished with imprisonment for from one month to three years and with fine of from five thousand to one hundred thousand francs.

6. Where the force or interference is premeditated, or where it results, intentionally or otherwise, in harm within the meaning of section 277 or 280 of this Code, the punishment shall be imprisonment for from five to ten years, and fine of from twenty thousand to five hundred thousand francs.

Where the force or interference results unintentionally in death, the punishment shall be imprisonment for life.

Where the force or interference is intended to cause death the punishment shall be death.

Section 157 – Simple Resistance.

Whoever by force or other interference obstructs the performance of his lawful duty by any person engaged in the execution of any law, regulation, decision in the administration of justice or other lawful order, shall be punished with imprisonment for from three months to four years.

Where the offender or any co-offender is armed the punishment shall be for from one to five years.

Section 158 – Collective Resistance.

Where the offence defined in the last foregoing section is committed by five or more persons together the punishment shall be imprisonment for from one to three years; and where any two of them openly bear arms the imprisonment shall be for from five to fifteen years.

Any co-offender who himself bears arms, open or concealed, shall be punished with imprisonment for from five to fifteen years.

Section 160 – Compulsion of Public Servant. Whoever by interference or threat procures a public servant improperly to perform or to refrain from any act of his office, shall be punished with imprisonment for from two to ten years and with fine of from twenty thousand to one million francs.

Section 162 – Misleading Public Servant.

Whoever by any false statement influences the conduct of a public servant shall be punished with imprisonment for from fifteen days to three months and with fine of from five thousand to fifty thousand francs.

Whoever by any means procures the entry in the criminal record of any one person of the conviction of any other shall be punished with imprisonment for from one to five years.

7. Whoever by any means procures the improper issue to himself of an extract from the criminal record of another person shall be punished with imprisonment for from one month to one year.

Section 192 – Communication with Persons in Custody. Whoever contrary to the rules governing the custody of any person lawfully detained facilitates his relations with any outside party, shall be punished with imprisonment from three months to six months.

Section 193 – Escape.

Whoever escapes from lawful custody, or who being permitted to work outside prison leaves his place of work without permission, shall be punished with imprisonment for from three months to one year.

Whoever assists any person to escape from lawful custody shall be punished in like manner.

For escape or rescue effected by force to the person or to property the punishment shall be imprisonment for from one to five years; and for escape or rescue with arms the punishment shall be imprisonment for from five to ten years.

Where the person in custody is charged with felony or has been sentenced to loss of liberty for more than ten years the punishment shall be imprisonment for from five to ten years.

CONCLUSION

The Cameroon Corrections Corp is a very important part of a legal system designed to provide all our citizens and visitors with a fair and effective system of justice. Because the taking away of individual freedom and the locking of individuals in prisons is such a harsh and difficult part of all societies, the Cameroon people have taken great steps to insure that the system is as humane and just as possible. It is our duty as correctional staff to be aware of both the spirit and the letter of the law and to follow it strictly.

To this end and to strive for meeting the charge to encourage and assist prisoners to change positively to lead a crime-free life all prison officers who have contact with inmates must always interact and communicate with prisoners with respect and in a manner that reinforces positive behavior and progressive change in their lives.

QUIZ

1. List the three sides of the justice triangle.
2. What does the Constitution of Cameroon say about the human person?
3. Discuss three things that correctional officers are prohibited from doing and indicate what punishment they can suffer if they violate them.
4. What is the main Prison Law of Cameroon?

Answers to Quiz

MOTIVATION:

A prison is not a democracy!

Having said that, it is important for all staff to know that it is also not a private kingdom ruled over by all-powerful staff. Not even the top prison administrator in our nation has total power over the lives of the inmates.

We operate by a system of laws and procedures. Just as the police in the free world can only arrest, charge and convict a person for activities that have been declared illegal by the governmental process, so it is in the prison. We operate under a set of laws.

We can only discipline a prisoner for a violation of those specific laws. Just as a free person has certain rights to a properly handled arrest and trial, so do we within the prison.

PRESENTATION

The justice system is composed of three elements.

LECTURE:

Operating under the law of the country it has the police who arrest, the courts, which convict and the prisons to carry out the decrees of the court.

The police do not give out punishment, they are to only arrest those suspected of a crime. They must remember that the person is innocent until a court says they are guilty.

The court, using the laws established by the legislative branch and hearing the evidence, determines the guilt or innocence of the person and decides on the sentence.

That sentence is also prescribed in accordance with established law. The prison is to keep the person away from other citizens to help protect the public.

The prison is also charged with doing all it can to help the person acquire whatever skills or treatment possible so as when the prisoner is released, he or she will be equipped to live a crime-free life if they so choose.

Finally, a person is sent to prison as punishment, not for punishment. That means that the prison staff is not given the responsibility to make the person suffer through the application of abuse, mental or physical. The mere fact that the person is deprived of freedom of movement has limits placed on his or her ability to visit with family and friends is the punishment.

The Constitution of Cameroon and the Penal Code (Law No. 65-LF-24 of 12 November 65 and Law No. 67-LF-1 of 12 June 67) defines the disciplinary and penal provisions under which we operate.

*“We, the people of Cameroon,
Proud of our linguistic and cultural diversity, an enriching* feature of our national identity, but profoundly aware of the imperative need to further consolidate our unity, solemnly declare that we constitute one and the same Nation, bound by the same destiny, and assert our firm determination to build the Cameroonian Fatherland on the basis of the ideals of fraternity, justice and progress;

Jealous of our hard-won independence and resolved to preserve same; convinced that the salvation of Africa lies in forging ever-growing bonds of solidarity among African Peoples, affirm our desire to contribute to the advent of a united and free Africa, while maintaining peaceful and brotherly relations with the other nations of the World, in accordance with the principles enshrined in the Charter of the United Nations;

LECTURE:

We, the people of Cameroon

Declare that the human person, without distinction as to race, religion, sex or belief, possesses inalienable and sacred rights;

Affirm our attachment to the fundamental freedoms enshrined in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the Charter of the United Nations and the African Charter on Human and People's Rights and all duly ratified international conventions relating thereto, in particular, to the following principles:

- all persons shall have equal rights and obligations. The State shall provide all its citizens with the conditions necessary for their development;
- the State shall ensure the protection of minorities and shall preserve the rights of indigenous populations in accordance with the law;
- no person may be compelled to do what the law does not prescribe;
- no person may be prosecuted, arrested or detained except in the cases and according to the manner determined by law;
- the law may not have retrospective effect. No person may be judged and punished, except by virtue of a law enacted and published before the offence committed;
- the law shall ensure the right of every person to a fair hearing before the courts;
- every accused person has a right to life, to physical and moral integrity and to humane treatment in all circumstances. Under no circumstances shall any person be subjected to torture, to cruel, inhumane or degrading treatment;

- no person shall be harassed on grounds of his origin, religious, philosophical or political opinions or beliefs, subject to respect for public policy;
- freedom of religion and worship shall be guaranteed;
- the State shall guarantee all citizens of either sex the rights and freedoms set forth in the Preamble of the Constitution.

INSTRUCTORS NOTE:

This is an excellent time to remind the students that the nation and its prisons work under a system of laws.

Point out that the reason they are to learn these and other laws and policies is because it is their responsibility not only to carry out the dictates of the law, but to recognize when they are asked or encouraged to something that is against the law. When that happens they have the right to refuse the order on the grounds that it is not lawful. This will be a rare occurrence, but should be especially followed in regards to the treatment of offenders and fellow officers.

Be sure the students understand that all personnel, including the Warden, are responsible to insure that all who are imprisoned are done so under the direction and protection of the laws of Cameroon.

LECTURE:

Part II of the Penal Code deals with the provisions of punishment and prevention. It is the intent of the criminal law of Cameroon that both the correction of the offender and the protection of the public be considered.

As stated in the preliminary Circular 3-DL-1129, "public protection, to be effective, and particularly in the case of first offenders and young persons, even if not minor, demands a wide range of penalties and measures at the disposal of the courts. Thus enabling them to make the punishment fit not only the crime but also the criminal, taking account of his chances of reformation, to avoid so far as at all possible the risks of contamination, relapse and repetition producing persistent offenders who can be dealt with only by preventive confinement.

INSTRUCTORS NOTE:

Point out that the following specific sections of the Penal Code have direct bearing on the work of the prison officer.

For example:

Section 17 tells the prison officer that they can not add to the punishment of the prisoner on their own. Make sure each group discusses the following sections in terms of how it impacts on them and their work.

LECTURE:

Following are some specific provisions of the Code that have a direct impact on the job of a correctional officer.

Section 17: No penalty or measure may be imposed unless provided by law, and except in respect of an offence lawfully defined.

LECTURE:

Section 24: Imprisonment. Imprisonment shall mean loss of liberty during which the offender shall be obliged to work, subject to any contrary order of the court for reasons to be recorded in the judgement.

Section 25: Prisoner's Fund

The proceeds of every prisoner's work shall be allocated as follows:

- 2/3 to the Treasury
- 1/3 to the building up of a reserve fund for the prisoner.

Section 26: Detention. Detention shall mean loss of liberty imposed for a political felony or misdemeanour, during which the offender shall not be obliged to work, and shall be confined in a special establishment, or failing such establishment separately from those convicted under the ordinary law.

Section 27: Commencement of Sentence.

Where the offender has not been in custody pending trial, and where no warrant of arrest or remand is issued against him at the time of judgment in the circumstances authorized by the Criminal Procedure Code, no sentence of loss of liability may be enforced until it has become final.

No woman who is with child or who has been recently delivered may begin to serve her sentence until six weeks after delivery.

1. A woman with child already in custody pending trial shall continue until the expiry of the said period to be in custody as if awaiting trial.

Note: Part (2) and (3) also means that a woman giving birth when in custody awaiting trial continues to have the advantage of this less rigorous custody for six weeks after, despite conviction.

Since custody awaiting trial is compulsorily counted towards the duration of the sentence, her ultimate release is not postponed by reason of her starting to serve her sentence later.

LECTURE:

Where a husband and wife have been sentenced for the same or different offences to imprisonment for less than a year, and are not in custody at the time of sentence, and show that they have a fixed common residence and a child under the age of eighteen supported by them and in their charge, the sentence on one may be suspended until expiry of the sentence on the other.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

As the individual groups begin to discuss Section 28, ask the class as a whole if they know why it is important for individual officers to know how sentences are calculated.

The class should be helped to understand that the main question all inmates have and the most important item to them is when they will be released. Thus, it is important for all officers to be able to explain how sentences are calculated.

LECTURE:

Section 28 – Calculation of sentence.

In a sentence of loss of liberty expressed in days, each day shall mean twenty-four hours.

- Sentence of one month shall mean thirty days.
- Sentence expressed in months or years shall be reckoned by calendar date/
- . . . the duration of the sentence shall include and run from:
 - the day on which the offender was taken into custody under that sentence; or
 - in a case of concurrent sentences passed on different dates, the day on which he was first taken into custody under any such sentence.
 - In case of escape, the period of unlawful liberty shall not be counted in the duration of the sentence.

Section 29 – Separation of Minors. An offender under the age of eighteen shall serve his sentence in a special establishment, or, failing such establishment, shall be separated from offenders over that age.

Section 37 – Preventive Confinement shall mean confinement for from five to twenty years under a programme of work and social reformation, during which the offender shall, in default of a separate establishment, be confined separately from convicts serving a sentence of imprisonment.

Section 83 - Obedience to Lawful Authority
No criminal responsibility shall arise from an act performed on the orders of a competent authority to whom obedience is lawfully due.
This section shall not apply where the order is manifestly unlawful.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Section 83 is clear that even if a superior officer orders a subordinate to carry out a clearly unlawful order – such as to confine a person under the age of 10 in the same cell with adult offenders – the subordinate can be prosecuted for a criminal act.

Have the class discuss how they can tell what is “manifestly unlawful” as opposed to something that they might not know for sure is unlawful. Section 84 poses another area of judgment on the part of the officer. His “defence” or use of force must be proportionate with the perceived threat.

LECTURE:

Section 84 -- Lawful Defence
No criminal responsibility shall arise from an act dictated by the immediate necessity of defence of the person acting or of any other person, or of any right of himself or of any other, against an unlawful infringement.
Provided that the means of defence be proportionate to the seriousness of the infringement threatened.
Intentional killing shall be proportionate to an attack causing a reasonable apprehension of death, of grievous harm as defined by the Penal Code, of rape or of sodomy.

Section 89 – Public Servant. Subject to any special penalties provided for felonies or misdemeanours committed by public servants, the fact of being a public servant established or otherwise shall aggravate the responsibility of any such person guilty of any other felony or misdemeanour against which it is his duty to guard or to take action.

NOTE: Examples would be the policeman who commits a theft, the customs officer who commits smuggling -- a prison warder who abets a punishable escape incurs as accessory the same penalty as the escaping prisoner, but doubled under this section.

Section 132 – Aggravation for Public Servant. Any public servant who uses force to any person shall be punished, where no heavier punishment is provided, with imprisonment for from six months to five years.

LECTURE:

Section 134 – Corruption

Any public servant or government employee who, for himself or for a third party, solicits, accepts or receives any offer, promise, gift or present in order to perform, refrain from performing or postpone any act of his office shall be punished with imprisonment for from five to ten years and with fine of from two hundred thousand to two million francs.

The term of imprisonment shall be from one to five years and the fine from one hundred thousand to one million francs where the act does not lie within the competence of the person corrupted but was however facilitated by his office.

1. Any public servant or government employee who solicits or accepts any reward in money or fund for himself or for a third party as remuneration for having already performed or refrained from any such act shall be punished in like manner as under the foregoing subsection (2).

Section 138 – Failure to report deficiency. Any public servant having knowledge of any cash or book deficiency in the accounts of a public official under his orders or supervision, and not reporting the deficiency to the legal authorities or to his immediate superior, shall be punished with imprisonment for from one to five years.

Section 140 – Oppression. Any public servant who takes advantage of his position to infringe any private right or interest shall be punished with imprisonment for from three months to one year, or with fine of from five thousand to fifty thousand francs, or with both such imprisonment and fine.

Section 147 – Denial of Justice. Any person exercising judicial functions who declines, after having been duly moved in that behalf, to issue a decision, shall be punished with imprisonment for from three months to two years.

Section 156 – Assault on Public Servant. Whoever uses force to a public servant or otherwise interferes with him, shall be punished with imprisonment for from one month to three years and with fine of from five thousand to one hundred thousand francs.

LECTURE:

6. Where the force or interference is premeditated, or where it results, intentionally or otherwise, in harm within the meaning of section 277 or 280 of this Code, the punishment shall be imprisonment for from five to ten years, and fine of from twenty thousand to five hundred thousand francs.

Where the force or interference results unintentionally in death, the punishment shall be imprisonment for life. Where the force or interference is intended to cause death the punishment shall be death.

Section 157 – Simple Resistance. Whoever by force or other interference obstructs the performance of his lawful duty by any person engaged in the execution of any law, regulation, decision in the administration of justice or other lawful order, shall be punished with imprisonment for from three months to four years.

Where the offender or any co-offender is armed the punishment shall be for from one to five years.

Section 158 – Collective Resistance. Where the offence defined in the last foregoing section is committed by five or more persons together the punishment shall be imprisonment for from one to three years; and where any two of them openly bear arms the imprisonment shall be for from five to fifteen years.

Any co-offender who himself bears arms, open or concealed, shall be punished with imprisonment for from five to fifteen years.

Section 160 – Compulsion of Public Servant. Whoever by interference or threat procures a public servant improperly to perform or to refrain from any act of his office, shall be punished with imprisonment for from two to ten years and with fine of from twenty thousand to one million francs.

Section 162 – Misleading Public Servant. Whoever by any false statement influences the conduct of a public servant shall be punished with imprisonment for from fifteen days to three months and with fine of from five thousand to fifty thousand francs.

Whoever by any means procures the entry in the criminal record of any one person of the conviction of any other shall be punished with imprisonment for from one to five years.

LECTURE:

7. Whoever by any means procures the improper issue to himself of an extract from the criminal record of another person shall be punished with imprisonment for from one month to one year.

Section 192 – Communication with Persons in Custody. Whoever contrary to the rules governing the custody of any person lawfully detained facilitates his relations with any outside party, shall be punished with imprisonment from three months to six months.

Section 193 – Escape. Whoever escapes from lawful custody, or who being permitted to work outside prison leaves his place of work without permission, shall be punished with imprisonment for from three months to one year. Whoever rescues any person from lawful custody shall be punished in like manner.

For escape or rescue effected by force to the person or to property the punishment shall be imprisonment for from one to five years; and for escape or rescue with arms the punishment shall be imprisonment for from five to ten years.

Where the person in custody is charged with felony or has been sentenced to loss of liberty for more than ten years the punishment shall be imprisonment for from five to ten years.

SUMMARY /
CONCLUSION:

The Cameroon Corrections Corp is a very important part of a legal system designed to provide all our citizens and visitors with a fair and effective system of justice.

Since the taking away of individual freedom and the locking of individuals in prisons is such a harsh and difficult part of all societies, the Cameroon people have taken great steps to insure that the system is as humane and just as possible.

It is our duty as correctional staff to be aware of both the spirit and the letter of the law and to follow it strictly.

LESSON PLAN 2 – Overview of the Prison System

NOTE: The data used as an example is from the nation of Bosnia & Herzegovina. This entire lesson plan must be rewritten by personnel within the nation using it to reflect their institutions, laws and procedures.

Method of Instruction: Lecture, Discussion, Question and Answer

Time Frame: 1 Hour

Performance Objectives:

At the conclusion of this block of instruction the student will:

1. The student will be able to describe the places of imprisonment in Bosnia and Herzegovina.
2. The student will be able to name the separate prisons or sections within a prison where different prisoners must be kept, separate from each other and the staff requirements.
3. The student will be able to describe the purpose of training and treatment of convicted prisoners.

References: The Law of Implementing Criminal Sanctions and Book of Rules on House Order ; various United Nations and International standards and norms.

Training Aides Required: Flip Chart or Black Board. Overhead Projector (or if one is not available, a list of handouts for each participant). Copy of Prison Law -- all found in the Appendix of the Corrections Manual. Copies of International Standards contained in the Corrections Manual.

INTRODUCTION

Any person charged with or convicted of any criminal offence or any person ordered detained by any court or other lawful authority having the power and jurisdiction to order imprisonment may be confined in prison. Places of imprisonment are specified and classified.

Within the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the following prisons exist:

1. Zenica Correctional Institution
2. Bihac District Prison
3. Busovaca District Prison
4. Mostar-Istok District Prison
5. Mostar-Zapad District Prison
6. Orasje District Prison
7. Sarajevo District Prison
8. Tuzla District Prison

NOTE: Normally, each prison should indicate it's security classification and classification of prisoners (e.g. remand, convicted, age, gender, etc.)

The prison system uses the following classifications of institutions or designated areas within the institution:

Closed, Half closed and Open

Prior to the war, separate prisons were used for women and juveniles. Now, as we are rebuilding our system, currently women, men and juveniles are housed in some of the same facilities. However, in all cases they are kept separate from each other and treated according to the laws.

CONFINEMENT AND TREATMENT OF PRISONERS:

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Let different students read each section of the following and then ask for class comments to make sure they understand the intent.

Acceptance of the prisoners.

Detainees and Sentenced prisoners are to be kept separate. The Detainee is an individual only accused of a crime and is being kept in the prison only to insure that he or she will appear for trial. A Sentenced prisoner is a person convicted of a crime and serving a sentence handed down by the court.

Detainees: From Prison Rules applying to Detainees:

Article 2

The detainee serves his detention in a special room from the reform house, penitentiary or municipality jail, separate from persons who are not of the same sex and has rules separate who has committed in executing the same criminal act. People who are serving a regular sentence and people who have returned criminal act in recourse.

Article 3

While being in detention, the inmate's personality and dignity must not be heard. Only those restrictions needed to prevent escape an agreement that might be damaging for successful procedure pre-trial could be applied to a detainee.

II - Acceptance and assignment of inmate

Article 4

The acceptance of detainee to serve detention is made based on a decree, which has accompanied every inmate separately. A written certificate on detainee acceptance is issued with particulars of name, date and hour of acceptance.

Sentenced Prisoners: From Prison Rules applying to Sentenced Prisoners:

Article 5.

Acceptance of the prisoners into the penitentiary is done on the basis of referral acts, issued by the competent court. On acceptance into the penitentiary the identity of the prisoner is verified through ID, and in accordance with personal data indicated in the court's verdict. Should the prisoner arrive to begin his sentence, without the introductory referral act of the court and without the correct ID documentation, he shall not be admitted to the penitentiary. If there exists any doubt that in place of the prisoner, some other person has appeared to serve the sentence, such a person shall be held at the penitentiary and immediately it shall be requested from the competent authorities, that they determine his or her, identity.

Article 6.

An authorised officer of the penitentiary shall examine the personal belongings of the prisoner. During their stay at the penitentiary the prisoners are permitted to possess with them orthopedic aids, items of personal hygiene, items for cleaning shoes and clothes, items for writing letters, items for smoking, a little folding pen knife, two sweater or pullover with a V neck, two pairs of winter and summer underwear each respectively, socks and handkerchiefs, a pair of gloves, woolen cap, trainers, two sports t-shirts, pajamas, shoes and shirts, a class for water, family photographs and a wedding ring.

Books and other printed matter or some other item, the inmate can only have with the approval of authorised officers of the penitentiary.

2. Acceptance of the prisoners.

a pair of gloves, woolen cap, trainers, two sports t-shirts, pajamas, shoes and shirts, a class for water, family photographs and a wedding ring.

Books and other printed matter or some other item, the inmate can only have with the approval of authorised officers of the penitentiary.

Article 7.

Items not eligible for inmates possession during their sentence at the penitentiary shall be taken away from him, during searches.

A protocol report will be made on the confiscation of such material, in triplicate. The protocol is signed by the search officer and by the inmate whose items have been confiscated.

One copy of the signed report is retained by the inmate, the other copy is placed into the box containing the confiscated items, and the third copy remains in the file of the inmate in question.

Article 8.

With the exception of valuables, the confiscated items are immediately returned to the family of the inmate, or are deposited in the penitentiary warehouse. The valuable items are handed over to the inmates family members on the occasion of their visit, the signed protocol is presented and requires the signature of both the recipient and presenting persons.

A charge for the dispatching of the items from the above paragraph, is to be born by the inmate. Items are placed on deposit in the warehouse only for those inmates without any family or other relatives to whom the confiscated items may be sent.

Items kept in the penitentiaries warehouse are registered in a separate book, and they are held so that they may be returned undamaged to the inmate upon his release. Clothing is compulsorily disinfected.

Items which are not for legal circulation or are prohibited, shall be confiscated permanently. Items that are liable to deteriorate shall not be taken into custody, but unless they can be returned to the family of the inmate, will be destroyed.

Article 9.

Acceptance into a block of the penitentiary means that the inmate is obliged to have a haircut, shave, except for religious clerics or priests, bathe and change into the correct penitentiary uniform and shoes, have their photograph and fingerprints taken (papular lines).

In the penitentiary blocks the inmate will become familiar with stipulations on the laws applying to penal Law and the violation of sanctions, also with a List of rules on the house order, a List of rules on classified incentive groups, stipulations on the rules pertaining to the payment of inmates for their work at the penitentiary, a list of rules on the use of weapons and other means of control for the penitentiary guards in maintaining order, and a list of rules on the inmates self-management. Upon acceptance of the penitentiary, the inmates are entitled to advise their immediate family, in writing and, or by telephone. He has rights to correspondence, visitors and acceptance of parcels.

If the prisoner is without money, he is entitled to a letter to his family, at the expense of the penitentiary.

Article 10.

During their stay at the acceptance block, the inmates do housework, such as cleaning and maintaining the rooms in which they stay, as well as any other organised work in such a block.

Subject to special permission of the penitentiaries Governor, inmates staying in the acceptance block may, if required, be sent to carry out certain work in the production block, under the supervision of the guards, provided that they work separate from the other inmates.

Article 11.

The inmates leaving the acceptance block, individually or in a group, for a medical check, meals, receiving visitors, or to any other place outside of their ward, are taken under the supervision of a guard, and are not permitted to come into contact with any of the other inmates.

Article 12.

The departure of inmates from the acceptance block into the special penitentiary shop (here in after, shop), in order to purchase any required food supply, will be organised in groups under the guards supervision.

Article 13.

While staying at the acceptance block the inmates are prohibited from attending cinema performances, cultural or entertainment programmes, sporting events, or any other form of cultural or sporting activities which are organised in the penitentiary.

3. Study of inmates personality and determination of a treatment programme.

Article 14.

After being searched, the inmates are accommodated in the acceptance block premises and they are kept separate from the other inmates.

They are allowed to remain in the acceptance block for a maximum of up to thirty days.

Article 15.

During their stay in the acceptance block the inmates are photographed and their fingerprints taken,

Independent of the length of their sentence, the photographing of the inmates is done each five years, and for juvenile persons each second year.

Article 16.

An expert team in the acceptance block test the personality of the inmate through medical, psychological, pedagogical and social examinations. Based upon their findings an orientational programme of treatment is determined, involving, type of work, requirements in general and special education, engagement in leisure activities, ability to work individually and in groups, and other forms which should be undertaken for the inmates reeducation.

Article 17.

The treatment programme is determined by the penitentiaries Governor based on suggestions from the Reeducation Service.

Changes in the treatment programme may be made during the course of the inmate's sentence, it depends on the level of implementation of the foreseen treatment, new and increased knowledge of the inmate, and in respect to changes in health conditions or other circumstances.

Article 18.

After determining treatment, the inmates are assigned to their collectives and their working posts.

Article 19.

The department for younger persons accommodates inmates up to the age of twenty five, and they remain in that block, as a rule, up until they complete their twenty fourth year, maximum.

In exceptional circumstances an inmate may remain even after he has passed the age of twenty four, if it is necessary that he complete already begun educational or expert training programmes, but the maximum age permissible is twenty seven.

On completion of age twenty four or twenty seven, the inmate is assigned to remain in reeducation collectives with persons of senior age.

4. Classification of inmates..

Article 20.

Based upon personality studies and results achieved in terms of reeducation, through the application of proposed treatment, the classification and reclassification of the inmate is made into, incentive classification groups.

Article 21.

From the acceptance block the inmates are made up into preparatory groups, in which they stay for a period of one to four months. From these preparatory groups the inmates are assigned into three classification groups, two of which are positive, A and B, and one is negative, group C.

Article 22.

Within the preparatory and classification groups there is monitoring of the behavior of the inmate, acceptance and implementation of treatment, evaluation of results achieved by the inmates in individual activities, and based on results obtained in reeducational work, then classification and reclassification of the inmates is made.

Article 23.

Proposals for classification and reclassification are submitted at meetings of micro-teams composed of educators, instructors and a guard.

The final classification groups are adopted at a meeting of the Reeducation Service.

Organisation of the micro-teams work is stipulated through the instructions of the penitentiary management.

Article 24.

Criteria for the assignment into individual classification groups, assignment of classifications and other particulars, are stipulated through the list of rules for the classification of inmates into classified and incentive groups.

CONCLUSION

Prisoners can be detained only in those facilities designated by the law. Such facilities must conform to basic health and safety standards. All prisoners shall be kept separate by sex and, if possible, youth from adult, convicted from detainee. It is also obvious that the goal of the prison is to help prepare the inmates to return to society with the skills, social and practical, that they need to live a crime-free life. To accomplish this it is important that correctional staff treat prisoners with respect and remember that one of their primary jobs is that of a teacher. The inmate is in prison as punishment, not for punishment.

QUIZ

1. List at least five places of imprisonment in Bosnia and Herzegovina.
2. Name the separate sections within a prison where different prisoners must be kept, separate from each other and the staff requirements.
3. Identify the Classes of prisons demanded by Bosnia and Herzegovina law.
4. What is the difference between a detainee and a sentenced prisoner?

Answers to Quiz

1. Any five of the following:
 1. Zenica Correctional Institution
 2. Bihac District Prison
 3. Busovaca District Prison
 4. Mostar-Istok District Prison
 5. Mostar-Zapad District Prison
 6. Orasje District Prison
 7. Sarajevo District Prison
 8. Tuzla District Prison
2. Male and female prisoners shall be kept apart and confined in separate parts of the prison in such manner as to prevent their communicating the one sex with the other.
Prisoners of each sex shall be divided into the following classes-
 - (a) unconvicted prisoners;
 - (b) convicted prisoners;
 - (c) young prisoners;
 - (d) adults;
3. Closed, Half closed and Open
4. A detainee is not guilty of any crime. He or she is in prison only to make sure they will appear at the trial. A sentenced prisoner has had a trial and has been found guilty of an offense and is serving a term defined by the law and the court.

LESSON PLAN 3 – Who is in Our Prisons and Why?

NOTE: This lesson plan must be completed by competent personnel in the nation using this manual (As an example, in this lesson plan we refer to Cameroon).

Method of Instruction: Lecture, discussion, question and answer

Time Frame: 2 Hour

Performance Objectives: At the conclusion of this block of instruction, the student will:

1. Be able to list the types of crime most common in Cameroon.
2. Be able to discuss the causes and types of violent crime in Cameroon.
3. Be able to discuss the effects crime in Cameroon has on the nation's citizens, economy and quality of life.
4. Be able to show the difference between the crimes and violence caused as part of the recent civil war and those that go on during normal times.
5. Be able to list the types of prisoners in Cameroon=s prisons by type of crime, sentence and special classification (such as foreign prisoners).
6. Be able to discuss the general types and numbers of prisoners in Cameroon=s prisons by age, sex, and any other demographic information considered important.

References: Current Cameroon police, court and prison records which show number and types of crimes reported, arrests, convictions, inmate counts, crimes inmates were convicted of, sentence, age, sex and related demographic information.

Training Aides Required: Blackboard and/or flip chart.

INTRODUCTION

If we are charged with the job of rehabilitating and re-socializing those people charged with crimes, it is important that we know who they are and how they came to be prisoners. Are we working with some special group of individuals with rare and identifiable traits, or, for the most part, are we working with people much like ourselves?

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

Break the class into small groups with each group discussing the types of crimes they have seen in their own neighborhoods and communities and the impact those crimes had on the citizens, their children's attitudes and the quality of the lives of their families and their neighbors.

Then present the statistical data of arrests, convictions and the demographics of who is in the prison system. Lead the class, as a whole, in an open discussion of what the statistics mean in terms of who they are likely to find in prison.

CONCLUSION

The discussion made it obvious that those in prison are much like ourselves. Some are truly evil and dangerous, but most are ordinary people who did stupid or desperate acts as a result of fear or greed or ignorance. As we carry out our duties we must remember that different people commit crimes, often the same type of crime, for entirely different reasons. For example, let's look at a thief. A person may steal because he or she could not get a job and was hungry or needed food for the children. If that is the only reason the person stole then our job is to make sure they leave our prisons with the training and direction to get a job. If, on the other hand the person stole because they couldn't hold a job, then we must help them overcome the dependence on alcohol or drugs or lack of personal work habits so when they leave they will be able to hold a job and live law abiding lives. Another person may steal because they did not want a job. That person will be in our prison to be taught that everything has a price, including crime and that if they steal, they will spend time in our prisons until they decide to live as responsible people in a free world. A person may also be in prison for stealing because they wanted money to support a cause (some classified as terrorists might fit in this category). If so, they would be treated as the last person - that person will be in our prison to be taught that everything has a price, including crime and that if they steal, they will spend time in our prisons until they decide to live as responsible people in a free world – correctional staff are not to be involved in the political issues of the inmates. Though what each prisoner needs may be different and though the programs we give them may vary in order to help meet those needs, the way we treat them must be the same for all. Regardless of the motive or crime of the prisoner, we must act professionally and humanely. Remember the discussion of your small group and you will better understand that though we do not approve of crime and what it does to us and our society, we must treat those who have participated in criminal acts humanely.

Each individual officer should strive to maintain the rehabilitative ideal but no individual officer can actually rehabilitate a prisoner. It is the system and regime in place that has the effect and the officer supports this ideal. For example, part of the Irish Prison Service Mission Statement states ' The Service is committed to managing custodial sentences in a way which encourages and supports prisoners in their endeavouring to live law abiding and purposeful lives as valued members of society.' I think this is a more realistic approach. All officers, and the service as a whole can do is provide support and facilities and the objective of rehabilitation.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

No quiz is used with this section as it is intended for general background information for the students.

Supplement to LESSON PLAN 3

Though not specifically sent in response to this lesson plan, France sent a lesson plan outline that could go here or the orientation or separately. It is:

Social Exclusion
 “People under judicial control” – Awareness Unit – Duration: 24 hours

Training Objectives	Provide the pupils with a better understanding of the different forms of social exclusion using a multi-disciplinary approach. Develop professional competencies for interviewing marginal people
Teaching objectives	The pupil should be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Identify the different concepts of exclusion - Identify the institutional, personal and societal mechanisms used in relations with this population
Pre-requirement	Psychopathology, work placement
Content	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - The ‘standard’ society and the concept of exclusion - Forms of exclusion / marginal people in our society - Different forms of marginal, groups and the marginal world - Psychological approach to different forms of marginal - Institutionalized representations of marginal people - Social management of the different forms of marginal - Role and attitude of the CIP (Rehabilitation and probation officer) concerning the issues using case studies
Teaching methods	Interactions, in groups (two groups) Lectures
Timing	5 th cycle
Type of trainer	Psycho-sociologist, Clinical psychologist
Evaluation method	Evaluated at end of first year

Human Rights Instruments Related to LESSON PLAN 3

International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights

Adopted and opened for signature, ratification and accession by General Assembly resolution 2200A (XXI) of 16 December 1966 entry into force 23 March 1976, in accordance with Article 49

Article 10

1. All persons deprived of their liberty shall be treated with humanity and with respect for the inherent dignity of the human person.
2. (a) Accused persons shall, save in exceptional circumstances, be segregated from convicted persons and shall be subject to separate treatment appropriate to their status as unconvicted persons;
(b) Accused juvenile persons shall be separated from adults and brought as speedily as possible for adjudication.
3. The penitentiary system shall comprise treatment of prisoners the essential aim of which shall be their reformation and social rehabilitation. Juvenile offenders shall be segregated from adults and be accorded treatment appropriate to their age and legal status.

Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners

Adopted by the First United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, held at Geneva in 1955, and approved by the Economic and Social Council by its resolutions 663 C (XXIV) of 31 July 1957 and 2076 (LXII) of 13 May 1977

Separation of categories

8. The different categories of prisoners shall be kept in separate institutions or parts of institutions taking account of their sex, age, criminal record, the legal reason for their detention and the necessities of their treatment. Thus,
 - (a) Men and women shall so far as possible be detained in separate institutions; in an institution which receives both men and women the whole of the premises allocated to women shall be entirely separate;
 - (b) Untried prisoners shall be kept separate from convicted prisoners;
 - (c) Persons imprisoned for debt and other civil prisoners shall be kept separate from persons imprisoned by reason of a criminal offence;
 - (d) Young prisoners shall be kept separate from adults.

23. (1) In women's institutions there shall be special accommodation for all necessary pre-natal and post-natal care and treatment. Arrangements shall be made wherever practicable for children to be born in a hospital outside the institution. If a child is born in prison, this fact shall not be mentioned in the birth certificate.

(2) Where nursing infants are allowed to remain in the institution with their mothers, provision shall be made for a nursery staffed by qualified persons, where the infants shall be placed when they are not in the care of their mothers.

Classification and individualization

67. The purposes of classification shall be:

- (a) To separate from others those prisoners who, by reason of their criminal records or bad characters, are likely to exercise a bad influence;
- (b) To divide the prisoners into classes in order to facilitate their treatment with a view to their social rehabilitation.

68. So far as possible separate institutions or separate sections of an institution shall be used for the treatment of the different classes of prisoners.

58. The purpose and justification of a sentence of imprisonment or a similar measure deprivative of liberty is ultimately to protect society against crime. This end can only be achieved if the period of imprisonment is used to ensure, so far as possible, that upon his return to society the offender is not only willing but able to lead a law-abiding and self-supporting life.

61. The treatment of prisoners should emphasize not their exclusion from the community, but their continuing part in it. Community agencies should, therefore, be enlisted wherever possible to assist the staff of the institution in the task of social rehabilitation of the prisoners. There should be in connection with every institution social workers charged with the duty of maintaining and improving all desirable relations of a prisoner with his family and with valuable social agencies. Steps should be taken to safeguard, to the maximum extent compatible with the law and the sentence, the rights relating to civil interests, social security rights and other social benefits of prisoners.

Body of Principles for the Protection of All Persons under Any Form of Detention or Imprisonment

Adopted by General Assembly resolution 43/173 of 9 December 1988

Principle 8

Persons in detention shall be subject to treatment appropriate to their unconvicted status. Accordingly, they shall, whenever possible, be kept separate from imprisoned persons.

Principle 36

1. A detained person suspected of or charged with a criminal offence shall be presumed innocent and shall be treated as such until proved guilty according to law in a public trial at which he has had all the guarantees necessary for his defence.

2. The arrest or detention of such a person pending investigation and trial shall be carried out only for the purposes of the administration of justice on grounds and under conditions and procedures specified by law. The imposition of restrictions upon such a person which are not strictly required for the purpose of the detention or to prevent hindrance to the process of investigation or the administration of justice, or for the maintenance of security and good order in the place of detention shall be forbidden.

A person detained on a criminal charge shall be brought before a judicial or other authority provided by law promptly after his arrest. Such authority shall decide without delay upon the lawfulness and necessity of detention. No person may be kept under detention pending investigation or trial except upon the written order of such an authority. A detained person shall, when brought before such an authority, have the right to make a statement on the treatment received by him while in custody.

Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms

As amended by Protocol No. 11. Rome, 4.XI.1950

Article 6⁴ – Right to a fair trial

2. Everyone charged with a criminal offence shall be presumed innocent until proved guilty according to law.

Recommendation No R (87) 3 of the Committee of Ministers to member states on the European Prison Rules

Adopted by the Committee of Ministers on 12 February 1987 at the 404th meeting of the Ministers' Deputies

The allocation and classification of prisoners

11. 1. In allocating prisoners to different institutions or regimes, due account shall be taken of their judicial and legal situation (untried or convicted prisoner, first offender or habitual offender, short sentence or long sentence), of the special requirements of their treatment, of their medical needs, their sex and age.

2. Males and females shall in principle be detained separately, although they may participate together in organised activities as part of an established treatment programme.

3. In principle, untried prisoners shall be detained separately from convicted prisoners unless they consent to being accommodated or involved together in organised activities beneficial to them.

4. Young prisoners shall be detained under conditions which as far as possible protect them from harmful influences and which take account of the needs peculiar to their age.

12. The purposes of classification or reclassification of prisoners shall be:

a. to separate from others those prisoners who, by reasons of their criminal records or their personality, are likely to benefit from that or who may exercise a bad influence; and

b. to assist in allocating prisoners to facilitate their treatment and social resettlement taking into account the management and security requirements.

The Ouagadougou Declaration on Accelerating Prison and Penal Reform in Africa.

Burkina Fasso 18-20 September 2002.

Reducing the prison population

Criminal justice agencies should work together more closely to make less use of imprisonment.

The prison population can only be reduced by a concerted strategy. It should be based on accurate and widely publicized information on the numbers and kinds of people in prison and on the social and financial impact of imprisonment. Reduction strategies should be ongoing and target both sentenced and unsentenced prisoners.

Promoting the reintegration of offenders into society

Greater effort should be made to make positive use of the period of imprisonment or other sanction to develop the potential of offenders and to empower them to lead a crime-free life in the future. This should include rehabilitative programmes focusing on the reintegration of offenders and contributing to their individual and social development

American Convention on Human Rights

Adopted at the Inter-American Specialized Conference on Human Rights, San José, Costa Rica, 22 November 1969

Article 5. Right to Humane Treatment

3. Punishment shall not be extended to any person other than the criminal.
4. Accused persons shall, save in exceptional circumstances, be segregated from convicted persons, and shall be subject to separate treatment appropriate to their status as unconvicted persons.
5. Minors while subject to criminal proceedings shall be separated from adults and brought before specialized tribunals, as speedily as possible, so that they may be treated in accordance with their status as minors.
6. Punishments consisting of deprivation of liberty shall have as an essential aim the reform and social readaptation of the prisoners

LESSON PLAN 4 – UN and International Human Rights Standards Impacting on Corrections

Method of Instruction: Lecture, Discussion, Question and Answer

Time Frame: 4 Hours

Performance Objectives:

At the completion of this course, the participants will be able to write, without benefit of notes (unless otherwise specified), the following:

1. A list of three (3) major UN or international standards impacting on prisons and prisoners.
2. A list of ten (10) basic rights for all prisoners.
3. A description of the basic philosophy in dealing with detainee and a description of the basic philosophy in dealing with convicted persons.
4. A listing of the two (2) steps in handling situations in which a person observes the violation of a prisoners human rights.

References: Selected parts of UN and other international standards and norms. Material contained in the section of this manual dealing with UN and International Standards.

Training Aids Required: Flip Chart, Chalk Board, Overhead (if available -- if not, copies of the overhead material for each student).

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

The first part of this should be read or paraphrased by the instructor

INTRODUCTION

Charged with the responsibility of making sure people who have broken the law of the nation do not escape and making sure that the punishment the courts has given to offenders is carried out is the main job of the prison. Yet the prisoner retains many basic rights. Knowing what those rights are and making sure they are not violated is directly connected to how the prison officer can and must carry out his or her assignments. The prison environment, by definition, places the inmate in the same position as a dependent child. He or she must ask the prison staff for permission to move or work or talk to people. It is the staff that determines when a prisoner will eat or sleep or even use the bathroom. That dependency makes the inmate vulnerable to potential abuse by other prisoners and staff alike.

The Constitution of the Republic of Cameroon specifically mentions that Cameroon “affirms its attachment to the fundamental freedoms enshrined in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the Charter of the United Nations and The African Charter on Human and Peoples’ Rights, and all duly ratified international conventions relating thereto.”

When a suspected criminal is arrested, he is a total unknown in terms of background and security. He may be innocent or he may be a psychotic killer. His legal status is that of an innocent person under suspicion. He is not guilty of any wrongdoing until the court says he is.

Thus, in theory, he should have all the rights every other citizen has. Yet we know that this is not possible in a jail or prison setting.

This training is designed to:

1. Familiarize correction officers with the basic international instruments that define what rights all prisoners have.
2. Familiarize correction officers with what basic rights all prisoners have.
3. Advise correction officers how to protect prisoner rights while doing their job in a safe and effective manner.
4. Train correction officers how to handle difficult inmates and situations without violating their basic rights and when suspension of certain rights might be appropriate.
5. Advise correction officers how to properly handle situations in which they see or know of violations of inmate basic rights by other prison staff or public officials.

Since the founding of the United Nations, more than thirty instruments have been written and adopted by the General Assembly and other UN organs, in the area of criminal justice which deal specifically with human rights.

Two basic documents cover the human rights of all people, and in both special protection is provided for persons accused of crimes. These documents are:

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

The instructor should separate five students and place them with a senior correctional officer to act as "reactors." Then the instructor should have students alternate reading different paragraphs and have the remaining students follow along. Before selecting the students who will do the reading, be sure to inform them in advance and make sure they all have the ability to read the material.

The group selected as reactors will be asked to indicate, after consultation among themselves and with the senior prison official working with them, if any of the standards are contrary or in agreement with existing domestic law and internal prison policy or procedure. They should react after each section is covered.

1. Universal Declaration of Human Rights adopted by the General Assembly in 1948. Article 5 states that "No one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment." Other articles state that no one shall be subjected to arbitrary arrest, detention or exile. That everyone charged with a penal offence has the right to be presumed innocent until proved guilty according to law in a public trial. A heavier penalty cannot be imposed on a person than the one that was applicable at the time the penal offense was committed. The Universal Declaration lists the rights of all people, such as the rights to worship as they choose, rights of privacy in their home, equal protection under the law, freedom of opinion and expression, and many other freedoms most of us enjoy. However, the Declaration also provides for the limiting of those freedoms, but only "as determined by law solely for the purpose of securing due recognition and respect for the rights and freedoms of others and of meeting the just requirements of morality, public order and the general welfare in a democratic society."
2. International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights

adopted by the General Assembly in 1966. Again the prohibition against torture or cruel, inhumane or degrading punishment is stressed. But in this Covenant, specifics are added:

- A. No one shall be subjected without his free consent to medical experimentation
- B. Anyone sentenced to death shall have the right to seek pardon or commutation of the sentence or amnesty. No one under 18 years of age, nor any pregnant women can be put to death.
- C. Anyone arrested or detained on a criminal charge shall be brought promptly to a judge or other judicial authority and shall be informed, at the time of arrest, of the charges against him.
- D. All persons deprived of their liberty shall be treated with humanity and with respect for the inherent dignity of the human person.
- E. Anyone who has been the victim of unlawful arrest or detention shall have an enforceable right to compensation.
- F. Accused persons, except in exceptional circumstances, shall be segregated from convicted persons and "shall be subject to separate treatment appropriate to their status as unconvicted persons.
- G. Accused juvenile persons shall be separated from adults and brought as speedily as possible for adjudication.
- H. The penitentiary system shall comprise treatment of prisoners the essential aim of which shall be their reformation and social rehabilitation. Juvenile offenders shall be segregated from adults and be accorded treatment appropriate to their age and legal status.

Four very important UN documents speak specifically about the protection of persons subjected to detention or imprisonment:

1. The Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Offenders were originally adopted in 1957 and amended in 1973 to include persons arrested or imprisoned without charge.

Not intended to describe in detail a model system of penal institutions, they set out what is generally accepted as being good principles and good practice in the treatment of offenders and the management of institutions. The rules are divided into two parts.

Part I of the rules applies to all categories of prisoners criminal or civil, untried or convicted. They contain such basic principles as:

- 1. There shall be no discrimination on grounds of race, color, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth or other status. On the other hand, it is necessary to respect the religious beliefs and moral precepts of the group to which the prisoner belongs.
- 2. The different categories of prisoners shall be kept in separate institutions or parts of institutions taking account of their sex, age, criminal record, the legal reason for their detention and the necessities of their treatment.
- 3. In all places where prisoners are required to live or work,
 - a. The windows will be large enough to enable the prisoners to read or work by natural light, and shall be so constructed that they can allow the entrance of fresh air whether or not there is artificial ventilation;
 - b. Artificial light shall be provided sufficient for the prisoners to read or work without injury to eyesight.

4. The sanitary installations shall be adequate to enable every prisoner to comply with the needs of nature when necessary and in a clean and decent manner.

5. Adequate bathing and shower installations shall be provided so that every prisoner may be enabled and required to have a bath or shower, at a temperature suitable to the climate, as frequently as necessary for general hygiene according to season and geographical region, but at least once a week in a temperate climate.

6. Every prisoner who is not allowed to wear his own clothing shall be provided with an outfit of clothing suitable for the climate and adequate to keep him in good health. Such clothing shall in no manner be degrading or humiliating.

7. Every prisoner shall, in accordance with local or national standards, be provided with a separate bed, and with separate and sufficient bedding which shall be clean when issued, kept in good order and changed often enough to ensure its cleanliness.

8. Every prisoner shall be provided by the administration at the usual hours with food of nutritional value adequate for health and strength, of wholesome quality and well prepared and served.

9. Drinking water shall be available to every prisoner whenever he needs it.

10. Every prisoner who is not employed in outdoor work shall have at least one hour of suitable exercise in the open air daily if the weather permits.

11. All money, valuables, clothing and other effects belonging to a prisoner which under the regulations of the institution he is not allowed to retain shall be placed in safe custody, an inventory made of the items and signed by the prisoner. Those items, along with anything he received from outside while incarcerated, shall be returned to him upon release.

12. Upon the death or serious illness of, or serious injury to a prisoner, or his removal to an institution for the treatment of mental affections, the director shall at once inform the spouse, if the prisoner is married, or the nearest relative and shall in any event inform any other person previously designated by the prisoner.

13. A prisoner shall be informed at once of the death or serious illness of any near relative. In case of the critical illness of a near relative, the prisoner should be authorized, whenever circumstances allow, to go to his bedside either under escort or alone.

14. Every prisoner shall have the right to inform at once his family of his imprisonment or his transfer to another institution.

15. Every prisoner shall have an opportunity each week day of making requests or complaints to the director of the institution or the officer authorized to represent him.

16. Every prisoner shall be allowed to make a request or complaint, without censorship as to substance but in proper form, to the central prison administration, the judicial authority or other proper authorities through approved channels.

Two specific categories, under Part I of the Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners deserve special attention by all correctional officers:

A. Discipline and punishment

1. Discipline and order shall be maintained with firmness, but with no more restraint than is necessary for safe custody and well-ordered community life.

2. No prisoner shall be employed, in the service of the institution, in any disciplinary capacity. This rule shall not, however, impede the proper functioning of systems based on self-government, under which specified social, educational or sports activities or responsibilities are entrusted, under supervision, to prisoners who are formed into groups for the purpose of treatment.

3. The following shall always be determined by law or by the regulation of the competent administrative authority:

a. Conduct constituting a disciplinary offence;
b. The types and duration of punishment which may be inflicted;

c. The authority competent to impose such punishment.

4. No prisoner shall be punished except in accordance with the terms of such law or regulation, and never twice for the same offence.

5. Where necessary and practicable the prisoner shall be allowed to make his defense through an interpreter.

6. Corporal punishment, punishment by placing in a dark cell, and all cruel, inhuman or degrading punishments shall be completely prohibited as punishments for disciplinary offences.

7. Punishment by close confinement or reduction of diet shall never be inflicted unless the medical officer has examined the prisoner and certified in writing that he is fit to sustain it.

8. Instruments of restraint, such as handcuffs, chains, irons and straitjackets, shall never be applied as a punishment. Furthermore, chains or irons shall not be used as restraints. Other instruments of restraint shall not be used except in the following circumstances:

a. As a precaution against escape during a transfer, provided that they shall be removed when the prisoner appears before a judicial or administrative authority;

b. On medical grounds by direction of the medical officer;

c. By order of the director, if other methods of control fail, in order to prevent a prisoner from injuring himself or others or from damaging property; in such instances the director shall at once consult the medical officer and report to the higher administrative authority.

9. The patterns and manner of use of instruments of restraint shall be decided by the central prison administration. Such instruments must not be applied for any longer than is strictly necessary.

B. Institutional Personnel

1. The prison administration shall provide for the careful selection of every grade of the personnel, since it is on their integrity, humanity, professional capacity and personal suitability for the work that the proper administration of the institution depends.

2. Before entering on duty, the personnel shall be given a course of training in their general and specific duties and be required to pass theoretical and practical tests.

3. After entering on duty and during their career, the personnel shall maintain and improve their knowledge and professional capacity by attending courses of in-service training to be organized at suitable intervals.

4. All members of the personnel shall at all times so conduct themselves and perform their duties as to influence the prisoners for good by their example and to command their respect.

5. Officers of the institutions shall not, in their relations with the prisoners, use force except in self-defense or in cases of attempted escape on an order based on law or regulations. Officers who have recourse to force must use no more than is strictly necessary and must report the incident immediately to the director of the institution.

6. Except in special circumstances, staff performing duties which bring them into direct contact with prisoners should not be armed. Furthermore, staff should in no circumstances be provided with arms unless they have been trained in their use.

Part II of the Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners contains rules applicable to special categories:

A. Prisoners Under Sentence:

1. Imprisonment and other measures which result in cutting off an offender from the outside world are afflictive by the very fact of taking from the person the right of self-determination by depriving him of his liberty. Therefore the prison system shall not, except as incidental to justifiable segregation or the maintenance of discipline, aggravate the suffering inherent in such a situation.

2. The regime of the institution should seek to minimize any differences between prison life and life at liberty which tend to lessen the responsibility of the prisoners or the respect due to their dignity as human beings.

3. Prison labor must not be of an afflictive nature.

4. The precautions laid down to protect the safety and health of free workmen shall be equally observed in institutions.

B. Prisoners Under Arrest or Awaiting Trial:

1. Unconvicted prisoners are presumed innocent and shall be treated as such.

2. Without prejudice to legal rules for the protection of individual liberty or prescribing the procedure to be observed in respect of untried prisoners, these prisoners shall benefit by a special regime which includes:

a. Being kept separate from convicted prisoners;

b. Shall be offered the opportunity to work, but will not be required to work. If the prisoner decides to work, he shall be paid for it.

c. An untried prisoner shall be allowed to inform immediately his family of his detention and shall be given all reasonable facilities for communicating with his family and friends, and for receiving visits from them, subject only to such restrictions and supervision as are necessary in the interests of the administration of justice and of the security and good order of the institution.

2. Declaration on the Protection of All Persons From Being Subjected to Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment adopted in 1975.

A. For the purpose of this Declaration, torture means any act by which severe pain or suffering, whether physical or mental, is intentionally inflicted by or at the instigation of a public official on a person for such purposes as obtaining from him or a third person information or confession, punishing him for an act he has committed or is suspected of having committed, or intimidating him or other persons. It does not include pain or suffering arising only from, inherent in or incidental to, lawful sanctions to the extent consistent with the Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners.

Torture constitutes an aggravated and deliberate form of cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

B. No State may permit or tolerate torture or other cruel, inhumane or degrading treatment or punishment. Exceptional circumstances such as a state of war or a threat of war, internal political instability or any other public emergency may not be invoked as a justification of torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

C. The training of law enforcement personnel and of other public officials who may be responsible for persons deprived of their liberty shall ensure that full account is taken of the prohibition against torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment. This prohibition shall also, where appropriate, be included in such general rules or instructions as are issued in regard to the duties and functions of anyone who may be involved in the custody or treatment of such persons.

D. Any person who alleges that he has been subjected to torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment by or at the instigation of a public official shall have the right to complain to, and to have his case impartially examined by, the competent authorities of the State concerned.

E. If an investigation establishes that an act of torture as defined in "A" above appears to have been committed, criminal proceedings shall be instituted against the alleged offender or offenders in accordance with national law. If an allegation of other forms of cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment is considered to be well founded, the alleged offender or offenders shall be subject to criminal, disciplinary or other appropriate proceedings.

3. Principles of Medical Ethics adopted in 1982 states that it is a contravention of medical ethics for health personnel, particularly physicians, to participate in any procedure for restraining a prisoner or detainee unless such a procedure is determined in accordance with purely medical criteria as being necessary for the protection of the physical or mental health or the safety of the prisoner or detainee himself, of his fellow prisoners or detainees, or of his guardians, and it presents no hazard to his physical or mental health.

4. Convention Against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment adopted in 1984.

A. An order from a superior officer or public authority may not be invoked as a justification of torture.

B. Each State Party shall ensure that education and information regarding the prohibition against torture are fully included in the training of law enforcement personnel, civil or military, medical personnel, public officials and other persons who may be involved in the custody, interrogation or treatment of any individual subjected to any form of arrest, detention or imprisonment.

INSURING INMATE RIGHTS

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTE:

Using actual incidence from within your prison system, or a compilation of several incidence, write a series of scenarios that will provoke discussions from the students on issues directly related to taking actions in difficult situations that might test their ability to adhere to international standards

A prison is not a democracy. Many prisoners express themselves through aggressive action. Often, when situations occur that can cause harm to a correction officer or to inmates, it happens quickly and does not allow preparation time. Therefore, in order to handle inmates during difficult situations, pre-training and practice are important keys to being able to do the job safely and without violating inmate rights.

The following are a series of examples for discussion and to provide an opportunity to think (when not under pressure) of the appropriate response. All of the examples and case histories come from either actual incidents or are a compilation of actual incidents. Remember, the time to think about how you plan to handle dangerous situations is before the situation occurs. Thus, each officer should spend time alone and in conversation with others creating, in his mind, possible situations that can occur and then working out a proper solution. Also, the more an officer practices other basic skills taught in both basic and on-going training, the less likely he is to be faced with a situation he is not prepared to handle. When prison security and discipline is handled properly in a consistent and proper manner, few situations arise which places the officer in a position where the violating of an inmates rights might occur due to circumstances or panic. Thus, the best human rights training is comprised of knowing what rights prisoners have and being well trained in basic correctional skills.

QUIZ

1. Name three United Nations Documents that impact on the rights of confined individuals.
2. A basic principle of working with convicted and sentenced offenders prohibits:
 - A. Punishing prisoners for violating prison rules
 - B. Punishing prisoners for supporting the political opposition
 - C. Punishing prisoners for verbally abusing officers
 - D. All of the above
3. List ten (10) rights all prisoners have.

Bonus List an additional five (5) rights all prisoners have.
4. What is the basic philosophy in how you should treat pre-trial detainees?
5. Describe the process you should follow when you see a senior officer abusing a prisoner's human rights.
6. Define "torture."
7. List three times when it is permissible for an officer use force against a prisoner.
8. When can corporal punishment be used to discipline an inmate?
9. Under what circumstances can a prisoner be placed in a dark cell for discipline?
10. Discuss the major differences between Cameroon Prison Law and the UN and international standards and norms impacting on corrections in Cameroon.

Answers to Quiz

1. Universal Declaration of Human Rights; International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights; The Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Offenders. NOTE: The student may list other UN or human rights standards covered in the lesson. However, the student should always include The Standard Minimum Rules in his list as that is the most comprehensive of the international documents impacting on corrections.

2. B

3. Any 10 (or 15 for bonus points of the following):

1. Not to be discriminated against due to his/her race, color, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth or other status.
2. The right to his/her religious beliefs and moral precepts.
3. Be kept separate from other prisoners based on differences in sex, juvenile status, and convicted vs non-convicted status.
4. Have sufficient light to read and work by.
5. Have access to fresh air.
6. Have constant access to clean and decent sanitary facilities to be able to comply with the needs of nature.
7. Have access to shower or bathing facilities as frequently as necessary to maintain general hygiene, but no less than once a week.
8. Wear his own or prison furnished clothing sufficient for maintenance of good health and that is neither humiliating or degrading.
9. Be provided with food, served at normal hours, which is of nutritional value adequate for health and of wholesome quality and well prepared and served.
10. Have drinking water available whenever it is needed.
11. Be given at least 1 hour of exercise daily.
12. Have his/her personal property returned upon release.
13. Have friends or relatives informed of any movement to another institution, serious injury or illness or upon his/her death.
14. Be informed, at once, of the death or serious illness of any near relative.
15. To be able, at once, to inform relatives of his or her incarceration or transfer to another institution.
16. To have the opportunity each week day of making requests or complaints to the director of the institution or the officer authorized to represent him.
17. To be allowed to make a request or complaint, using the proper form, to the central prison administration, the judicial authority or other proper authorities through approved channels.

4. Unconvicted prisoners are presumed innocent and shall be treated as such.

5. First the offending staff member should be told to stop and informed that it is a violation of the person's basic human rights. Second, a report should be turned in to the offending officers superior.

6. "Torture" is defined as any act by which severe pain or suffering, whether physical or mental, is intentionally inflicted by or at the instigation of a public official on a person for such purposes as obtaining from him or a third person information or confession, punishing him for an act he has committed or is suspected of having committed, or intimidating him or other persons.

7. 1. To protect another officer or prisoner or person.
 2. To prevent an escape.
 3. In self defense.

8. Never.

9. Never.

10. There is no basic differences or disagreements between the rights guaranteed by Cameroon law and those recommended by UN or other international standards and norms impacting on corrections.

Supplement to LESSON PLAN 4

The above lesson plan may contain too much information – it may be too detailed for new officers and it may not hold their attention in a way which promotes good learning. Other ways to teach the international standards might concentrate more on the philosophy behind the UN declaration and less on the specifics. One training academy gives the officer/candidates a 50 question test on their first day of training. Each question is prefixed by “A Prisoner has a right to . . . “ then statements like

“to contest his/her innocence in court”

“to good wholesome food”

“to bedding, i.e. mattress at night”

Etc.

Several days later the training on human rights is given and the test they took previously is given back to them so they can check their original answers to see how many of their original thoughts were incorrect.

Topic: STANDARD MINIMUM RULES FOR THE TREATMENT OF PRISONERS

Time: 2 Sessions (each session is 1 hour)

This session is designed to summarize the sessions that have proceeded. During this session the students will be doing a majority of the work.

Divide group into smaller groups.

Allocate each group one section of the UN minimum standards.

As a group they have 15 minutes to develop a 5 minute session demonstrating how the nation’s procedures comply with their section.

Just as important is to mention other sessions and how they impact on the section under review.

For Example: Segregation, What does the UN Standard say, what does the procedure state. Is Accommodation, visits etc influenced by this section?

The idea is to get the students to think about the entire system and tie all the parts together.

Question: From your two periods of In-service Training, what if any areas do not comply with the Minimum Standards.

At the end summarise what has been presented. Emphasise that the entire responsibility of the Correctional Officer relates to ensuring the standards are maintained.

Also stress that these are minimum standards, they can be exceeded but not reduced.

LESSON PLAN 5 – Correctional Policies and Procedures

Correctional Policies and Procedures

NOTE: The data used as an example is from the nation of Bosnia & Herzegovina. This entire lesson plan must be rewritten by personnel within the nation using it to reflect their institutions, laws and procedures.

Method of Instruction: Discussion, Lecture, Question and Answer

Time Frame: 6 Hours

Performance Objectives: At the conclusion of this block of instruction the student will:

1. Be able to describe the differences in the handling of detainees and of sentenced prisoners.
2. Be able to list 10 of the prison procedures outlined in the law.
3. Be able to describe, in detail, the system of privileges used in Bosnia and Herzegovina corrections.
4. Be able to describe, in detail, the visiting and letter writing rights and procedures for the prisoners.
5. Be able to describe, in detail, the basic food, clothing and other material prescribed by law for the prisoner.

References: The Law of Implementing Criminal Sanctions and Book of Rules on House Order .

Training Aides Required: Flip Chart, Blackboard, Overhead Projector (or copies of handouts for all students if no Overhead Projector is available), copy of The Law of Implementing Criminal Sanctions and Book of Rules on House Order -- found in the appendix of the Correctional Training Manual.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

The instructor should separate five students and place them with a senior prison officer to act as “reactors.” Then the instructor should have students alternate reading different paragraphs and have the remaining students follow along. Before selecting the students who will do the reading, be sure to inform them in advance and make sure they all have the ability to read the material.

The group selected as reactors will be asked to indicate, after consultation among themselves and with the senior prison official working with them, if any of the policies or procedures are contrary or in agreement with existing international standards and norms. They should react after each section is covered.

INTRODUCTION

A prison operates strictly according to the law and on established and approved procedure. If, for any reason, procedures are not followed, that represents a violation of the law and the offending officer can be punished. More important, procedures that are not followed, place the life of prisoners, staff and the public in danger. When officers are told, by senior staff, not to follow procedures, they are being told to disobey the law. Realizing that unless the procedure violates or threatens the health, safety or human rights of prisoners, the orders must be followed, then it is the officers obligation to report the deviation of procedure to higher correctional authorities. The procedures and policy of the Bosnia and Herzegovina Correctional system come from the Bosnia and Herzegovina Prisons Act and Subsidiary Legislation, Prison Rules under Chapter 9:02 Some of its parts contain:

PRISONERS LIFE AND PRISON ADMINISTRATION

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Then the instructor should have students alternate reading different paragraphs and have the remaining students follow along. Before selecting the students who will do the reading, be sure to inform them in advance and make sure they all have the ability to read the material.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

The number (i.e. 5.) used before various sections denotes the rule number as established in the Prisons Act. Not all the prison rules are covered in this lesson. Students will be expected to read and be familiar with all the rules, but those covered here are the ones that most directly impact on the daily work of the officers.

Detainees:

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

Point out to the students that the following rules are applied because untried prisoners are only being held for legal action. They are not guilty of any crime until the court finds them guilty. Thus, they are to be treated as innocent persons, subject to the necessary procedures of safety, security, hygiene and necessary institutional discipline.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

This is a good place to point out to the students that though all of this might seem like a lot of detail, it is very important for them to know. Even the very new officer will be regarded by most of the prisoners as an "expert" in the system. The officer is the closest and most logical person for a prisoner to ask why someone gets a privilege denied to him or her. The officer must know the details of classification in order to better do his or her job. On the other side, what the officer does not understand can hurt him or her. They, especially as new officers, will be tested by the inmates.

XIX. FINAL STIPULATIONS.

Article 150.

The more elaborate stipulations on everyday life and work of the inmates in accordance with the stipulations on the law in this rule book, shall be prescribed by the penitentiary Governor through his orders and instructions.

Article 151.

This list of book of rules on house order is available to the inmates in the penitentiary and during the course of their stay at the acceptance block, they will become compulsorily acquainted with it's contents.

CONCLUSION

As the extensive material in this lesson has indicated, the procedures concerning the care and treatment of prisoners is extensive and specific. Other lessons will provide even more procedures, such as the use of force. Each of these procedures is necessary for the prison staff to know and to follow. The penalties for not following the proper procedures, even if told to do so by a superior officer, are severe. If the nation is to operate prisons which provide appropriate justice, those who work in them must set an example of fair and appropriate behavior.

QUIZ

1. Name the document that contains the Prison Regulations under which the Bosnia and Herzegovina correctional system works.
2. List 10 of subjects covered by the prison regulations outlined in the law.
3. Describe the privileges used in Bosnia and Herzegovina corrections.
4. Describe the visiting and letter writing rights and procedures for the prisoners.

Answers to Quiz

1. Laws of Bosnia and Herzegovina, The Law of Implementing Criminal Sanctions and Book of Rules on House Order .
2. Any 10 of the items covered in the regulations, such as: Letters and Visits; Food, Clothing, Work, Medical treatment, Privileges.
3. As a reward for good conduct and especially good results achieved at work, school or through other activities, the inmate may be granted additional compensation, additional parcels or visits or external leave.
4. Inmates are entitled to correspond with members of their immediate family (Spouse, children, parents, brothers and sisters, adopters and adoptees). With special permission, other may be included on the inmate=s mailing list. The inmate has an unrestricted right to correspond with organizations that can help him protect his rights and lawful interests. The inmate places thier open envelopes into a post box, from which they are taken to the educators. The inmates are entitled to a visit, once a month, from their immediate family. Visits are made in a separate room, under the supervision of guards.

This lesson plan is intended to insure that correctional personnel are familiar with the State's general correctional policies as well as the detailed prison procedures. It is very detailed and oftentimes difficult to learn because it is tedious. A good training technique would be to develop a series of scenario and simulations with existing staff.

It must also be noted that combining both general correctional policies and the detailed prison procedures might be too much for one lesson plan. This must be determined by local staff and should be based on the amount of information to be covered. The correctional policies are very important, large issues for the entire system. The more detailed prison procedures (e.g. food norms, clothing, visiting, etc.) follow from the correctional policy.

Human Rights Instruments Related to LESSON PLAN 5

International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights

Adopted and opened for signature, ratification and accession by General Assembly resolution 2200A (XXI) of 16 December 1966 entry into force 23 March 1976, in accordance with Article 49

Article 7

No one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment. In particular, no one shall be subjected without his free consent to medical or scientific experimentation.

Article 10

1. All persons deprived of their liberty shall be treated with humanity and with respect for the inherent dignity of the human person.

Article 17

1. No one shall be subjected to arbitrary or unlawful interference with his privacy, family, home or correspondence, nor to unlawful attacks on his honour and reputation.
2. Everyone has the right to the protection of the law against such interference or attacks.

Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners

Adopted by the First United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, held at Geneva in 1955, and approved by the Economic and Social Council by its resolutions 663 C (XXIV) of 31 July 1957 and 2076 (LXII) of 13 May 1977

Separation of categories

8. The different categories of prisoners shall be kept in separate institutions or parts of institutions taking account of their sex, age, criminal record, the legal reason for their detention and the necessities of their treatment. Thus,
 - (a) Men and women shall so far as possible be detained in separate institutions; in an institution which receives both men and women the whole of the premises allocated to women shall be entirely separate;

- (b) Untried prisoners shall be kept separate from convicted prisoners;
- (c) Persons imprisoned for debt and other civil prisoners shall be kept separate from persons imprisoned by reason of a criminal offence;
- (d) Young prisoners shall be kept separate from adults.

Accommodation

9. (1) Where sleeping accommodation is in individual cells or rooms, each prisoner shall occupy by night a cell or room by himself. If for special reasons, such as temporary overcrowding, it becomes necessary for the central prison administration to make an exception to this rule, it is not desirable to have two prisoners in a cell or room.

(2) Where dormitories are used, they shall be occupied by prisoners carefully selected as being suitable to associate with one another in those conditions. There shall be regular supervision by night, in keeping with the nature of the institution.

10. All accommodation provided for the use of prisoners and in particular all sleeping accommodation shall meet all requirements of health, due regard being paid to climatic conditions and particularly to cubic content of air, minimum floor space, lighting, heating and ventilation.

Clothing and bedding

17. (1) Every prisoner who is not allowed to wear his own clothing shall be provided with an outfit of clothing suitable for the climate and adequate to keep him in good health. Such clothing shall in no manner be degrading or humiliating.

(2) All clothing shall be clean and kept in proper condition. Underclothing shall be changed and washed as often as necessary for the maintenance of hygiene.

Food

20. (1) Every prisoner shall be provided by the administration at the usual hours with food of nutritional value adequate for health and strength, of wholesome quality and well prepared and served.

(2) Drinking water shall be available to every prisoner whenever he needs it.

Exercise and sport

21. (1) Every prisoner who is not employed in outdoor work shall have at least one hour of suitable exercise in the open air daily if the weather permits.

Contact with the outside world

37. Prisoners shall be allowed under necessary supervision to communicate with their family and reputable friends at regular intervals, both by correspondence and by receiving visits.

39. Prisoners shall be kept informed regularly of the more important items of news by the reading of newspapers, periodicals or special institutional publications, by hearing wireless transmissions, by lectures or by any similar means as authorized or controlled by the administration.

Religion

42. So far as practicable, every prisoner shall be allowed to satisfy the needs of his religious life by attending the services provided in the institution and having in his possession the books of religious observance and instruction of his denomination.

Register

7. (1) In every place where persons are imprisoned there shall be kept a bound registration book with numbered pages in which shall be entered in respect of each prisoner received:

- (a) Information concerning his identity;
- (b) The reasons for his commitment and the authority therefor;
- (c) The day and hour of his admission and release.

(2) No person shall be received in an institution without a valid commitment order of which the details shall have been previously entered in the register.

Notification of death, illness, transfer, etc.

44. (1) Upon the death or serious illness of, or serious injury to a prisoner, or his removal to an institution for the treatment of mental affections, the director shall at once inform the spouse, if the prisoner is married, or the nearest relative and shall in any event inform any other person previously designated by the prisoner.

(2) A prisoner shall be informed at once of the death or serious illness of any near relative. In case of the critical illness of a near relative, the prisoner should be authorized, whenever circumstances allow, to go to his bedside either under escort or alone.

(3) Every prisoner shall have the right to inform at once his family of his imprisonment or his transfer to another institution.

Code of Conduct for Law Enforcement Officials

Adopted by General Assembly resolution 34/169 of 17 December 1979

Article 1

Law enforcement officials shall at all times fulfil the duty imposed upon them by law, by serving the community and by protecting all persons against illegal acts, consistent with the high degree of responsibility required by their profession.

Article 2

In the performance of their duty, law enforcement officials shall respect and protect human dignity and maintain and uphold the human rights of all persons.

Article 4

Matters of a confidential nature in the possession of law enforcement officials shall be kept confidential, unless the performance of duty or the needs of justice strictly require otherwise.

Article 5

No law enforcement official may inflict, instigate or tolerate any act of torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment, nor may any law enforcement official invoke superior orders or exceptional circumstances such as a state of war or a threat of war, a threat to national security, internal political instability or any other public emergency as a justification of torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

Article 8

Law enforcement officials shall respect the law and the present Code. They shall also, to the best of their capability, prevent and rigorously oppose any violations of them.

Law enforcement officials who have reason to believe that a violation of the present Code has occurred or is about to occur shall report the matter to their superior authorities and, where necessary, to other appropriate authorities or organs vested with reviewing or remedial power.

Body of Principles for the Protection of All Persons under Any Form of Detention or Imprisonment

Adopted by General Assembly resolution 43/173 of 9 December 1988

Principle 2

Arrest, detention or imprisonment shall only be carried out strictly in accordance with the provisions of the law and by competent officials or persons authorized for that purpose.

Principle 5

1. These principles shall be applied to all persons within the territory of any given State, without distinction of any kind, such as race, colour, sex, language, religion or religious belief, political or other opinion, national, ethnic or social origin, property, birth or other status.

2. Measures applied under the law and designed solely to protect the rights and special status of women, especially pregnant women and nursing mothers, children and juveniles, aged, sick or handicapped persons shall not be deemed to be discriminatory. The need for, and the application of, such measures shall always be subject to review by a judicial or other authority.

Principle 16

Promptly after arrest and after each transfer from one place of detention or imprisonment to another, a detained or imprisoned person shall be entitled to notify or to require the competent authority to notify members of his family or other appropriate persons of his choice of his arrest, detention or imprisonment or of the transfer and of the place where he is kept in custody.

Principle 23

1. The duration of any interrogation of a detained or imprisoned person and of the intervals between interrogations as well as the identity of the officials who conducted the interrogations and other persons present shall be recorded and certified in such form as may be prescribed by law.

2. A detained or imprisoned person, or his counsel when provided by law, shall have access to the information described in paragraph 1 of the present principle.

Recommendation No R (87) 3 of the Committee of Ministers to member states on the European Prison Rules

Adopted by the Committee of Ministers on 12 February 1987 at the 404th meeting of the Ministers' Deputies

Reception and registration

7. 1. No person shall be received in an institution without a valid commitment order.
2. The essential details of the commitment and reception shall immediately be recorded.
8. In every place where persons are imprisoned a complete and secure record of the following information shall be kept concerning each prisoner received:
 - a. information concerning the identity of the prisoner;
 - b. the reasons for commitment and the authority therefor;
 - c. the day and hour of admission and release.

Accommodation

14. 1. Prisoners shall normally be lodged during the night in individual cells except in cases where it is considered that there are advantages in sharing accommodation with other prisoners.
2. Where accommodation is shared it shall be occupied by prisoners suitable to associate with others in those conditions. There shall be supervision by night, in keeping with the nature of the institution.
15. The accommodation provided for prisoners, and in particular all sleeping accommodation, shall meet the requirements of health and hygiene, due regard being paid to climatic conditions and especially the cubic content of air, a reasonable amount of space, lighting, heating and ventilation.

Clothing and bedding

22. 1. Prisoners who are not allowed to wear their own clothing shall be provided with an outfit of clothing suitable for the climate and adequate to keep them in good health. Such clothing shall in no manner be degrading or humiliating.
2. All clothing shall be clean and kept in proper condition. Underclothing shall be changed and washed as often as necessary for the maintenance of hygiene.
3. Whenever prisoners obtain permission to go outside the institution they shall be allowed to wear their own clothing or other inconspicuous clothing.
24. Every prisoner shall be provided with a separate bed and separate and appropriate bedding which shall be kept in good order and changed often enough to ensure its cleanliness.

Food

25. 1. In accordance with the standards laid down by the health authorities, the administration shall provide the prisoners at the normal times with food which is suitably prepared and presented, and which satisfies in quality and quantity the standards of dietetics and modern hygiene and takes into account their age, health, the nature of their work, and so far as possible, religious or cultural requirements.
2. Drinking water shall be available to every prisoner.

Contact with the outside world

44. 1. Prisoners who are foreign nationals should be informed, without delay, of their right to request contact and be allowed reasonable facilities to communicate with the diplomatic or consular representative of the state to which they belong. The prison administration should cooperate fully with such representatives in the interests of foreign nationals in prison who may have special needs.
2. Prisoners who are nationals of states without diplomatic or consular representation in the country and refugees or stateless persons shall be allowed similar facilities to communicate with the diplomatic representative of the state which takes charge of their interests or national or international authority whose task it is to serve the interests of such persons.

Retention of prisoners' property

48. 1. All money, valuables, and other effects belonging to prisoners which under the regulations of the institution they are not allowed to retain, shall on admission to the institution be placed in safe custody. An inventory thereof shall be signed by the prisoner. Steps shall be taken to keep them in good condition. If it has been found necessary to destroy any article, this shall be recorded and the prisoner informed.
2. On the release of the prisoner all such articles and money shall be returned except insofar as there have been authorised withdrawals of money or the authorised sending of any such property out of the institution, or it has been found necessary on hygienic grounds to destroy any article. The prisoner shall sign a receipt for the articles and money returned.

Notification of death, illness, transfer, etc.

49. 1. Upon the death or serious illness of or serious injury to a prisoner, or removal to an institution for the treatment of mental illnesses or abnormalities, the director shall at once inform the spouse, if the prisoner is married, or the nearest relative and shall in any event inform any other person previously designated by the prisoner.
2. A prisoner shall be informed at once of the death or serious illness of any near relative. In these cases and whenever circumstances allow, the prisoner should be authorised to visit this sick relative or see the deceased either under escort or alone.
3. All prisoners shall have the right to inform at once their families of imprisonment or transfer to another institution.

64. Imprisonment is by the deprivation of liberty a punishment in itself. The conditions of imprisonment and the prison regimes shall not, therefore, except as incidental to justifiable segregation or the maintenance of discipline, aggravate the suffering inherent in this.

Untried prisoners

91. Without prejudice to legal rules for the protection of individual liberty or prescribing the procedure to be observed in respect of untried prisoners, these prisoners, who are presumed to be innocent until they are found guilty, shall be afforded the benefits that may derive from Rule 90 and treated without restrictions other than those necessary for the penal procedure and the security of the institution.

92. 1. Untried prisoners shall be allowed to inform their families of their detention immediately and given all reasonable facilities for communication with family and friends and persons with whom it is in their legitimate interest to enter into contact.

2. They shall also be allowed to receive visits from them under humane conditions subject only to such restrictions and supervision as are necessary in the interests of the administration of justice and of the security and good order of the institution.

3. If an untried prisoner does not wish to inform any of these persons, the prison administration should not do so on its own initiative unless there are good overriding reasons as, for instance, the age, state of mind or any other incapacity of the prisoner.

94. Except where there are circumstances that make it undesirable, untried prisoners shall be given the opportunity of having separate rooms.

96. Untried prisoners shall, whenever possible, be offered the opportunity to work but shall not be required to work. Those who choose to work shall be paid as other prisoners. If educational or trade training is available untried prisoners shall be encouraged to avail themselves of these opportunities.

97. Untried prisoners shall be allowed to procure at their own expense or at the expense of a third party such books, newspapers, writing materials and other means of occupation as are compatible with the interests of the administration of justice and the security and good order of the institution.

The Ouagadougou Declaration on Accelerating Prison and Penal Reform in Africa. Burkina Fasso, 18-20 September 2002.

4. Applying the rule of law to prison administration

There should be a comprehensive law governing prisons and the implementation of punishment. Such law should be clear and unambiguous about the rights and duties of prisoners and prison officials. Officials should be trained to follow proper administrative procedures and to apply this law fairly. Administrative decisions that impact on the rights of prisoners should be subject to review by an independent and impartial judicial body.

LESSON PLAN 6 – Cross-Cultural Awareness

Method of Instruction: Lecture, Discussion, Question and Answer

Time Frame: 2 Hours

Performance Objectives: At the conclusion of this block of instruction:

1. The student will be able to explain why understanding different cultures is important in a correctional setting.
2. The student will be able to identify at least five (5) factors that can be misunderstood by people of different cultures and thus can lead to prejudice and conflict.
3. The student will be able to list three (3) groups of individuals who are often subject to forms of bias and discrimination.
4. The student will be able to discuss how to help remove or reduce misunderstandings caused by cultural diversity.

The purpose of this module is to provide participants with the knowledge and skills necessary to supervise and effectively communicate with all members of today's culturally diverse correctional community, thereby improving the overall effectiveness of correctional operations and avoiding culturally related supervision problems.

Training Aides Required: Flip Chart or Black Board

INTRODUCTION

The justice system of all nations, and especially the prisons, are the great "melting pot" or mosaic where people from different cultures are often put together. Besides people with different backgrounds, religions, beliefs, education and value systems being placed in close proximity to each other, they are also not given an opportunity to separate themselves from those they either do not understand or who they find offensive. This is true of both prisoners and staff. Since the operation of the prison depends upon people being able to get along together with a minimum of conflict, it becomes important for staff to be able to understand the types of differences that might cause conflict among the prisoners and that might cause the staff to treat prisoners who appear different from themselves in a manner that is unfair or discriminatory.

It is the purpose of this block of instruction to explore implications of cultural biases on the prisons and on the individual correctional officers career.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

There will be no quiz at the end of this lesson because it is intended to help the students understand their own prejudice and that of others and learn how to deal with it. Special care must be taken to help all students fully participate in the instruction and to help them speak openly and freely.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Break the class up into groups of four. On each of the following topics, have them work together to explore attitudes and opinions. Then, before moving on to the next topic, have each group leader present the view of their group to the whole. Control the reports of the discussion leaders only to keep things moving and within appropriate time frames. As each leader reports the reactions of his or her group, write the summary on a black board or flip chart. Tell the group leaders that they need not repeat an item if it was mentioned earlier. Their purpose is to bring out as many different thoughts as possible in a short period of time. It is hoped that the students will be able to individually and collectively see that even though cultures give individuals different values and ways of reacting, there are more similarities than differences among peoples.

1. How are people different and how are they the same?

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Give the groups about 30 minutes to put together a list and talk about them. Items that should be identified on the flip chart or blackboard and discussion points for them include:

A. Values and Norms - the needs of different cultures vary, thus making for different priorities which has an impact on behavior. If a people must operate on a survival level then the value given to gathering food, adequate covering, and shelter is high. Those who already have a high degree of security value material things like money, job titles and law and order more. Peoples values are their fundamental beliefs about behavior, customs, and institutions. Norms are commonly held standards that define acceptable and unacceptable behavior of individuals within a group. Norms are almost always culture-specific, and they vary widely from one cultural environment to another.

B. Beliefs and Attitudes - these determine how people are likely to respond to various situations.

C. Relationships - are fixed, in different cultures, by age, sex, status, degree of kindred, wealth, power, and wisdom. In some cultures, the elderly are honored, in others they are ignored. In some cultures the authoritarian figure in the family is the head male. This can be extended from the home to the community, explaining some societies' preference for a dictator who leads the national family. In other cultures this would not be true.

D. Communication and Language - verbal, nonverbal, dialects, accents, slang, jargon and body language.

E. Sense of Self and Space - in one culture a humble bearing might be admired and a sign of great leadership. In another culture it might be viewed as weakness. Some cultures, such as Americans, have a sense of space that requires more physical distance between an individual and others. Latins and Vietnamese tend to get much closer. Some cultures are very structured and formal, others are flexible and informal.

F. Appearance and Dress - outward garments, jewelry or lack thereof. Some cultures paint their face for battle, while others use cosmetics to manifest beauty.

G. Work Habits and Practices - Some cultures call for work as a show of productive support for the nation, other cultures use work only as a means to achieve physical survival and reverie leisure time.

H. Food and Eating Habits - the kind of food and how it is prepared varies among peoples. Some religions forbid eating certain foods, while others mandate it. The way food is eaten varies from the use of hands to chop sticks to forks and even the use of forks can distinguish whether a person comes from an American or European culture by which hand he or she uses to hold it.

2. What contributes to cultural differences?

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Ask this one of the class as a whole. Points that should be brought out are that the culture of the people is what they use to translate their physical circumstances into coping skills and knowledge. Even as some of those physical conditions might change, the skills passed down by parents and grandparents often live on. Culture gives people a sense of who they are, of belonging, of how they should behave, and of what they should be doing.

3. What are some of the benefits in recognizing cultural differences?

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Give the groups 15 minutes to discuss this before having each group report. During the reporting process, after each group leader gives his or her report, let others add thoughts. Use this final discussion to bring out all the other points you want to make. Included in this section should be mentioned items that include:

A. Understanding different cultures makes communications among people easier and more productive.

B. Understanding different cultures helps corrections professionals understand how to “read” the actions of various prisoners, thus helping to avoid potentially dangerous or difficult situations.

C. Understanding different cultures helps corrections professionals to understand the cultural shock some of the inmates might be experiencing and thus will provide better information on how to work with and help those prisoners.

D. Understanding different cultures helps provide basic tools needed to improve human relations and to help insure non-discriminatory treatment.

CONCLUSION

Correctional workers are professionals who need all the tools and understanding possible when working with other staff, prisoners and the public at large. Awareness of cultural differences helps individuals better understand how and why different people may react differently to the same set of circumstances. That understanding provides for better and more humane treatment and it make living in our increasingly shrinking world a much more interesting and pleasant experience.

Universal Declaration of Human Rights, 1948.

Article 2

Everyone is entitled to all the rights and freedoms set forth in this Declaration, without distinction of any kind, such as race, colour, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth or other status.

Article 7

All are equal before the law and are entitled without any discrimination to equal protection of the law. All are entitled to equal protection against any discrimination in violation of this Declaration and against any incitement to such discrimination.

International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights

Adopted and opened for signature, ratification and accession by General Assembly resolution 2200A (XXI) of 16 December 1966. Entry into force 23 March 1976, in accordance with Article 49

Article 2

1. Each State Party to the present Covenant undertakes to respect and to ensure to all individuals within its territory and subject to its jurisdiction the rights recognized in the present Covenant, without distinction of any kind, such as race, colour, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth or other status.

Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners

Adopted by the First United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, held at Geneva in 1955, and approved by the Economic and Social Council by its resolutions 663 C (XXIV) of 31 July 1957 and 2076 LXII) of 13 May 1977

Basic principle

6. (1) The following rules shall be applied impartially. There shall be no discrimination on grounds of race, colour, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth or other status.

(2) On the other hand, it is necessary to respect the religious beliefs and moral precepts of the group to which a prisoner belongs.

Contact with the outside world

37. Prisoners shall be allowed under necessary supervision to communicate with their family and reputable friends at regular intervals, both by correspondence and by receiving visits.

38. (1) Prisoners who are foreign nationals shall be allowed reasonable facilities to communicate with the diplomatic and consular representatives of the State to which they belong.

(2) Prisoners who are nationals of States without diplomatic or consular representation in the country and refugees or stateless persons shall be allowed similar facilities to communicate with the diplomatic representative of the State which takes charge of their interests or any national or international authority whose task it is to protect such persons.

39. Prisoners shall be kept informed regularly of the more important items of news by the reading of newspapers, periodicals or special institutional publications, by hearing wireless transmissions, by lectures or by any similar means as authorized or controlled by the administration.

Religion

41. (1) If the institution contains a sufficient number of prisoners of the same religion, a qualified representative of that religion shall be appointed or approved. If the number of prisoners justifies it and conditions permit, the arrangement should be on a full-time basis.

(2) A qualified representative appointed or approved under paragraph (1) shall be allowed to hold regular services and to pay pastoral visits in private to prisoners of his religion at proper times.

(3) Access to a qualified representative of any religion shall not be refused to any prisoner. On the other hand, if any prisoner should object to a visit of any religious representative, his attitude shall be fully respected.

42. So far as practicable, every prisoner shall be allowed to satisfy the needs of his religious life by attending the services provided in the institution and having in his possession the books of religious observance and instruction of his denomination.

61. The treatment of prisoners should emphasize not their exclusion from the community, but their continuing part in it. Community agencies should, therefore, be enlisted wherever possible to assist the staff of the institution in the task of social rehabilitation of the prisoners. There should be in connection with every institution social workers charged with the duty of maintaining and improving all desirable relations of a prisoner with his family and with valuable social agencies. Steps should be taken to safeguard, to the maximum extent compatible with the law and the sentence, the rights relating to civil interests, social security rights and other social benefits of prisoners.

Body of Principles for the Protection of All Persons under Any Form of Detention or Imprisonment

Adopted by General Assembly resolution 43/173 of 9 December 1988

Principle 19

A detained or imprisoned person shall have the right to be visited by and to correspond with, in particular, members of his family and shall be given adequate opportunity to communicate with the outside world, subject to reasonable conditions and restrictions as specified by law or lawful regulations.

Principle 29

2. A detained or imprisoned person shall have the right to communicate freely and in full confidentiality with the persons who visit the places of detention or imprisonment in accordance with paragraph 1 of the present principle, subject to reasonable conditions to ensure security and good order in such places.

Basic Principles for the Treatment of Prisoners

Adopted and proclaimed by General Assembly resolution 45/111 of 14 December 1990

1. All prisoners shall be treated with the respect due to their inherent dignity and value as human beings.
2. There shall be no discrimination on the grounds of race, colour, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth or other status.
3. It is, however, desirable to respect the religious beliefs and cultural precepts of the group to which prisoners belong, whenever local conditions so require.

Recommendation No R (87) 3 of the Committee of Ministers to member states on the European Prison Rules

Adopted by the Committee of Ministers on 12 February 1987 at the 404th meeting of the Ministers' Deputies

2. The rules shall be applied impartially. There shall be no discrimination on grounds of race, colour, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, birth, economic or other status. The religious beliefs and moral precepts of the group to which a prisoner belongs shall be respected.

25. 1. In accordance with the standards laid down by the health authorities, the administration shall provide the prisoners at the normal times with food which is suitably prepared and presented, and which satisfies in quality and quantity the standards of dietetics and modern hygiene and takes into account their age, health, the nature of their work, and so far as possible, religious or cultural requirements.

45. Prisoners shall be allowed to keep themselves informed regularly of the news by reading newspapers, periodicals and other publications, by radio or television transmissions, by lectures or by any similar means as authorised or controlled by the administration. Special arrangements should be made to meet the needs of foreign nationals with linguistic difficulties.

Religious and moral assistance

46. So far as practicable, every prisoner shall be allowed to satisfy the needs of his religious, spiritual and moral life by attending the services or meetings provided in the institution and having in his possession any necessary books or literature.

47. 1. If the institution contains a sufficient number of prisoners of the same religion, a qualified representative of that religion shall be appointed and approved. If the number of prisoners justifies it and conditions permit, the arrangement should be on a full-time basis.

2. A qualified representative appointed or approved under paragraph 1 shall be allowed to hold regular services and activities and to pay pastoral visits in private to prisoners of his religion at proper times.

3. Access to a qualified representative of any religion shall not be refused to any prisoner. If any prisoner should object to a visit of any religious representative, the prisoner shall be allowed to refuse it.

AMERICAN CONVENTION ON HUMAN RIGHTS.

Article 1. Obligation to Respect Rights

1. The States Parties to this Convention undertake to respect the rights and freedoms recognized herein and to ensure to all persons subject to their jurisdiction the free and full exercise of those rights and freedoms, without any discrimination for reasons of race, color, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, economic status, birth, or any other social condition.

2. For the purposes of this Convention, "person" means every human being.

LESSON PLAN 7 – Inmate Discipline

NOTE: The data used as an example is from the nation of Bosnia & Herzegovina. This entire lesson plan must be rewritten by personnel within the nation using it to reflect their institutions, laws and procedures.

Method of Instruction: Lecture, Role Play, Discussion, Question & Answer.

Time Frame: 3 Hours

Performance Objectives: At the conclusion of this block of instruction the student will:

1. The student will be able to explain the basic rules which apply to inmate behavior.
2. The student will be able to describe the process for initiating a disciplinary procedure against the inmate.
3. The student will be able to explain who has the authority to authorize punishments or privation of privileges for a prisoner.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

The following introduction should be read pretty much as written. The instructor may wish to change some of the wording to better fit his or her style and to include some specific mention of the local or national identity. This is the time to insure that the students understand the importance of this material to themselves, to the organization, to the nation and to the citizens they are hired to protect and serve. This would be a good time for a high ranking government or justice official to be present to either deliver this introduction or to help give credibility to how seriously this material is viewed by the leadership.

INTRODUCTION

A prison is not a democracy! Having said that, it is important for all staff to know that it is also not a private kingdom ruled over by all-powerful staff. Not even the top prison administrator in our nation has total power over the lives of the inmates. We operate by a system of laws and procedures. Just as the police in the free world can only arrest, charge and convict a person for activities that have been declared illegal by the governmental process, so it is in the prison. We operate under a set of laws. We can only discipline a prisoner for a violation of those specific laws. Just as a free person has certain rights to a properly handled arrest and trial, so do we within the prison.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

The following should be discussed by the class in terms of the protections put in for the prisoner, the fact that no officer, other than superior officers, can order punishments. Also, material from previous lessons that specify what constitutes an “offense” should be brought into the discussion. The instructor might wish to have the class break into small groups of no more than 6 each to discuss inmate discipline and then bring the class back together for a discussion of the entire class.

X. THE INMATES BEHAVIOR.

Article 82.

The inmates are bound, during the serving of their sentences, to abide by the laws on criminal and sanctions violations, the rules brought in accordance with this law, the list of rules, orders of the penitentiaries Governor and to follow and execute the orders of the penitentiary officials.

Article 83.

The inmates should not through their behavior disturb the order of the penitentiary. The inmates are forbidden to create excessive noise: to argue, to fight each other, to swear, to call to inmates in other rooms, to throw various items in places where it is prohibited, to desert their work posts before the allotted time, to manufacture prohibited items in the workshops, to leave for meals and coffee outside the allowed times.

Tattoo's, self inflicted injuries and homosexual actions.

Preparation of meals, heating of food, preparation of coffee, making alcoholic potions in the laboratory or other places, mutual exchange of purchases and sales, trading with food, medicines or other items, borrowing coupons for coffee or borrowing personal items. Impertinent behavior, insulting an official or addressing them in a loud tone, keeping money on themselves, or illegal items, standing in the open area where it is prohibited, gambling and organising lotteries, loitering near the walls of the penitentiary, smoking in dormitories, classrooms, libraries, the cinema hall, in the queue line, in the dining room, the adjacent rooms, and other rooms, where it is explicitly forbidden to smoke.

Destruction of common property is prohibited.

Article 84.

If an inmate is in possession of prohibited illegal items, or suspected of this, then the supervising guards may carry out a search of their person and their belongings. Illegitimate items are confiscated and stored in the penitentiary, or are sent to the inmates family at his own expense.

Article 85.

The inmates are bound to greet the officials, in dormitories, in living rooms, the inmates do this by standing. The inmates should not greet them when they are in the queue line or at their working posts, in bed, when they are dieing or ill in bed.

The inmates address the officials through their title or function.

Article 86.

The inmates are bound to follow the general or specific measures of health and safety at work, in particular measures of fire prevention and protection.

Article 87.

If an inmate causes damage either deliberately or through extreme negligence, the penitentiary Governor will bring a decree of indemnification, or damages caused, in accordance with article 98 of the law on the implementation of criminal and sanctions violations.

Prior to the issuance of such a decree, the inmate will be heard and necessary evidence collected. damage done by the inmate to the penitentiary, shall be compensated for out of his working salary, any money sent to him or any money which he brought to the penitentiary on arrival.

Article 88.

The expenses of recapturing the inmate which resulted from his escape, are to be borne by the inmate.

Article 89.

According to the decree of the penitentiary Governor on the amount of damages claimed, and on the collection of the expenses of recapturing and escorting the inmate, the inmate may, after fifteen days of the decree being handed to him, file a complaint to the Minister of Justice. The Ministries settlement being final and no law suits can be filed against it.

Article 90.

If the damage was caused as a result of negligence or through excessive force, there will be no decree of indemnification, but there will be a protocol that will register the damage and the amount of the damage will be written off..

XI. DISCIPLINARY RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE INMATES.

Article 91.

For violation of the stipulations on the law on the implementation on criminal and sanctions violation, and other rules which are brought in relation to this law, the inmate may be fined through the following disciplinary penalties, such as: 1. rebukes, 2. referred to solitary confinement for up to thirty days, together with work, 3. referred to solitary confinement for up to thirty days, without work.

Article 92.

Punishment, in reference to solitary confinement, is served in special rooms designated for that specific purpose, where other inmates are not permitted access to.

In reference to the stay of inmates in solitary confinement, is regulated through separate instructions issued by the Republic's Minister of Justice.

Article 93.

Disciplinary punishment is pronounced by the Governor of the penitentiary, during the reports session, which is organised once a week. Before proclaiming disciplinary punishment the inmates will have the opportunity to give witness and call witnesses to give information on the committed violation. After the inmates defense has been heard and all circumstances surrounding the matter have been submitted, opinions of the instructors and if required other personal of the penitentiary will be given.

Article 94.

Disciplinary punishment which refers to solitary confinement is implemented immediately.

If the penitentiary Governor deems it justified that it can be expected that without the implementation of disciplinary punishment, the purpose of the punishment can be achieved, then he can in the course of pronouncing the disciplinary penalty, allow a delay on the execution of such punishment, under paragraph two and three of article 93, in the list of rules, for a period of up to six months. Provided that the pronounced penalty will not be implemented, the inmate in question, an escape it, if through the duration of that period, he does not create any new disciplinary violations.

If the inmate in question during this period creates new violations of the rules, then the conditional punishment is reinstated, the Governor of the penitentiary then proclaims new punishment, taking into consideration the previous punishment and the new punishment for disciplinary violations.

Article 95.

Inmates who due to their actions, represent a serious risk to security, or create such disciplinary violations, as a special measure involving solitary separation, can serve up to one third of their sentence in this way. However solitary confinement cannot last continuously for more than one year.

Disciplinary measures concerning solitary separation is pronounced by the penitentiary Governor, subject to previous approval of the Republic's Minister of Justice.

Article 96.

After issuance of punishment involving solitary confinement, or into separate isolation, the opinion of doctors will be obtained in cases when it is assumed that the implementation of such penalties will have a damaging effect upon the health of the convicted inmate.

The penitentiary Governor may suspend further serving of disciplinary punishment in solitary confinement and separate isolation, if the doctor determines that the health condition of the inmate had deteriorated to such an extent, that he can no longer remain in solitary confinement.

Article 97.

In justified cases the penitentiary Governor may during the course of an inmates spell in solitary, rescinded the punishment.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

The following quiz is based on material from previous lessons rather than this specific lesson. After giving the test, explain to the students that the reason for the discipline is much more important than the details of how it is to be carried out. Warn them that they must know the proper procedures and protections for the prisoners, but they must be very careful to insure that discipline, including loss of privileges, are followed. Prison is itself a punishment, it is not necessary to inflict more punishment unless specific correctional goals, such as maintenance of safety and order, are meant to be accomplished.

QUIZ

1. Describe when mechanical restraints can be used as punishment and for what offenses.
2. What are the rights of a prisoner when accused of a prison offense?
3. What punishments may an officer give to the prisoner for violating prison law?

Answers to Quiz

1. Mechanical restraints can never be used as punishment.
2. A prisoner has the right to be informed of the offense he is charged with and defend himself against such
3. An individual officer may not administer any punishment unless specifically authorized by the Commanding Officer.

PRISONERS DISCIPLINE.

Introduction: The disciplinary system is one of the methods of maintaining control in correctional institutions. It is most effective when it is used to restore a grievous breach of discipline in prison order and when other means prove unsuitable for achieving the objective of restoring control and discipline. Discipline and order should be maintained with firmness for safe- custody and well ordered community life.

INTRODUCTION

as Rules and
(10 Minutes)

Instructor Note: This lesson plan is designed understanding with several questions to generate participant/ requiring group discussions. Most of the questions are to discipline, followed by an answer or response. As much process and as possible try to draw the questions from the group versus reading the answers/ responses. They are there to summarize and clarify points. mind? Optional question depending on the response.

Introduce yourself and identify the module Regulations on Discipline.

This module is designed to give you a basic about discipline, identifying the situations discipline, what are the considerations prior the types of disciplinary actions, what is due the disciplinary procedures.

When you think of discipline, what comes to

Performance Objectives

Explain the purpose and right approach to discipline.

Identify the situations requiring discipline.

State the considerations prior to discipline.

Describe and differentiate the types for disciplinary actions.

Let's review the performance objectives for this module.

At the end of the session, the participants will be able to:

Explain discipline.

Explain the principles of discipline.

Explain due process.

Describe the disciplinary procedures.

Describe the grievance procedure.

Performance Objective 1

Explain discipline.

Discipline is training that corrects molds or improves job – related performance or behavior. Discipline is progressive in nature, i.e. it becomes increasingly stronger if the problem is not corrected.

Performance Objective 2

Explain the purpose and right approach

What do you think is the purpose of “discipline”?

to discipline.

After getting the answers from the participants, read the handout.

To correct the behaviour and salvage the employee, it is neither solely to punish nor restate authority.

There five (5) principles of discipline. The cause. Let’s take a closer look at “just take a look into your handout, then we go

Just Cause

1. Definition

Proper or sufficient reasons for disciplinary measures imposed on employees by management.

2. Components

a. Adequate Warning

- Did the employee know or should the employee have known that the behaviour could result in disciplinary action?

b. Reasonable Rules

- Was the rule or order reasonable, safe, and related to corrections needs? Was the rule or order related to the conduct that the Corrections might properly expect of the employee?

c. Violation of Rule

- Prior to administering the disciplinary action, did the Supervisor, make an effort to discover whether the employee did, in fact, violate the rule or order?

- d. Fair Investigation
 - Did the Supervisor conduct a thorough investigation of the facts and circumstances, including the employee's explanation, prior to administering disciplinary actions/

- e. Substantial Proof
 - Is there substantial proof for the case? Substantial evidence or proof of guilt must exist to clearly establish that the employee did, in fact, violate the work standard or rule.

- f. Equitable Treatment
 - Have the rules, orders and penalties been consistently enforced?

- g. Appropriate Discipline
 - Was the disciplinary action related to the seriousness of the offense, to the employee's record, and to the employee's level of responsibility within Corrections?

So after reading the handout, what is your understanding of "just cause"?

Let's go to the next principle. Time frames. Please take a look into your handout, then we go over the content.

Time Frames

Timeliness of the Disciplinary Action

Disciplinary action should be administered as soon as possible after the problem occurs or is discovered. It should not take more than ten (10) days to complete the investigation and administer any appropriate action after the incident or Supervisor learns about the incident. If more time is needed, the employee should be informed that an investigation is still underway and provide a date by which a decision will be made.

Time Between Disciplinary Actions

There is no minimum time between disciplinary steps. The supervisor needs to allow enough time for the employee to correct the problem. However, the last step taken may have to be repeated if more than a year passed since the last disciplinary action.

Time Limits for Correcting the Problem

In situations where the employee can resolve the problem promptly, such as attendance problems or sloppy work, communicate the expectations that the employee must immediately achieve and maintain acceptable performance standards to avoid further disciplinary action.

So after reading the handout, what is your understanding of “time frames”?

Let’s go to the next principle. Documenting Discipline
Please take a look into your handout, then we go over the content.

Documenting the Discipline

The Supervisor is required to confirm all disciplinary actions in writing by completing the appropriate form. The written documentation represents an official record that the problem exists and is written after the discussion with the employee and following the conclusion of the investigation. A disciplinary form and letter are written prior to meeting with the employee; the discussion may be slanted to fit the contents of the form or letter.

Documentation of disciplinary action must be kept in the employee's personnel file; the employee must receive a copy. All documentation of disciplinary action should be included in the employee's personnel file in the Human Resources/ Staff office as well as in the Supervisor's file.

Write in easily understood language, emphasize on the "do" rather than the "don't", and focus on the future rather than the past. In other words, use a tone of correction not punishment.

Keep a record of any relevant situations that occur once you initiated the progressive disciplinary process. These notes should be dated and signed and kept in the supervisor's file.

Parts of the Disciplinary Record

a. The Present problem activity

- Purpose of the disciplinary action
- Specific incident or nature of the
- How it affected in the work
- Results of the investigation
- Employee's explanation

Note: State only the facts that can be proven. This section cites the specific rule, policy or standard violated and disciplinary action taken as a result of the employee's actions. Stress the significance of the offense and the reason for the disciplinary action.

b. The Past

- record
 - offenses (if any)
 - previous
- Review the employee's work
 - Give history of related
 - Remind the employee of the
- Disciplinary actions taken

Note: This summary of past events demonstrates the progressiveness of the disciplinary action.

c. The Future

- of behavior or
 - achieved
 - failure to meet
- Clear expectation of standard
 - performance
 - How this standard may be
 - Consequences of continued
- these expected standards

So after reading the handout, what is your understanding of "documenting discipline"? What are the parts of a disciplinary record?

Let's go to the next principle. Informing the Subordinate
Please take a look into your handout, then we go over the content.

Informing the Subordinate

Inform the subordinate of the disciplinary action, both verbally and in writing, as soon as possible after the disciplinary decision has been reached. The purpose is to outline what is wrong, what disciplinary action is being taken, and what is expected in the future.

So after reading the handout, what is your understanding of "informing the subordinate"?

Let's go to the next principle. Double Jeopardy.

Please take a look into your handout, then we go over the content.

Double Jeopardy

It is important to thoroughly investigate and consider all factors before determining what disciplinary action will take place. An employee cannot receive one level of discipline and then later be given a more severe discipline for the same problem. This is considered double jeopardy. Make sure it's done right the first time.

So after reading the handout, what is your understanding of "double jeopardy"?

Performance Objective 4 requires Identify the situations requiring discipline.

participants regarding

What do you think are the situations that discipline?

Read the handout, get reactions from each situation, to gauge their understanding.

Situations Requiring Discipline

There are a number of instances which require discipline in varying degree. Among these, but not limited, are:

- Absenteeism
- Breach of Oath of Office Secrecy
- Damage to Prison's Property
- Drunkenness or Disorderly Conduct
- Fighting
- Gambling in Prison's Premises
- Improper Time Card or Attendance

- Insubordination
- Interference With Work of Others
- Tardiness
- Negligence in Performance of Duties
- Neglect of Tools or Equipment
- Pranks and Horseplay

Reporting

- Dishonesty
- Absence Without Official Leave
- Waste of Material
- Smoking in Restricted Areas

Ask the participants to enumerate the situations that require discipline.

Performance Objective 5

State the considerations prior to their discipline.

What are the considerations prior to Read the handout and ask the participants of understanding.

Considerations Prior to Discipline:

A. Importance of Infraction

What infraction has taken place, and what relative importance should be attached to it?

B. Employee's Participation

How was the employee involved in this infraction? Are there any mitigating circumstances which should be considered, e.g., does the employee have a particularly good work pattern?

C. Previous Infraction

Is this the first one or have these been others? Has this conduct improved as a result of the previous discipline?

D. Time Since Last Infraction

How long has it been since any other infraction? Since the real objective of discipline is correction, a long period of good conduct is a mitigating factor as far as previous infractions are concerned.

Performance Objective 6
discipline, can Describe and differentiate the types of disciplinary actions.

In your understanding of types of you enumerate them?

Read the handout with the participants and discuss.

Types of Discipline:

A. Oral / Verbal Reprimand

A verbal reprimand is generally used when a problem persists after the supervisor has brought it to the employee's attention through counseling. The purpose of this step is to alleviate any misunderstanding and to clarify the direction for necessary and successful correction of the problem.

The verbal reprimand must be documented.

B. Written Reprimand

When the employee has not satisfactorily corrected the problem as outlined during the verbal reprimand, a formal written reprimand is the next step. A written reprimand may also be the initial disciplinary action in cases of a more serious nature.

The process is essentially the same as in the verbal reprimand step. The written reprimand includes a review of any prior related disciplinary action taken, a thorough statement of the circumstances causing the current disciplinary action and a clear picture of future expectations. Documentation is critical.

C. Suspension

1. Disciplinary

Suspension is the last corrective step in the disciplinary process and is normally preceded by a verbal reprimand and a written reprimand. In a few extremely serious cases, suspension may be warranted as the initial step in the disciplinary process.

A suspension involves the temporary removal of the employee from the work place for a specified period of time.

A suspension is the strongest warning to the employee that the problem is extremely serious and it is the “last chance” the employee has to correct the problem.

2. Pending Investigation

There are situations where the employee must be removed from the work place immediately before an investigation can be conducted. Examples of these situations might be suspected theft, potential sabotage, disorderly conduct, or where the employee presents a threat to other employees. The suspension pending investigation is imposed with the understanding that a final decision, relative to the appropriate disciplinary action, will be made after the investigation. If there is no cause for disciplinary action, the employee will receive pay for regular earnings lost during the suspension.

D. Dismissal

If all the previous steps have not been successful, the employee may be terminated from employment. Termination of employment is the final step in the progressive disciplinary process and obviously is not corrective.

As in the previous steps, it is critical that the employee be given an opportunity to hear the charges, understand the evidence, and offer an explanation.

After this discussion and upon completion of the investigation, the action is being documented.

Due process:

Giving an employee the opportunity to fully present his / her explanation concerning problems his / her supervisor/s has about his / her performance, attitude, etc. The opportunity is to be given prior to any action being taken. The employee's explanation must be given appropriate consideration in deciding what action is to be taken, discipline or otherwise.

Discuss the grievance procedure.

Ask participants questions.

Grievance Procedure:

A grievance is a dispute from the meaning, application or interpretation of the given disciplinary action.

Most complaints and grievances are best resolved informally in discussion with the employee's immediate supervisor. Where the grievance cannot be resolved informally it should be dealt with under the formal grievance procedure.

A. Stage 1

Employee put his/ her grievance, preferably in writing to the immediate supervisor. The supervisor will respond in writing about the grievance within a specified time.

B. Stage 2

If the matter is not resolved, the employee raises the matter in writing with a more senior supervisor.

C. Stage 3

Where the matter cannot be resolved at Stage 2, the employee will raise his/ her grievance with a higher level of supervisor than stage 2.

Ask the participants if they have any questions regarding the grievance procedure.

Stress to class.

Awareness of the rules and regulations on discipline is very important. Discipline is training that corrects, molds or improves your job-related performance. If you have any questions, consult with your immediate supervisor and / or your HR office for direction and guidance.

Remember the different situations wherein you might find yourself into that might subject you for disciplinary actions.

Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners

Adopted by the First United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, held at Geneva in 1955, and approved by the Economic and Social Council by its resolutions 663 C (XXIV) of 31 July 1957 and 2076 (LXII) of 13 May 1977

Discipline and punishment

27. Discipline and order shall be maintained with firmness, but with no more restriction than is necessary for safe custody and well-ordered community life.

28. (1) No prisoner shall be employed, in the service of the institution, in any disciplinary capacity.

(2) This rule shall not, however, impede the proper functioning of systems based on self-government, under which specified social, educational or sports activities or responsibilities are entrusted, under supervision, to prisoners who are formed into groups for the purposes of treatment.

29. The following shall always be determined by the law or by the regulation of the competent administrative authority:

- (a) Conduct constituting a disciplinary offence;
- (b) The types and duration of punishment which may be inflicted;
- (c) The authority competent to impose such punishment.

30. (1) No prisoner shall be punished except in accordance with the terms of such law or regulation, and never twice for the same offence.

(2) No prisoner shall be punished unless he has been informed of the offence alleged against him and given a proper opportunity of presenting his defence. The competent authority shall conduct a thorough examination of the case.

(3) Where necessary and practicable the prisoner shall be allowed to make his defence through an interpreter.

31. Corporal punishment, punishment by placing in a dark cell, and all cruel, inhuman or degrading punishments shall be completely prohibited as punishments for disciplinary offences.

32. (1) Punishment by close confinement or reduction of diet shall never be inflicted unless the medical officer has examined the prisoner and certified in writing that he is fit to sustain it.

(2) The same shall apply to any other punishment that may be prejudicial to the physical or mental health of a prisoner. In no case may such punishment be contrary to or depart from the principle stated in rule 31.

(3) The medical officer shall visit daily prisoners undergoing such punishments and shall advise the director if he considers the termination or alteration of the punishment necessary on grounds of physical or mental health.

Instruments of restraint

33. Instruments of restraint, such as handcuffs, chains, irons and strait-jackets, shall never be applied as a punishment. Furthermore, chains or irons shall not be used as restraints. Other instruments of restraint shall not be used except in the following circumstances:

- (a) As a precaution against escape during a transfer, provided that they shall be removed when the prisoner appears before a judicial or administrative authority;
- (b) On medical grounds by direction of the medical officer;
- (c) By order of the director, if other methods of control fail, in order to prevent a prisoner from injuring himself or others or from damaging property; in such instances the director shall at once consult the medical officer and report to the higher administrative authority.

34. The patterns and manner of use of instruments of restraint shall be decided by the central prison administration. Such instruments must not be applied for any longer time than is strictly necessary.

Body of Principles for the Protection of All Persons under Any Form of Detention or Imprisonment

Adopted by General Assembly resolution 43/173 of 9 December 1988

Principle 21

1. It shall be prohibited to take undue advantage of the situation of a detained or imprisoned person for the purpose of compelling him to confess, to incriminate himself otherwise or to testify against any other person.
2. No detained person while being interrogated shall be subject to violence, threats or methods of interrogation which impair his capacity of decision or his judgement.

Principle 23

1. The duration of any interrogation of a detained or imprisoned person and of the intervals between interrogations as well as the identity of the officials who conducted the interrogations and other persons present shall be recorded and certified in such form as may be prescribed by law.
2. A detained or imprisoned person, or his counsel when provided by law, shall have access to the information described in paragraph 1 of the present principle.

Principle 30

1. The types of conduct of the detained or imprisoned person that constitute disciplinary offences during detention or imprisonment, the description and duration of disciplinary punishment that may be inflicted and the authorities competent to impose such punishment shall be specified by law or lawful regulations and duly published.
2. A detained or imprisoned person shall have the right to be heard before disciplinary action is taken. He shall have the right to bring such action to higher authorities for review.

Adopted and proclaimed by General Assembly resolution 45/111 of 14 December 1990

1. All prisoners shall be treated with the respect due to their inherent dignity and value as human beings.
7. Efforts addressed to the abolition of solitary confinement as a punishment, or to the restriction of its use, should be undertaken and encouraged.

Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment

Adopted and opened for signature, ratification and accession by General Assembly resolution 39/46 of 10 December 1984 entry into force 26 June 1987, in accordance with article 27 (1)

Article 1

1. For the purposes of this Convention, the term "torture" means any act by which severe pain or suffering, whether physical or mental, is intentionally inflicted on a person for such purposes as obtaining from him or a third person information or a confession, punishing him for an act he or a third person has committed or is suspected of having committed, or intimidating or coercing him or a third person, or for any reason based on discrimination of any kind, when such pain or suffering is inflicted by or at the instigation of or with the consent or acquiescence of a public official or other person acting in an official capacity. It does not include pain or suffering arising only from, inherent in or incidental to lawful sanctions.

2. This article is without prejudice to any international instrument or national legislation which does or may contain provisions of wider application.

Article 2

2. No exceptional circumstances whatsoever, whether a state of war or a threat of war, internal political in stability or any other public emergency, may be invoked as a justification of torture.

3. An order from a superior officer or a public authority may not be invoked as a justification of torture.

Article 4

1. Each State Party shall ensure that all acts of torture are offences under its criminal law. The same shall apply to an attempt to commit torture and to an act by any person which constitutes complicity or participation in torture.

2. Each State Party shall make these offences punishable by appropriate penalties which take into account their grave nature.

Article 10

1. Each State Party shall ensure that education and information regarding the prohibition against torture are fully included in the training of law enforcement personnel, civil or military, medical personnel, public officials and other persons who may be involved in the custody, interrogation or treatment of any individual subjected to any form of arrest, detention or imprisonment.

2. Each State Party shall include this prohibition in the rules or instructions issued in regard to the duties and functions of any such person.

Article 11

Each State Party shall keep under systematic review interrogation rules, instructions, methods and practices as well as arrangements for the custody and treatment of persons subjected to any form of arrest, detention or imprisonment in any territory under its jurisdiction, with a view to preventing any cases of torture.

Optional Protocol to the Convention against Torture and other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment Adopted on 18 December 2002 at the fifty-seventh session of the General Assembly of the United Nations by resolution A/RES/57/199.

Article 1

The objective of the present Protocol is to establish a system of regular visits undertaken by independent international and national bodies to places where people are deprived of their liberty, in order to prevent torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

Article 2

1. A Subcommittee on Prevention of Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment of the Committee against Torture (hereinafter referred to as the Subcommittee on Prevention) shall be established and shall carry out the functions laid down in the present Protocol.

Article 4

1. Each State Party shall allow visits, in accordance with the present Protocol, by the mechanisms referred to in articles 2 and 3 to any place under its jurisdiction and control where persons are or may be deprived of their liberty, either by virtue of an order given by a public authority or at its instigation or with its consent or acquiescence (hereinafter referred to as places of detention). These visits shall be undertaken with a view to strengthening, if necessary, the protection of these persons against torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

2. For the purposes of the present Protocol, deprivation of liberty means any form of detention or imprisonment or the placement of a person in a public or private custodial setting which that person is not permitted to leave at will by order of any judicial, administrative or other authority.

Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms, as amended by Protocol No. 11. Rome, 4.XI.1950

Article 3 – Prohibition of torture

No one shall be subjected to torture or to inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment

European Convention for the prevention of torture and inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment. Strasbourg, 26.XI. 1987

Article 1

There shall be established a European Committee for the Prevention of Torture and Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (hereinafter referred to as “the Committee”). The Committee shall, by means of visits, examine the treatment of persons deprived of their liberty with a view to strengthening, if necessary, the protection of such persons from torture and from inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

Article 7

1. The Committee shall organise visits to places referred to in Article 2. Apart from periodic visits, the Committee may organise such other visits as appear to it to be required in the circumstances.

2. As a general rule, the visits shall be carried out by at least two members of the Committee. The Committee may, if it considers it necessary, be assisted by experts and interpreters.

Article 8

3. The Committee may interview in private persons deprived of their liberty.
4. The Committee may communicate freely with any person whom it believes can supply relevant information.
5. If necessary, the Committee may immediately communicate observations to the competent authorities of the Party concerned.

Recommendation No R (87) 3 of the Committee of Ministers to member states on the European Prison Rules

Adopted by the Committee of Ministers on 12 February 1987 at the 404th meeting of the Ministers' Deputies

35. The following shall be provided for and determined by the law or by the regulation of the competent authority:

- a. conduct constituting a disciplinary offence;
- b. the types and duration of punishment which may be imposed;
- c. the authority competent to impose such punishment;
- d. access to and the authority of the appellate process.

36. 1. No prisoner shall be punished except in accordance with the terms of such law or regulation, and never twice for the same act.

2. Reports of misconduct shall be presented promptly to the competent authority who shall decide on them without undue delay.

3. No prisoner shall be punished unless informed of the alleged offence and given a proper opportunity of presenting a defence.

4. Where necessary and practicable prisoners shall be allowed to make their defence through an interpreter.

37. Collective punishments, corporal punishment, punishment by placing in a dark cell, and all cruel, inhuman or degrading punishment shall be completely prohibited as punishments for disciplinary offences.

38. 1. Punishment by disciplinary confinement and any other punishment which might have an adverse effect on the physical or mental health of the prisoner shall only be imposed if the medical officer after examination certifies in writing that the prisoner is fit to sustain it.

2. In no case may such punishment be contrary to, or depart from, the principles stated in Rule 37.

3. The medical officer shall visit daily prisoners undergoing such punishments and shall advise the director if the termination or alteration of the punishment is considered necessary on grounds of physical or mental health.

Recommendation No R (98) 7 of the Committee of Ministers to Member States concerning the ethical and organisational aspects of health care in prison.

Adopted by the Committee of Ministers on 8 April 1998, at the 627th meeting of the Ministers' Deputies

66. In the case of a sanction of disciplinary confinement, any other disciplinary punishment or security measure which might have an adverse effect on the physical or mental health of the prisoner, health care staff should provide medical assistance or treatment on request by the prisoner or by prison staff.

Principles of Medical Ethics relevant to the Role of Health Personnel, particularly Physicians, in the Protection of Prisoners and Detainees against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment

Principle 2

It is a gross contravention of medical ethics, as well as an offence under applicable international instruments, for health personnel, particularly physicians, to engage, actively or passively, in acts which constitute participation in, complicity in, incitement to or attempts to commit torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

Principle 3

It is a contravention of medical ethics for health personnel, particularly physicians, to be involved in any professional relationship with prisoners or detainees the purpose of which is not solely to evaluate, protect or improve their physical and mental health.

Principle 4

It is a contravention of medical ethics for health personnel, particularly physicians:

- (a) To apply their knowledge and skills in order to assist in the interrogation of prisoners and detainees in a manner that may adversely affect the physical or mental health or condition of such prisoners or detainees and which is not in accordance with the relevant international instruments;
- (b) To certify, or to participate in the certification of, the fitness of prisoners or detainees for any form of treatment or punishment that may adversely affect their physical or mental health and which is not in accordance with the relevant international instruments, or to participate in any way in the infliction of any such treatment or punishment which is not in accordance with the relevant international instruments.

Principle 5

It is a contravention of medical ethics for health personnel, particularly physicians, to participate in any procedure for restraining a prisoner or detainee unless such a procedure is determined in accordance with purely medical criteria as being necessary for the protection of the physical or mental health or the safety of the prisoner or detainee himself, of his fellow prisoners or detainees, or of his guardians, and presents no hazard to his physical or mental health.

LESSON PLAN 8 – Inmates and the Prison Environment

Method of Instruction: Lecture, Discussion, Question and Answer

Time Frame: 4 Hours

Performance Objectives: At the conclusion of this block of instruction the student will:

1. The student will be able to describe the factors that make the prison environment different from the normal community.
2. The student will be able to discuss some of the phases both staff and prisoners goes through as they enter and adjust to the prison environment.
3. The student will be able to describe some of the ways a prisoner can entrap an officer into committing illegal acts and thus control that officer.

Training Aides Required: Blackboard or Flip Chart

INTRODUCTION

Prison can be home to inmates and staff for a few days or weeks or months or years or a lifetime. It has its own unique culture and personality. It is where keeper and kept reside together under laws and rules and codes of behavior not found in life outside of the prison.

Prison is a total environment which eliminates many of the normal things which separate people. Outside of the prison environment people are free to eat, sleep, play, work in privacy or with a variety of people they choose. In prison, all these choices which people normally take on themselves are gone. Even the choice of using a toilet in private is often eliminated. The people both staff and prisoners are with are often the same ones for long periods of time. All are generally treated exactly alike. The prison and jail work under schedules and with forced activities geared towards accomplishing official aims, with little room for personal desires or goals.

In addition to the real differences between a prison environment or culture, there are the perceived differences. Media, stereotyping, rumors have all contributed to telling a story of prisons and inmates and of staff that may be far from the truth.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Ask the class to describe what they think are the characteristics of the inmates in the institution and write their responses on the flip chart or blackboard. Then ask them to discuss what they have heard about prison officers and how they think they are looked upon by the general public.

Then ask them to discuss how they think others will react to them when they find out they work in a prison. Finally ask them to discuss their own concerns about working in a prison -- especially, are they concerned for their own safety? Do they feel they can make the inmates into better people?

When people begin working in prisons or when they are sentenced to prisons, often their first reaction is one of slight fear. Prisoners and new staff alike have heard stories about the “dangerous” criminals, the beating, raping and controlling of weaker inmates by stronger ones, the beating of inmates by staff, the taking of hostages. Thus, a little fear and concern is normal.

After getting over the shock of the initial contact with the prison, assuming it goes without any major traumatic incident, the person begins to relax and adjusts to the life style. Often during this time both the new inmate and staff feel they can operate as individuals, much as they did outside of the prison. They may maintain personal goals and thoughts of changing the institution to fit their style.

As time goes on, most -- both staff and inmates -- begin to conform to the society around them. Both inmates and staff begin to understand the need to be accepted by their peers, both for personal protection and for social acceptance.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Divide the class in two groups. Have one group discuss and list the things an inmate is deprived and what that does in forming the inmate culture. Have the other group describe the things that form and define the staff culture. Have each group appoint a discussion leader and a recorder. Give them 30 minutes for their discussions and have each group summarize their discussions when the class is reconvened.

Some of the factors influencing inmates that should be brought out

- I. Deprivation of liberty -- this confinement within a relatively small area results in boredom and loneliness and a knowledge that the free community has rejected him or her.
- II. Deprivation of possessions and services -- being made poor by the confinement in societies where possessions often measure worth and the ability to take or reject one service in favor of another defines personal power. The fact that these losses occurred as a result of the prisoners own actions helps contribute to a loss of self-image and self-worth.
- III. Deprivation of heterosexual relations -- being locked up with only members of one=s own sex causes much more of a problem of a loss of self-concept than the loss of physical relationships.
- IV. Deprivation of the ability to make choices -- this reduces the prisoner to the state of a weak, helpless child.
- V. Deprivation of security -- being locked with others whom he or she may view as dangerous or unstable arouses anxiety, not necessarily because of actual violence and exploitation, but because of the perception that sooner or later he or she will be “tested.”

Some of the factors influencing staff that should be brought out

- I. Many staff must learn the “real” part of the job on their own or from inmates -- much of what they find within the institution is not taught in the classroom and senior officers consider them “outsiders” for the first several weeks or months until they have “proven” themselves.
- II. Prison officers have the same deprivation of security described above.
- III. Prison staff has, to a great extent, the same deprivation of their ability to make choices as do inmates because they must follow institutional policy and rules in a system that is traditionally very structured with all authority coming from the top down.

INSTRUCTOR’S NOTES:

The next part of this lesson is intended to alert the future officers to what can happen when they do not follow procedures and when they allow prisoners to place them in compromising situations. Use personal examples, examples of mistakes made by other officers and show how inmates used those situations. Be careful in your presentation to always show how the situation could have been avoided by following procedures so as not to leave the students feeling unnecessarily fearful or of a mind set that could lead to not providing appropriate help or services to inmates or their families.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Given the factors identified above, have the group discuss how the prison, inmate and staff cultures might contribute to placing the officer in a position of being able to be manipulated by the inmates. Examples to use should include bringing in something “harmless” for an inmate or mailing a letter or delivering a package for an inmate or ignoring inmate misconduct. Show how each of these and others can place the officer in a position to be blackmailed at a future date or how providing one “minor” unauthorized favor can be the first step in an expanding process whereby the officer becomes trapped in performing criminal activity.

Effective inmate supervision involves several dynamic interactions of attitudes such as:

1. How the officer views him or herself.
2. How the officer views the inmate(s).
3. How the officer views his role in the prison.
4. How the inmate views him or herself.
5. How the inmate views the officer.
6. How the inmate views the system (Criminal justice process - police, courts, corrections).
7. How the inmate views his peer group and the effect that they have on him.

Because of the abnormal environment of the prison, inmates cannot safely be left to themselves. They must be supervised.

The Correction Officer is a supervisor. The officer is constantly supervising activity and movement of inmates.

It is important for officers to set an example by his or her own behavior. The officer's attitude plays a key role in his or her ability to successfully influence the conduct of the inmates and in keeping the officer from becoming the victim of prisoner's “game.”

The officer must:

- be well disciplined
- be emotionally secure
- understand the personalities of inmates individually, as well as a group, and must accept the fact that they are human beings
- understand what discipline is, and what it is to accomplish
- avoid emotional identification with the inmates= personal, legal or disciplinary problems
- exercise good judgement and poise
- be alert to those techniques that will best reach the individual
- be consistent
- be fair
- be objective
- enforce facility rules and regulations, even though they may seem unfair or unjust, then follow proper channels to seek changes

It is important to understand common inmate attitudes:

1. Constant craving for freedom (overshadows all else).

2. Constant inner-tension concerning family, friends, loved ones.
3. Attitudes toward others in the jail or prison (suspicion, antagonism, resistance to programs, fear of physical harm, fear of homosexual advances, fear of retaliation for informing and/or assisting employees).
4. Emotional tension regarding isolation and monotony.
5. The need for some individuals to be domineering.
6. Aggressiveness in some individuals.
7. Conniving to appropriate favors, items, etc.

Inmate handling techniques:

1. Each inmate must be handled as an individual. Methods of treatment usually effect one individual differently than another.
2. Individuals see and hear things differently, usually accepting what they want to see and hear, and unconsciously rejecting what they don't want to see or hear. You must ensure that your message is clearly understood.
3. Favoritism must be avoided, however difficult.
4. Individuals who honestly earn privileges and advancements should receive them. Others should not.
5. Calmness and poise accomplish more than bluster.
6. Bullying usually arouses antagonism and resentment. Avoid this method of handling inmates.
7. Suggestion is a prime mover of human action.
8. Individuals usually are more willing to perform if they understand the reason for the task.
9. Utilize dignity with authority, showing a desire to help.
10. Avoid profanity and vulgarity. This lessens respect for the officer.
11. Over-familiarity breeds contempt. Stay away from nicknames and improper contact with inmates.
12. Use special care and patience with new inmates.
13. Do not sympathize or encourage inmate complaints against the administration, other staff, rules and regulations or other institutional matters, regardless of your feelings in the matter. Report legitimate complaints to the proper authority.
14. Do not give advice unless it contains the scope of your duties. Refer to chaplains, counselors, medical staff, etc. if topics arise concerning specific areas of responsibility. However, remember that an officer is also a mentor/advisor and a role model. In that respect, common sense answers are discussion is appropriate as long as it does not provide the inmate with specific legal, medical or family relationship advice.
15. Do not become obligated to inmates. (favors, gifts, graft, bribery, etc.)
16. Always be alert to attempts to put something over. Prison-wise inmates have a multitude of tricks at their disposal. Never stop observing! Watch out for diversionary tactics!
17. Do not allow inmates to demonstrate only token compliance with an order. Insist on complete compliance with said order.

In observing inmate behavior:

1. Be alert for suspicious change in an inmate's behavior.
2. Be alert for signs of worry or anxiety.
3. Be alert for inmates who suddenly begin withdrawing from the group.
4. Be alert for changes in patterns of friendship.
5. Be alert for changes in personal appearance.

CONCLUSION

The way a prison is organized and the culture it creates challenges both staff and inmates. Understanding the nature and the causes of potentially dangerous and disruptive activities takes study and effort. Keeping the life of inmates, staff and the public as safe and humane as possible begins with attention to detail and following established procedures.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

The quiz for this lesson should be conducted by the instructor asking questions related to the factors that make the prison environment unique and difficult and the factors of inmate supervision that help provide control and help keep the officer from being manipulated. The instructor should formulate the questions based on the material presented and the result of class discussions. About 10 questions should be asked by the instructor and students picked at random to provide the answer. If the answer given is not correct, ask others in the class to either provide additional answers or to correct the previous information.

Supplement to LESSON PLAN 8

To be successful in performance of Objective 3, students would be given a role play. For this task, put students into groups (“prisoners” and “officers”) and they are given a time of 10-15 minutes. They should use this time to prepare a plan of the ways prisoners can entrap an officer into committing an illegal act. Brainstorm situations in which prisoners might involve an officer into committing an illegal act. Let students work in pairs or in small groups. Then summarise and compare results as a class. The instructor encourages students to pay attention to prisoners’ – how they might go to a threat from calm and “nice” words. Also, the instructor draws students’ attention to the ways prisoners try to place an officer in compromising situations and subject to being blackmailed.

The following questions might be included into the quiz:

- 1) Prisoners must know all the regulations, laws, rules and codes of behavior in prison from the first day of their entering the prison environment. Tell why it is so important.
- 2) Is it important for officers to know inmate culture?
- 3) Does a prison officer have the right of rendering help or doing favors if in case if it is not connected with his professional duties?
- 4) The better prison regulations and rules are carried out by inmates the less authority they have among the other prisoners. Why?
- 5) Why is it so important for an officer, who has worked in a prison for some time, not to become influenced by the so called inmate culture and not to follow it? (To avoid identification with the inmates?)

Human Rights Instruments Related to LESSON PLAN 8

Body of Principles for the Protection of All Persons under Any Form of Detention or Imprisonment

Adopted by General Assembly resolution 43/173 of 9 December 1988

Principle 3

There shall be no restriction upon or derogation from any of the human rights of persons under any form of detention or imprisonment recognized or existing in any State pursuant to law, conventions, regulations or custom on the pretext that this Body of Principles does not recognize such rights or that it recognizes them to a lesser extent.

Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners

Adopted by the First United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, held at Geneva in 1955, and approved by the Economic and Social Council by its resolutions 663 C (XXIV) of 31 July 1957 and 2076 (LXII) of 13 May 1977

37. Prisoners shall be allowed under necessary supervision to communicate with their family and reputable friends at regular intervals, both by correspondence and by receiving visits. Retention of prisoners' property

be placed in safe custody. An inventory thereof shall be signed by the prisoner. Steps shall be taken to keep them in good condition.

(2) On the release of the prisoner all such articles and money shall be returned to him except in so far as he has been authorized to spend money or send any such property out of the institution, or it has been found necessary on hygienic grounds to destroy any article of clothing. The prisoner shall sign a receipt for the articles and money returned to him.

(3) Any money or effects received for a prisoner from outside shall be treated in the same way.

(4) If a prisoner brings in any drugs or medicine, the medical officer shall decide what use shall be made of them.

Accommodation

9. (1) Where sleeping accommodation is in individual cells or rooms, each prisoner shall occupy by night a cell or room by himself. If for special reasons, such as temporary overcrowding, it becomes necessary for the central prison administration to make an exception to this rule, it is not desirable to have two prisoners in a cell or room.

(2) Where dormitories are used, they shall be occupied by prisoners carefully selected as being suitable to associate with one another in those conditions. There shall be regular supervision by night, in keeping with the nature of the institution.

10. All accommodation provided for the use of prisoners and in particular all sleeping accommodation shall meet all requirements of health, due regard being paid to climatic conditions and particularly to cubic content of air, minimum floor space, lighting, heating and ventilation.

11. In all places where prisoners are required to live or work,

(a) The windows shall be large enough to enable the prisoners to read or work by natural light, and shall be so constructed that they can allow the entrance of fresh air whether or not there is artificial ventilation;

(b) Artificial light shall be provided sufficient for the prisoners to read or work without injury to eyesight.

12. The sanitary installations shall be adequate to enable every prisoner to comply with the needs of nature when necessary and in a clean and decent manner.

13. Adequate bathing and shower installations shall be provided so that every prisoner may be enabled and required to have a bath or shower, at a temperature suitable to the climate, as frequently as necessary for general hygiene according to season and geographical region, but at least once a week in a temperate climate.

14. All parts of an institution regularly used by prisoners shall be properly maintained and kept scrupulously clean at all times.

Personal hygiene

15. Prisoners shall be required to keep their persons clean, and to this end they shall be provided with water and with such toilet articles as are necessary for health and cleanliness.

16. In order that prisoners may maintain a good appearance compatible with their self-respect, facilities shall be provided for the proper care of the hair and beard, and men shall be enabled to shave regularly.

Clothing and bedding

17. (1) Every prisoner who is not allowed to wear his own clothing shall be provided with an outfit of clothing suitable for the climate and adequate to keep him in good health. Such clothing shall in no manner be degrading or humiliating.

(2) All clothing shall be clean and kept in proper condition. Underclothing shall be changed and washed as often as necessary for the maintenance of hygiene.

(3) In exceptional circumstances, whenever a prisoner is removed outside the institution for an authorized purpose, he shall be allowed to wear his own clothing or other inconspicuous clothing.

18. If prisoners are allowed to wear their own clothing, arrangements shall be made on their admission to the institution to ensure that it shall be clean and fit for use.

19. Every prisoner shall, in accordance with local or national standards, be provided with a separate bed, and with separate and sufficient bedding which shall be clean when issued, kept in good order and changed often enough to ensure its cleanliness.

Food

20. (1) Every prisoner shall be provided by the administration at the usual hours with food of nutritional value adequate for health and strength, of wholesome quality and well prepared and served.

(2) Drinking water shall be available to every prisoner whenever he needs it.

LESSON PLAN 9 – Violence in Prison

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

This lesson plan should be completed by the prison administration. It should be based on a review of incidence of violence by inmates within the nation's prisons.

It should include incidence of violence of prisoner on prisoner, prisoner on staff and any incidence of violence by staff on inmates.

The presentation should be factual, come from documented reports and be supplemented only with relevant information.

Lessons learned from the incidents, new procedures implemented or action taken should be explained.

It is important to insure that the students understand that thought violence can occur in prisons; it can also be reduced or eliminated by appropriate staff action, both pro-active and re-active.

Method of Instruction:

Discussion

Time Frame: 1 Hour

Performance Objectives: At the conclusion of this block of instruction the student will:

1. Understand the amount and nature of violence within the institution
2. Understand the actions or lack of actions that can lead to violence
3. Understand that violence in the prison, either by inmates or staff can not be tolerated and can generally be prevented.

References: Internal prison and police reports, if available, pictures, video tapes and films of incidents.

Training Aides Required:

Blackboard or flipchart.

Incident Reports

Appropriate Video/PowerPoint/Overheads

INTRODUCTION

The purpose of this lesson is to help us understand, without fearing offenders, that prisons can be a place where violence can occur but not necessarily where it will automatically occur. Our discussion will be of situational conditions, mistakes and successes and how to best avoid the situation which lead to violence, and also how to handle it if it occurs.

Reflect the student's answers to these questions towards the Violence in their own institutions.

- * How does the prison culture influence rates of violence?
- * How do prisoners interpret their situation to determine whether a violent response is required?
- * Why does violence arise in certain situations, and not in others?

NOTE: Questions are from "Prison Violence: The dynamics of conflict, fear and power, Edgar, O'Donnell and Martin

- * What is the role of an officer in preventing or lessening the risk violence?
- * What if it's an officer or supervisor who is cause of the incident?

We will be examining a number past violent incidents that have occurred in this institution.

From these incidents we will discuss:

- The incident;
- The complete circumstances surrounding the incident;
- Any pre-incident indicators to the incident(s) and if so the attention provided or action taken;
- The response of staff to the incident;
- Appropriateness of the measures taken to stop the incident;
- Any areas where the Service or any of its staff were not in compliance with the law, policy or procedures;
- Any other matter that is relevant to the incident.
- How to manage similar incidences in the future

DISCUSSION NOTES:

Break the class into groups.

Provide each group an incident report.

Give them a half an hour to read and discuss the reports and write (in point form) on the flipchart the answers to the above points

Each group presents their findings to the class and discusses them.

CONCLUSION

Violence in prisons includes:

- Inmate on inmate violence
- Inmate on staff violence
- Staff on inmate violence

Each can generally be avoided if the staff is alert to his or her surroundings and utilizes good observation and communication techniques which we will cover in subsequent lessons. Should a situation occur where there is violence, future training courses will cover how to minimize it. The basic goal of all correctional personnel is to help insure that the facility is a safe place for all prisoners, staff and visitors. Accomplishing that goal will result if you take seriously the training you will receive and will continue to practice the various techniques once you are on assignment. Constant and consistent compliance with institutional rules and procedures, as you will find with experience, are some of the best protections against prison violence.

Supplement to LESSON PLAN 9

If available, consider using audiovisual support such as video tapes or files of an incident to help discuss the situational conditions, mistakes and successes and how to best avoid that situation, but also how to best handle it if it occurs.

LESSON PLAN 10 – Emergency Preparedness

INSTRUCTOR’S NOTES:

THIS LESSON PLAN SHOULD BE COMPLETED BY THE PRISON ADMINISTRATION. IT SHOULD BE PRESENTED BY THE STAFF IN CHARGE OF EMERGENCY PLANNING AND RESPONSE. NEW STAFF SHOULD BE TOLD WHAT TO EXPECT DURING VARIOUS TYPES OF EMERGENCIES SUCH AS RIOTS, NATURAL DISASTERS (TORNADO, FLOOD, FIRE, ETC.) AND WHAT THEIR FIRST RESPONSE SHOULD BE. THEY SHOULD ALSO BE TOLD WHO TO REPORT TO AND WHAT ACTIONS THEY MAY TAKE UNTIL PROPER AUTHORITIES ARRIVE ON THE SCENE. IT IS IMPORTANT TO INCLUDE INFORMATION ON HOW STAFF AND INMATE FAMILIES WILL BE NOTIFIED OF THE EMERGENCY AND KEPT CURRENT ON WHAT IS HAPPENING.

Method of Instruction: Lecture

Time Frame: 2 Hour

Performance Objectives: At the conclusion of this block of instruction the student will:

1. Understand the types of emergencies for which he/she must be prepared
2. Understand that the prison has a plan for dealing with emergencies and what his/her general responsibilities will be and who to report to.
3. Understand that during some emergencies contact with family members of staff and inmates may be very difficult, if not impossible. There is a procedure in place to help staff and inmates know the condition of family members and family members know about their condition. It is important that staff stay at their posts and trust the communication process to take place as soon as possible.
4. Understand your role in riots and disturbances.
5. Be able to list nine causes of riots and disturbances and identify three ways to help prevent them.
6. Be able to list twelve indicators of tension within the institutional climate.

INTRODUCTION

Emergencies are situations that occur which require immediate action. They can include inmate related items such as escapes, riots and disturbances or natural phenomena such as hurricanes, earthquakes, tornados, floods, or severe storms. Fires and hostage situations also can create emergency situations.

The institution should have an emergency response plan for each of the above and you should be familiar with the part you will play in helping deal with them. You must be prepared to deal with emergencies, even in the worst of circumstances.

Riots and Disturbances

Most facilities distinguish between riots and disturbances. A riot is when a significant number of inmates control a significant portion of the facility for a significant period of time. A disturbance involves fewer inmates and there is no control or minimal control by them of the facility.

Correctional officer's duties during riots and disturbances are detailed in the institution's emergency response plan. Basically, they are:

- Containment – keep the riot or disturbance from spreading; work at calming and containing the inmates in your specific area
- Resolution – help bring the riot or disturbance to an end; perform the duties assigned to you to help those who will carry out the response the warden or administrator chooses (responses include negotiations; show of force; use of water, smoke or chemical agents; use of force; and use of firearms)
- Restoration – help bring the facility back to its pre-disturbance or pre-riot condition
- Identification – help identify inmates and their actions during the riot or disturbance

Studies of riots and disturbances reveal a number of causes. Often, a number exist within a facility at the same time. The most common causes are:

- Failure to respond to high levels of inmate-to-inmate and inmate-to-staff incidents
- Failure to control contraband
- Inconsistent enforcement of rules
- High staff turnover
- Poor communications between staff and inmates
- Frequent changes in policies and procedures
- Lack of meaningful programs
- Poor or no response to inmate complaints, grievances, and requests
- Effects of crowding

Signs of tension among inmates usually precede group disturbances. Because of your close contact with inmates, you can often identify and report these signs so that they can be resolved – before violence erupts.

Common signs of tension include:

- An increase or unusual absence of hostility or arguments among inmates, or between inmates and staff
- Fights that are serious in nature or fights that result in serious injury
- An increase in complaints and grievances
- An increase in unusual incidents that are expressions of aggression and violence
- An increase or decrease in the usual noise level for a particular area
- Inmates hoarding food and supplies
- Inmates avoiding contact with officers
- An increase in the number of inmate threats against officers

- An increase in the number of weapons found during searches and shakedowns
- An increase in the number of inmates signing up for sick call
- An increase in the number of inmates requesting protective custody
- A sudden drop in attendance at programs, events, and activities

You should report changes in behavior, disagreements between inmates, and other signs of tension promptly. Changed behavior often means there may be problems.

Preventing riots and disturbances includes treating ALL inmates fairly and impartially and keeping communication channels open with inmates.

Hostage Situations

We will devote an entire lesson to how you should react if you are taken hostage. Here we will only discuss some of the reasons inmates take hostages:

- For protection – to use hostages as “human shields” from authorities who wish to retake control of the facility
- As a bargaining chip – to trade hostages for something the inmate wants
- By accident – sometimes, inmates do not set out to take hostages but accidentally fall into being captors
- To kill or harm them – some unstable inmates may take hostages to harm them; others may take hostages to harm them later for the sake of revenge or retaliation, or to make a point

Sometimes the “element of chance” determines whether or not a hostage incident will occur. Chance also plays a role in determining which officers and employees become hostages. You can take certain actions, however, that will help prevent hostage situations from ever occurring.

Effective security procedures, coupled with frequent shakedowns for weapons and contraband, can reduce opportunities for inmates to seize hostages. In addition, careful surveillance of inmates and frequent patrols of cellblocks and inmate work areas lesson the chances for a hostage situation to occur.

Fire, Natural Disasters, Escapes

Fires in an institution are particularly hazardous and the safety of staff and inmates is of paramount importance. A separate class will be devoted to the subject of fires. Natural disasters create unique problems, but normally some warning is received in advance. Your specific role in will be explained in the disaster plan and post orders. Whether the entire institution has to be evacuated or inmates moved to special areas of safety, your job is to insure the safety of all involved while maintaining security. As in all other emergencies, your roll during an escape or an escape attempt will be covered in your post orders.

CONCLUSION

Veterans of professions which have a high risk of dangerous or volatile situations will tell you that when an instant crisis situation occurs, their training takes over. Almost all of the lessons you will learn during this basic training course and your on-the-job training and advance courses will prepare you to handle emergency situations. It is important you understand, practice and keep current on the lessons of inmate communications, security and general procedures. Should you become involved in an emergency situation; your response will most likely be one of an automatic, instantaneous reaction. The more and better you practice and train, the more likely that your reaction will be appropriate and even life saving.

QUIZ

1. A well-run facility can prevent emergency situations from occurring (true or false).
2. When a riot or disturbance occurs, your responsibilities are containment, _____, _____, and identification.
3. The actions that you can take to prevent riots and disturbances include (check all that apply):
 - a. Improve the food, medical service, and mail
 - b. Attempt to treat all inmates the same
 - c. Try to keep communication channels open
 - d. Move inmates into what they consider to be better cell arrangements
 - e. Telephone inmates' relatives if you think it will help with a problem
 - f. Report signs of tension to your supervisor
4. Common signs of tension in a correctional facility are (list at least 10)

Answers to Quiz

1. False. Emergencies can occur in any type of environment.
2. resolution, restoration
3. b, c, f
4.
 - a. An increase or unusual absence of hostility or arguments among inmates, or between inmates and staff
 - b. Fights that are serious in nature or fights that result in serious injury
 - c. An increase in complaints and grievances
 - d. An increase in unusual incidents that are expressions of aggression and violence
 - e. An increase or decrease in the usual noise level for a particular area
 - f. Inmates hoarding food and supplies
 - g. Inmates avoiding contact with officers
 - h. An increase in the number of inmate threats against officers
 - i. An increase in the number of weapons found during searches and shakedowns
 - j. An increase in the number of inmates signing up for sick call
 - k. An increase in the number of inmates requesting protective custody
 - l. A sudden drop in attendance at programs, events, and activities

SOLVING OF EMERGENCY SITUATION IN FIVE STEP WAY

Possible questions and answers for this lesson plan:

1. What are the aims in emergency situation' solving?
 - To isolate and localize emergency situation as quick as possible;
 - To restore an order as quick as possible;
 - To ensure personal safety;
 - To solve an incident at minimum use of force;
 - To prevent escape;
 - To seek to minimize material damage.
2. Emergency situation could be solved in five step way. What is five step way?
 - Isolation and confirmation of an emergency situation;
 - Localization, isolation and management;
 - Evacuation;
 - Emergency situation solving;
 - Activities after emergency situation ended.
3. What are duties of the prison officers if they see that emergency situation could arose?
 - To inform, that situation is getting worse;
 - To save life and to prevent injures;
 - To isolate the place of accident;
 - To find witnesses and/or culprits;

- To write down and to maintain evidences;
 - To prepare accounts.
4. Tell four demands, which could be objects of negotiations and for demands, which can't be objects of negotiations.
- The objects of negotiations could be the following items:
- Medical inspection;
 - Concrete appointment;
 - Food;
 - Non-alcoholic drinks.
- Items, that can't be the objects of negotiations:
- More hostages;
 - To free other prisoners;
 - To change one hostage with the other;
 - Amnesty
5. Which measures could be used by officer who was taken as hostage?
- Try not to resist physically;
 - To fulfill wishes of hostage taker;
 - To do what is ordered;
 - To look calm;
 - To keep eye contact, but don't look like threatening;
 - To listen hostage taker;
 - To let hostage taker to think;
 - To be polite, to speak about positive things;
 - To change theme of the conversation if it irritates hostage taker;
 - To speak slowly (it could calm situation);
 - If it is possible to speak to hostages;
 - If it is possible, don't let to cover the eyes (in this case it would be difficult to recognize hostage takers);
 - Try to stay in the same room where hostage taker is;
 - To make positive image;
 - Don't attract attention;
 - Don't become the central figure in the crises, let hostage taker to show him.
6. Which situations are emergency situations? Tell five examples.
- Hostage take;
 - Prisoner's escape;
 - Riots;
 - Fire;
 - Natural calamity.

In this lesson plan there is nothing said about definition of emergency situation's stress and its cause.

Definitions

Emergency situation's stress – is unusually long lasting psychological condition, which can let to paralyze officer's ability to act properly in case of incident.

Natural calamity – is a kind of emergency situations, but not all natural calamities are in such scale to be called emergency situations.

The most significant and dangerous feature of emergency situation's stress is staff's disability to as well as they used before the incident.

Situations which can be reasons of emergency situation's stress:

- Hard injury or death of colleague;
- Scene of hard injury or death of the other person;
- Dangerous incidents when threat to his life aroused (was taken as hostage or used violence against him);
 - Contact with dangerous toxic or unknown chemical substances, which could led to long term physical or psychological impact;
 - Accidents;
 - Suicide of colleague or prisoner;
 - Extremely long hostage rescue operation;
 - Extremely mass media attention;
 - Violence, hostage take or rape suffered by colleague;
 - Hard injury or loss of life as a result of accident use of weapon.

These principles have to be followed in questioning the officer who suffered stress:

1. The conversation must be absolutely CONFIDENTIAL.
2. All officers who suffered in emergency situation must attend conversation.
3. Nobody can be criticized for their own feelings in emergency situation; officers could have possibility to express their feelings and to get support.
4. Conversation isn't writing down or recorded.
5. Such conversations can't be ended till everybody tells what he wants to tell.
6. Conversation about emergency situation is not critics of institution's actions. Officers only tell about their feelings and reactions. In such way they reduce stress impact. All conversation is absolutely CONFIDENTIAL.
7. The mass media can't be informed about conversation's contents. Press attaché communicates with mass media according to information he gets from coordinator of emergency situation's stress conversation.

TRAINER’S HANDOUT/EMERGENCY PROCEDURES

NOTES AND METHODOLOGY	CONTENTS
INTRODUCTION Write session title on the white board.	Introduce yourself and the session topic. Today’s correctional facilities must be prepared to handle a wide range of emergency situations no matter how small they may be. The facility’s success in handling any type of emergency depends to a large extent on the correctional staff. Awareness of the emergency procedures is important to make the correctional staff appreciate his/her role in any emergency situation. Creating this awareness is the focus of this session. At this session and the other on inmates’ disturbances, we shall look at emergency procedures in general and also consider the specific emergency action plans of the Bureau of Corrections and Rehabilitation.
PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES Write performance objectives on the white board and explain them to the trainees.	Let us examine the performance objectives for this session. At the conclusion of the session, you will be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Explain an emergency. • State the types of emergencies. • List the causes of emergencies. • State the philosophies and goals of emergency procedures. • Report emergencies properly. • Describe different emergency procedures. • Describe command structure in emergencies. • State the chain-of-command. • State the tactical plan in any emergencies.
DEFINITION	An emergency is an event which, if not checked or resolved quickly, may have serious impact or repercussion on the public, the correctional facility, inmate population and on the staff.

PHILOSOPHIES OF EMERGENCY PROCEDURES	Now that we have an idea of what an emergency is, let us look at the philosophies and goals underlying any emergency procedure. The philosophies and goals underlying any emergency procedures are the: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Protect life and property. • Maintain and or restore the humane conditions of the correctional institution as quickly as possible. • Direct staff efforts to safeguard the public, preserve life, prevent injuries and protect public and private property.
GOALS OF EMERGENCY PROCEDURES	The goals of emergency procedures are as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Isolation and containment of the emergency situation as quickly as possible. • Establishment of control and restoration of order as soon as possible. • Prevention of escapes. • Ensure safety of innocent bystanders, staff and inmates. • Resolution of the emergency situation with minimal use of force. • Minimization of property damage We have so far defined an emergency and looked at the philosophies and goals underpinning emergency procedures. Let us now focus our attention at generating a list of the emergencies that we may have to deal with as corrections officers.
Divide class into 5 small groups and pose the question: “What types of emergencies could we encounter in the corrections settings?” “What are their causes?” Ask groups to write their responses on a flip chart.
TYPES OF EMERGENCIES	The types of emergencies are: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Fires – natural or man made

COMMAND STRUCTURE IN EMERGENCIES	Command is of great essence in emergency situations. The command structure in emergencies shall be initial, interim and ultimate command.
Initial command	At the beginning of each shift, a shift supervisor and his/her assistant are specified. In the event of an emergency and in the absence of the Superintendent or a high ranking officer in the chain-of-command, the Shift Commander shall assume initial command and direct affairs until the arrival of a higher ranking officer.
Interim command	Ideally, there should be only one chain-of-command from the initial to the ultimate commander. However, if the Superintendent is not available immediately, the highest ranking official in the chain-of-command present shall assume the role of interim commander.
Ultimate commander	Ultimate command shall be assumed by the Superintendent as soon as he/she arrives at the facility and has been adequately briefed by either the initial or interim commanders as the case may be.
CHAIN-OF-COMMAND IN EMERGENCIES	All staff shall respect the chain-of-command during emergencies. The chain-of-command is as follows. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Superintendent – ultimate command • Deputy Superintendent or highest ranking officer

Isolation and containment of the emergency	inmate setup. The second stage of the tactical plan is isolation and containment of the emergency. The goal of the initial phase of the emergency procedure is to isolate and keep the incident contained to the smallest area as possible. This is done by locking gates, grills, doors, inmates and forming a perimeter to limit access to unauthorized persons into the area of incident to create a buffer zone between the affected area and the rest of the facility. Inmates should be secured in their cells/housing units and those not in their cells/housing unit should be kept in a secure area in the facility.
Evacuation	During the third stage of the tactical plan, all inmates and staff in the danger zone should be evacuated first. This is to be followed by those in areas subject to threat. Those in non-exposed areas are the last to be evacuated. Persons evacuated are to be held at a secured location for the purposes of identification and accounting for inmates and staff and for debriefing.
Resolution	Resolution which is the fourth stage in the tactical plan differs from incident to incident since no two incidents are the same in all respects. Resolution can range from putting out a small fire to dealing with a full-scale inmate disturbance. How each incident is resolved is at the prerogative of the commander.
Deactivation	This stage in the tactical plan involves the counting of both inmates and staff, taking of photographs of damaged areas, collection of evidence debriefing and defusing of the staff directly involved in the incident and checking the areas involved for security considerations.
DESCRIPTION OF DIFFERENT EMERGENCY PROCEDURES	Refer to the attached incident action sheets on escape, fire and disturbance/riot. * SEE ATTACHED INCIDENT ACTION PLANS *

SUMMARY

Now that I have taken you through the emergency procedures, you should be able to:

- Explain an emergency.
- State the types of emergencies.
- List the causes of emergencies.
- State the philosophies and goals of emergency procedures.
- Report emergencies properly.
- Describe different emergency procedures.
- Describe command structure in emergencies.
- State the chain-of-command.
- State the tactical plan in any emergencies.

(2) A prisoner shall be informed at once of the death or serious illness of any near relative. In case of the critical illness of a near relative, the prisoner should be authorized, whenever circumstances allow, to go to his bedside either under escort or alone.

(3) Every prisoner shall have the right to inform at once his family of his imprisonment or his transfer to another institution.

1 LESSON PLAN 11 – Hostage Survival

Duration: 2 Hours

Method of Presentation: Lecture, Discussion, Question and Answer

Performance Objectives:

After completion of this course, the participants will be able to write, without benefit of notes (unless otherwise specified), the following:

1. A list of seven (7) principles of hostage negotiation.
2. A description of the methods correction officers can use to prepare themselves for a hostage situation (as a potential hostage).
3. A list of at least seven (7) procedures a correction officer should be aware of as a hostage.
4. A list of at least three (3) causes of a correctional hostage situation and a description of methods of prevention for each.

INTRODUCTION

To a correction officer, the word "Hostage" has a special meaning. His profession places each officer in, perhaps, the most vulnerable area of society to be taken hostage. History, complete with too many actual experiences, has taught us that, when a correctional hostage situation gets out of control, it is dangerous for all parties -- inmates, staff and correctional officers alike.

When any person is arrested in a country, he first stays at a detention center, often a police lockup or local jail. He may be innocent, or a killer, robber, or even a hostage taker. This increased vulnerability of the correction officer to be taken hostage calls for specialized training in hostage survival.

This training is designed to:

1. Familiarize correction officers with the negotiation process;
2. Advise correction officers how to prepare for possibly being taken hostage;
3. Advise correction officers how to survive a hostage situation; and
4. Train correction officers how to help prevent hostage situations from occurring.

There are seven basic principles of hostage negotiations:

1. The preservation of Life

This is the dominating principle of hostage negotiations. Every effort will be made to save human life -- of the hostages, negotiations, inmates and perpetrators.

2. Talk to the Perpetrators (LISTEN to the Perpetrators).

In order to negotiate a situation, there must be communication between parties. A rapport must be developed between negotiator and perpetrator.

3. Define the Problem

Negotiators must understand that taking a hostage is a desperate act which has underlying problems. Unless such problems are defined, negotiation to end the situation cannot take place.

4. Bargain to End the Situation

Negotiators, after defining the problem, must bargain with the perpetrators for release of the persons being held. The principle here is to "Do not give something for nothing."

5. TIME Is on your side

The longer a perpetrator remains with the hostage, the less likely the perpetrator is to kill the hostage. (NOTE: An exception to this rule in the first 45 minutes of a jail riot - assault. This strategy is designed to disperse the crowd before leadership emerges. Only in a jail (detention facility) riot.)

6. The Hostage Is a Tool

The negotiator is trained not to build value on the negotiable item; i.e., hostage. The word "hostage" denotes something of great value. Therefore, the negotiator will not reinforce the perpetrator's end of the bargaining process by stressing that they are holding "hostages." The negotiator will deal with the hostages as only a symptom, not the problem.

7. Tactical Assault (C.E.R.T. - Correctional Emergency Response Team)

Although we would like to think all hostage situations are negotiable, a tactical assault may be necessary when lives have been or are about to be taken. The role of the negotiator in this case may be to negotiate the perpetrators into an area where they may be successfully neutralized. If there is an assault, "fall down" as soon as you are aware of an attempt by staff to assault the hostage takers, get out of the way. The rescuers are in much better shape, physically and mentally, to free you than you are to subdue any hostage takers.

It is important for officers to know these seven principles of hostage negotiations, so that they understand what efforts are being made to gain their release should they be taken hostage.
How to Prepare for a Hostage Situation

No one can tell for certain when a hostage situation is going to occur. If officers could, they would simply take the day off.

Since officers don't know when they may be taken hostage, it is best for them to be prepared at all times. A study, conducted by Brooks McClure of the Foreign Service for the United States Information Agency, found that the most traumatic psychological effect on hostages was the fact that their families were not provided for. The study also showed that, when family concerns were taken care of, the hostages could then focus their attention on personal survival.

It is recommended that correction officers prepare themselves for hostage situations by making one or more of the following provisions:

1. Make a will and update it.
2. Give a trusted person Power of Attorney.
3. Secure adequate life and disability insurance.
4. Establish joint ownership of property, bank accounts, etc.
5. Keep a listing of policies and properties for easy access by family, attorney, etc.

Any one or all of these methods may help the individual officer deal with the survival of his family should he be killed.

Hostage Survival Techniques

Once taken hostage, it is important to remember that all human behavior is understandable, purposeful and directed. If you think the perpetrator(s) is crazy, it will work against you. Your strength is in trying to understand the perpetrator's actions.

The essential technique in hostage survival is the hastening of transference or survival identification. What this means is: Become a person; Do not allow yourself to become dehumanized.

- YOUR STRENGTH IS AS AN INDIVIDUAL -

In our armies, we train soldiers to kill "dehumanized objects." If we allow the perpetrators to think of correction officers as "Pigs" or "Hacks," we dehumanize them and, thereby, make it easier to kill them.

The following are some guidelines to increase survival identification:

< Do not become a group

Groups allow perpetrators to rationalize "Us v. Them"; "Convicts v. Guards":

< Do not become a spokesman

"We think such and such . . ." It draws attention to a group and dehumanizes.

< Do not conspire

"We v. They" - Don't whisper and get caught.

< Do not negotiate

Negotiation as a hostage is ridiculous. You have no real power and, by negotiation, you remind the perpetrators you are part of the system. You may also undermine the negotiations process.

< Do not defend the system

Now is the time to remember all your complaints about the system. Don't pick this day to affirm our loyalty to the prison. Adopt a "Yeah, they don't treat me right either" attitude. Don't go overboard; express only complaints which are real; the perpetrators will recognize exaggeration and disbelieve off-the-wall complaints.

< Do not threaten them

"You're going to get killed if you hurt us." This may suggest the idea of killing you.

Again, it dehumanizes.

< Do not become a liability

Don't become such a nuisance that it becomes easier to kill you than tolerate you. If they decide to kill a hostage, it would surely be the hostage that is causing the most trouble.

< Discard items of authority

Get rid of uniform items, badges, shirt, patches, etc. Generally, mess yourself up and look sloppy.

< Safe attitude

"Don't feel bad; I'm just a little cog in this big machine, myself; they never tell me what's going on."

< Talk and listen

Let the person talk to you. Discuss non-judgmental topics (sports, hobbies). If the perpetrator wants to talk about his problem, listen. Keep the perpetrator talking by using phrases such as:

"I see; tell me more";

"How did you feel about that?"

or just

"Uh-huh."

Avoid abruptly asking questions requiring "yes" or "no" answers. Keep the perpetrators talking.

< Avoid closure

Don't ask, "Are you going to kill me?" You may have planted the seed in the perpetrator's head when he was mentally anguished and desired to bring an end to the situation any way possible.

< Monitor your breaking point

Take your pulse. If your heart rate is very high, your ability to function may be reduced. Can't concentrate? Your anxiety level may be too high to think clearly. Frequent urination? Kidneys are working harder.

< Use relaxation exercises

Prevent hyperventilation by taking long, deep breaths; hold, and release slowly. Counter conditioning -- visualize the worst that could happen over and over again. Once you've found that you are not panicking, you will tend to stay calm. (Veterans are calm in combat.)

< Maximize transference

Use eye contact when talking to the perpetrator(s). It is harder to kill someone who is looking at you.

Remember, as a corrections officer, you will have certain duties which must be performed once you are released:

1. Relate valuable intelligence information concerning the hostages, perpetrators, weapons involved and assault routes to the debriefing officer if there are hostages still being held.
2. Give a statement concerning the incidents for criminal prosecution.
3. Testify in court.

Stockholm Syndrome

In hostage survival, we attempt to maximize transference. This is and should be a calculated move by the hostage. Sometimes, however, the hostage's transference is so great that he actually starts to protect the perpetrator from harm. Such an occurrence happened in Stockholm, Sweden, when a female teller being held hostage in a bank developed a relationship with a perpetrator (transference). The relationship became so intense that she refused to testify against the perpetrator in court.

Correction officers should be aware of the Stockholm Syndrome. They must remember that the Stockholm Syndrome is fostered by the hostage's belief that the negotiators, administrators are not any more worried about the hostages than the perpetrators and the likeness of the hostages' situation to the perpetrators; i.e., both may be killed by the assault team. Hostages must remember the principle of a hostage as a tool, and that value is purposely not placed on the hostage by negotiators in an effort to reduce the hostage's value as a bargaining issue.

The Stockholm Syndrome is a very real dynamic in a hostage situation and must be considered at all times.

Courses and Prevention of Hostage Situations

The best way to survive hostage situations is not to have a hostage situation at all. It is important for correction officers to know the reasons for taking hostages and what can be done to reduce the elements of risk of hostage situations.

Reason: Escape - Many hostage situations start as attempted escapes, and the correction officers who discover the escape are taken hostage. Inmates may also grab officers and hold a weapon on them as a means of escape.

Prevention: Officers should emphasize daily security routines, practice good prison security procedures, and keep alert for security violations. When inmates see that security is watched closely, they are less likely to attempt escapes and, therefore, reducing the chances of taking a hostage.

Reason: Emotional Problems - When inmates are faced with a personal crisis, they may take desperate actions to resolve the situations, such as suicide or attempting escape by use of a hostage.

Prevention: Correction officers should be aware of the symptoms of emotional problems and refer the inmate for professional help as soon as possible.

Reason: Prison Conditions - A reliable sign of impending problems is poor prison conditions. Prisons which are overcrowded, and have a less than sufficient staff that is overworked due to overcrowding, create a vicious cycle that eventually leads to disturbances and a possible hostage situation.

Prevention: While there is not much individual officers can do to improve staffing and population problems, officers can respond to other problems which contribute to tensions. A broken shower head may seem like a minor problem but, when coupled with deteriorating conditions, it may be the spark that causes the prison to explode. Officers should make every effort to keep their blocks clean and equipment functioning. When there is broken equipment, the officer should see that it is repaired; i.e., report it and follow up.

Reason: Fear - Aside from emotional problems, there are some things inmates fear about the prison. Things such as claustrophobia or fear of homosexual assault may cause an inmate to take desperate steps to escape from the situation.

Prevention: Officers should recognize signs of fear in an inmate and develop a rapport to help determine the immediate problem. As with emotional problems, the inmate should immediately be referred for professional help. It should also be noted that, aside from taking a hostage, the inmate instead by contemplating suicide.

Reason: Publicity - Inmates may also take hostages as a means to gain publicity for their personal problems or an ideological cause. Demands will usually reflect the ideology or personal problems.

Prevention: Officers should be looking for possible attempts at obtaining publicity in the prison, such as requests for interviews with the media, etc. Officers should also determine an inmate's dedication to a certain ideology and pass the information on to his superiors. He should indicate his feeling on how desperate the inmate is for publicity. Officers should also look direct signs also look for direct signs of a possible inmate takeover, such as storing food, reduced visits, etc.

While the reasons for taking hostages may be as varied as the inmates in the prison, the preceding categories should serve as a guide for officers.

Summary

The process of hostage survival requires that officers and staff know what is going on. An officer should have a basic idea of the seven principles of hostage negotiations in order to understand his position as a hostage.

Correction personnel must plan for the possibility of being taken hostage by first providing for their families. Planning must be done now, since it is never known when a hostage might be taken.

Surviving as a hostage becomes much easier when family interests are taken care of. As a hostage, correction personnel should be making efforts to personalize themselves and increase the transference process with the perpetrator(s). Officers should always remember that, after their release, they will be called upon to give information concerning the incident and later may have to testify in court. Officers should remember that the best chance of surviving a hostage situation involves not having a hostage situation at all. Officers should employ techniques which reduce the chance of hostage situations and add to the safety and security of the institution.

Hostage survival is a very real issue in corrections today. We must be prepared, and we must understand the negotiations process in order to increase chances of coming out of a hostage situation mentally and physically unharmed.

TRAINER’S HANDOUT/HOSTAGE SITUATIONS

NOTES AND METHODOLOGY	CONTENTS
INTRODUCTION Write session topic on the white board. PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES DEFINING A HOSTAGE SITUATION?	Introduce yourself and session topic. The word HOSTAGE itself brings out feelings of uncertainty, anxiety, and fear in most individuals. Correctional staff members are no different. This situation is an unacceptable concept for many of us, but the real fact of life is that this concept is becoming more and more an acceptable means to an end for inmates who demonstrate a willingness to undertake this activity. We must remember that correctional institutions have become a gathering place for the worst and most violent people in society. The pressures and frustrations of the confined environment create a high degree of mental disturbance and violence. This session is meant to raise your aware to the reality of hostage taking and to show you how to survive hostage situations with dignity. At the end of this session, you will be able to: Explain a hostage situation. Examine the types of hostage situations that may happen in a correctional facility. Describe the various treatments correctional officers may go through as hostages. State the courses of action in the resolution of hostage situations. State the advantages of time passage in hostage situations. Describe how to survive a hostage situation with dignity by following the hostage survival tips. Explain the stages of the post traumatic stress disorder treatment. I want us to begin this session by looking at what a hostage situation is. A hostage situation is any condition where people are held illegally and against their will, denied their right to move, act, speak freely, or make decisions on their own.

TYPES OF HOSTAGE SITUATIONS The “Psycho” Incident The “Situational” Incident The “Grievance Airing” Incident The “Escape Plan” Incident The “Riot Related” Incident	Let’s now look at the different types of hostage situations we mat encounter in the corrections setting. There are seven types of hostage situations. These are: A single inmate working alone most often causes this type of incident. He/She may not even know what his/her plans or grievances are at the time of the act. They may be paranoid or psychopathic. Depending on the inmate’s level of illness or instability, this may be the most potentially dangerous of hostage incidents. This is the act of a usually normal person prompted by an impulse to solve a problem or get out of a situation by taking a hostage. It is usually not a planned action. The hostage is taken primarily to intimidate staff from acting, and to buy time for the inmate to figure out how to get out of his/her problem. This type of incident involves the taking of hostages as legal tender to hold or trade for opportunities to air complaints and grievances with persons other than the housing unit staff and sometimes with persons other than the facility administrators. They do not want to talk to the Superintendent of the facility or the Director of the Department. Their demands are for the Governor, attorneys, media, etc. These incidents are well planned and are sometimes preceded by a planned riot or disturbance. This incident either involves the taking of hostage(s) to intimidate staff into unwillingly permitting or assisting inmates in an escape attempt. It may involve hostage taking as an escape attempt has gone bad for the inmates. The “escape plan” incident is therefore an act of desperation. This involves the taking of hostages as a spontaneous addition to a riot or disturbance. Such actions make an already dangerous situation more volatile. In the “riot related” incident, hostages are taken more for purposes of abuse.

The “Terrorist” Incident	This incident is the least likely cause of a hostage-taking incident in correctional facilities. We need however to be aware of the “terrorist” given the type of prisoners held in our custody these days. This type of incident is perpetuated with the aim of assisting an inmate or group of inmates to escape or its purpose may rest simply as a means to get attention in great proportions. In this type of hostage incident the hostage takers are very committed even at the peril of their lives and that renders this type incident very dangerous.
The “Vengeance Seeking” Incident	This act is driven by an individual who is totally discontented and seeking revenge. Perpetuators of the act, plan the incident over a long time. The whole purpose is to gain revenge or assault on the hostage(s). No matter which incident you look at, the issue at stake in most hostage taking situations is that the inmate(s), who have taken you hostage, may be exercising his/her power to seek retaliation for the first r time and so you may be in a dangerous situation.
Ask question to generate discussions – “What are some of the treatments that a hostage may be subjected to?”	let’s now consider the treatment hostages may be subjected to.
TREATMENT OF HOSTAGES	Overall, your treatment can range from mild verbal harassment to extreme physical violence, depending on the situation and the hostage taker's motive. Keep in mind that even though the staff member is a hostage, they are still considered a threat by the hostage taker. The hostage can expect all types of treatment such as being: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Tied up or secured in some manner. Moved from place to place or cell to cell. Humiliated verbally, physically and mentally. Stripped of clothing, personal articles blindfolded and made to wear inmate's clothing.

COURSES OF ACTION IN A HOSTAGE SITUATION

Used as a shield by inmates.
Used to present demands or to negotiate.

A number of actions is opened to the Institution to resolve hostage situations.

The alternative courses of action available to the commander in the event inmate(s) take hostage(s) are as follows:
Containment and isolation to ensure the incident does not extend to unaffected areas of the facility.
Open negotiations to secure the release of the hostage(s).
Forced resolution of the hostage situation. This involves the use of force to end the hostage situation.
Do nothing.

ADVANTAGES OF TIME PASSAGE IN HOSTAGE SITUATIONS

Passage of time is of great essence in hostage situations. During the hostage situation, the biggest advantage to you is the time factor. The longer the situation stretches out, and as long as no one is getting killed or harmed, you will stand a better chance for survival. One important aspect of the hostage situation is that your actions during the initial phase of the incident may be the reason why you are dead or alive at the end of the incident. Therefore, the first half-hour is usually the most dangerous. Within this time, emotions are running high, and there is diminished reasoning on the part of the hostage taker. The hostage, in some cases, will be viewed as a threat to the hostage-taker since the hostage is seen as a symbol of authority. The inmate(s) are in control, which makes it a very dangerous time for the hostage.

After a while, the hostage-taker will become more aware of his/her emotions and position. This will come with the passage of time. The negotiation process will try to extend this time for your survival. Some of the other advantages of time passage are:

The commander may decide to manipulate the environment (turn off water, source of food may be

Increases basic human needs	blocked, electricity, etc.), you and the hostage taker may start to feel uncomfortable. You may not be getting medication, food or drink at the appropriate time and you may not be able to go to the restroom as you would wish to. This process will make every one in the incident site irritable, uncomfortable, and tired.
Decreases emotion and increases rationality	As time goes on, the hostage-taker will start realizing that his/her expectations are not going to be met. He/she will most likely start to arbitrate for his/her release and the release of the hostage(s). The hostage-taker now assumes responsibility for keeping him/herself alive as well as the care and condition of the hostage(s). This, for some inmates depending on their personality, is going to be an uncomfortable situation that may add stress and make the hostage taker more emotionally tired.
Develops the Stockholm Syndrome	For the hostage, hours will feel like days. The boredom is broken up by moments of terror, which will eventually cause fatigue to the hostage. Because of the close confinement of the taker and the hostage, positive feelings may start to develop between the hostages and hostage takers. If the hostage-taker does not abuse the hostage, the hostage finds himself or herself having compassion for the taker. The positive feeling by a hostage toward the captor is often also felt by the captor toward the hostage. This relationship is important to your survival. It is commonly called the “Stockholm Syndrome” and comes from a hostage situation that occurred at a bank in Stockholm, Sweden in the early 1970s. Following the resolution of the situation (in which no one was injured), the hostages showed great sympathy to the two hostage takers and demonstrated animosity toward the police. The hostages refused to testify at the trial, spoke in public on behalf of the takers, and attempted to raise money for their defense. Several months after the incident, one of the hostages became engaged to one of the hostage takers. You should attempt to let the hostage taker have positive feelings toward you the hostage. It will increase your chance for survival and help the negotiators to gain your release.

Increases chances of hostage's escape	When time has extended itself to where the hostage-takers feel comfortable with the hostage(s), and the hostage(s) feel comfortable with the hostage-takers, hostage(s) tend to want to find ways out of the situation. Before you attempt to escape, think of the ramifications to the other hostages, if there are any. If you are alone, and you are absolutely sure you can make it, even then think twice. You also possess valuable intelligence information on the hostage-taker(s), weapons, etc.
Allows relationships to develop between hostage-taker and negotiator	Time will increase the probability of a successful negotiation. Time will allow the negotiator to assist in helping the hostage-taker explore alternatives to the situation and find solutions for the predicament.
Permits reduction of hostage taker's expectations	The hostage-taker will eventually settle down with the passage of time. Even without prompting from the negotiator, the hostage-taker has the opportunity to rationally appraise the situation and realize the limits of his/her position. Initially, hostage-taker starts off with excessive demands, and through time he/she reduces those demands for his/her own survival.
HOSTAGE SURVIVAL TIPS	Keep cool - attempt to remain as calm as possible despite the high level of tension you may be experiencing. Stand on your dignity. Don't get drawn into heated verbal encounters. Don't threaten anyone. Above all, don't lose your temper because you can't win, and you could trigger widespread violence. Mentally escape - picture yourself with your family on the beach, or some other enjoyable place. Follow orders as quickly as possible - you are in a very dangerous situation. Don't argue or be authoritative. Don't try to be a hero. Stop and think before you act or speak. Do not make any sudden movements. Do not make any deals or attempt to negotiate for your freedom - you are not in a position to make deals, promises or concessions; so do not negotiate. Other people will be working to get you out of danger. Be patient - even though the negotiation may take long

and you have a feeling the negotiators are not doing anything, they would be working hard to get you rescued, unharmed, at the opportune time. Remember the advantages of time.

Assess the situation - before you attempt to escape, think of the ramifications to the other hostages, if there are any. If you are alone, and you are absolutely sure you can make it, even then think twice. If you are caught trying to escape, you will most likely be abused.

Make no statements - should you get an opportunity to talk to a negotiator on the telephone, he or she may switch to a “yes or no” mode of questioning to gather intelligence. Try to answer them, but be careful the hostage taker doesn’t catch on. If you are asked to make a public statement, do not say anything beyond confirming that you are surviving.

Be aware of everything you see or hear - try to remember the number of captors, their descriptions, conversations, the weapons they have, etc.; and also, the number and identities of other hostages. You may be released, and your information could be valuable to the resolution of the situation. Do not use notes on paper because it could cost you your life.

Keep hostages together if possible - keep all people together both physically and mentally. Try to resist fragmenting the group and do not conspire, there could be ramifications for it.

Appear human - be yourself. Be friendly without being phony. Talk occasionally and above all listen. Do not feel that you have to defend the Department of Corrections. Do not stare at the taker but look them in the eyes when responding and occasionally glance at what they are doing when there is silence among you. Share selective information about you as a person. The more the hostage-taker knows about you, the more difficult it becomes to harm you. Remember the Stockholm syndrome.

Monitor your health - eat, drink, rest and exercise if possible. Tell the takers of any health or medical conditions that you have. Let them know about your medications. It is in the best interest of the hostage-takers that they keep you healthy and safe.

SUMMARY

Resist rape - stand on your dignity. Look the hostage-taker in the eye and tell him you have always treated him/her fairly and professionally and would like to be treated with the same degree of respect.

Don't give up hope - the hostage should never doubt that rescue will finally come, either through negotiations or assault.

Assault - like we mentioned earlier, it is critical that if an assault begins, you should lie on the floor and place your hands on your head. Make no quick movements and stay in place until you are rescued. Do not resist the rescue team taking you into custody. Do not stand up or try to identify yourself at this time.

Critical Incident Stress Debriefing - even though you have been released or rescued, the ordeal is not over. You may experience a number of symptoms including those of Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder. This is normal and nothing to be ashamed of. Follow the recommendations made to you at the conclusion of your Critical Incident Stress Management debriefing.

Now that I have taken you through the session on hostage survival, you should be able to:

Explain a hostage situation.

Examine the types of hostage situations that may happen in a correctional facility.

Describe the various treatments correctional officers may go through as hostages.

State the courses of action in the resolution of hostage situations.

State the advantages of time passage in hostage situations.

Describe how to survive a hostage situation with dignity by following the hostage survival tips.

Explain the stages of the post traumatic stress disorder treatment.

LESSON PLAN 12 - 1Fire Safety

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

1 This lesson plan should be completed by the prison administration. It should be presented by the staff in charge of emergency planning and response or fire brigade personnel. New staff should be told what to expect and what their first response should be. They should also be told who to report to and what actions they may take until proper authorities arrive on the scene. They should be instructed in the use of any fire equipment available within the prison or that can be used to control the smoke and heat. All staff should know how to evacuate inmates in case their cells are threatened by fire. Because inmates might light the fire in order to help them in an escape attempt, officers should be trained in proper security precautions, but always human life should take

1Method of Instruction:

Lecture, Discussion, Demonstration

Time Frame:

Minimum of 1 Hour

Performance Objectives:

To make the student aware of the general causes of fire and thus how to prevent them and extinguish them. To make sure the student knows the procedure to follow to remove prisoners, staff, visitors and others from dangerous situations during a fire.

Lesson Objectives:

At the conclusion of this block of instruction the student will:

Be able to identify what elements are necessary to a fire to exist

Know the different classes of fires and what is used to extinguish them

Know how to give an alarm in case of fire

Know specifically what to do to evacuate prisoners and others during a fire

Training Aides Required:

Fire extinguishers, Blackboard or flip chart

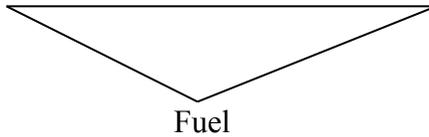

INTRODUCTION:

Few incidents in a prison carry as much concern and fear as fire. The prison is built to make escape difficult. Even the staff do not always have easy access to necessary keys and windows often are locked and barred. It is most often, when a fire occurs, the prison officer who is first on the scene and is responsible to give an alarm, try to contain the fire and insure prisoners, staff and visitors can get to safety. The purpose of this lesson is not to make you an expert firefighter. Some of our staff has special training and later you might also become one of our certified fire specialists. For now, you must learn how to prevent fires, how to contain them and what to do to help people get to safety.

1THE FIRE TRIANGLE

Heat

Oxygen

Fire, to exist, needs three things:

Heat, Fuel and Oxygen. Take away any of the three and the fire dies or does not start in the first place.

TYPES OF FIRES

Fires and fire extinguishers are generally classified by the fuel involved:

Solids, such as paper, wood, rags, dry combustibles

Liquid, including gas, paint, oil, combustible liquids

Electrical

Combustible Metals

PREVENTION

Prevention is the best way to prevent a fire. The most common problems you will face, in terms of fire prevention will be with the first three types listed above. Often our prisons and equipment and furniture is old and could be in bad repair. On your normal inspections you be on the look out for potential fire hazards caused by poor housekeeping of prisoner or staff and for poorly maintained or stored items.

Paper, wood, rags when stored or thrown away should be in covered containers – that will eliminate the source of oxygen and prevent fires from starting. The same is true of combustible liquids. Covered, air tight containers eliminates the oxygen. Also, if paper, rags, liquids are not allowed to stay where spilled or thrown by careless individuals, then the source of fuel will not exist. Watching where matches, cigarettes and other hot items are disposed of can reduce the source of the heat needed to start a fire. Exposed electrical wires need to be unplugged, taped or fixed.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

1Ask the class to list the major dangers of a fire and to identify the main killer. List their answers on the blackboard or flip chart

1CONCLUSION

Most fires could have been prevented with better housekeeping or maintenance.

Fires need heat, oxygen and fuel to exist and even small fires can get out of hand quickly.

Your first job is to insure the people in the area are safe or are moved to safety.

If you remember and react appropriately to these three principles, the chance of a fire starting, spreading or injuring anyone will be greatly reduced.

QUIZ

1. What are the general types of fires and the classification of fire extinguishers used on each?
2. What three things are needed for a fire to exist?
3. What is the most dangerous thing associated with a fire?
4. What is your prime responsibility in case of a fire?

Answers to Quiz

1. A Solids (paper, wood, rags, dry combustibles)
B Liquid (paint, gas, grease, oil)
C Electrical
D Combustible metals
2. Oxygen, Heat, Fuel
3. Smoke
14. To get prisoners and others to safety in a secure manner or condition

SESSION TITLE: FIRE SAFETY

INTRODUCTION

In this session, we will be discussing several topics concerning fire safety. While most of the information you will receive pertains to the reduction and prevention of fires in a correctional setting, it can also be applied to aid in preventing the tragedy of fire in your own home.

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES

At the end of this session, the trainee will be able to:

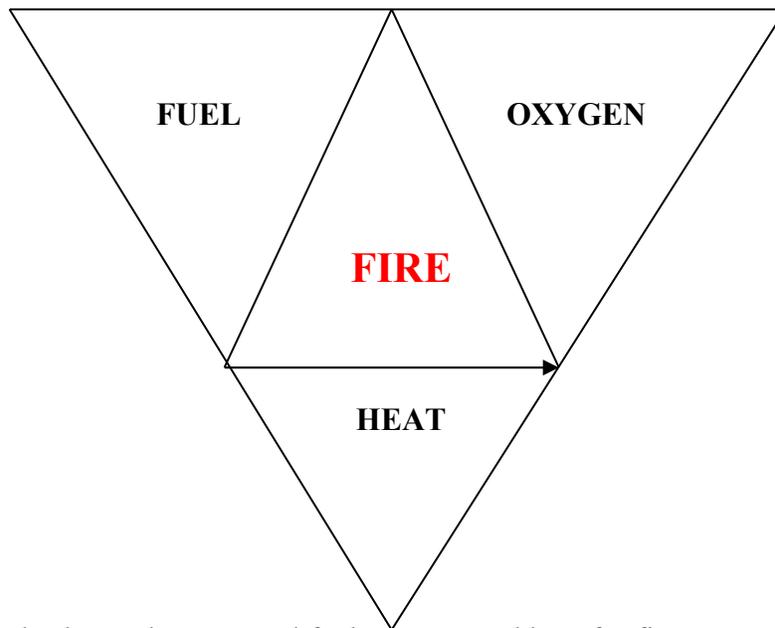

- Explain what fire is.
- Identify the three elements necessary for fire to occur/Explain what is meant by the fire triangle.
- List the three phases of fire.
- Differentiate between the four classes of fire.
- Identify the three types of fire extinguishers.
- List the six goals of a fire safety programme.
- Demonstrate how to use a Class 'A' fire extinguisher.

DEFINITION OF FIRE

Fire is defined as a rapidly occurring chemical reaction in which fuel and oxygen are combined by a source of heat to produce flame and heat.

This means that three elements, fuel, oxygen and heat, are necessary for the chemical reaction resulting in fire to occur.

THE FIRE TRIANGLE/ELEMENTS OF FIRE

The Fire Triangle shows that we need fuel, oxygen and heat for fire to occur.

Oxygen

The atmosphere in the area burning must have an oxygen percentage of 16% to 21-½ % to support combustion. The average percentage of oxygen in the air you breathe is around 21%. While oxygen is not flammable, higher concentrations it will allow the chemical reaction of fire to grow, spread, and consume combustible materials at a rapid rate.

Fuel

Fuel is what is burning. Examples are clothes, mattresses, blankets, wood, paper, plastic, gases, etc.

Heat

Heat is what will start the fuel burning. This element may be from a mechanical device or electrical source.

THE PHASES OF FIRE

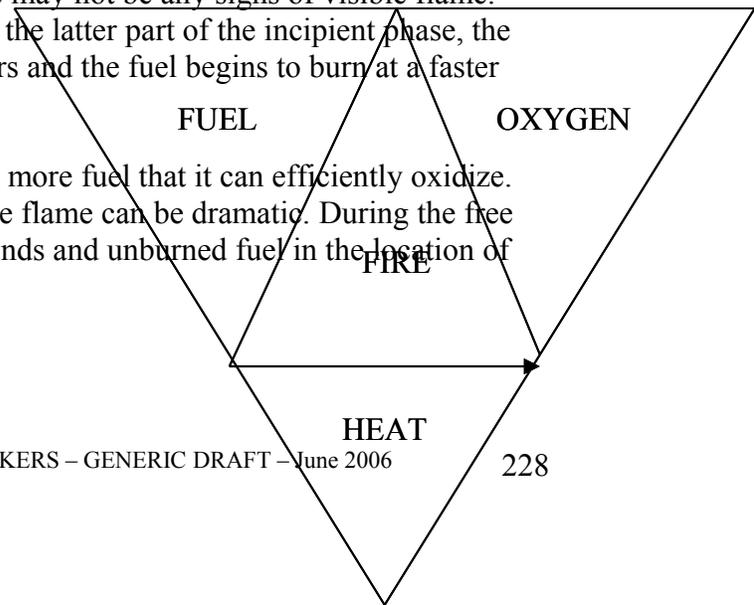

Incipient Phase

In this first phase of fire the three elements, oxygen, fuel, and heat are in proper quantities and the act of combustion has begun. At the onset there may not be any signs of visible flame. However, heat and smoke in the area is evident. During the latter part of the incipient phase, the fuel will reach its ignition temperature. “Flaming” occurs and the fuel begins to burn at a faster rate.

Free Burning Phase

In this phase the fire progresses rapidly, burning more fuel than it can efficiently oxidize. Oxygen is being consumed in vast quantities, and visible flame can be dramatic. During the free burning phase, the fire will double in size every 30 seconds and unburned fuel in the location of the fire will be in flames.

Hot Smoldering Phase

Many free burning fires will reach this phase, not because the fuel in the area has been depleted, but because the fire would have depleted the oxygen in the environment. As I stated earlier, fire occurs when the oxygen levels are between 16% and 21-½%. When the percentage of oxygen is 15% or less, the fire will enter the hot smoldering phase. Heat and fuel are still present. The only thing missing to support a free burning fire is the right amount of oxygen.

Some of the signs of a hot smoldering fire are:

- Yellowish gray smoke
- Windows and doors rattling
- Smoke coming out around windows and doors, and being sucked back in.

If allowed to remain in this phase, the fire will eventually smother itself and go off.

However, should the fire locate air with an oxygen level above 15%, it will draw the air towards itself and the fire will return to the free burning phase. This is what is known as Back-draft.

CLASSES OF FIRE

Class ‘A’ Fires

Class ‘A’ fires are commonly referred to as ordinary combustibles. They include, but are not limited to, wood, paper, rubber and most plastics. During Class ‘A’ fires, coals and embers are created. After the fire has burned itself out, there will be some type of residue (ash) remaining.

Class ‘B’ Fires

Class ‘B’ fires are referred to as flammable or combustible liquids. Examples of this class of fire are petroleum based products, grease, tar and propane. The ignition temperature for these liquids and their vapours is lower than the ignition temperature of most of the liquids, the risk of accidental ignition is great.

Class ‘C’ Fires

These are fires that originate in energized electrical equipment such as computers, televisions, fuse or circuit breaker panels, etc. A major concern with these types of fires is the possibility of electrocution. When handling this class of fire, you must use a nonconductive extinguishing agent.

Class ‘D’ Fires

This class of fire consists of combustible metals. Some examples of Class ‘D’ fires are magnesium and aluminum. Fire extinguishers available for use on Class A, B or C fires have no effect on Class ‘D’ fires. The Class ‘D’ fire creates its own oxygen source while it is burning, and attempting to extinguish it with water, carbon dioxide or dry chemical extinguishers may cause an explosion. Extinguishing a Class ‘D’ fire must be done with sand, dirt or a Class ‘D’ extinguisher only. Allowing the fire to burn it self out while protecting any exposed areas is the safest practice.

TYPES OF FIRE EXTINGUISHERS

The common types of fire extinguishers are the pressurized water, carbon dioxide and dry chemical extinguishers. We will discuss each one in depth so that you are aware of what each one is capable of doing.

Pressurized Water

Pressurized water extinguishers are effective on Class ‘A’ fires only. All Class ‘A’ pressurized water extinguishers will have the green triangle and burning trash symbols on their label.

The advantages of a Class 'A' extinguisher include the fact that:

- Water absorbs large amounts of heat.
 - A large amount of extinguishing agent is available – 2-1/2 gallons.
 - In special cases, additives can be inserted to allow the water to be more effective.
- Some disadvantages are:
- A full extinguisher weighs about 25 pounds, causing fatigue to the user.
 - It is effective on Class 'A' fires only. We all know what will happen if you put water on grease or electrical fires!

Carbon Dioxide

The carbon dioxide extinguisher is effective on Classes 'B' and 'C' fires only. The extinguisher label will include a red square and blue circle, as well as the symbols for liquid and electrical fires.

Some advantages of a Classes 'B' and 'C' extinguishers are:

- As the extinguishing agent is released from the cylinder, it goes from a liquid to a gas, and possesses a high expansion ration. This means that there is a large amount of extinguishing agent available to use for fire suppression.
- Carbon dioxide leaves no residue.
- Carbon dioxide is non-conductor of electricity.

The disadvantages of a Class 'B' and 'C' extinguishers are:

- Due to the expansion rate from liquid to gas, the user may get a 'static' shock.
- If used in confined spaces, it may be toxic due to oxygen displacement caused by the extinguishing agent.
- While it is effective on Class 'C' fires, the temperature of the gas emitted is so low that it may damage electrical appliances beyond reasonable repair.

Dry Chemical

The dry chemical extinguisher is effective on Class 'A', 'B' and 'C' fires. The extinguisher label will include the green triangle, red square, and blue circle. It will also include the picture designations for the three classes of fire.

The advantages of an ABC extinguisher are:

- Their ability to be effective on Class 'A', 'B' and 'C' fires make them cost effective in that only one extinguisher will be needed in one area instead of two or more.
- The extinguishing agent blankets the fire, displacing the oxygen in the area.
- It is effective in suppressing larger fires.

The disadvantages of an ABC extinguisher are:

- The powder suppressing agent may solidify in the extinguisher rendering them ineffective when they needed. It is important to invert them at least once a year to ensure they do not solidify.
- It is very difficult to clean up after use because large amounts of residue remain after application.
- The powder does not cool the burning material. The possibility for the fuel to be re-ignited is therefore great.
- The powder is corrosive and will form coatings on materials, damaging sensitive electronic equipment beyond repair.

EXTINGUISHER MARKS

Every extinguisher is labeled so that at a glance you can tell what type of fire the extinguisher is approved for.

The attached sheet shows the international markings for each type of extinguisher.

- Class A-Green triangle and/or picture of burning trash can and camp fire.
- Class B -Red square and/or picture of burning gas can.
- Class C -Blue circle and/or picture of burning electrical plug and outlet.
- Class D -Yellow star and/or picture of burning drill press.

Always remember to read the label on the extinguisher so that you use the right extinguisher for the type of fire you are trying to put out. Using the wrong type of extinguisher can cause personal injury or the fire may spread or possibly explode.

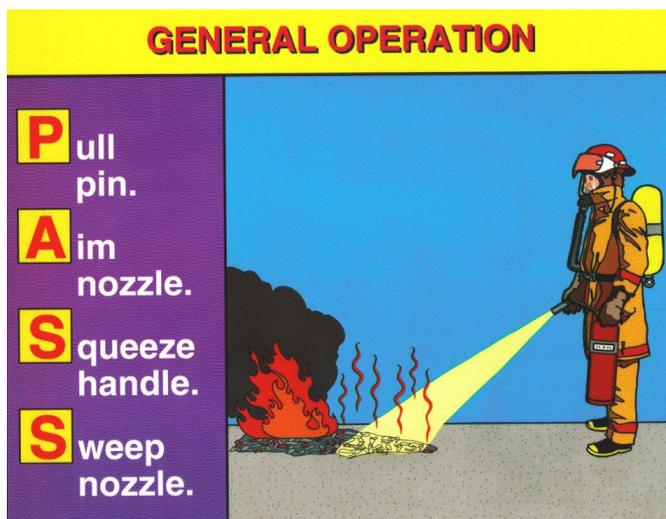

NOTE

Whenever you are deciding whether or not to use an extinguisher, make sure you consider the following:

- Security Officer has been notified.
- The fire is small.
- The fire is not between you and the way out.
- You know exactly what is burning, and what class fire it is.
- You know the appropriate type of extinguisher to apply and it is readily available.

If you not sure of any of the above, get out!

EXTINGUISHER OPERATION

A simple way to remember how to operate any type of fire extinguisher is to utilize the “PASS” procedure.

Pull the pin on the extinguisher handle. If the pin is not attached to the extinguisher, try to remember to put it in your pocket so that an inmate does not get hold of it and use it as a weapon.

Aim the extinguisher hose or nozzle at the base of the fire. Position yourself between the fire and a safe exit so that you are not trapped if the fire grows. Stay about 8-10 feet away from the fire. You can move closer as needed.

Squeeze the discharge handle on the extinguisher. This will release the extinguishing agent.

Sweep the extinguishing agent from side to side on the fire. Continue sweeping the extinguishing agent from side to side until all signs of visible flames disappear. Once all signs of flames are gone, step back and watch for re-ignition. Put the pin back in the handle of the extinguisher; lay it on its side in a secure location to indicate it has been used.

GOALS OF FIRE SAFETY PROGRAMMES IN CORRECTIONAL INSTITUTIONS

Fire inside a correctional facility poses serious danger and consequences to those who work and reside in that facility. Unlike a business or residence, we are limited to safe areas due to the construction and limited number of outlets in the facility. To counteract these limitations, we need to utilize a viable fire safety programme that will serve our needs, and reduce or eliminate the occurrence of fires. The six goals of fire safety programmes in correctional facilities are as follows:

Security - security is the primary concern of corrections staff. Fire safety must be provided while security is maintained. In a fire emergency, the decision must be made as to whether inmates are to be evacuated, or defended from the fire without evacuation. If the decision is made to evacuate the inmates, they must be moved to a safe and secure location to ensure they do not escape.

Ignition Control - ignition control is the concept of eliminating or controlling heat sources so fire cannot occur either accidentally or intentionally. Most prison fires are intentional. If inmates decide to set a fire, they will find a way to do so. It is difficult to prevent an intentional ignition. For this reason, ignition control is the least reliable element of a fire safety programmes.

Fuel Control - combustibles are found all around people who work or reside in a correctional facility. These combustibles include clothing, bedding, furnishings, building materials and interior finishes. The purpose of fuel control is to keep combustible materials to the minimum, to separate combustibles from one another and from ignition sources, and to provide materials that will burn slowly. A slow burning fire gives people time to react. Since inmates will set fire any time they want to, then fuel control is the most important goal in fire safety programmes.

Occupant Protection – provision of protection for the inmates, staff, and visitors is another important goal in a fire safety programme. Protective measures include isolation and means of exit from the facility. Isolation limits the number of people and areas exposed to a fire. The exits do not only provide paths for the removal of inmates to a secure location, they also provide routes by which fire fighters can have access to the fire emergency area.

Early Detection and Suppression - This element deals with fire protection gadgets in the facility. Once a fire has started, three things must promptly occur:

- The fire must be detected.
- The alarm must sound.
- Fire suppression must begin.

Training and Planning - the final element that is essential to maintaining a high level of security during a fire in a correctional institution is training and planning. In order to extinguish a fire in its early stage of growth and development, personnel must be trained to handle the incident. Training and planning can help make a fire safety programme effective. When fire defenses are weak, training and planning can help reduce the impact of potentially disastrous fires.

SUMMARY

Now that I have taken you through fire safety in correctional institutions, you should be able to:

- Explain what fire is.
- Identify the three elements necessary for fire to occur/Explain what is meant by the fire triangle.
- List the three phases of fire.
- Differentiate between the four classes of fire.
- Identify the three types of fire extinguishers.
- List the six goals of a fire safety programme.
- Demonstrate how to use a Class 'A' fire extinguisher.

1 LESSON PLAN 13 - Supervision of Inmates

Method of Instruction: Lecture, Discussion, Small group Exercise

Time Frame: 1.5 Hours

Performance Objectives: Refresh staff about the principles of inmate supervision and the importance of effective supervision techniques. Remind staff of their responsibilities relating to inmate supervision and to provide update information about special supervision cases, i.e. Gangs.

SESSION OBJECTIVES:

1. List characteristics of an inmate supervisor.
2. As a part of small group, discuss and apply the supervisory principles to supervisory situations.
3. Demonstrate a general knowledge of the various prison gangs that may be encountered at the institution.

References: Vernell Allen, Program Development Specialist, and A. Robert Douthitt, Administrator, Craig Trout, Correctional Services, Central Office of U.S. Federal Bureau of Prisons

INTRODUCTION

As inmate supervisor, you can be effective in your face-to-face contact with inmates on a daily basis if you take the time to listen more effectively.

It should be important for you as a supervisor that your workers be understood, it may be more important to avoid being misunderstood.

To be an effective supervisor you must approach every situation with a mental statement of what you hope to get out of that situation and what you will go with what information you get.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Ask the class, "What are your duties and responsibilities as an inmate supervisor?"

EXAMPLE:

1. Evaluate inmate work.
2. Calculate their pay
3. Keep track of inmates in your work areas.

(Ask: "What are some of the principles of supervising inmates?")

EXAMPLE:

- o Firm, but fair.
 - o Tell them specifically what to do.
 - o Don't lie to inmates.
 - o Don't promise anything you can't deliver.

During this session we will focus on:

1. General principles of inmates supervision.
2. How to apply them to situations
3. How to supervise special supervision cases, i.e. gangs.

11. GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF INMATE SUPERVISION.

In supervising inmates (or people in general), there are three things you have to be concerned with:

- " The situation
- " The individual inmate being supervised
- " You

A. Situation

When supervising inmates, you need to remember the situation you are in and the situation in which the work is being done.

Under what condition is the work being done. How soon is it to be done. Are there are obstacles to getting the work done. What are the standards expected.

This is important because you need to know what the inmate has to do.

B. The Individual Inmate As a supervisor you should take into consideration the inmates:

1. Ability to do the job
2. Ability to learn the job
3. Willingness to do the job

Getting to know your inmate increases your effectiveness as a supervisor and leader. Since everyone is different, the task of placing your inmate on jobs suited to their abilities and skills become easier when you take the time to know them.

There are general questions you can ask your self to test your knowledge of their skills, talents, abilities, and capabilities.

1. How skilled is the person?
2. What are their talents?
3. Do they need training?
4. What are his/her strong points?
5. Is he/she mindful of security needs?

C. You

When you think about what it is that motivates you to do your work, or what has motivated you to become a supervisor. There should be three major forces in forming your motivation:

1. Perceptions
2. Attitude
3. Behavior

As a supervisor your behavior can control many of your inmate's response to work, job relationships and accomplishments, there are a number of basic things your staff need from you:

1. Meet their needs
2. Feeling important
3. Cooperation

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Ask participant what are their needs? Get feedback from class.

III. APPLYING THE PRINCIPLES.

What I would like to do now is have you apply some of the principles we just talked about.

IV. SPECIAL SUPERVISION CASES.

At our institution we have a number of special supervision groups. Many of these are inmate gangs. I would like to take the remainder of the time to talk about gangs and gang issues.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

This lesson will require some research on your part, you should gather data, and prepare written notes in regards to this presentation.

A. Gang Identification.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Cover gang identification at your institution, cover at least the following:

Tattoos

Graffiti

Hand signs

Colors

Gestures/clothing

Turf intelligence

Group photographs

B. Types of Gangs.

We have these types of gangs

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

(Cover the types of gangs at your institution. Following are some examples:)

" Organized crime

" White supremacy

" Major drug

" Bandits

" Domestic terrorists

C. Gang Threat Characteristics

Each gang poses a unique threat to our institution.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Cover the types of threats each gang poses for the institution.

D. Special Supervision Techniques

It is important that the prison staff possess a good knowledge of prison gangs and inmates having influence over the activities of them. This can be identified through:

- " Inmates phone calls
- " Mail
- " Money
- " Visiting list
- " Who the inmate walks with and/or talks with
- " Turf behavior
- " Information
- " Group photographs

E. Strategic Plan

We have a strategic plan for dealing with the gangs at our institution.

The strategic plan consists of:

- " Training familiarization (recognizing gang)
- " Monitoring plan (monitoring of gang activities)
- " Target threat activity
- " Identify validate members

Now you have a better understanding of gangs and your responsibilities and how to identify gangs. Are there any questions?

I am sure you are interested in the do's and don'ts of working with gangs.

F. Do's and Don'ts

- " Don't view as an organized power
- " Don't recognize gang authority
- " Do talk to members and leaders
- " Do ask questions
- " Don't give out items with gang symbolism (examples tattoos, graffiti)
- " Do provide for drop-outs (example if they want to terminate gang activities help them.)

CONCLUSION

It is very important that you learn how to identify inmates belonging to various prison gangs as well as other inmate threat groups.

SUPERVISION EXERCISE

INDIVIDUAL EXERCISE: READ EACH OF THE SUPERVISORY SITUATIONS BELOW. IN THE SPACE PROVIDED, JOT DOWN A FEW KEY WORDS ABOUT WHAT YOU WOULD DO. THIS WILL NOT BE HANDED IN.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

GROUP EXERCISE: IN YOUR SMALL GROUP, DISCUSS THE SITUATION, CHOOSE A GROUP MEMBER TO RECORD AND REPORT OUT YOUR GROUP'S CONSENSUS ABOUT WHAT YOUR GROUP WOULD DO. JOT DOWN KEY WORDS OR PHRASES.

1. You have a new inmate on your crew who just doesn't seem to be fitting in. He/she is quite, aloof, and doesn't mix with the other inmates well. He/she is doing the work but you think problems may arise.

I would:

My group would:

2. An inmate on your crew has been an excellent worker; always on time, always polite, always gets the work done. Lately, the quality of the work has fallen off. He is late about three times a week. He is becoming quite and have even had arguments with other crew members.

I would:

My group would:

3. You have an inmate on your crew who never has gotten along with the other members. The work is always done, on time and with good results; but the arguments and bickering have become worse. You feel you must do something - and now.

I would:

My group would:

4. You have an inmate whose work has never been too good. They have, generally, been an OK worker. They have started coming in late to work. You have mentioned this to him/her before, but things change for a couple of days, then the old pattern is back.

I would:

My group would:

5. You have an inmate who has been placed on your crew who just got out of segregation. They have a history of "getting in staff's face" and generally being disruptive on any work detail.

TRAINER’S HANDOUT/INMATES OBSERVATION

NOTES AND METHODOLOGY	CONTENTS
INTRODUCTION Write the session topic on the white board. Ask question to generate discussion – “What did we say about observation during the session on the Fundamentals of Security?”	Introduce yourself and the session topic. Good inmates’ observation is paramount in maintaining a secure and safe correctional facility which assures the enforced custody of the inmates. Good observation skills are learned and require a clear state of mind. The lesson on inmates’ observation is meant to help corrections staff sharpen their observational skills.
PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES Write the session topic on the white board.	The objective of this session is to ensure that at the end of it all, you will be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Explain what is meant by inmates’ observation. • State the reasons for inmates’ observation. • State the forms of inmate observation. • State the things to look for when supervising inmates. • Detect the implications for any marked change in the behaviour, appearance and environment of inmates. • State the role of the correctional officer in the process of observing inmate(s). • Describe how corrections officer should conduct him/her self in the presence of inmates.
WHAT IS INMATES’ OBSERVATION?	Inmate’s observation is the ability of the corrections staff to supervise inmates 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, and 365 days in a year. The shift system facilitates the observation of inmates around the clock.

Ask question – “Why is it important to observe inmates?”
REASONS FOR INMATES’ OBSERVATION	We observe inmates for the following reasons: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Ensure security and good order. • Ensure early detection of infractions of corrections discipline. • Ensure inmates’ accountability. • Observed changes in inmates’ behaviour and environment can be closely monitored.
FORMS OF OBSERVATION	General line movement – this is a supervised movement of a group of inmates to specific locations under escort. For example moving inmates from housing unit to dining hall, church, recreation, infirmary, etc. and back. In this form of observation, corrections officers are advised to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Stand to behind the group to the left or to the right. • Be in a position to observe. • Watch hands for contraband exchange. Point-to-point observation – may not involve direct supervision by an escort. In this form of observation the inmates are indirectly observed from specific duty posts.
Ask question – “What should the corrections officer look for when observing inmates?”
WHAT TO OBSERVE	When observing inmates, the corrections officer must look out for: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • What has changed in the inmate(s) behaviour? • What has changed in the physical appearance of the inmate(s)? • What has changed in the inmate(s) environment? • Physical descriptions – height, build, posture, complexion, scars, tattoos, birthmarks,

Ask question – “What are the implications of change in inmates and/or their environment?”	disabilities, etc.
IMPLICATIONS OF CHANGE	Do not ignore observed changes in inmates and their environment. Change in behaviour, appearance and in the environment can mean: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Suicide • Escape • Attack • Impending disturbance
ROLE OF CORRECTIONS OFFICERS IN THE PROCESS OF OBSERVATION	The correctional officer is obliged to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Report observed changes to his/her supervisor. • Pass on observed change to relieving officer at change of shifts. • Account for inmate(s) under his/her supervision at all times.
PROFESSIONAL CONDUCT IN THE PRESENCE OF INMATES	One of the surest ways of ensuring a secure facility is for both officers and inmates to go by the rules and regulations of the institution. Officers are encouraged to exhibit professional conduct in their dealings with inmates. As a corrections officer: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Don't over-familiarize yourself with inmates. • Avoid unprofessional physical contact with inmates and or their families. • Avoid any sexual contact with inmates. Sex with an inmate is never consensual. • Don't play with inmates. • Don't discriminate. • Don't be a courier/messenger for inmates and or their families. • Don't borrow, lend, receive or exchange gifts with inmates. • Don't discuss personal issues with inmates. • Don't discuss other officers with inmates. Now that I have taken you through the session on

Human Rights Instruments Related to LESSON PLAN 13

Body of Principles for the Protection of All Persons under Any Form of Detention or Imprisonment

Adopted by General Assembly resolution 43/173 of 9 December 1988

Principle 1

All persons under any form of detention or imprisonment shall be treated in a humane manner and with respect for the inherent dignity of the human person.

Code of Conduct for Law Enforcement Officials

Adopted by General Assembly resolution 34/169 of 17 December 1979

Article 1

Law enforcement officials shall at all times fulfil the duty imposed upon them by law, by serving the community and by protecting all persons against illegal acts, consistent with the high degree of responsibility required by their profession.

LESSON PLAN 14 – Introduction to Searching Techniques

Method of Instruction: Lecture, Demonstration, Practice, Question and Answer

Time Frame: 4 Hours

Performance Objectives: At the conclusion of this block of instruction the student will:

1. Be able to conduct a complete and thorough search of:
 - a. Prisoners in normal and routine situations
 - b. Strip searches of prisoners suspected of having contraband
 - c. Facilities, including housing and work areas
2. Be able to explain “probable cause” as it relates to strip searches

References: New York Department of Correctional Services, American Correctional Association

Training Aides Required: Blackboard or Flip Chart

INTRODUCTION

Control of an institution necessitates the elimination of the production, storage, transportation and use of contraband. This can only be accomplished by thorough searches by trained, professional staff of the entire institution and its inmates, visitors and personnel who part time employees or vendors.

INSTRUCTOR’S NOTES:

As major points are made, such as the definition of what is considered contraband, they should be listed on the blackboard or flip chart. At the end of sections dealing with searches, after asking for questions, have the class pair off and practice. During the lesson point out that serious searches (body and cell) should be conducted by two officers and any contraband found should be documented and signed by both officers. Extreme sensitivity must be given to prevent undue embarrassment and to comply with any prohibitions about staff of one gender searching or touching inmates of another gender.

- I. What is contraband?
 - A. Items not issued through approved channels
 - B. Items not approved by the appropriate staff
 - C. Items not approved for purchase in the institution commissary or store
 - D. Items not approved for mail delivery to the inmate
 - E. Items not approved for a visitor to bring into the institution
 - F. Items otherwise approved but altered from their original approved condition
 - G. Unauthorized items passed from one inmate to another
 - H. Any weapon, gun, firearm, unauthorized tool drug, intoxicant, explosive, corrosive, flammable, or other item not issued by or under the direct supervision of a staff member using prescribed procedures
 - I. Any other article specifically prohibited by statute, policy, or regulation
 - J. Items reasonably believed to be usable to assist in or effect an escape
 - K. Cash, currency, or items of value not permitted within the institution

- L. Personal items or valuables whose ownership cannot be determined
- M. Excessive amounts of any authorized item

II. Pat Search Procedures

A pat search may be conducted in any location of the institution and involves a manual search by staff of a fully clothed inmate. This search can be conducted on either a routine or random basis.

- A. Inform the inmate that he or she is about to be searched
- B. Instruct the inmate to remove all items in his pockets and place them in his hat (If he is not wearing a hat, he must place these articles in an area away from where the search will be conducted.) Have pockets turned inside out.
 - 1. Be careful to ensure that the inmate does not throw away any item that may contain contraband
 - 2. No item should be returned to the inmate until it has been thoroughly searched and the search of the inmate is complete
- C. Have the inmate remove any coats, hats or other outer clothing items
- D. Inspect the inmates hair for possible contraband
- E. To begin the actual search, have the inmate face away from the searching officer and spread the arms horizontally to the side and the legs approximately shoulder width. This stance reduces the inmate's ability to assault the officer conducting the search. In cases necessitating improved controls, the inmate may be required to place hands against a wall or other surface and move feet back from the surface to further improve staff safety
- F. From the back, with the inmate's arms and feet spread the officer should begin the search by running the prisoner's shirt collar between his fingers carefully, feeling for small hidden wires, hacksaw blades, etc.
- G. Then the officer should move his hands downward, running them over the shoulders, down the outside of the inmate's arms to the shirt cuffs. Then the officer should move his hands up the insides of the arms to the armpits.
 - 1. During this part of the search, items such as small knives and razor blades have been found taped to inmate's arms
- H. After checking the armpits, the officer should run his hands down the shirt front, checking the pocket and stopping at the prisoner's beltline
- I. The officer should then check the waistline by running his thumbs around the inside of the waistband, feeling for any small articles hidden there or hidden behind the belt
- J. From the waistline, the officer should run his hands down the inmate's buttocks
 - 1. All the time he should be feeling for places which might contain illegal articles
- K. Then the officer should move both hands to one leg and run them carefully down the leg, checking all around it for concealed articles. At the end of the leg, the officer should make a point of checking the trouser cuffs for concealed articles. Repeat the process on the other leg
- L. Then the officer should run his hands over the inmate's lower abdomen and crotch carefully, looking for concealed articles that may be taped to these areas
- M. As the last step, inspect shoes, soles, linings, insoles, and heels
- N. Follow the same procedures for female inmates, with particular attention to items that may be concealed in the brassiere

III. Strip or Visual Search

A strip or visual search requires the inmate to remove all clothing and submit to a visual inspection of the body, including the outer portions of all orifices and cavities. This search requires a higher level of presumption (“Probable Cause”) of guilt and must be approved by a ranking officer.

PROBABLE CAUSE EXAMPLES:

1. A correction officer walks by a cell and sees an inmate, who quickly sits down. Does the officer have probably cause for a strip search? No.
2. An officer observes an inmate whose speech is slurred as if he were holding something in his mouth or who holds his arm pressed to his side or walks with an unusual manner suggesting he is hiding something in a body cavity. Does the officer have probably cause? Yes.
3. A correction officer is told by a reliable informant that an inmate has contraband secreted on his person. When the correction officer walks by that inmates cell, he sees the inmate, who quickly sits down. Does the officer have probably cause? Yes.

Because of the inmate’s increased sensitivity to these more personal types of body searches, the utmost in professionalism should be displayed during this and successively more intrusive searches. Categories of inmates usually strip searched to ensure adequate security are:

1. Newly committed inmates following sentencing
2. All inmate transfers from other facilities
3. All inmates after visits involving contact, including contact visits with attorneys
4. All inmates returning from court or other appearances outside the institution
5. Inmates suspected of attempting to introduce contraband
6. Inmates admitted to or discharged from detention or segregation units
7. Inmates who participated in a disturbance or escape attempt
8. Inmates returning from outside work assignments
9. Any inmate believed to be transporting contraband

Strip searches should be conducted by an employee of the same sex as the inmate ad in a suitably private area.

A. General Guidelines for conducting a strip or visual search

1. Inform the inmate he or she is to be searched
2. Instruct the inmate to remove all clothing, including hat, scarf, headband, false teeth, and wig
3. Conduct a thorough search of the clothing, including shoes, for contraband
4. Examine all bandages and casts
5. Instruct the inmate, once unclothed, to face the officer and spread arms and legs for visual search
6. Have the inmate run his or her hands through hair vigorously to dislodge anything hidden in the hair or scalp. Alternatively, the staff member may do this using disposable plastic gloves if necessary
7. Have the inmate open his or her mouth and remove any dentures, or bridgework. Using a flashlight inspect the inside of the mouth, including under the tongue
 - a. Inmates have been found hiding razor blades on the roof of their mouth and have been able to talk normally while doing so
8. Check the inmate’s nose and ears, again using a flashlight if necessary
9. Have male inmates raise the scrotal sac and peel back the foreskin, if present. Have female inmates lift breasts to ensure nothing is hidden underneath

10. Have inmate bend over and spread the buttocks for a visual inspection of the anal area for any protruding objects or other signs of contraband. Have females spread the vaginal opening for the same purpose

11. Have inmates spread all fingers and display both open hands at the same time, turning them over for inspection of top and bottom

12. Finally, have the inmate raise each foot and wiggle the toes, turning the foot up for an inspection of the bottom

13. Have the inmate dress after all clothing is inspected

IV. Cavity Search

A cavity search includes the manual or instrument inspection of oral, anal, or vaginal cavities by a medical staff to detect the presence of contraband. Because of the sensitive and potentially embarrassing nature of this search technique, it must be done in privacy, with dignity and professionalism on the staff's part. The procedures relating to a visual search should be implemented prior to the cavity search. However, because of the intrusive and potentially harmful effects of a cavity search, the following additional conditions need to be in place:

A. There should be a clear written policy explaining the legal grounds and specific procedures for conducting a cavity search

B. This search is ordinarily authorized in advance, in writing, by the chief executive officer

C. Staff may not conduct a cavity search if it is likely to cause injury to the inmate

D. Cavity searches should only be conducted by a member of the medical staff

E. These searches should be restricted to digital intrusion and the use of instruments such as anoscope, otoscope, vaginal speculum, nasal speculum, tongue blade, and simple forceps

F. Whenever possible the written consent of the inmate should be secured before attempting the cavity search

G. If an item is located, it may be removed if the removal is easily effected by means of one of the simple instruments noted in "E" above or digitally

H. Strict documentation is to be maintained of the probable cause, inmate consent (if given), authorizing official, witnesses, and findings of the inspection

V. Visitor Searches

Inmate's visitors are subject to a careful search of their persons, packages, purses, and other items entering the secure portion of the facility. If a staff member suspects that a prospective visitor is under the influence of any substance, that employee has the authority to deny the visit.

VI. Vendors, Repairman, Volunteers, Contract Employees

For the most part, vendors and repair personnel are under direct staff escort at all times. All tools and repair equipment are inventoried and searched before being allowed into the institution. In the case of volunteers and contract employees, purses and like items may be allowable, but subject to search

VII. Cell Searches

Because cell searching is a time-consuming operation, it is important to proceed systematically and methodically. The officer must examine everything that should be examined in order to avoid wasting time in reexamination. The following is a systematic procedure for searching for general contraband:

A. Remove the inmate from the cell, strip search and escort him or her to another area. When the search is complete, strip search the inmate again before he or she returns to the cell.

B. Before entering the cell, lock the cell door in the open position so you are not accidentally locked in the cell.

C. Before searching the cell, look at the items you are about to search and see if anything is out of the ordinary. If so, examine that item carefully.

D. Start the search with the bed and utilize it as a work bench when you are finished searching it. Remove the mattress and other bedding and examine above and below the bunk and in any crevices between the bunk frame and the wall. Look under the bed and check for items suspended from springs or fastened to the bed frame. With the mattress removed, examine the upper side of bed frame and springs. Examine the bed frame supports to ensure that they have not been partially sawed through for easy removal.

E. Examine the mattress and pillows by rolling them lengthwise and widthwise. Check the sides and ends for cuts or tears in their covering. If you find any cuts or tears or any indication of re sewed seams, examine the items carefully for concealed contraband. You may need to open seams for extensive probing.

F. Examine the remaining bedding, paying special attention to any seams or double thickness of cloth.

G. Search the lockers next, one shelf at a time, returning all items to their original positions. Examine all surfaces of the locker. Contraband may be taped to the underside of shelves or concealed in shelf ledges, supports, legs, or false sides or backs of the shelves. Also examine any paper used to line shelves. Check all clothing (including dirty laundry) piece by piece, paying special attention to seams, double thickness of material, and pockets. Open and check individually every item (letter, books, magazines, toilet articles, etc.). Examine coat hangers; plastic hangers are excellent places to conceal contraband. Check all footgear, including linings, soles, and heels; feel inside shoes all the way to the toe and remove the inner soles and any removable arch supports.

H. Shake talcum powder containers and squeeze toothpaste tubes. Remove a small portion of the contents of commonplace items to check for illegal substitutions. Check to see that cakes of soap have not been hollowed out.

I. Look in, under and behind the wash basin and in the drain, overflow and goose neck water seal if accessible. Contraband may be suspended in the pipes or hollows on wires or threads or stuck on with glue or tape.

J. Examine the toilet carefully, inside and out. Because the inmates are aware of officers reluctance to examine fixtures, they are favorite hiding places. Check under the base of the toilet, behind the toilet where it connects to the wall, and the toilet drain. Contraband may also be passed through the goose neck of the toilet into the sewer pipe and be suspended by wire or string, the other end of which is tied to a small block wedged in the water seal. Examine the toilet paper holder and all rolls of toilet paper to make certain that currency or other contraband is not rolled up within the roll.

K. If there is a radio, examine it carefully. Remove the back, check the battery well, and examine the electric cord. Carefully remove any pictures from frames and examine the frame and the backing material. Examine any brooms or mops for items concealed in broom straws or mop heads.

L. Carefully scrutinize the walls, ceiling, and floor for indications of sawing, digging, cutting, or defacing -- possible signs of an escape attempt. Inmates take great pains to disguise their illicit acts; you must make a greater effort to penetrate the discuses.

M. Look for indications that mortar has been removed and replaced with a substitute. If the concrete is poor quality, it is easy for the inmate to gouge out holes as hiding places for contraband. Remove all wall coverings; remember, even steel walls may be cut and the cuts concealed behind calendars and pictures.

N. Check heat or ventilation duct openings for indications of tampering and for concealed contraband. Look for strings, thread, or wire holding something suspended in the duct.

O. Look around interior and exterior window frames and the outside window ledge. If this ledge has a covering of any sort, be sure that nothing is concealed beneath it. Examine the window bars for evidence of tampering, being alert for any wires, strings, or thread fastened to the bars and suspended outside the window.

P. Carefully examine the cell door and the grille wall in which it is set, paying particular attention to the areas above eye level. Examine the bars and cell door locking device for signs of tampering. The door examination is not complete until it is done with the door in both the open and closed position.

Searches must be systematic. An officer should search the same way every time until it becomes automatic. Officers must remember that inmates are people who appreciate courtesy and consideration but resent inconsiderate treatment. Inmate's personal property, including clothing, letters, photographs, and store purchases are usually important to them even though the items have little monetary value. Inmate's cells are their homes, and inmates resent having their homes ransacked. Once an inmate's belongings have been searched, they should be put back where they were found. Not only is it good security (let the inmate wonder about where exactly you searched), but it may foster some goodwill and a lessening of hostility among staff and inmates.

VIII. Searches of Non-Housing Areas

All areas should be inspected at least weekly. The following areas should serve as a guide:

A. Common areas of housing units and all shop and program spaces where inmates may hide items without risk of being identified with them if they are discovered.

B. Visiting areas, including trash, furniture, all search areas, and toilets should be thoroughly searched before and after visits.

C. The perimeter should be searched for items hidden next to or under fences.

D. Yards should be inspected carefully, using a metal detector to locate buried weapons and other contraband. Yards adjacent to roadways should be inspected for items thrown over the fences.

E. The vicinity of all visitor traffic points should be searched regularly to discover items hidden or thrown by visitors that are intended for inmates. Visitor holding areas and gates should be carefully scrutinized.

F. Air chambers in all housing units and other building should be searched on a regular basis, not only for breaches in security, but for signs that they are being used as places of concealment for contraband.

G. Tunnels should be searched for contraband since they provide a poorly supervised area where inmates have an opportunity to fabricate and conceal unauthorized items often used in a tunnel-related escape attempt.

H. Areas outside the secure perimeter should be searched for contraband to help stem the flow of contraband into the institution.

I. Inside and outside receiving areas should be searched regularly. They are areas likely to be used for concealing contraband coming into the institution or escape paraphernalia about to be used.

J. Shop, vocational training, and industrial areas have a wide range of possible contraband hiding places and should be searched regularly. These hiding places include trash cans, toilets, supplies, plumbing, vents, block and brick walls, work benches, machinery, lockers, spare clothing, bins, tool boxes, covered openings, elevator shafts, outbuildings, lockers, and staff-only areas.

K. Vehicles, inside all compartments (passenger, engine, freight), underneath, spare tires, seats, dashboard, floor carpeting – use the same systematic approach used in all searches and search one area at a time.

CONCLUSION

Only with practice and experience will a person gain the ability to be proficient in looking for and finding contraband. This is one function that, no matter how long a person works within a prison, there is always more to learn. Searches also demand a systematic approach as to the procedure, but a degree of surprise as to when some of the searches will be conducted. As in all things with a prison, this can be an area of potential conflict between staff and inmates. Though care should be taken to cause as little embarrassment and damage to inmates and their property, the searches must be thorough.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

The test of this material will be carried out by the instructor observing students practice the pat search on each other. A search of a cell or other room should be carried out by the class, or small units of the class to allow everyone to participate, with the instructor or senior staff providing a critique. During the search, the instructor should ask students to explain when they need probable cause to conduct a search, what constitutes probable cause and what procedure they have to follow to perform a search requiring probable cause.

CONTRABAND AND SEARCHES

INTRODUCTION: Contrabands inside a correctional institution can have disastrous effects on the security and orderly running of the institution. It is therefore our responsibility as correctional officers to be alert for contrabands at all times. Handouts

INTRODUCTION TO SEARCHES

INTRODUCTION: The safety of both prisoners and staff largely depends on the thoroughness of the searches carried out in the prison. Control is accomplished through searches carried out on inmates, members of staff, visitors, vehicles entering or leaving the prison, cells, dormitories and the entire prison compound.

OBJECTIVES:

By the end of the session trainees should be able to;

- Explain what are contrabands
- Entry points
- State the purpose of searches
- List the principles of searching

CONTRABANDS

Contrabands may be defined as any items possessed by an inmate, staff or visitor which are prohibited articles by the rules and regulation of that particular institution. They must be clearly defined as such and be brought to the notice of all. Contrabands may in most cases include;

- Weapons which may include guns, knives, sharp items etc.
- Any item not issued by, or under the direct supervision of a staff member or permitted to be kept by a prisoner
- Cash above the prescribed amount
- Items that may be used to assist in or effect an escape
- Any unauthorized tools
- Intoxicating drugs
- Cigarettes (in certain institutions)
- Money
- Alcohol
- Any other items that may be described as prohibited articles in the institution.

ENTRY POINTS:

Contrabands somehow find their way into the prison. The entry points are the most important to know so that you may be able to seal the same. These may include the following;

- Through the normal visits to prisoner by friends and relatives.
- Through the mail.
- Over/under/or through the fence or walls of the prison.
- Staff may also bring in the same.
- As a result of improperly conducted searches.
- The prisoner if not properly supervised are known to plant certain drugs e.g. marijuana.
- Prisoners working in the workshops may also steal intoxicating items such as glue.

PURPOSE OF SEARCHING

Contrabands inside a correctional institution can have disastrous effects on the security and orderly running of the institution. It is therefore our responsibility as corrections officers to be alert for contrabands at all times. We need to be aware what to look for, where to search, and how to conduct the search. The main reasons for conducting search include;

1. To detect and prevent any prohibited articles or dangerous items from entering the prison;
 - Visitors coming in to see the prisoners should be searched to avoid contrabands from entering the prison.
 - Staff should be searched if suspected of trafficking with inmates
2. To detect and prevent unauthorized removal of dangerous tools from prison workshops, stores, kitchen, hospitals etc.
 - Prisoners working in the workshops and prison kitchen should be searched when leaving their work place to look for knives, sharp tools etc
 - On coming back from the hospitals, courts, as they may come in with contrabands.
3. To ensure that no prisoner has in his/her possession, cell or work place dangerous articles.
 - The cell and dormitory search should detect any contraband that may have found their way in.

- The search should reveal tools smuggled in that may be used to break out of the prison.
4. To detect and prevent theft of institutional property.
- Prisoners working in different parts of the prison are known to steal items and use the same for dubious reasons.
 - Staff may sometimes steal certain items from the prisons if search are not conducted as required
 - Vehicles entering and leaving the prison may be used to take away institutional property if not properly searched
5. To detect escapes by means of hiding in vehicles.
- Searches to all vehicles entering and leaving the prison will prevent escapes by prisoners by use of the same.
 - The vehicle should be searched inside, under and containers it maybe carrying.
6. To detect any attempt to on breaking out of the prison.
- Tools smuggled into the cells or dormitories if not detected maybe used to break the walls in a bid to escape.
 - Searches should be conduced to check for attempts at trying to breakout
7. To prevent staff or visitors from bringing into the prison contrabands.
- Searches should be conducted on both staff and visitor to the prison whenever there is reason to believe they maybe carrying contrabands.

PRINCIPLES OF SEARCHING

To ensure that searching is carried out properly and to maintain safety and security of the institution, the following principles had to be maintained:

- 1) Systematic: All searches should be conducted in a systematic manner.
 - ❖ Decide upon and stick to a system when searching
 - ❖ Start at the top and work your way down
 - ❖ Go from left to right
 - ❖ If searching a cell the officers conducting the search should decide who starts where
 - ❖ Do it the same way each time
 - ❖ Do not get distracted
- 2) Thorough : the searches must be done thoroughly every time:
 - ❖ No assumptions should be made
 - ❖ Look into the least as well as most obvious areas
 - ❖ Always be curious, never take anything for granted
 - ❖ Check and recheck again

- ❖ If something arouses your suspicion check on it, do not ignore your instincts.

- 3) Objective: Searches should never be done with the intention of harassing an inmate
- ❖ The searches should be conducted for the purpose of retrieving contrabands
 - ❖ The normal procedures should always be followed
 - ❖ Only officers of the same gender with the inmate are allowed to conduct a rubdown and strip down search.
 - ❖ Let every search be purposefully aimed at retrieving contrabands but not for the purpose of accomplishing the routine.

TYPES OF SEARCHES:

Rub-down search:

The rub-down search is also known as the tap/pat down search. It involves the patting over the clothed parts of the prisoner. The search is conducted during;

- Admission into the prison
- Whenever prisoner are leaving for labor
- While entering the accommodation facility
- On return from courts, visits, hospitals etc

When performing a rubdown search the officer should observe the following;

- ❖ Inform the prisoner that they are about to be searched
- ❖ Ask the prisoners to remove all items they maybe carrying and put the items on one place
- ❖ Pay particular attention to pocket linings, collars, wristbands, shoes and heels.
- ❖ Have the prisoner run his hands over his hair.
- ❖ Have the prisoner open his hands, spread the fingers, open his mouth, and head from side to side.
- ❖ Have prisoner face and lean on the wall with legs apart.
- ❖ Commence the search from collar, down arms, front back, waist, and legs.
- ❖ Examine sole of the feet one at a time.
- ❖ Search items that the prisoner may have on him and return them back if no contrabands are found.
- ❖ Record the search and findings in the search book.

Strip-down search:

Every prisoner on intake must undergo a strip-down search. The search involves a complete inspection of all items of clothing and external body parts. Examination of internal body cavities should only be conducted by a medical personnel. In conducting this type of a search the following should be observed;

- ❖ The search should be conducted by at least two officers.
- ❖ No prisoner should be striped in front of another prisoner.
- ❖ The prisoner should remove all his clothes.
- ❖ Start by inspecting the clothing's for any hidden contrabands.
- ❖ Inspect the prisoner's mouth, feet, hair, behind the ears, under the armpits etc.

- ❖ Carefully examine legs and arms especially if the prisoner has artificial limbs.
- ❖ Prisoners with bandages and casts should be searched carefully to make sure they do not conceal any contraband on them.
- ❖ After the search the prisoner should be allowed to dress up.
- ❖ Record the findings of the search

Security search/check:

Security checks ensure safety and security of the institution are maintained at a much higher level. It also determines whether all security devices and equipments are in order. A security check involves checking on the following;

1. Locks and doors; when checking on locks and doors, you should;
 - a) Pull on the door handle to ensure they are locked and secure.
 - b) Look for possible obstructions in locks and ensure they are operational.

2. Bars and grills; always inspect by;
 - a) Pulling on them and making a visual check to ensure they are secure.
 - b) Pull on barred gates and doors to establish that they are locked and secure.
 - c) Pull and push on locked cell doors to ensure they are secure.
 - d) On highly raised grills use a metal bar to run over so as to ascertain that they are secure.

3. Windows and screens; always check on;

The glassplanes, screens, frames, surrounding wall and floor area for any damage or tampering.

4. Electrical outlet and fixtures;

Check to see if the covers have been removed for the purpose of concealing contrabands. Tampering with electrical fixtures can create fire hazards.

5. Wash rooms;

Check all staff and prisoners washrooms, including sinks, cupboards, urinals, Toilets, showers. Floors and ceiling areas for damage and tampering.

6. Supply, storage and cleaning rooms check out for;
 - Broken brooms, mops, ropes, torn sheets or blankets
 - All containers
 - Garbage, cans, boxes etc.

7. Miscellaneous areas and equipment; check on the following;
 - fire equipment, tables chairs
 - Ladders, anything that can be used to step on should never be left unattended.

Routine search;

Searches within the workshops should be conducted daily. During such searches all prisoners will be removed from the workshops. The search party should look out for hidden contrabands, damaged equipments within the workshop.

Surprise search;

Also known as the special search. When an officer has reason to suspect that a prisoner has prohibited articles concealed on his person, or in his/her accommodation, he may carry out a surprise/special search on the spot. If the search is being conducted in the accommodation area, all the inmates shall be removed out and the search conducted. Thereafter a rub or strip search may be done on the prisoners. When the search is being conducted in the cell or dormitory always make sure that the prisoners are not within sight so that they do not observe what places are searched or the methods used. Finally always avoid being distracted during a search.

PROCEDURES OF CONDUCTING A SEARCH

Depending on the type of search to be conducted, a search party should be put together, if available, select suitable searching equipment. To conduct the search the following should be put into consideration;

- i. Be consistent and search with a plan. This means that the search party should start at a point in the cell or dormitory and work to an opposite direction. If it's a rub down it should start from the head downwards.
- ii. Avoid being distracted. Inmates will use every available opportunity to distract the officer to prevent the search from being thorough. They should therefore be kept from the search area.
- iii. When searching inmates' personal items; always make sure the inmate is present. This safe guards the officer from being accused of theft.
- iv. Check all bars, locks, grills and windows. All miscellaneous apparatus and items. Look for signs of misuse or tampering.
- v. Searches should be held at irregular intervals. Prisoners should not be able to know or predict when a search is to be conducted.
- vi. Pay special attention to potential hiding places. Sinks, toilets, showers, radios, TV. Sets, mattress, books etc. when conducting a rubdown, check behind the ears, inside the mouth, if the prisoner is using artificial limbs check on them to.
- vii. Record the search. All the searches conducted in the institution should be recorded. A search book or register indicating which search and the findings.
- viii. Disposal of contrabands. Anything detected during the the search should be safely kept away to be used as exhibit if the prisoner or staff is to be dealt with in the disciplinary manner. Thereafter the contrabands should be disposed in the most appropriate way.

SEARCHING EQUIPMENTS

The use of searching equipments is important for conducting searches as it helps in making the searches more thorough. In recent times various products of space age technology are being employed in the search procedures. The most common ones used may include;

1. TV. Monitors;

TV. Monitors allow the actions of prisoners and staff to be closely observed and if necessary recorded. These are used often to observe activities in corridors and cells. To observe unarmed staff who have to work inside with inmates or to observe an inmate in solitary confinement. One officer can observe an entire wing or the whole block alone.

2. Gloves;

These are easily accessible and should be used whenever necessary. They ensure the safety of both the prisoner and staff.

3. Metal detectors;

The two most commonly used metal detectors are;

- Walk through; these are similar to those used in airports security where a person walks through a magnetic field which can detect metal objects.
- Hand held; a hand held unit performs essentially the same function, except that it is smaller and is physically moved around the individual.

PROCEDURES OF CONDUCTING SEARCHES

INTRODUCTION:

Depending on the type of search being conducted certain procedures should be put in place for consistency.

OBJECTIVES: By the end of the session the trainees should be able to explain the searching procedures.

Searching of visitors:

1. If there is reason to believe that a visitor may be carrying prohibited items, you are supposed to ask them to step aside for a search. If they are in a car ask them to open up and the search the vehicle as well.
2. Visitors may be subjected to pat-down and strip searches if there is reason to believe that the visitor maybe hiding a dangerous items below the clothing.
3. No cross-gender searches should be conducted. Never conduct search on a member of the opposite sex. It's indecent and against the minimum standards and rules.
4. No forcible searches shall be conducted. If a visitor refuses to undergo the search, you cannot force them. Simply tell them that the regulation are that they may thereby not enter the prison.
5. Refusal for a search by the visitor will mean denial for entry into the institution.
6. Visiting privileges may also be suspended for the visitor.
7. Visitors may be required to leave certain items behind while visiting the inmates, e.g. if cigarettes are allowed into the prison they may have leave the same behind while visiting the prisoner.

Searching of staff:

1. If a member of staff is suspected to be carrying contrabands, either a pat down search or even a strip down search may be conducted on him. Some member's staff may be known to traffic with prisoners; they should be searched whenever they are suspected to be carrying contrabands.
2. No cross-gender searches will be conducted on staff, even among members of staff.
3. No forcible searches shall be conducted. No staff should be subjected to forceful search, if they refuse to be searched, other measures should be taken to deal with the situation.
4. Refusal to be searched should result to disciplinary action or denial to access the prison

Searching of prisoners:

Searching of prisoners, whether it is body search, or in their accommodation, consistency is very important. To conduct the search the following should be put into consideration;

1. Be consistent and search with a plan; this means that the search party should start at a point in the cell or dormitory and work to an opposite direction. If it's a rub down it should start from the head downwards.
2. Avoid being distracted; Inmates will use every available opportunity to distract the officer to prevent the search from being thorough. They should therefore be kept away from the search area.
3. When searching inmate's personal items; always make sure the inmate is present. This safe guards the officer from being accused of theft.
4. Check all bars, locks, grills, and windows; make sure that all are intact and secure. Look for signs of misuse or tampering.
5. Searches should be held at irregular intervals; prisoners should not be able to predict or know when the searches are to be conducted.
6. Pay special attention to potential hiding places; sinks, toilets, showers, radios, TV. Sets, mattresses, books, etc. when conducting a rubdown, check behind the ears, inside the mouth, if the prisoner is using artificial limbs check on that too.
7. Recording of the search; all the searches conducted in the institution must be recorded. A search book or register indicating what type of search was conducted, by who, what was detected, what action was taken and a signature.

Disposal of contrabands:

All the unauthorized items that may be recovered during the searches shall be dealt with according to the rules and regulations of the institution. The general practice is that;

1. An inmate found in possession of contrabands should be dealt with in a disciplinary manner.
2. When a visitor is found in possession of contrabands, the contrabands shall be confiscated and depending on the type of contraband,
 - Firearms, drugs etc, the visitor may be detained and the matter be notified to the police.
 - The visitor may be denied to see the prisoner
 - The prisoner's visitation privileges may be withdrawn
3. Staff members found in possession of contrabands should be subjected to disciplinary action according to the laid down rules and regulations. They may also be denied entry into the prison.
4. All the recovered contrabands shall be disposed off according to the instructions of the superintendent. Depending on the type of contraband the disposal may be in the form of ;
 - a. Burning

- b. Burying
 - c. Surrendering to the authority concerned
 - d. Flushing down the toilet
 - e. Throwing away etc
5. Always record the action taken after the disposal of the contrabands

CONCLUSION:

When searches are conducted following the right procedures, chances are that the security of the institution will be more intact and the safety of both the prisoners and the staff will be well taken care of.

PAT SEARCHES

INTRODUCTION:

The Pat search is the most commonly used type of search that is normally performed on either the;

- The staff while reporting for duty
- The visitors coming into the prison
- The prisoners on routine searches

OBJECTIVES: By the end of the session the trainees should be able to;

- Explain what pat searches are
- Be able to perform pat searches

Pat searching:

Pat searches are conducted to either of the afore mentioned. The searches are meant to control entry of contrabands into the prison as well as recovery of those that have already found their way in. Searches of inmates are a part of daily prison routine.

1. The pat down search is conducted on inmates;
 - Who work outside the prison whenever they are leaving or returning to the prison
 - Who are coming back to the prison from the hospitals, courts etc
 - Whenever there is reason to believe they are carrying contrabands
2. The pat down search is conducted on visitors who may be;
 - Coming into the prison to visit a prisoner
 - Contractor bringing in prison items
 - Any other visitor coming in to see a member of staff
3. The pat down may be performed on the staff;
 - Reporting for duty
 - Leaving the prison after duty
 - Bringing back inmates to the prison

Methodology:

When performing a pat down search the officer should observe the following;

1. Inform the prisoner, staff or visitor that they are about to be searched; if you have reason to believe that a particular prisoner, staff or visitor would be carrying prohibited articles, notify them of your intention to search.
2. The search shall be conducted by staff members of the same gender as the person being searched.
3. There should be no forceful search on either visitors or staff; if they refuse to be searched, necessary action should be taken .e.g. denial of entry to the facility, notification to police if need be.
4. Ask the prisoner, staff or visitor to remove all items they may be carrying and put them in one place; carefully search through the items. You should do this decently especially for staff and visitors.
5. Have the person run his/her hands over their hair
6. Carefully pat down over the clothing's, from the shoulders, down to the front, sides, down the legs, make sure that this is done decently, the hands should not linger unnecessarily on one part of the body.
7. Have the prisoner face and lean on the wall with legs apart and repeat the process
8. Pay particular attention to pocket linings, collars, wristbands, shoes, and heels, this is where the items areas are usually hidden.
9. Examine sole of the feet one at a time
10. Search items that the person may have on them and return them back if no contrabands are found
11. Record the search and findings in the search book
12. Dispose off the contrabands according to the recommendations or instructions of the superintendent in charge.

CONCLUSION:

Pat searches should be conducted for the purpose of recovering contrabands and missing property, but never for the purpose of punishment or harassment. They should be performed by staff of the same gender and in a professional manner, with not less than two officers.

CELL SEARCHING

INTRODUCTION:

Searching of cells and dormitories is vital in maintaining security. The searches should be conducted with the three principles of searching in mind. The cells may be used for hiding contrabands and if searches are not thoroughly conducted, escapes from within the prison may occur.

OBJECTIVES: By the end of the session the trainees will be able to;

- Explain what is cell searching
- Be able to conduct a cell search

Cell searching:

Prisoners are accommodated in either a cell or dormitory meaning that this is where they spend most their time while not at work, on recreation or out of prison. Therefore this means that, it is a time spent in idleness and as we all know, 'An idle mind is the devils workshop'. While on their own prisoners have a tendency to engage in activities that are against the rules and regulations of the institution. This is a time that may be used to slowly study and look for convenient area or spots in the cell that may be tampered with and an escape route be created. The cell is also a convenient place to hid contrabands. All the contrabands that are not detected all the way from the prison gate end up in the cells and dormitories. With this in mind, the searches conducted in the cell should therefore be extremely thorough.

Purpose of cell searching:

A correctional officer may conduct a search of the prisoner's cells or dormitory on unannounced, random, and irregular schedules. Every prison has established cell searching procedures which should include the minimum frequency in which cells will be searched monthly.

The main purpose for cell searching is;

1. To discover dangerous and non dangerous contrabands.
2. To prevent escapes by sealing any loopholes that the prisoners may have created.
3. To maintain sanitary standards, by make sure that the cells are not harboring waste and dirty items.
4. To eliminate and safety hazards. Thorough cell searches should reveal any faulty electrical connections that could be hazardous. Immediate action to repair the same should be taken.

Methodology:

When conducting the searches in the cells all the three principles of searching should be applied in full. Anything missed out during the cell searching is a security loophole and could have extreme repercussions. You should therefore always;

1. Make sure that no prisoners are present in the cell during the search;
Prisoners should be asked to vacate the cell before it is searched. Remember that they are not know how they search is conducted and the methodology used.
2. Decide on where to start the search and work your way out. The search team should be organized in such a manner that you start searching from different points and finish at the same spot.
3. Check on the doors and locks to make sure they are intact,
 - Pull on the doors hinges to see whether they are intact.
 - Check on the locks to see whether they have been tampered with.
4. Check on the bars and grills, if they are high up use a metal bar to knock on to them to ascertain that they are intact. Prisoners have been known to cut out the grills over a period of time while waiting for an appropriate day of escaping.
5. Check on cracks on the walls, these are potential hiding points. Inmates cutout or make holes in the prison wall for the purpose of;
 - hiding contrabands inside the same holes
 - the cracks could over time be dug out after making the wall weak
6. Always look before you touch, prisoners are known to hide blades, needles and other sharp objects discretely in their mattresses, mats and along the lining of the blankets. While searching through the beddings be careful.
7. Perform a pat down search on the inmates and a search through their items. Always search the personal effects in the presence of the inmate.
8. Record the search and note all the findings of the search. If some contrabands are recovered, document them and keep them securely for use as evidence later.

CONCLUSION:

When the cell searches are conducted thoroughly, objectively and systematically, any unauthorized articles that may have found their way into the prison will be detected. Any tampering on the cell walls, grills bars etc will be noted in time to prevent any planned escapes.

SEARCHING AREAS AND VEHICLES

INTRODUCTION:

Area and vehicles searches are mandatory in a correctional institution for the purpose of maintaining security of the facility. It is one way making sure that nothing unauthorized enters or leaves the facility. It also ensures that the grounds are secure.

OBJECTIVES:

- By the end of this session, the trainees will be able to;
- Explain what area and vehicles searches are
 - Be able to conduct an area and vehicle search.

1. Area searches:

The security of the correctional facility will greatly depend on the thoroughness of the searches conducted in the surroundings. The searches around the perimeter fence, in and around the offices, the workshops, the visiting area, the kitchen, recreational yard, and any other area in the institution.

Purpose of conducting area searches:

- a) To detect any contraband that may be hidden in the surrounding; Inmates hid contrabands in and around the prison compound. A thorough search should reveal the hidden items inside bushes, inside or under buckets or in their kitchens.
- b) To detect any tampering with security installations; In the process of looking for an escape route, inmates tamper with the walls, ceiling, windows, grills etc so as to get a way out of the facility. Searches should countercheck the safety of the same.
- c) To detect any loopholes that maybe used for escape by the prisoners; In case there are any undetected loopholes, the area searches are meant to point them out.
- d) To detect any damages in the facility; Any damages to institutional property should be detected during the area searches.

2. Methodology: While conducting area searches always make sure that;

- i) No prisoners are within the search area; make sure those inmates do not witness how you conduct the searches.
- ii) That you have a sufficient search team; put together a search team that will be able to perform the search thoroughly and up to the required standards

- iii) That you divide the search area and work your way across and down the area being searched; decide what point you area starting with and make sure that every covers that area going towards an agreed direction.
- iv) Do not get distracted; prisoners know the importance of searches and will use every available chance to distract you, so that the search is not thorough.
- v) If there are bushes make a report so that they are cleared; they make the best hiding places, so do away with them, if possible never let them grow.
- vi) Make sure that there are no ladders left unattended in the prison compound; these are the quickest means out of the prison through the wall. Never leave them lying around the prison compound.
- vii) Check on all the washrooms, sinks, toilets, ceiling areas, etc; there is no other better place to hid contrabands then these places. Search through thoroughly.
- viii) Check on garbage cans, all containers; prisoner often bring in contrabands with the garbage can or take away institutional property in the same.
- ix) If possible wear gloves; conducting searches exposes you to a lot of dirt, if available use protective gloves
- x) Do not run fingers along or under tables, beds etc; there could be hidden shape objects. Take care.
- xi) Record the search; every search should be recorded and the findings documented for reference.
- xii) Visiting areas should be searched before and after visits.

2. Vehicle searches:

In every correctional institution, the movement of vehicles in and out of the facility is an every day occurrence. These may be vehicles bringing the prisoners into the facility from court, hospitals, work etc. They may also be cars bringing in staff to work, visitors, contractors etc. As a security measure all these vehicles have to be searched while entering and leaving the prison compound. Failure to search the vehicles may lead to laxity in security. A staff member may, in the prescribed manner, conduct, without routine searches of vehicles on the prison compound, without individualized suspicion.

Vehicles may be used;

1. To bring in contrabands into the prison from outside.
2. As a means to escape for prisoners by hiding inside the vehicles.
3. As a means to get out stolen institutional property, which can be hidden in the vehicles and may easily be carried out if not noted at the prison gate.

Methodology:

While conducting the vehicle searches always remember to;

- i) Stop the vehicle and ask the driver to step out; every vehicle entering the prison must be searched after the driver identifies himself and explains about his visit.
- ii) Request the driver to open the car; after the identification the driver should open the vehicle to allow the gatekeeper to inspect it.
- iii) Search the vehicle thoroughly inside, the boot, the bonnet, below the vehicle; make sure that you check every possible area that may be used to hid contrabands.

- iv) If the car is carrying bulky items make sure you see what is inside to avoid prisoners sneaking out; prisoners are known to hide inside anything that they can fit into and thus ride their way to freedom.
- v) Inspect the items coming in to ascertain that no contrabands are brought in
- vi) If you suspect the occupants to be carrying unauthorized items conduct a pat down search as well; if they refuse to be search entry into the prison may be denied.
- vii) Record the search and its findings if any.

CONCLUSION:

If properly conducted area and vehicle searches are an excellent way of checking on the institutional security. Remember to apply the three principles of searching whenever any search is conducted.

STRIP SEARCHES

INTRODUCTION:

An examination/inspection of an inmates' unclothed body for contrabands and a thorough search of all the individuals clothing's while they are not being worn is known as a strip search.

OBJECTIVES: By the end of the session the trainee should be able to;

- Explain the meaning of strip searches
- Be able to perform a strip search

Strip searching:

During a strip search, correctional officers are meant to look for both contrabands and signs of illness or injury. Strip searches should be conducted in the most private and secure area available. Attempts should be made to separate the inmates being searched from others so as to minimize embarrassment. Whenever possible, two or more staff should be present during the strip search. A strip search may be conducted when necessary in the following situations:

1. Before and after every visit: the institution should have it as a standard rule that before and after every visit the visiting area must be searched.
2. During admission into the prison: when an inmate is being newly admitted into the prison, a thorough strip down search should be conducted to make sure that they do not bring in unauthorized articles. It is also meant to look for marks or injuries that the inmate may be having on admission. This way the inmate is taken for treatment and the correctional staffs are exonerated from blame of negligence or torturing of the prisoner.
3. When an inmate returns from work outside the prison, from hospital, court, etc. for the prisoner the period spent outside the prison is the best to collect and bring in unauthorized items. Always search inmates at the gate before they enter the prison.
4. . When there is reason to believe that the prison is carrying some prohibited articles: whenever you suspect that an inmate may be carrying contrabands, to make sure that you recover the same or confirm that none is hidden.

Methodology:

Whenever you are conducting a strip search it should be done in a professional manner and with the proper attitude. While conducting these searches the following should be observed;

1. The search should not be conducted by less than two officers. This way you cannot be accused of indecently, or having Vic timed the inmate during the search.
2. No prisoner should be striped in front of the other. Remember that the dignity of the inmate should be upheld. Do not embarrass the inmate by undressing them in front of others.
3. There should be no cross gender strip search. This is an international requirement and it also enhances decency.
4. The prisoner should be asked to remove all his clothes. Never undress the inmate, let them do by themselves.
5. Start by inspecting the clothing for any hidden contrabands. Carefully check through the cloths and any personal belongings they may be having.
6. Inspect the mouth, feet, hair, behind the ears, under the arm pits etc. Ask the inmate to open their mouth, to spread out their fingers, to run their hand over the hair, inspect the ears, under the armpits, the feet etc.
7. Carefully examine the legs and arms especially if the have artificial limbs. If not properly inspected, the artificial limbs may be used as couriers for contrabands. These should however be done care not to cause more harm to the inmate.
8. Prisoners with bandages and casts should be searched carefully to make sure they do not conceal anything on themselves.
9. Searches of internal body cavities should be conducted by medical staff only. Never try to perform internal body searches on inmates.
10. After the search ask the prisoner to dress up.
11. Record the search and its findings.

CONCLUSION:

The strip search if conducted in the right manner as explained above ends up being quite thorough. Always remember that the control of contrabands into to the prison is extremely important for your safety and that of the prisoners.

Remember to always wash your hands after every search.

FRISK SEARCHING -- PRACTICE CHECKLIST

Each group is to be composed of 3 individuals, one portrays the offender, one the staff member and one to act as an observer during practice to provide feedback to the other two members as to meeting all steps or not on the checklist.

Step #	Searcher	Observer	Completed or Not	Comments
1	Check search area
2	Offender removes seasonal clothing i.e. scarf, hat, parka, etc.
3	Offender removes jewellery, glasses and hearing aids
4	Offender empties pockets
5	Items are searched
6	Look in nose and mouth
7	Offender moves fingers, mouth and hair
8	Offender shows behind ears
9	Offender opens fingers and open hands
10	Offender adopts search position - feet, shoulder wide apart, either arms overhead and spread wide or with body at 30% angle, hands against wall, officer checks around squeezing not sliding
11	Collar
12	Down both arms inside and outside (including armpits)
13	Check chest and stomach
14	Check back
15	Down inside and outside of legs
16	Check genital area
17	Check waistband
18	Check trouser fly
19	Check buttocks
20	Check feet
21	For a female offender, also check breast area and bra

Human Rights Instruments Related to LESSON PLAN 14

International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights

Adopted and opened for signature, ratification and accession by General Assembly resolution 2200A (XXI) of 16 December 1966 entry into force 23 March 1976, in accordance with Article 49

Article 17

1. No one shall be subjected to arbitrary or unlawful interference with his privacy, family, home or correspondence, nor to unlawful attacks on his honour and reputation.
2. Everyone has the right to the protection of the law against such interference or attacks.

Body of Principles for the Protection of All Persons under Any Form of Detention or Imprisonment

Adopted by General Assembly resolution 43/173 of 9 December 1988

Principle 1

All persons under any form of detention or imprisonment shall be treated in a humane manner and with respect for the inherent dignity of the human person.

Principle 3

There shall be no restriction upon or derogation from any of the human rights of persons under any form of detention or imprisonment recognized or existing in any State pursuant to law, conventions, regulations or custom on the pretext that this Body of Principles does not recognize such rights or that it recognizes them to a lesser extent.

Adopted and proclaimed by General Assembly resolution 45/111 of 14 December 1990

1. All prisoners shall be treated with the respect due to their inherent dignity and value as human beings.

Code of Conduct for Law Enforcement Officials

Adopted by General Assembly resolution 34/169 of 17 December 1979

Article 2

In the performance of their duty, law enforcement officials shall respect and protect human dignity and maintain and uphold the human rights of all persons.

World Medical Association Statement on Body Searches of Prisoners

Adopted by the 45th World Medical Assembly Budapest, Hungary, October 1993

The prison systems in many countries mandate body cavity searches of prisoners. Such searches, which include rectal and pelvic examination, may be performed when an individual enters the prison population and thereafter whenever the individual is permitted to have personal contact with someone outside the prison population, or when there is a reason to believe a breach of security or of prison regulations has occurred. For example, when a prisoner is taken to Court for a hearing, or to the hospital for treatment, or to work outside the prison, the prisoner, upon returning to the institution, may be subjected to a body cavity search which will include all body orifices. The purpose of the search is primarily security and/or to prevent contraband, such as weapons or drugs, from entering the prison.

These searches are performed for security reasons and not for medical reasons. Nevertheless, they should not be done by anyone other than a competent person with some medical training. This non-medical act may be performed by a physician to protect the prisoner from the harm that might result from a search by a non-medically trained examiner. The physician should explain this to the prisoner and should furthermore explain to the prisoner that the usual conditions of medical confidentiality do not apply during this imposed procedure and that the results of the search will be revealed to the authorities. If a physician is duly mandated by an authority and agrees to perform a body cavity search on a prisoner, the authority should be duly informed of the necessity for this procedure to be done in a humane manner.

The search should be conducted by a physician other than the physician who will provide medical care to the prisoner.

The physician's obligation to provide medical care to the prisoner should not be compromised by an obligation to participate in the prison's security system.

The World Medical Association urges all governments and public officials with responsibility for public safety to recognize that such invasive search procedures are a serious assault on a person's privacy and dignity, and also carry some risk of physical and psychological injury. Therefore, the World Medical Association exhorts that, to the extent feasible without compromising public security,

- alternate methods be used for routine screening of prisoners, and body cavity searches be resorted to only as a last resort;
- If a body cavity search must be conducted, the responsible public official ensure that the search is conducted by personnel with sufficient medical knowledge and skills to perform the search safely;
- the same responsible authority ensure that due regard for the individual's privacy and dignity be guaranteed.

Finally, the World Medical Association urges all governments and responsible public officials to provide for such searches by a physician whenever warranted by the individual's physical condition. A specific request by a prisoner for a physician shall be respected, so far as possible.

COUNCIL OF EUROPE. COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS. RECOMMENDATION No. R (98) 7 -OF THE COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS TO MEMBER STATES CONCERNING THE ETHICAL AND ORGANISATIONAL ASPECTS OF HEALTH CARE IN PRISON
Adopted by the Committee of Ministers on 8 April 1998,at the 627th meeting of the Ministers' Deputies.

H. Body searches, medical reports, medical research.

72. Body searches are a matter for the administrative authorities and prison doctors should not become involved in such procedures. However, an intimate medical examination should be conducted by a doctor when there is an objective medical reason requiring his/her involvement.

Introduction

Read through the following security skill. Place a check (√) under Yes or No in the column stating whether or not the officer performed this part of the task, they must perform this skill twice (on different days) and be graded both times.

Body Searches	1 st Practice		2 nd Practice
	Yes	No	Yes	No
1. Knowledge of Institutional Policies and/or Post Orders
• able to reference and state the reference numbers of the Policy and/or Post Order
• demonstrates understanding when a body search can be conducted
• demonstrates understanding that all searches must be carried out by a person of the same sex
2. Prepares self
• knows the reason for the search
• acquires any equipment such as a bag (for contraband)
• has another officer as a back-up
3. Procedures	Yes	No	Yes	No
• informs the prisoner that they are going to be searched
• watches the prisoner for signs of aggression, once the prisoner has been told they are to be searched
• has prisoner remove any excess clothing, shoes, jacket, etc.
• has prisoner empty all of their pockets and pull them inside out
• tells prisoner to stand approximately three feet from the wall facing the officer
• has the prisoner spread their legs and stretch their arms to their sides
• has the prisoner wiggle their fingers and checks their mouths for any hidden contraband
• has the prisoner turn around and places their hands spread out against the wall, their feet should be approximately three feet wide apart and three feet from the wall
• place their hand in the middle of the prisoners back (to detect any sudden movement)
4. Conducting the Search (Thoroughly and Systematically)
• searches the head and neck area (ears, hair and mouth if not previously done so)
• searches the upper body – back – shoulders – arms – rib cage – front and back
• searches the lower body – waist – butt – crotch – legs – feet
• searches excess clothing and personal articles
• searches shoes / or sandals
• returns items to prisoner

LESSON PLAN 15 – Drug Awareness

NOTE: Because the slang terms for drugs and the drugs of choice vary from location to location, local staff must read this lesson plan carefully and modify it to make it appropriate for their area/

Method of Instruction: Lecture, discussion

Time Frame: 2 Hours

Performance Objectives:

To make trainees aware of the phenomena of the most commonly used drugs, their effects and the necessary safeguards to affect the apprehension of those residents who are drug addicts.

LESSON OBJECTIVE: At the end of this session, each trainee will be able to:

1. Understand four classifications of drugs, stimulants, hallucinogens, and depressants.
2. Understand the various characteristics and effects of the different types of drugs, as well as symptoms of use of these drugs.
3. Identify the various withdrawal symptoms a drug addict goes through during the early periods of incarceration.
4. Understand how to handle residents who are drug addicts.
4. Understand how drug withdrawal inappropriately managed can put clients at risk for continued use.

Reference: Dr. Veena Oberoi -- U.S. Bureau of Prisons

Training Aids Required: Blackboard or flip chart

INTRODUCTION

The first step in any understanding of the drug users should be a familiarity with the drugs of abuse. One cannot expect to deal in any effective manner with the problems of drug abuse without some knowledge of the drug themselves. We should be familiar with the appearance, effects, and characteristics of the commonly used drugs.

CLASSIFICATION OF DRUGS

Drugs are classified by the effect they have on the human body. We will discuss here the four types of drugs:

- Stimulants
- Narcotics
- Hallucinogens - Psychedelics
- Depressants

I. STIMULANTS

Stimulants are a group of drugs that have the effect of speeding up the nervous system. The most commonly used stimulants are caffeine and nicotine, which many of us use daily.

- a. Amphetamines are the most widely known and abused of the stimulant drugs. They keep people awake, increase their alertness and the body's ability to perform physical tasks. Physicians use these drugs for patients who are overweight.

i.Slang Name - BAM

ii.Description

- (1)Tablets
- (2)Capsules
- (3)Various shapes and colors

iii.Methods Used

- (1)Orally
- (2)Injected into the blood stream
- (3)Inhaled

iv.Symptoms

- (1)Usually active
- (2)Aggressive
- (3)Rapid speech
- (4)Dilated pupils
- (5)Sweating
- (6)Bad breath, body odor

b. Methamphetamine are six to nine times stronger than the regular amphetamine, but the effects of "meth" makes it stronger than regular amphetamine.

i.Slang Name

- (1)Speed
- (2)Melt

ii.Description

- (1)Clear liquid
- (2)White crystalline powder
- (3)Tablets
- (4)Capsules

iii.Symptoms

- (1)Argumentative
- (2)Extremely confused
- (3)Unpredictably irrational and violent
- (4)Dilated pupils
- (5)Eyes sensitive to light
- (6)Needle marks

c. Cocaine: Many laws consider cocaine a narcotic, though medical science classifies it as a powerful stimulant drug. Cocaine is prepared from the leaves of the coco plant, which grows mainly in South America.

Cocaine was once widely used as a local anesthetic, but has now been restricted because of newer, less dangerous drugs. Cocaine is a highly addictive drug.

i.Slang Name

- (1)Coke
- (2)Snow
- (3)Crack

ii.Description

- (1)White

- (2)Crystalline powder
- iii.Method used
 - (1)Inhaled
 - (2)Injected
 - (3)Smoked
- iv.Symptoms
 - (1)Ulcerated sores around nostrils
 - (2)Constant sniffing
 - (3)Dilated pupils
 - (4)Watery eyes
 - (5)Nausea and vomiting
 - (6)Needle marks

1. NARCOTICS

Narcotics generally refer to opium and drugs made from opium, such as heroin, codeine and morphine. These drugs are distilled from the juice of poppy flower bulbs and refined into some of the most commonly used drugs in the world.

a. Morphine is a narcotic drug used legally to relieve pain. During many wars morphine was given to wounded soldiers. It is synthesized from raw opium.

- i.Slang Name
 - (1)Morp
 - (2)"M"
- ii.Description
 - (1)Clear liquid
 - (2)White powder
 - (3)Tablets
 - (4)Capsules

b. Heroin: Heroin was developed in England in 1874, as a chemical modification of morphine. It is sold in aluminum foil packets or in capsules. It may be in the form of small chunks, called "Rocks" which may be red or purplish in color.

- i.Slang Name
 - (1)Horse
 - (2)Smack
 - (3)H
 - (4)Scag
 - (5)Slag
 - (6)Monkey
- ii.Description
 - (1)White powder
 - (2)Brown powder
- iii.Methods Used
 - (1)Injected
 - (2)Inhaled
 - (3)Smoked (with cocaine - speed balling)
- iv.Symptoms
 - (1)Needle marks

- (2)Slow but distinct speech
- (3)Constricted pupils
- (4)Watery eyes
- (5)Nodding

c. Codeine: Derived from opium. It is used medically in cough suppressants.

- i.It Has No Slang Name
- ii.Description
 - (1)Clear liquid
 - (2)White powder
 - (3)Tablets
 - (4)Capsules
 - (5)Syrupy liquid
- iii.Method Used
 - (1)Orally
 - (2)Sometimes injected
- iv.Symptoms
 - (1)Constricted pupils
 - (2)Drowsiness
 - (3)Watery eyes
 - (4)Slow but distinct speech
 - (5)Runny nose
- v.Other synthetic narcotics:
 - (1)Demoral
 - (2)Percodan
 - (3)Dilutants

2. HALLUCINOGENS - PSYCHEDELICS

Hallucinogens are drugs which produce extensive illusions or severe hallucinations in the user by causing chemical changes in the brain called a "trip" by a user. This experience can be exhilarating or terrifying. The user says he hears "colors" and "sees" sounds. He has difficulty separating fact from fantasy.

a. LSD (Lysergic Acid Diethylamide) - The most abused hallucinogen is LSD or LSD-25. It produces changes in mood and behavior and may cause central nervous systems to malfunction. Physical dependence may not occur but minor mental dependence may develop.

- i.Slang Name
 - (1)Acid
 - (2)LSD
- ii.Description
 - (1)Clear liquid
 - (2)Tablets
 - (3)Capsules
- iii.Methods Used
 - (1)Orally
 - (2)Can be injected
- iv.Symptoms
 - (1)Severe hallucinations
 - (2)Dilated pupils

- (3)Rapid heart beat
- (4)Nausea
- (5)Vomiting
- (6)Disorientation
- (7)Possible aggression

b. PCP (Phencyclidine) - has become very popular among useful drug users. It is also a powerful animal anesthesia produced for veterinary use. It is also one of the most dangerous drugs commonly used because of the unpredictable effects on the user.

i.Slang Name

- (1)Angel dust
- (2)Killer weed
- (3)Lovely
- (4)Love boat
- (5)Sherman stick
- (6)Butt naked

ii.Description

- (1)White crystalline powder
- (2)Liquid

iii.Method Used

- (1)Smoked - placed on marijuana or tobacco

iv.Symptoms

- (1)Hallucinations
- (2)Incoherent speech
- (3)Vomiting
- (4)Cold feet and hands
- (5>Poor perception of time and distance
- (6)Violent impulses
- (7)Desire to take clothes off
- (8)Excessive sensations
- (9)Bizarre ideation

c. Marijuana is the most popular drug abused. The active ingredient in marijuana is know as THC. It is relatively inexpensive compared to other drugs.

i.Slang Name

- (1)Pot
- (2)Roach
- (3)Grass
- (4)Joint
- (5)Weed

ii.Description

Brown or green leafy substance

iii.Method Used

- (1)Smoked
- (2)Eaten, sometimes mixed with spices
- (3)Drank as a tea

iv.Symptoms

- (1)Dilated pupils

(2)Strong musky odor

(3)Crave foods

d. Hashish is prepared from the resins found in the flower tops of the marijuana plant. Hashish is a much more potent drug than marijuana simply because THC content is more concentrated.

i.Slang Name

(1)Hashish

(2)Hashish oil

ii.Method Used

(1)Smoked

(2)Injected

iii.Description

Cake like substance

iv.Symptoms

(1)Strong musky odor

(2)Dilated pupils

(3)Blood shot eyes

(4)Mild hallucinations

(5)Crave foods

3. DEPRESSANTS

Depressants are extremely valuable to the medical and psychiatric profession. These drugs affect the central nervous system by decelerating its activities.

a. Barbiturates - are classified into four different categories based upon the speed of onset and the length of action. For example, the long lasting barbiturates have a speed of onset of 30 to 60 minutes and lasts up to eight hours. Although one can become addicted to barbiturates at normal dosages, yet its use can be continued for years without difficulty.

i.Slang Name

(1)Barb

(2)Goof bells

(3)Downers

(4)Yellow jackets

(5)Purple heart

ii.Description

(1)Capsules

(2)Tablets

(3)Various shapes and colors

(4)Greenish inside

iii.Method Used

(1)Orally

(2)Injected

iv.Symptoms

(1)Constricted pupils

(2)Slurred speech

(3)Staggering

(4)Uncoordinated

- (5)Appears drunk
- (6)No odor of alcohol
- (7)Disorientation

4. TOLERANCE

All drugs have a common property, that is, they cause the individual to develop a tolerance to the drug. Therefore, the individual must increase the dosage to obtain the same effect. He/she gradually becomes addicted, both physically and mentally. You never lose your tolerance, even when one is not abusing licit or illicit drugs.

Because of the constant use of the drug, the addict's appetite is reduced, and he may suffer from hydration and malnutrition along with other symptoms.

5. DRUG WITHDRAWAL

Drug addicts can be management problems in the institutions. They need to be monitored closely, and a proper referral must be made when any resident shows withdrawal symptoms.

Common drug-withdrawal symptoms which a resident exhibits are as follows:

- a.Moderate Withdrawal symptoms
 - i.Restlessness
 - ii.Dilated pupils
 - iii.Insomnia
 - iv.Deep breathing
 - v.Fever, etc.
- b.Severe Withdrawal Symptoms
 - i.Convulsion
 - ii.Commotions and loud noises
 - iii.Self-mutilation
 - iv.Diarrhea
 - v.Vomiting, etc.
 - vi.Aggressive behavior
 - vii.Heat irregularities

After the period of withdrawal pains has passed, addicts generally settle down to a routine and submissive behavior, but they keep continuous interest in getting more drugs smuggled to them in one way or another.

6. HOW TO HANDLE DRUG ADDICTS

Correctional employees must be very alert at the time of the initial processing of these drug-addicts. Most of the time the addict will tell the employee during processing the type of drug he/she uses mostly. Otherwise, the officer should ask the resident, if he/she is addicted to any drugs.

The correctional employee should always be on the look out for instruments as follows:

- i. Hypodermic needles, plunger, syringe - A resident would carry tools like these to inject the drugs.
- ii. Quills for snorting - A resident might keep a long-handled spoon so that it can hold powdered narcotics.

- iii. Tourniquet - A resident might keep a belt, a shoe string or a stocking in his/her pockets used to stop the flow of blood.
- iv. Empty Packages - A resident might save a plastic or glassine bags which normally contain drugs.

Also look for needle marks, small cuts located on arms and legs, swelled hands, ulcer on the skin, discoloration of the skin. These symptoms would indicate their effort at taking an injection. Many new residents will cover up these marks and cuts by wearing long-sleeve shirts or using bandages or gauze. In the case of habitual marijuana smokers, burn scars on the fingertips is an indication of the habit.

Officers should pay special attention during the first 24 to 30 hours of incarceration for any signs of withdrawal in drug addicts. If the employee suspects that a resident is starting to go into withdrawal, he must immediately follow the required procedures in his/her institution to obtain medical help for the resident.

The correctional employee supervising the resident may be held responsible if any harm comes to the resident going through the withdrawal process due to his/her negligence.

Officers should never make medical judgement or ignore a resident thinking "He is an addict."

7. LONG TERM DRUG WITHDRAWAL

Long term withdrawal usually peaks at 3-6 months after discontinuing drug use, but can last for up to 5 years or more.

- a. Thought Disorders - Difficulty in thinking clearly is common in long term drug withdrawal. The brain is affected by the use of drugs.
- b. Memory Disorders - If a substance abusing resident misses a number of counseling sessions and forgets other appointments, he or she may have memory problems as a result of his or her drug use. Staff should be alert to these residents who get angry/depressed because they could not demonstrate their academic skills after having learned them -- their minds go blank.
- c. Emotional Disorders - Mood swings and overreacting to situations should alert correctional staff to the possibility that a resident is manifesting symptoms of long term withdrawal. Even after an extended period of time has passed since the last drug use, a resident may find it hard to appropriately respond to situations; blowing up over insignificant matters and becoming totally unresponsive or overwhelmed.

8. ALCOHOLISM

Alcoholism, also known as "alcohol dependence," is a disease that includes four symptoms:

- Craving: A strong need, or compulsion, to drink.
- Loss of control: The inability to limit one's drinking on any given occasion.
- Physical dependence: Withdrawal symptoms, such as nausea, sweating, shakiness, and anxiety, occur when alcohol use is stopped after a period of heavy drinking.
- Tolerance: The need to drink greater amounts of alcohol in order to "get high."

People who are not alcoholic sometimes do not understand why an alcoholic can't just "use a little willpower" to stop drinking. However, alcoholism has little to do with willpower. Alcoholics are in the grip of a powerful "craving," or uncontrollable need, for alcohol that overrides their ability to stop drinking. This need can be as strong as the need for food or water.

Although some people are able to recover from alcoholism without help, the majority of alcoholics need assistance. With treatment and support, many individuals are able to stop drinking and rebuild their lives.

Many people wonder why some individuals can use alcohol without problems but others cannot. One important reason has to do with genetics. Scientists have found that having an alcoholic family member makes it more likely that if you choose to drink you too may develop alcoholism. Genes, however, are not the whole story. In fact, scientists now believe that certain factors in a person's environment influence whether a person with a genetic risk for alcoholism ever develops the disease. A person's risk for developing alcoholism can increase based on the person's environment, including where and how he or she lives; family, friends, and culture; peer pressure; and even how easy it is to get alcohol.

Quiz

1. A drug is any chemical substance which affects you in such a way as to bring about a change in:
 - a. Your body
 - b. Your emotions
 - c. Your behavior
 - d. All of the above

2. Alcohol is:
 - a. A Drug
 - b. Contains no calories
 - c. Has some health value
 - d. All of the above

3. A state of physical or psychological need, or both, which comes from the use of a drug is known as:
 - a. Drug abuse
 - b. Drug dependence
 - c. Both a and b
 - d. Neither a nor b

4. Stimulants can:
 - a. Stimulate the nervous system
 - b. Make people more active and nervous
 - c. Both a and b
 - d. Neither a nor b

5. Circle the drugs which are stimulants
 - a. Alcohol
 - b. Caffeine
 - c. Heroin
 - d. Barbiturates
 - e. Cocaine

6. Depressants are drugs which
 - a. Depress the central nervous system
 - b. Make people sleepy
 - c. Are dangerous when used in large quantities
 - d. All of the above

7. Alcohol is:
 - a. A stimulant
 - b. Slows down brain activity
 - c. Increases sexual performance
 - d. Always has the same effect

TRUE/FALSE

- ___ 1. Drugs are any substance that causes a reaction in your body.
- ___ 2. Cocaine is a narcotic.
- ___ 3. Alcohol is a stimulant.
- ___ 4. Chemical dependency can be determined by symptoms, withdrawal and tolerance.
- ___ 5. Alcoholism is considered a disease.
- ___ 6. Psychoactive drugs affect the central nervous system.
- ___ 7. The alcoholic may be genetically pre-disposed to the disease of alcoholism.

Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners

Adopted by the First United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, held at Geneva in 1955, and approved by the Economic and Social Council by its resolutions 663 C (XXIV) of 31 July 1957 and 2076 (LXII) of 13 May 1977

62. The medical services of the institution shall seek to detect and shall treat any physical or mental illnesses or defects which may hamper a prisoner's rehabilitation. All necessary medical, surgical and psychiatric services shall be provided to that end.

63. (1) The fulfilment of these principles requires individualization of treatment and for this purpose a flexible system of classifying prisoners in groups; it is therefore desirable that such groups should be distributed in separate institutions suitable for the treatment of each group.

(2) These institutions need not provide the same degree of security for every group. It is desirable to provide varying degrees of security according to the needs of different groups. Open institutions, by the very fact that they provide no physical security against escape but rely on the self-discipline of the inmates, provide the conditions most favourable to rehabilitation for carefully selected prisoners.

(3) It is desirable that the number of prisoners in closed institutions should not be so large that the individualization of treatment is hindered. In some countries it is considered that the population of such institutions should not exceed five hundred. In open institutions the population should be as small as possible.

(4) On the other hand, it is undesirable to maintain prisons which are so small that proper facilities cannot be provided.

64. The duty of society does not end with a prisoner's release. There should, therefore, be governmental or private agencies capable of lending the released prisoner efficient after-care directed towards the lessening of prejudice against him and towards his social rehabilitation.

Treatment

65. The treatment of persons sentenced to imprisonment or a similar measure shall have as its purpose, so far as the length of the sentence permits, to establish in them the will to lead law-abiding and self-supporting lives after their release and to fit them to do so. The treatment shall be such as will encourage their self-respect and develop their sense of responsibility.

66. (1) To these ends, all appropriate means shall be used, including religious care in the countries where this is possible, education, vocational guidance and training, social casework, employment counselling, physical development and strengthening of moral character, in accordance with the individual needs of each prisoner, taking account of his social and criminal history, his physical and mental capacities and aptitudes, his personal temperament, the length of his sentence and his prospects after release.

(2) For every prisoner with a sentence of suitable length, the director shall receive, as soon as possible after his admission, full reports on all the matters referred to in the foregoing paragraph. Such reports shall always include a report by a medical officer, wherever possible qualified in psychiatry, on the physical and mental condition of the prisoner.

(3) The reports and other relevant documents shall be placed in an individual file. This file shall be kept up to date and classified in such a way that it can be consulted by the responsible personnel whenever the need arises.

COUNCIL OF EUROPE. COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS. RECOMMENDATION No. R (98) 7-OF THE COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS TO MEMBER STATES CONCERNING THE ETHICAL AND ORGANISATIONAL ASPECTS OF HEALTH CARE IN PRISON
Adopted by the Committee of Ministers on 8 April 1998, at the 627th meeting of the Ministers' Deputies.

B. Addiction to drugs, alcohol and medication: management of pharmacy and distribution of medication

43. The care of prisoners with alcohol and drug-related problems needs to be developed further, taking into account in particular the services offered for drug addicts, as recommended by the Co-operation Group to Combat Drug Abuse and Illicit Trafficking in Drugs ("Pompidou Group"). Therefore, it is necessary to offer sufficient training to medical and prison personnel, and to improve co-operation with external counselling services, in order to ensure continuing follow-up therapy on discharge to the community.

44. The prison doctor should encourage prisoners to take advantage of the system of social or psychotherapeutic assistance in order to prevent the risks of abuse of drugs, medication and alcohol.

45. The treatment of the withdrawal symptoms of abuse of drugs, alcohol or medication in prison should be conducted along the same lines as in the community.

46. If prisoners undergo a withdrawal cure, the doctor should encourage them, both while still in prison and after their release, to take all the necessary steps to avoid a relapse into addiction.

47. Detained persons should be able to consult a specialised internal or external counsellor who would give them the necessary support both while they are serving their sentence and during their care after release. Such counsellors should also be able to contribute to the in-service training of custodial staff.

48. Where appropriate, prisoners should be allowed to carry their prescribed medication. However, medication which is dangerous if taken as an overdose should be withheld and issued to them on an individual dose-by-dose basis.

49. In consultation with the competent pharmaceutical adviser, the prison doctor should prepare as necessary a comprehensive list of medicines and drugs usually prescribed in the medical service. A medical prescription should remain the exclusive responsibility of the medical profession, and medicines should be distributed by authorised personnel only.

LESSON PLAN 16 - 1Suicide Prevention

Method of Instruction: Discussion, Lecture, Question and Answer

Time Frame: 1 Hour

Performance Objectives:

Inform staff about the importance of staff's efforts to prevent suicides and provide basic skills and techniques for identification and responding to a suicide.

SESSION OBJECTIVES:

1. List three characteristics of potentially suicidal inmates.
2. List the four steps, in order, which staff must take in responding to a suicidal inmate.
3. List two steps used in monitoring potentially suicidal inmates.

Training Aides Required: Blackboard or flip chart

INTRODUCTION

Welcome! This session is about preventing inmate suicides in the prisons. Each of us shares three responsibilities with respect to suicide prevention:

- o We must be able to recognize warning signs that tell us inmates may be considering suicide.
- o We must be able to respond correctly to suicidal behavior.
- o We must follow-up on and monitor inmates who have been identified as potentially suicidal.

Before giving you some basic information about suicide prevention, I would like you to answer some questions about suicide. You will not have to turn your answers in.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

The following should be prepared and handed out to each student.

Preventing Inmate Suicides

Please answer the following questions about inmate suicide. You will not be asked to turn your answers in. Answers to these questions will be covered during this training session.

1. In prison, most suicides occur in:
 - a. Segregation
 - b. Regular housing units
 - c. Mental health units

2. In the prison, most suicides occur:

- a. Just after 4 p.m.

- b. Between midnight and 5 a.m.
 - c. No specific time
3. Looking at an inmate's history, which of the following increase the risk of attempting suicide?
- a. Previous suicide attempts
 - b. Recent loss of an important relationship
 - c. Major stress
 - d. Mental disorder
 - e. Medical disorder
 - f. All except e
 - g. All of the above
4. Which of the following behaviors indicate that an inmate may be suicidal?
- a. Statements about suicide
 - b. Symptoms of depression
 - c. Giving away commissary & other possessions
 - d. Withdrawal from friends
 - e. Hoarding medication
 - f. All of the above
 - g. All except d
5. One of the best things to do if an inmate tells you he is thinking of suicide is to tell him not to worry so much, many people think about suicide.
- a. True
 - b. False
6. You should never ask about suicidal thoughts or talk directly about suicide with an inmate since this may prompt the inmate to commit suicide.
- a. True
 - b. False
7. According to BOP policy, inmates may be used to "watch" a suicidal inmate.
- a. True
 - b. False
8. After being released from the hospital for a suicide attempt, how long may an inmate's thoughts of suicide continue?

- a. Inmates are not released until all thoughts of suicide are over.
 - b. Days
 - c. Weeks
 - d. Months
 - e. b, c, or d

If you haven't completed the pre-test, continue working on it. During the rest of this session, we will talk about the correct answer to each of the questions.

I. IDENTIFYING SUICIDAL INMATES.

Do you remember the three responsibilities we all share concerning suicide prevention?

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Ask interactive questions and encourage discussion.

They were:

- o recognize
- o respond
- o monitor, follow-up

What information can help us recognize a suicidal inmate?

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Write student answers down on the flip chart. Probe for responses that loosely fit the next overhead. After two or three minutes, or when student responses begin to drop off, continue with the lesson plan.

All of the areas you mentioned can be useful in helping us recognize suicidal inmates. To help organize our discussion, we will talk about the following areas as they relate to suicide:

- o Incidence
- o Frequency
- o At-Risk Groups
- o Method
- o Inmate History
- o Inmate Behavior

Adolescents are an at-risk group. Adolescents may not have well developed support networks or coping skills to handle the crises they face. Middle aged or older single males may experience the erosion of relationships, reduced support from others and unfulfilled expectations.

The elderly may fear becoming dependent upon others. All of these stresses, coupled with reduced support and coping skills may lead to a higher incidence of suicide for these groups.

Traditionally in corrections, newly arrested inmates have been identified as a high risk group. Inmates who are serving longer than average sentences, and who lose important outside relationships are at an at-risk group. Knowing an inmate falls into one of these at-risk groups help us pay closer attention or ask the right questions. We also may benefit from knowing how and when suicide occurs.

* Method

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

Information on the method, where in the institution they occur and time they occur should be gathered from the statistical office and presented here. Point out that this also is the answer to questions 1 and 2 on their pre-test.

* Where (segregation, housing units, hospital)

* When (time of day or night -- in the U.S. prisons, for example, 48% occur from midnight to 5 a.m.)

All of these kinds of information help us generally to take suicide seriously, to focus our attention on special groups who have higher risk of committing suicide, and to try to control inmate behavior through increased watchfulness. While this information is useful in recognizing potentially suicidal inmates, not every suicidal inmate will fit the typical pattern. For this reason, two other kinds of information can be of help to us.

- o Inmate History
 - Previous Suicide Attempts
 - Loss of an Important Person
 - Stress
 - Mental Disorder
 - Medical Status

The answer to question 3 is a.

Each of these factors increases the risk that an inmate may be suicidal. Previous history of suicide attempt, recent loss of a significant other, or other major stressful event make sense as contributing to suicide risk. The existence of a mental disorder or medical impairment such as HIV+ or AIDS may contribute suicide risk since the inmate's ability to make clear judgements and use effective coping skills may be reduced. Knowing about an inmate's history helps us pay closer attention to changes in mood, changes in behavior or veiled statements which may indicate the potential for suicidal behavior. Observing his or her behavior can help us further identify suicidal inmates.

- o Inmate Behavior
 - Symptoms of Depression
 - Changes in Behavior
 - Suicidal Thoughts
 - Plan
 - Resources

The answer to question 4 is f, all of the above. We will go into some detail on the first two areas: symptoms of depression, and changes in behavior.

Symptoms of depression may include:

- o sleep problems
- o loss of appetite

Behavior:

- o moodiness
- o Fatigue
- o expression of helplessness
- o loss of hope
- o withdrawal
- o suspiciousness
- o expressions of guilt

Changes in behavior that may occur prior to a suicide are:

- o withdrawal from friends
- o suspiciousness
- o "saying goodbye"
- o giving away property
- o hoarding medication

Plan and Resources refer to whether an inmate has identified a specific way that he or she may attempt suicide, and whether he/she has access to the gun, medication, knife, bed sheet that is intended to be used in the suicide.

Knowing common symptoms or behaviors of suicidal inmates helps us recognize a potentially suicidal inmate.

To summarize, each of us is responsible for helping to identify potentially suicidal inmates. Our ability to recognize these inmates is increased if we know the basic information we just covered.

RESPONDING TO SUICIDAL INMATES

Let's assume that an inmate fits the pattern we have just described, and that his or her behavior tells us that the potential for suicide exists. How should we respond?

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Write student answers down on the flip chart.

General Staff Responses

Basic Responses --

1. Listen and Hear

2. Take thought and feelings seriously
3. Be affirmative and supportive
4. Refer to:
Shift Supervisor, Unit Manager
Psychologist or Medical Professional

The first three responses are good communication skills. As an inmate talks about suicidal feelings, it is important to give our undivided attention, and not to dispute or ignore his or her claim that they are feeling suicidal. The answer to question 5 is b. We should not try to minimize the inmate's statements about thinking of to worry so much, or that many people think of suicide. When you think that an inmate is potentially suicidal, who would you inform? Or, to whom would you refer the inmate.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Write student answers down on the flip chart. As students respond, point out that sometimes it may be appropriate to talk to your supervisor before making the referral (e.g. Segregation), and at other times, a direct call to the Psychologist or Medical department should be made immediately. After two or three minutes, or when responses begin to drop off, continue the lesson plan.

Let me emphasize something here:

Don't fail to respond. Notify your supervisor as appropriate and then, make the referral. Let the Psychologist or Medical Professional evaluate the risk of suicide and make the decision about whether a suicide watch or other intervention is needed.

Advanced Responses --

1. Ask directly about thoughts of suicide.
2. Make a contract where appropriate.

In your role as a correctional worker, you may get to know some inmates on your work detail or in your unit pretty well. In cases where you know an inmate, it may be appropriate to ask an inmate to clarify why they are feeling down, or if they are thinking about suicide. The answer to question 6 is b. Sometimes inmates will talk openly about their feelings and thoughts with their work supervisor, unit staff or correctional officer when they would not be as open with other inmates. Asking about suicidal thoughts or talking with an inmate about suicidal feelings will not prompt an inmate to commit suicide.

Making a contract with an inmate may also be helpful. Let me use two examples to illustrate what I mean by a contract. First, you may ask for the inmate's word that he or she will come to talk to you before acting out a suicidal feeling. Another example might be to get the inmate to agree to wait for a certain number of hours or days before taking any action on a suicidal feeling. Obviously, contracts require trust, and we can't rely on them completely to reduce the risk of acute suicide. Contracts can reassure an inmate that we are here to help. At times, a suicidal inmate may feel relief when they agree to put off acting on a suicidal impulse for specific period of time.

Both of these advanced skills are just that, advanced. If you do not feel comfortable trying them, don't. Just be sure that you have made the appropriate referral and that you are using the basic skills we described earlier.

MONITORING -- FOLLOWING-UP ON SUICIDAL INMATES.

Monitoring and Follow-up

- o Evaluation
- o Suicide Watch
- o Inmate Companions
- o Return to population
- o Continued observation

After you have referred the inmate a Psychologist or Medical Professional will evaluate his or her suicide risk using many of the concepts we have just discussed. If the inmate is viewed as an acute suicide risk, a Suicide Watch will be started. A watch can last several hours to several days, depending on the inmate's intent to harm himself.

The answer to question 7 is a, true. Inmate Companions may be used to help watch a potentially suicidal inmate. These inmates would rotate in shifts and would be required to observe the potentially suicidal inmate until the watch is over. They are not placed in the cell with the suicidal inmate. In our institution, we do (do not) use inmate companions.

Following a Suicide Watch, an inmate is typically returned to general population or other pre-watch status. Often, other inmates may have heard that the inmate was suicidal. As an inmate returns to the general inmate population, it is our responsibility to be supportive and to help the inmate retain as much dignity as possible. Staff should not share information about an inmate's emotional issues with other inmates. We should not respond to prying questions which other inmates may raise.

The risk of suicide is not over when the Suicide Watch ends and the inmate returns to population. The answer to question 8 is e, days, weeks or months. Inmates who have been acutely suicidal may continue to have thoughts of suicide for quite some time. For this reason, continued monitoring must occur. Usually a Psychologist or Medical Professional will meet with the inmate regularly. There are some things that all of us can do that will help the monitoring and follow-up process.

How should staff continue to monitor an inmate who has been identified as previously suicidal?

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Write student answers down on the flip chart. End after two or three minutes, or when student responses begin to drop off.

All of your suggestions are helpful. If I could offer you some guidance, I would recommend that you go back to the model we already have seen:

- Basic responses
- Advanced responses
- Referral (as needed)

CONCLUSION

In conclusion, let me remind you that each of us has three responsibilities where suicidal inmates are concerned. Those responsibilities are:

- o We must be able to recognize warning signs that tell us inmates may be considering suicide.
- o We must be able to respond correctly to suicidal behavior.
- o We must follow-up on and monitor inmates who have been identified as potentially suicidal.

Notes Answer 1 8 persons out of 10 show signs of their intention or talk about it before trying to commit suicide
Answer 2 By committing suicide, the person is not necessarily wishing death, but it is a way of putting an end to a pain that has become unbearable; then suicide seems to be the only solution.

In such a context, suicide rather results from a lack of choice.

Sub paragraph	1.2 – Stages of suicide process
Text	Graphics and behaviour
1.2.1 – stage 1: the subject begins to think of suicide (“ideation”) It’s the stage when the individual begins to have his first suicidal thoughts; they are either diffuse or precise, but in any cases very short and not ruminated. In this stage, one can find the persons who had thought of suicide once. Examples: thought of death, thought of being accidentally pushed under a bus, etc... Then, suicidal thoughts become more frequent: many times a week, but the person is not daily haunted by this choice. This stage corresponds with the period of vulnerability (1) and of the search for solutions (2)

The subject is more and more convinced that no solution can end his pain. The idea of suicide becomes haunting (“I’m always thinking of suicide, at every moment”; “the slightest disappointment, the slightest annoyance brings me back to suicide”). At that stage, the person in a suicide crisis can generalize feelings such as “nobody loves me” and is not able anymore to find solutions to face his difficulties (1)

1.2.3 – stage of crystallization

We talk about crystallization when the individual considers suicide as the ultimate solution to his disarray and pain. At that stage the decision has been taken and the suicide scenario (where, when, how) in construction (if not decided). But the process can be more or less fast and some people reach that stage faster (for instance, teenagers who are more impulsive). During this stage, the individual often shows signs of improvement, which can be interpreted wrongly by his family as the end of the crisis; it's generally when the individual writes his farewell letters, his will, or gives away the belongings with a sentimental value : "I'm writing to thank you for what you've done for me" ; "I settle my matters, draft my will and push off" ; "take this, I give you my pair of skis, I won't need them anymore".

1.2.4 – The element that triggers suicide

The idea of suicide has crystallized, suicide is imminent. An event often hastens the suicide. The person plans to commit suicide within 2 days and is in possession of the chosen means or knows how to access to it. Suicide is imminent. For the family or the external observers, the triggering event may appear trivial (for instance, academic failure). At that stage the person is in a suicide attempt or on the verge of it.

Stopping the process of self-destruction

Determining understandings with the suicidal subject to follow through him, at least on the short run.

The processes have to be clear and definite. The follow-up has to be planned within a very short amount of time, usually no more than 24 hours.

The post-crisis

Just after an acute crisis, the subject's state may improve, so in the same time people around him tend to relax when in fact the subject remains vulnerable and a suicide is still possible.

In 2003 ,120 prisoners committed suicide
 As of 17 November 2004, 86 suicides were committed by prisoners, of which 3 were admitted to hospital.
 The rate of suicide in prison is 7 times higher than outside.
 In 20 years, the rate of suicide has doubled.

Among the prison population there is a big percentage of mentally disordered and about 15 % of the inmates are psychotic. This kind of population is particularly vulnerable and the rate of suicide attempts is 24 times higher than in the rest of the prison population.

Further to different works carried out since 1995 and their following statements, the circular of 1998 established a certain number of recommendations. The circular of 2002 resumed them by adding a scale of interview assistance meant to be a guide for the detection of the suicidal crisis, namely for newly arrived inmates but also as a basis for any interview during imprisonment. Jean Louis TERRA, psychiatrist, the minister of justice' representative who achieved the latest report on suicides in prisons in 2002 draws the attention to the fact that this scale is only a guide and cannot by any means be used as a mere questionnaire and, contrary to what it implies, there is no hesitation in asking straightforwardly the question : "have you ever thought of committing suicide ? How ?

5 Role of prison officers in the prevention of suicide

Text

5.1.4 The officer must forward the information by all means : verbal, formal and informal written document :

- to the suicide referent, to the superiors,
- to the probation and rehabilitation service,
- to the medical staff,
- to the colleagues,
- to certain external of internal contributors (teachers, chaplain...),

The prison officer on duty must check whether a CCR (instruction, behaviour, diet) has been established towards a prisoner and gets informed of its content.

Notes : Answers :

ELEMENTS OF RISK :Sex : male ; age = + 40 ; offense = sex assault
Family and professional background : married, father, good situation (teacher)
Imminence of trial...

ELEMENTS OF EMERGENCY: His physical look (ready to leave) ; appearance of the cell (everything is removed from the walls, he gave his belongings to his fellow prisoners) All these elements indicate an acting.

ELEMENTS OF DANGEROUSNESS

Exercise period (= few inmates in the vicinity), a risky moment. He’s been on antidepressant treatment for a few weeks, so he may have stored some medicines

SUICIDAL POTENTIAL
Risk = high
Emergency = high
Dangerousness = high

5.2.1 Spotting

The prisoners who have a suicidal risk behaviour during the various interviews he has to lead

How ?

After consulting the individual form and the individual file, through an interview during which the inmate states his health records, his personal and family situation and his judicial history.

By watching his behaviour (withdrawal into himself, excessive excitement...), being attentive to words, looks, silences and their possible meanings within the frame of a suicidal crisis.

5.2.2.-Evaluating

The suicidal potential of the inmate (elements of risk, emergency, danger)

Be careful with the direct and indirect verbal messages !

-5.2.3 Intervening

The senior officer on night duty takes out the list of the inmates spotted by his superiors and the officers and registered as under special watch, in order to allow the officers on patrol to be more watchful.

How?

Establish a dialogue with the inmate he has spotted in suicidal crisis to have his distress diminish. He must be able to ask straightforwardly the question on his suicidal intentions : « are you feeling so bad as to have thought of committing suicide ? ”Have you already imagined how and when ?

Propose solutions, either transitory or very simple to reduce the crisis before handing over to other partners or professionals.

You can suggest a roommate.

5.2.3-passing on
 The senior officer must pass on the information collected to the medical staff, the referent, the superiors, the probation service.
 He can also pass on his observations during suicide prevention commissions.

5.2. 4-The acting management (1)
 Have the officers establish a report and write all the necessary reports, of which the special report.

The solutions

After the interview :

Implement a special patrol, a placement under surveillance,
 Organise the twinning of the cell, meet the roommate, have his agreement, Record the essential elements of the interview (CR, CCR) and report to the superiors, the medical unit as an emergency, the probation service, Organize his filing (remember he has no resources and asks his brother to sell his car, which means he has taken up with him, which could act as an incentive), Important : carry out quickly the proposed and accepted solutions and see him again rapidly and ensure things are being implemented.

 Propose him to meet the medical unit, a probation officer, a visitor, a chaplain...
 To share his cell with an inmate of his choice
 Propose him other activities, a job...
FORWARD
 Then, warn the medical unit
 Warn the colleagues, the superiors
 Write a report.

Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners

Adopted by the First United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, held at Geneva in 1955, and approved by the Economic and Social Council by its resolutions 663 C (XXIV) of 31 July 1957 and 2076 (LXII) of 13 May 1977

Medical services

22. (1) At every institution there shall be available the services of at least one qualified medical officer who should have some knowledge of psychiatry. The medical services should be organized in close relationship to the general health administration of the community or nation. They shall include a psychiatric service for the diagnosis and, in proper cases, the treatment of states of mental abnormality.

(2) Sick prisoners who require specialist treatment shall be transferred to specialized institutions or to civil hospitals. Where hospital facilities are provided in an institution, their equipment, furnishings and pharmaceutical supplies shall be proper for the medical care and treatment of sick prisoners, and there shall be a staff of suitable trained officers.

COUNCIL OF EUROPE. COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS. RECOMMENDATION No. R (98) 7-OF THE COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS TO MEMBER STATES CONCERNING THE ETHICAL AND ORGANISATIONAL ASPECTS OF HEALTH CARE IN PRISON

Adopted by the Committee of Ministers on 8 April 1998, at the 627th meeting of the Ministers' Deputies.

D. Psychiatric symptoms, mental disturbance and major personality disorders, risk of suicide

58. The risk of suicide should be constantly assessed both by medical and custodial staff. Physical methods designed to avoid self-harm, close and constant observation, dialogue and reassurance, as appropriate, should be used in moments of crisis.

LESSON PLAN 17 – Sizing up the Situation – Being Aware of Your Environment

Method of Instruction: Lecture, Discussion, Question and Answer, Role Playing

Time Frame: 2 Hours

Performance Objectives: At the conclusion of this block of instruction the student will:

1. The student will correctly describe, without benefit of notes, the four basic skills in sizing up the situation
2. The student will be able to list the three parts of good positioning
3. The student will be able to list the three steps in Posturing
4. The student will be able to list the four steps in Observing
5. The student will be able to list the four steps in listening

INTRODUCTION

“Sizing up” are those skills that help you know what’s happening in any situation. Sizing up helps you avoid costly mistakes and maximizes the chances that your decisions and actions will be effective and accurate. Sizing up works because it gets you ready to take and use information to manage and often prevent problems.

We all know that every officer in a correctional setting is vulnerable to the impulsive acts of inmates. Being locked up, removed from the freedom of their homes and the familiar streets, subjected to rigorous controls, forced to interact with many uneasy and even desperate human beings

-- all of these things put enormous pressure upon individual inmates. When they lash out uncontrollably, the person who is most vulnerable and available often becomes the object of their frustration.

Second, we know that situations that get out of hand are not always predictable. Inmates who set out to “get” an officer may find many more subtle ways to carry out their grudge. Yet their feelings toward an officer are often visible. The officer who sizes up the situation and recognizes these feelings will be more cautious in the presence of such inmates.

Third, we must recognize that officers always have the option to handle a given situation in a way that is for better or worse. The ability to assess what’s really going on and decide what, if any, action should be taken is perhaps the most critical part of an officer’s job. Only the officer who really knows what’s going on can choose and take the best possible course of action in managing inmates.

“Sizing up ability” is not an ability that an officer is born with. Nor is it always an ability that an officer develops through experience alone. Sizing things up requires some very definite skills.

FOUR BASIC SKILLS

Sizing up any situation involves four very basic skills:

1. Position
2. Posture

3. Observe
4. Listen

In general, of course, the skilled officer always systematically sizes things up on his shift, whether he is responsible for work-detail supervision or walking the housing units. Here are some ways an officer sizes things up before actually going on duty:

1. Checks with the supervisor and reviews the log book to see what has happened during the last shift;
2. Reads the log book of the officer he is replacing and asks for a briefing about the conditions in his area of responsibility;
3. Determines if there are items that need priority attention (like searching a recently vacated living area) and makes a note about taking care of them, and;
4. Walks the area of responsibility to take a reading of what is going on, who is where, who is doing what and to test the general atmosphere of the area.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Ask the class the following three questions and mark their responses on the blackboard or flip chart:

1. Why do you think that sizing up the situation is important?
 2. If you were to walk the area of your responsibility prior to going on duty, what would you be looking for?
 3. Which of the basic skills do think would be most helpful for you to get that information?

I. POSITIONING

Positioning means putting yourself in the best possible place to see and hear individuals or groups. This helps you get information you need to manage inmates and to prevent minor incidents from becoming major problems.

The three parts of Positioning are:

1. Distancing
2. Facing Squarely
3. Looking Directly

Physically positioning yourself in relationship to an individual or group is very important in the effective management of inmates.

As an effective officer, you need to position yourself where you can see and hear problems. Being in a good position helps you to know just what's is going on and, therefore, increases your ability to stop problems from expanding. As you know, it is impossible for you to be everywhere at once. It is also very difficult to catch inmates in certain acts because of "look-outs." Yet the more you use positioning skills to see and hear, the less likely it is that the inmates will get involved in things that are against the rules.

Now let's look at the three specific skills or procedures.

1. Distancing. The first principle of distancing is to keep it safe. Yet while safety is foremost, it is not enough. You could be safely in your office while inmates are doing some pretty negative things. The distance must be safe but you must also be able to see what is going on. And you must be able to hear what is being said whenever possible.

POSITIONING means distancing yourself far enough to be safe, close enough to see and hear.

2. Facing Squarely. Facing squarely or fully ensures that your position give you the most effective line of vision. Your left shoulder should be lined up with the left boundary line of the area you are watching and your right shoulder should be lined up with the right boundary of the area you are watching. When you move your head to either side so that your chin is right above either shoulder, you should be able to see the entire field you are responsible for.

POSITIONING means facing the inmate or inmates squarely.

BE UNPREDICTABLE -- Sometimes the sheer size of the area for which you are responsible makes it impossible to remain squared in one position. In this sort of situation, you must rotate yourself so that by successive movements you will have squarely faced all the areas or persons you are responsible for. In rotating, as in all behaviors, it is always important for you to change the order of doing things so that your behavior cannot be predicted easily.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Ask the class to give you two examples of situations in which they think it would be a good idea to look an inmate directly in the eye. Write their response on the blackboard or flip chart.

Then ask the class to give you two examples of situations in which they think it would not be a good idea to look an inmate directly in the eye. Report their response on a separate section of the blackboard or flip chart.

3. Looking Directly. When positioning yourself, you should look directly at the area or person(s) you are managing. Unless you look directly, you will not be on top of the situation even if you are in the right position and are facing squarely. Looking directly at a group often involves looking at their eyes. When questioning inmates, for example, you will be able to get important clues by observing their eyes and their facial expressions closely. In addition to the information you can get, your direct look tells inmates that you mean business and are not threatened. But many inmates believe that a man who won't look you in the eyes is afraid of you.

POSITIONING means looking directly at the area and person or people you're managing.

Eye Contact to Communicate -- Eye contact may also be the best way of communicating interest. Inmates become aware of our efforts to make contact with them when they see us looking directly at their faces. Of course, looking directly at inmates will also provide you with valuable information about them. Inmates who keep shifting their eyes while talking to you signal that, at the very least, they are either uncomfortable with you or with what is being said. This kind of information is important in managing inmates. However, also be aware that certain cultures consider looking someone in the eyes as improper conduct. Thus, be aware of the individual inmates and their cultural background so you do not misinterpret what their looking or not looking you in the eyes means.

II. POSTURING

Your posture -- how you carry yourself -- tells an inmate a lot. It can make an inmate think that you're confident of yourself or that you're really pretty worried about what might happen. Your aim, of course, is to show your real confidence.

The three steps of Posturing are:

1. Standing Erect
2. Eliminating Distracting Behaviors

3. Inclining Slightly Forward

The way in which the first two procedures show confidence should be obvious. When you stand erect and get rid of distracting behaviors, you let inmates know that you're in full physical control -- control not only of your own body but of the whole situation. And that's essential! Many inmates will try to intimidate any officer who doesn't look as if he is confident about what he's doing. If an inmate thinks he can scare you, you're in real trouble. Any officer without respect of the inmates is open to embarrassment and abuse. Inclining yourself forward can also show confidence by reinforcing the idea that all your attention and potential energy is riveted on the inmate or inmates.

1. Standing erect. Each of you knows how important standing erect is. You probably heard, even as a child, "Be proud, stand up straight." Standing erect takes muscle tone and practice. Look in the mirror and check yourself out. Are your shoulders straight? Is your chest caved in? How do you feel?

POSTURING means standing erect to show strength and confidence.

2. Eliminating Distracting Behaviors. A man or woman who can't stand steady is seen as nervous. Biting nails, foot-tapping and other distracting behaviors do not communicate confidence and control. By standing stiff like a board doesn't communicate it either. You should not feel tension in your body after you have eliminated distracting behaviors.

POSTURING means eliminating all distracting behaviors.

3. Inclining Forward. Your intention here must be to communicate interest and concern by shifting your weight forward so that the inmates become more aware of your "inclination" to communicate and supervise them with respect. You can do this by placing one foot slightly forward of the other with your weight on the forward foot. This does communicate "moving closer" without actually moving you much closer or making any physical contact. Since this position shows you to be more alert, it also gives you more control over the situation.

POSTURING means inclining yourself forward to show that your attention is really focused.

III. OBSERVING

Observing is the ability to notice and understand inmate appearances, behavior, and environment. Careful observation of inmate actions will tell you most of what you need to know about them, their feelings, and their problems.

The four steps in Observing are:

1. Looking carefully
2. Making inferences about feelings, relationships, and energy level
3. Deciding normal/abnormal
4. Deciding trouble/no trouble

1. Looking at Behavior, Appearance and Environment. A "behavior" is a nonverbal cue provided by something that the inmate does while conscious and active. When observing an inmate, you should try to answer mental questions like "What's he doing right now?" (behavior). "How does she look?" "Where is he? and with whom?" "What's important about how she looks?" (appearance), "What's important about where he is and who he's with?" (environment). Once you're able to answer these questions, you're ready to draw some inferences about the inmate.

OBSERVING means looking at inmate behavior, appearances, and environment.

2. Drawing Inferences. Inferences are the initial conclusions you come to as the result of observing inmates. You take in visual cues related to inmate appearances, behavior and environment. These cues are really “clues” which show you something about inmate feelings, inmate relationships, inmate energy levels and inmate values. The more observations you make, the more inferences you can draw and the more accurate these inferences will be.

OBSERVING means drawing inferences about inmate feelings, relationships, energy levels and values.

Drawing Inferences About Feelings. The officer can use his observing skills to draw inferences about how an individual inmate or an entire unit is feeling. For example, you might use the feeling word “happy” to describe an inmate who is exercising and smiling. You might use the feeling word “tense” for an inmate who is pacing and wringing his hands.

Drawing Inferences About Relationships. Is he positive, negative or neutral about others? Besides being aware of the nonverbal cues that indicate the feelings of the inmate, the officer can further increase his effectiveness in correctional management by looking for cues that indicate the nature of the relationship between himself and the inmates and between the inmates themselves. In general, you can categorize relationships and feelings as positive, negative or neutral. Knowing the relationship between the officer and the inmate and between the inmates themselves is a good indicator of future action.

For example, among inmates, relationships of power are critical. A bumping between two friends means nothing, while a bumping between members of different groups can mean trouble.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Ask the class to describe behaviors and/or appearances that would tell them that two inmates have a negative relationship. Ask them what might happen as a result of these behaviors and/or appearances.

Ask the class to describe behaviors and/or appearances that would tell them that two inmates have a positive relationship.

Inferences About Energy Level. Energy level tells us a great deal about how much and what type of trouble an inmate can and/or will cause. For example, inmates with a low energy level are reluctant to initiate anything. Many inmates have a low energy level. They look and act defeated. Their movements are slow, their heads hang down and every move seems like an effort. These inmates spend a good part of their time sleeping. Inmates with moderate energy levels actively engage in most activities (playing cards, talking, eating) while high energy inmates not only participate in all that is required but also make use of physical fitness equipment and other optional activities. The danger of high energy, of course, is that this energy needs to be used constructively so that it does not become a source of danger. In general, it is important to keep all inmates occupied and involved in activities; but with high energy types, it is essential.

While it is important to observe basic levels of energy, changes in energy level are even more critical. Energy levels are usually constant for inmates except at special times (i.e. visiting hours, holidays). Changes from high to low or low to high may indicate trouble such as drugs or imminent violence (to self or others).

Inferences About Inmate Values. It is also important to understand what a given inmate values. Here is where observing inmate's environment comes in. Every inmate has three basic environments: the place where he lives (unit), the place where he works (shop) and the place where he learns (school). In each of these settings, the actual "environment" will include not only physical materials but people -- the people that the inmate prefers to be with. You can learn a great deal about an inmate by carefully observing his environment. A general rule is: what a person gives his energy to is of value to him; the more energy, the higher the value.

Reasons should be Observable, Concrete. The reasons for your inferences should be visual cues related to behaviors, appearances and environment. Inferences stand the best chance of being accurate if they are based on detailed and concrete observations rather than on vague and general ones. Inferences are based on your previous observations of behaviors and appearances. The more concrete you can be in describing the appearances to yourself and to others with whom you might share them, the more likely it is that your inferences will be correct.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Read the following incident to the class:

"November 10, 4:30 p.m., in the Yard. Shortly after visiting hours, a group of five large inmates approached a new, young inmate who was about 5'8", 125 lbs. They went up to him and surrounded him. One of the larger men put his arm around the young inmate's neck and shoulder and pulled him abruptly to him while looking directly into his face. The young inmate grimaced and tried to pull away. The group laughed. After a few minutes, the young inmate gave them something. He then pulled away, head down, barely moving."

Ask the class what they felt were the feelings of the young inmate, his relationship to the group, his energy level. Have them cite reasons for their inferences. (The reasons should be descriptions of the appearances and behaviors demonstrated.)

On the blackboard or flip chart write down for each:

Feeling: _____
Reason: _____

3. Deciding Whether Things Are Normal or Abnormal. Once you've been on the job awhile, of course, you get to know how individual inmates tend to function. One person is easy-going and hardly ever bothers others. A second always looks like he is mad at the world. A third always seems to be feeling sorry for himself. Your observations and the inferences you've drawn can help you determine whether a particular inmate is in a "normal" or an "abnormal" condition at any point in time. For example, if an inmate who normally expresses himself by threatening and yelling is seen threatening another inmate, you probably need exercise only the usual amount of caution. However, if the inmate issuing the threat is normally quiet and withdrawn, you'll know it's a potentially violent situation.

4. Deciding Whether There is Trouble/No Trouble. This decision should be based on your observations and your knowledge of prison life. With your knowledge of prison life in general, you should be able to generate certain principles that will be useful in making this decision (i.e. "birds of a feather flock together," A very depressed person usually withdraws from activities and other people, when 10% to 15% of a group of inmates are down, tense, or hostile, it can affect the entire group, Abrupt and/or major changes in behavior and/or major appearance means trouble, a person who has used a knife before in prison has a greater likelihood of stabbing someone else. OBSERVING means deciding whether it's a "trouble" or "no trouble" situation.

IV. LISTENING

Listening is the ability to hear and understand what inmates are saying. Listening helps you hear the danger signals from inmates while things are still at the verbal stage so you can take appropriate action to manage situations before they get out of hand.

The four steps in Listening are:

1. Suspend judgement
2. Pick out key words
3. Identify intensity
4. Reflect on mood

Verbal Cues and Signals

Inmates often go through a verbal stage before the action begins. If you can hear the danger signals, you can cut off the trouble before it really breaks out. Listening involves the officer's ability to hear and accurately recall all the important verbal cues used by inmates.

Complaints from inmates are common, of course -- but they're also important. An effective officer listens to complaints and recognizes when a familiar cue is uttered in a new tone -- or when a complaint arises from a usually uncomplaining inmate. An officer especially listens for changes: silence when there is usually noise (dining area); or noise when there is usually silence (3 a.m. in the housing unit). Once again, the officer asks himself the question: "Is there trouble here?"

One more preliminary thing: you can't listen effectively to an inmate or inmates if you've got other things on your mind. If you're thinking about home or other job responsibilities, you may miss a lot of what is said and what it really means. You've got to focus on the inmate to whom you're listening -- and this takes a good deal of concentration. You can work to develop this kind of concentration by reviewing what you're going to do and whom you're going to see before you assume your post.

1. Suspend Judgement. This is very difficult to do in relation to any inmate since society itself has passed judgement on him. Yet most officers agree that it's important to judge a person on what they do now in prison rather than on what was done on the outside. It is still hard at times to listen without immediate judgement because most of the inmates either complain about other inmates, the prison or you, or demand to be given something. Despite this, it will severely hurt your management efforts if you do not suspend judgement because you will never hear the real verbal cues you need to hear to prevent danger or assist someone.

LISTENING means suspending your own judgement temporarily so you can really hear what's being said.

2. Pick Out Key Words. There are key words and phrases to listen for. Here are a few; add some of your own: "kill," "depressed," using unflattering words that indicate a person is an ethnic minority, using terms that indicate a person is an informer, "you'll pay for this," "get out of here," "hostage." Of course, everything you hear and see must be considered in terms of who the inmate is that did or said it and in what context.

LISTENING means picking out key words and phrases like "get" or "knife" or "hide"

3. Identify Intensity. Statements are made with varying intensity (high, moderate and low). The louder and more emotional a statement, the more intense it is. But loudness and emotion are not the same thing. A wavering voice, for example, signals a lot of emotion even though it may not be loud. A statement that is either loud or emotional but not both is of moderate intensity. A statement that is not loud and is empty of emotion is of low intensity. High intensity statements are very real signs of danger.

LISTENING means determining whether the intensity of an inmate's speech is high, medium, or low.

4. Reflect On What The Mood is (positive, negative, neutral; and normal or abnormal) and Why. "Mood" here means, at the very simple level, what the inmates are feeling. One question you may ask to determine mood is "What kind of feelings are being expressed or implied (positive, negative, neutral)?" Another question you want to answer is "Is this mood normal or abnormal for this time and place?" Sure, there are exceptions. For example, a man can say "I'm going to kill you" quietly and without emotion yet still mean it. This is why it is important to know your men and to continue to observe and listen for other cues.

LISTENING means determining whether an inmate's mood is positive, negative or neutral, and whether this mood is normal or abnormal.

CONCLUSION

Being a correctional officer is never easy. But it's nearly impossible if all you have to go on is impulse and habit. Now you can start to put some real professionalism into your work. Sizing up the situation lets you use positioning, posturing, observing and listening to know when things are going smoothly -- and when they are not. And this in turn means being able to minimize risk and maximize your effectiveness on the job.

QUIZ

1. Describe, without benefit of notes, the four basic skills in sizing up the situation
2. List the three parts of good positioning
3. List the three steps in Posturing
4. List the four steps in Observing
5. List the four steps in listening
6. Define “normal” as opposed to “abnormal” in the context of sizing up the situation.

Answers to Quiz

1. Position, Posture, Observe, Listen
2. Distancing, Facing Squarely, Looking Directly
3. Standing erect, Eliminating Distracting Behaviors, Inclining Slightly Forward
4. Looking carefully, Making inferences about feelings, relationships and energy level, Deciding normal/abnormal, Deciding trouble/no trouble
5. Suspend judgement, Pick out key words, Identify intensity, Reflect on mood
6. “Normal” means “as it usually is”

LESSON PLAN 18 – Communicating With Inmates

Method of Instruction: Lecture, Discussion, Question and Answer

Time Frame: 2 Hours

Performance Objectives: At the conclusion of this block of instruction the student will:

1. Be able to identify and respond to the content of what inmates are saying
2. Be able to identify and respond to the feelings of the inmates you are working with
3. Be able to identify and respond to the meaning of what an inmate is feeling
4. Understand the skills and techniques of asking questions in a way that will help increase the chance of getting useful answers from inmates

INTRODUCTION

Although you see and hear inmates every working day, chances are you're never really sure what's going on inside them. At the most fundamental level, officers and inmates are all human beings. But many times it seems that the similarities stop right there. This is understandable, of course, since in the end it's obvious that inmates are not the same as officers. Yet the gulf between you and any one inmate may often be frustrating. In one way you feel that you know this inmate but in another way you're sure you don't. And knowing him is important. The better your understanding of any inmate, the more effective you can be in terms of inmate management.

Communications promotes understanding. When you choose to use the communication skills covered in this lesson, you will find out a great deal more about where individual inmates are. You can add to your understanding and action in ways that will help you defuse tension, decrease the chances of trouble and increase your ability to handle any and all situations more effectively.

As the material we will cover makes clear, responding to inmates means a good deal more than just answering a greeting -- although this, too, can be important. You need to take the initiative in developing effective responses. By the same token, asking relevant questions means more than a simple "What's going on?"

Remember what you have learned in previous lessons and use it as a base. You position yourself at the best possible distance; you posture yourself so as to communicate both confidence and real attention; you observe the inmate's appearance and behavior, using visual cues to draw inferences about his feelings, relationship with you and general energy level; and you listen carefully, making sure you take in all the key words and verbal indications of intensity so you can determine what the inmate's mood really is. Only after you have mastered and put to use those basic skills will you be able to use your communication skills effectively.

Communication skills involve a step-by-step approach. First you respond to the inmate. Then you ask any relevant questions you need to ask. Then you respond again, this time to the inmate's answers.

RESPONDING TO CONTENT

When responding to content, you are focusing on what the inmates are either saying or doing. Using what you have learned, you focus by positioning yourself for observing and/or listening to the inmates. Next you reflect on what you have seen and heard: “What are the inmates doing?” and “What is the inmate saying?” In answering both questions, stick close to what is actually going on and/or what is being said. Finally, after taking it all in and reflecting on it, you summarize what the inmates are saying or doing in your own words. You respond to the content by saying to an inmate either: “You look (it looks) _____” or “You’re saying _____.” (For example, “You look pretty busy” or “You’re saying you’re pretty busy.”)

You respond to content when you want more information to aid you in management. This may occur when you are interrogating an inmate or when you notice unusual behavior in an inmate or a group of inmates and would like to get some information from them about what they are doing. For example, you might notice a group of usually talkative inmates being very quiet. You could say to them: “You men seem pretty quiet today.” This gives them the opportunity to respond to you while also letting them know that you are observing them and observing them accurately. Unlike other approaches of getting information, responding to content doesn’t automatically put an inmate on the defensive.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Ask the class to give you examples of situations in which they might respond to content in order to get more information. Write the responses on the blackboard or flip chart.

Though it will not be effective with everyone, giving a person a chance to talk about things, by responding to the content of the person’s statements, can help some talk their problems out, or share it, rather than keeping it inside.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Pick a couple of students and give them a situation such as an inmate complains about a job request he made. Have one portray the inmate and the other respond to the content. Pick other students and give them other situations to “role play” -- you must have several written up in advance. You might have one or two that reflect officer-to-officer communications, such as an officer saying he has been waiting a very long time for a transfer to another job. This will show that we are talking about regular communications between people, not just something special for inmates.

RESPONDING TO FEELINGS

Responding to feelings is the ability to capture in words the specific feeling experience being presented by an inmate. By responding to, or reflecting back, the inmate’s feelings, you show that you understand that feeling. This encourages the inmate to talk, to release his feelings.

The two steps in responding to feelings are:

1. Reflect on feeling and intensity
2. Respond to feeling

Every person has feelings that affect what they say and do. The nature and strength of these feelings usually determine what a person is going to do. When you respond to an inmate’s feeling, you are reaching inside him and encouraging him to share himself with you.

Understanding can defuse bad feelings!

Showing you understand how a person feels can be even more powerful than showing you understand the content of his actions and/or words. Showing an inmate that you understand his negative feelings can usually defuse those negative feelings. By responding to feelings at the verbal or “symbolic” behavior level, you keep the inmate’s words from turning to action. Also, responding to feelings at a verbal level can give you the necessary clues to determine the man’s intention. If he quits talking after you have responded to his feelings, he is probably telling you that he is going to act on them; on the other hand, if he goes with it verbally, he is telling you that he wants to talk it out instead of acting on it.

Besides being able to defuse negative feelings so that words don’t become action, responding to feelings leads to greater understanding of, and by, the inmate. People, including inmates, can’t always link up their feelings with the situation and are often at a loss to understand where they are at. In addition, when you respond to positive feelings, these feelings get reinforced (unlike negative feelings). There is nothing mysterious about this. We don’t enjoy our negative feelings so we get rid of them by sharing them – “talking them out.” But we do enjoy our positive feelings. So they only become stronger when they’re shared with another person. You can begin to strengthen the positive feelings that will help an inmate to act more positively simply by recognizing and responding to these feelings. As a general rule, a person who feels positive about himself will try to do positive things while a person who feels negative about himself will try to do negative things. If you push this out into a general principle, you get “people tend to act in ways consistent with the way other people see them.” If you put together an inmate’s low self-image and the fact that others have a low image of him as well, you can predict that the inmate will act accordingly (negatively).

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Break the class down into several small groups and have them discuss among themselves personal examples of how they have reacted or seen others react to the way people have responded to them without regard for their feeling and with regard to their feelings and the different reaction they had to each situation. While the groups are talking, move from one to the other to let them know you are interested in their comments and to help keep them on track. However, don’t join in the discussions unless they are at a standstill or off the subject matter. Keep the discussion to about 15 minutes.

RESPONDING TO FEELING AND MEANING

Responding to feelings and meaning combines the two previous skills. Responding to feeling and meaning requires you to paraphrase the content of an inmate’s statement in such a way as to provide a meaningful reason for the inmate’s feeling.

The two steps in responding to feeling and meaning are:

1. Reflect on feeling and reason
2. Respond to feeling and meaning

Meaning is the reason for the feeling. Learning to respond to the content and how to respond to feeling has prepared you to respond to feeling and meaning. By adding meaning to the feeling you will help yourself and the inmate understand the reason for his feelings about the situation. The reason is simply the personal meaning for the inmate about what is happening. For example, an inmate in danger of being pulled into a fight when his record is clean and his parole is due might feel “scared” because “the fight could ruin my chances to get out.” The personal meaning of the potential fight for this inmate is that it might keep him in prison longer. That is the reason why he is scared.

By putting together the feeling and meaning and responding to both, you show the inmate you understand his experience as he presents it. This increases the chances of the inmate talking to you about the thing in which you are interested.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Pick two staff, assign one to play the part of the inmate and the other to play the part of the officer and have them read the following dialogue (have it on a sheet for each to read his or her part):

You set the scene by telling the class that in this example a hostile inmate is refusing to let an officer search his cell.

Inmate: "No way. You're not going to search this cell because of lies some informant told you about me."

Officer: "You feel angry because we're going to mess up your cell when there's nothing there."

Inmate: "That's right. I knew that informant was going to run to you to get me, but I told all the men that I'm not going to let anybody in here for no good reason."

Officer: "You feel tense because your reputation is on the line and you're going to make us take you out even if it costs you."

Inmate: "That's right. (Inmate then yells to other prisoners) You are not taking me!"

Have the group discuss what they see as the meaning of the feelings.

They should see that the inmate has backed himself into a corner with his peers and now he can't give up.

Ask the class how the officer should respond.

The officer might clear all the cells immediately around the inmate's cell and then tell the inmate that they are going to take him out physically so everybody can see, but that there's going to be no rough stuff.

Another example -- have the same or two other students take the parts of inmate and officer:

Inmate: "Why do I have to be in the kitchen? The steam and odors suffocate me."

Officer: "You feel concerned because the conditions over there are hard for you to work in."

Inmate: "Yes. I get this heavy feeling in my chest and I begin to wheeze after about thirty minutes. I know the kitchen supervisor thinks I'm pretending, but I need to get out of there!"

Officer: "You feel worried about your situation because you think something is wrong in your chest that the smells in the kitchen make worse and you can't convince the detail supervisor that you're telling him the truth."

Inmate: "Right, it's getting worse, all the time, and I don't know what to do."

Officer: "How about going to the infirmary in the morning to get it checked? The doctor can authorize a work detail change if he feels that your condition needs it."

Point out to the class that in this case, the officer understands clearly where the inmate is in the situation, where he wants (or needs) to be and is able to suggest a possible solution.

What we need to focus on here, of course, is an inmate's reason (personal meaning) for his feeling. Supplying the reason means you must understand why what happened is important. You do this by rephrasing the content in your own words to capture the importance. You are actually giving the reason for the feeling. In this way, you make the inmate's feeling clearer and more understandable. It is also important to capture whether the inmate is seeing himself as responsible or seeing someone else as responsible. Your response should reflect where he sees the responsibility in the beginning, even though you may not agree. By doing this you will have a better chance of opening him up. You can always disagree when it becomes necessary and effective to do so.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

A final exercise for group discussion

Set the following scene for the class: An inmate has been an informant for a particular officer until the day the inmate suspected that word had leaked out about his activities. He confronted the officer, his eyes narrowed and his hands trembling. He tells the officer, "You promised you wouldn't tell! Now they know about me. You really ruined me!"

Have the class supply the reason for the inmate's feeling. What does his situation really mean to him? Who is he blaming? Why is all of this so important to him?

Note: Make sure the class understands that to understand what's going on, you have to forget that the officer may not have leaked anything; forget that if the officer did tell someone he had reasons to do so; forget the inmate's tone and language. Have the class respond to what this means to the inmate. Have them formulate a response.

ASKING QUESTIONS

You ask questions in order to get useful answers. Some questions get better answers than others: the skill of asking questions will help you increase your information and hence your ability to manage inmates well.

The three techniques in asking questions are:

1. Asking for the relevant details
2. Thinking about what was said or not said
3. Responding to the answers

1. Asking for the relevant details. This involves the following five key words:

Where were you?
Who were you with?
Why were you there?
When did this happen?
How was it handled?

These key words help you get all of the relevant details. The more details you know, the better you can understand what is going on.

2. Thinking about what was said or not said. It's not enough just to ask good questions. You also have to be able to make sense out of the answers you get (and recognize as well, perhaps, the answers you're still not getting). An inmate may be giving you the information you need to manage things or even to provide assistance. He may be telling you as best he can and still not giving you all the information you need. Or he may be covering something up, which means that he is still not fully open, still not really communicating with you.

In thinking about the inmate's answer to your question, you can consider four specific things:

- a. How the inmate looks as he answers -- relaxed, uncomfortable
- b. What he is doing while he answers -- facing you and making eye contact, looking away, looking down at his feet
- c. What he actually said -- the informational content of his answer
- d. What he may have failed to say -- any "gaps" in the way his answer fits with your questions

By reflecting on these four areas of concern, you can make sure that you fully understand all the implications of the inmate's answer. Once you've responded to this answer, you can ask additional questions to get the rest of the information you need.

3. Responding to answers. Responding to answers means reflecting back to the inmate what he has said in terms of content, feeling and/or meaning -- all the skills you learned previously. Responding opens up the inmate and gives you a chance to make sure you understand what is being said. It also builds up trust with the inmate. For these reasons, you should always try to respond to an inmate's actions or words at the highest possible level before and after you actually start asking questions. Questions then fill in the depth of the picture. Often details (reasons) come from responding skills alone. If they do not, questions are appropriate. It's as simple as that.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

For each of the following situations, have the class first make a response, then ask an appropriate question:

1. You have found an inmate with lots of extra candy and commissary items in his cell. You know he couldn't have enough money of his own to purchase all that he has. When you ask about all the items he has, the inmate says, the following:

a. "Can't a person buy some things without being prosecuted? I used my own money to buy these things. I've been saving these items for a while. You just haven't looked before. A person can't even take care of himself here. Why don't you find something else to do?"

Respond: "You feel _____ because _____."

Questions (Where, Who, Why, What, When, How):

“ _____ ”

b. "I know I'm addicted to the stuff. I know it's killing me."

Respond: "You feel _____ because _____."

Questions (Where, Who, Why, What, When, How):

_____.”

c. “School is really moving. I read my first novel the other day.
Really good stuff. I never knew reading could be exciting.”

Respond: “You feel _____ because _____.”

Questions (Where, Who, Why, What, When, How):

_____.”

CONCLUSION

When you learn to initiate meaningful communications in order to improve your management responsibilities, the payoffs are always good for all concerned.

QUIZ

1. Communication skills involve responding to content and responding to _____ and _____.
2. Name the five key words used to help determine what questions to ask.

Answers to Quiz

1. Feelings and meaning
2. Where, Who, Why, What, When, How

Supplement to LESSON PLAN 18

COMMUNICATION

The job of a Correctional Officer involves communicating with a wide variety of people. The good Correctional Officer must also be a good communicator.

Communications is what we do to build understanding between ourselves and others. It is a process which involves transmitting from one person or group to another:

facts

ideas

opinions

feelings

A more exact definition is: Communication is the process by which an individual transmits stimuli to modify the behavior of other individuals.

The communication process

The communication process involves the following aspects:

sender (person who begins the process)

receiver (person who responds to the process)

Message (words, gestures etc.)

method (voice, written, visual) noise (diminishing or distorted signal)

Feedback (giving each other message about how each other is going).

In one-way communication, the receiver does not, or cannot, give an indication to the sender of what he thinks of the signal. The best type of communication is two-way, and involves:

- Feedback (a signal from the receiver back to the sender, giving some indication of what the receiver thought of the sender's original signal).

What techniques/methods can a person use to get their message across?

What are the major reasons communication fails?

What are the consequences of poor communication by a Correctional Officer?

Two common types of Communication

There are 2 types of communication which are so important to people that must be good communicators, that they are worthy of special mention.

These two are:

Face-to-face oral (or spoken)

Written

(a) Face to face oral or spoken

ADVANTAGESDISADVANTAGES

- . face-to-face, direct, one sees the other
- . cheap, no equipment needed
- . immediate, instantaneous
- . flexible, adjustable, variable
- . feedback is easy, opportunity for query
- . personal, warm, allows social contact
- . irrelevancies, asides often included
- . often wrong sequence, words flow out as they come into mind
- . often too much information given, often lengthy
- . opinions are often given as facts
- . no permanent record

(b) Written

ADVANTAGESDISADVANTAGES

- . permanent record
- . can be written (and read) at leisure
- . good for presenting certain types of information e.g. lists, tables, diagrams
- . often cold, impersonal bureaucratic
- . slow

- . may not reach person for whom intended
- . hoarding is possible

Barriers to Communication

There are many possibilities for creating obstacles to good communication. Some of these are:

Factors within people

Age, background, accent, familiarity with topic, training, knowledge, poor sight, speech or hearing, preconceptions, bad listening technique, status differences, ability to absorb material, different frames of reference, emotional states, past experience of similar situations, the context in which the communication takes place, prejudices, lack of interest, distrust between sender and receiver.

Nature of signal

Ambiguity or vagueness, slang or jargon, unfamiliarity, idiosyncratic expressions, the meaning we attach to words.

(c) Method

Inappropriate method e.g. sending visual signal under conditions of poor illuminating, or when people not watching.

(d) Noise

Noise, distractions, physical obstacles, communication over long distances, technological faults.

(e) Inadequate feedback

One-way communication, partial or incomplete feedback, feedback which is ignored.

(f) Organizational factors

Ill-defined lines of communicating, communication blockages and bottle-necks, "lines loss" through too many levels of communication and filters, one-way communication (from management down), lack of encouragement for upward communication.

Results of communication Failures

Poor communication benefits no-one. Some of the results of bad communication are:

poor training misunderstanding, friction, frustration purpose not accomplished general dissatisfaction

BODY LANGUAGE

Body language is the term used for the method of communicating feelings or emotions (usually unconsciously) without speaking and through body movements alone.
A lot of our judgments about people and things are based on our perceptions of what is communicated without words.

Often interpretations of body language may be right. Other times you may be wrong and the results can be disastrous. It is especially important to be cautious when dealing with people from different cultural backgrounds.

When interpreting body language remember the four 'C's'

Content
Cluster
Contact Culture

ASPECTS OF BODY LANGUAGE

EYE CONTACT in most communication situations eye contact is direct but not staring, glaring or staring eye contact can often indicate anger or resentment. No eye contact or downcast eyes may indicate nervousness. However, this may not be the case with all cultures. Bad eye contact can show shiftiness or deceit.

POSTURE by leaning slightly forward or standing relaxed a listener usually indicates interest in a topic or conversation

DISTANCE most people feel comfortable at a certain distance from another person when communicating. In Western cultures this distance is approximately 1 Meter. A closer distance may intimidate and any further away may lead to environmental distractions

FACIAL EXPRESSIONS have to be congruent with the message being communicated e.g. it would be inappropriate to smile or laugh when a sad story has just been told.

STANCE facing the other person and standing with your shoulders square to them indicates a strong interest and minimizes distractions.

DISTRACTING BEHAVIOUR - such behaviors as:

Clicking a biro
Twisting hair
Picking ears
Finger tapping
Doodling on paper
Fidgeting
Yawning
Looking at wrist watch etc.

Are examples of behaviors that may detract from the message being sent or received

SOME FEELINGS CONVEYED THROUGH BODY LANGUAGE

Some common feelings include:

(NEGATIVE)	(POSITIVE)
Anger	* Alert
Sadness	* Interest
Depression	* Concerned
Nervousness	* Happy
Frustration	* Confident
Distress	* Consideration
Anxious	* Respect
Tired
Uninterested

Each of these feelings mentioned beforehand normally would be displayed using the non-verbal cues behavior of:

Eye contact
Posture
Distance
Stance
Facial expression
Distracting behavior

For example

AGGRESSION

Glaring eyes
Rigid posture
Invasion of personal space (very close)
Leaning forward
Screwed up face (clenched teeth)
Tapping, pacing, pounding on desk

2) LISTENING	INTERNTLY	DISINTEREST
1. Eye contact	- direct, but not staring	- looking away
2. Posture	- upright relaxed	- slouching, crossing arm
3. Distance	- comfortable 1 meter)	- too far away
4. Stance	- leaning forward	- leaning back
5. Facial expression	- calm yet expressive	- fixed expression
6. Distracting behavior	- nil	- fidgeting

VOICE USAGE

The tone and quality the voice are important aspects of communication, whether it be face to face communication or taking over the telephone.

Your voice can convey more than you imagine:

A voice can reveal insecurity and lack of confidence
It can display arrogance
It can repel, discourage and help form wrong impressions

On the other hand
A voice can express friendliness
It can express confidence
It can inspire and motivate

Voices are a good index to certain human characteristics. The weak, apologetic voice, the loud, harsh, boisterous, bellowing voice – all tell something about the speaker.

ASPECTS OF VOICE USAGE THAT WILL INFLUENCE MEANING

TONE

If your tone is inappropriate (e.g. if you sound bored, off-hand, insensitive, patronizing, judgmental etc) it won't matter what you say – the receiver of information will react to your tone, not your words.

EMPHASIS

Variation in the pitch and inflection of your voice and placement of emphasis on key words, phrases and concepts, conveys interest and commitment to the message.

CLARITY

Keeping your voice clear, and at the appropriate volume (i.e. not too soft or loud), so it is audible but not distracting, ensures that more attention is given to the message.

FLUENCY

Keeping your voice fluent with not too many gaps or “ums” and “aahs” that may break the continuity of the message reduces the irritation, and assists in maintaining attention.

WHAT ARE SOME KEY RULES FOR GOOD COMMUNICATION IN A TRAINING CONTEXT?

WHAT WILL YOU NEED TO DO TO BE A BETTER COMMUNICATOR?

LISTENING SKILLS

Listening is a skill we develop in early life but most of us end up as poor listeners. Even worse, as we age we become less effective listeners.

It is worth noting the difference between listening and hearing. Hearing is a physiological, passive action, whereas listening is a psychological, action involving analysis by the brain.

The following is a list of some useful listening tips which if practiced can make your listening more effective.

EFFECTIVE LISTENING TIPS

Concentrate on what the speaker is saying and listen for the main ideas.

2. Listen for the facts (content) and feelings expressed in the message i.e. Notice the taker's tone and emotions.
3. Be aware of the non verbal communication i.e. the body language. Often what is said in words is not what is conveyed by body language. (This is the truth).
4. Selectively attend to what you are hearing and ignore other sounds or conversations going on around you.
5. Leave your emotions out of it. Listen without responding with your emotions.
6. Accept/listen actively to what you hear even if you think you have heard it before (it's familiar to you), it's all too new (unfamiliar), it's too simple or unimportant (trivial), or if you think it will be all too hard to understand.
7. Avoid interrupting the speaker when you think you have heard enough to respond. Try to refrain from answering too soon- it disrupts the flow of what the speaker has to say.
8. Forget about formulating your own argument against the speaker's points before the statement is finished and you fully understand what is said.
9. Be attentive, maintain an appropriate a body posture (face the taker, give frequent nods, be relaxed) and maintain eye contact worth staring.
10. Check the accuracy of what you think you have heard. Do this by paraphrasing the message (putting into your words what you think was said). Make sure you include both the main ideas AND the feelings expressed (from tone and body language).

INTERPERSONAL SKILLS

Being a Correctional Officer involves working with and relating to people.
An Officer needs to develop and practice their interpersonal relationship skills.

How should an officer treat Prisoners?

What are the most important people skills a Correctional Officer should possess and demonstrate?

e.g. patience, being sensitive, non-aggressive, encouraging, open, approachable, non-critical, persuasive, flexible, good listener, tactful.

LESSON PLAN 19 – 1Controlling Inmate Behavior

Method of Instruction: Lecture, Discussion, Question and Answer

Time Frame: 2 Hours

Performance Objectives: At the conclusion of this block of instruction the student will:

1. Be able to define what “control” means when used in the context of “controlling inmates”
2. Learn the steps to follow in handling inmate request
3. Learn how to reinforce behavior using both verbal and non-verbal techniques

Training Aides Required: Blackboard or flip chart

INTRODUCTION

Controlling behavior simply means taking charge. This is what it’s all about in an institution. Without the ability to control behavior, all the other efforts are wasted. An officer has to do everything he can to ensure appropriate behavior: first in the interest of the institution and himself, then in the interest of the inmate. The same holds true for the inmate. Learning to control his own behavior is in his own interest. Control of inmate behavior leads to a secure institution. Inmate self-control leads the inmate to success. Without control, nothing productive can occur.

Controlling inmate behavior is an applied activity, not a philosophical exercise. In this lesson we will concentrate on three specific application skills:

1. Handling inmate requests
2. Making requests of inmates
3. Reinforcing behavior

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Pick two students, one to play the part of the inmate, the other the part of the officer.

The instructor should describe a scene in which an inmate requests something that will be difficult to grant -- examples might be an extra visit or to be allowed to work an easier job or to have some items not allowed other prisoners.

Have the class analyze the way the officer handled the situation and ask them to explain why control is important for inmate management. Then ask them to discuss what the inmate gains when he learns to control his own behavior. Help them end with an appropriate resolution and then point out the following:

In the case above, the officer exerted control through skill, not force. He didn’t demean or put down, he didn’t use sarcasm. You will note, however, that included in his skills were firmness and reasons for his actions. There was no weakness. The inmate now knows what he is expected to do and why. The officer was even able to continue to be responsive to the inmate when the inmate became irritated. The use of skill gets that job done and increases the probability that the inmate will feel he has been treated fairly even if he has to have his routine interrupted.

HANDLING REQUESTS

Handling requests is the ability to manage inmate requests in a fair and effective manner. The skillful handling of requests helps build trust and reduce tension in the institution. It is also a good inmate management technique.

The two steps in handling requests are:

1. Check things out
2. Give response and reason

RULES, REGULATIONS AND INMATE RIGHTS

Before we turn to the skills involved in handling an inmate's requests, we should spend a minute reviewing the way in which institutional rules and regulations often relate to the specific things to which an inmate does -- and does not -- have a right.

Although times are changing rapidly, each officer and each institution is bound by certain legal and institutional requirements to provide certain things to the inmates. Most of these things are seen to be basic rights and/or needs to which the inmate is entitled. Your institution probably has some written regulations (not always up-to-date ones) to guide you in these areas. Abiding by these rights and needs usually enables an officer to establish a working relationship with most of the inmates. There is always 10% to 20% who react negatively no matter what you do. But by following the regulations, you can fairly expect the inmate to do what is expected of him. You have taken away his excuse for negative behavior, even in the eyes of the other inmates who want to see you as the aggressor and the inmates as the victim. When you attend effectively to the inmates, you have fulfilled your basic obligations to make the institution and the inmates more fair.

1. Checking out the inmate and situation. It goes without saying that you are and will be bombarded by requests from inmates. Some will be legitimate, some not. Even if you ignore the request, you have responded to it; and some consequence will occur which can affect your management and control of inmates.

If you find this hard to believe, put yourself in a situation where you want your shift supervisor to consider one of your own requests and he ignores you. How do you feel? What message would it communicate if it happened often? What might be the consequences of it on your behavior?

Before you respond to any inmate request, you need to use your basic skills to check the inmate out. Is he telling you the truth or attempting to get by with something? You also need to check out the situation in terms of any rules or regulations that might apply. Using your positioning, observing, listening and responding skills will be invaluable to you here. As you practice, this will become very clear to you.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Read the following situation to the class, then have them describe how they would check them out. Write their responses on the blackboard or flip chart.

Inmate request: "Officer Smith, I feel sick. My stomach is real upset and I've been sweating more than usual. Can I go to the infirmary?"

What skills would be important to use in this situation?

What rules or regulations must be considered?

Another inmate makes this request five minutes before count:

Inmate request: "Officer Susic, may I run over to the workshops? I left my hat in the toilet and it will be stolen if I don't get it."

What skills would be important to use in this situation?

What rules or regulations must be considered?

2. Responding with a reason for your decision. The new skill here involves indicating the action you're going to take -- your decision -- and giving the inmate your reason. Giving the inmate a good reason is not a sign of weakness. On the contrary, it is the best way in which to minimize future gripes. If you turn the inmate down, he won't be able to complain that you didn't even tell him why. And if you grant his request, he'll know that it was just for this one situation for a good and clear reason.

Basically, an officer has three possible avenues of action in relation to an inmate's request. In each case he should give some reason for his action.

"Yes, I'll do _____ because _____."

"No, I won't do _____ because _____."

"I'll look into _____ because _____."

In each instance, the officer bases his intent on the laws and the regulations of the institution. In cases where inmates need or request something beyond what they are entitled to by law and regulation, each inmate's behavior (past and present), what is asked for, the way it is asked for and the information you have gained by checking things out should determine your responses. For example, an inmate might ask, "Can I have a phone call?" "No, I can't allow you to have a call because you are entitled to only one per month and extra calls are only possible through the counselor (or social worker)."

While an officer may have an option in a case like the one just mentioned, some things -- like an inmate's food -- cannot be withheld. You may have other options for an abusive inmate who demands his meals (i.e. you can write a disciplinary report) but you can't deny him his food. Knowing the law and regulations of your institution will definitely make your job easier.

Taking care of basic needs is a "must" in any relationship. It would be very hard for an inmate to believe you wanted to communicate and assist him if you did not attend to his basic needs -- that is, if you did not give him what he was entitled to.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

While you write the responses on the blackboard or flip chart, have the inmates name legitimate requests an inmate could make. Then have them list non-legitimate requests an inmate might make. Have them explain why they are legitimate or not legitimate. In those they name as legitimate have them specify which ones are basic rights.

MAKING REQUESTS

Making requests is the ability to manage inmates by making specific requests of them. Making requests skillfully improves the chances that inmates will cooperate and more readily carry out your requests.

The two steps involved in making requests are:

1. Check things out
2. Take appropriate action

The two procedures involved in making requests in an effective way are checking things out (using the same procedures as when you are handling inmate requests) and taking appropriate action. As before, you need to check things out to ensure that you don't make the wrong move -- a move that might increase tension rather than calm things down. Once you've done this, you can decide whether the best action will involve a simple request, an order or even direct physical action.

1. Checking things out. Since the procedures here will be the same as those involved in handling inmate requests, there's no need to go back over them at length. Here, however, your aim should be to understand the whole situation involving the inmate whom you plan to have do something. Is he with his friends? If so, what's his probable relationship with them? Will he feel he's losing face if you give him an order and therefore react antagonistically? By using your basic sizing up skills and your responding skills if there's any tension in the air, you can make sure that whatever action you take in making your request will be effective.

2. Taking action. In taking action to get an inmate to do something, you will remember that you have to be specific. You should identify what you want done and when. Telling an inmate in this manner keeps you clean. You've put it right out there for him and anybody else to see. Many officers have found a polite request is most effective in getting an inmate to do what he is told. A mild, polite request can take the form of "Would you please _____." or it can take the form "I would appreciate it if you would _____."

Because inmates will frequently resent authority if you are simply telling them to do something, you may have fewer problems if you use a mild request format. Examples might be "I'd like you to do _____." or "Would you stop _____." You can soften the statement more by using polite words. For example, "I'd like you to please stop _____."

What format you use for making a request will depend on the situation and the particular inmate. Of course, if an inmate abuses the mild method, you are always free to move to a stronger position including a direct order. As indicated above, the point is to get the job done -- to have the inmate do what you want. Most experienced officers agree that it is generally easier if direct confrontations are avoided.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Relate the following example and let the class react to it in by making comments or asking questions.

"You come across an inmate who is in a place where he should not be. You position yourself so that you can see him but he cannot see you. You watch for a little while because he appears to be doing nothing else wrong. Then you move into position so he can also see you. You approach cautiously -- if he is contemplating an escape, he may have a weapon. As you approach, you recognize the inmate as a new man. He makes no sudden moves. In fact he gives you a greeting:

“Hello, Officer.” You give him the benefit of the doubt in the sense that you are open to what he is going to say. The inmate is a new inmate and you haven’t seen or heard anything to make you intensify your security efforts.

Your respond to content: “Hi, _____. You seem to have drifted off from the rest of the men.”

Inmate: “I guess so, I just wanted to get off by myself for a while.”

Your respond to feeling and content: “I see. I guess you can get a feeling of being closed in sometimes around here, but you can’t drift off to this area because it’s unauthorized.”

Inmate: “I didn’t realize that.”

You make a request: “Yes, I’d like you to move back away from the gate and nearer the group now.”

There are times when you want to start right out with a direct order or take immediate action. Give me some examples of when you would give an order or take immediate action without making it a request. Give me the reasons why you would do this.

REINFORCING BEHAVIOR

Reinforcing behavior is the ability to administer punishments and rewards effectively. Showing inmates the consequences -- either positive or negative -- of their actions will help you control their behavior.

The two parts of reinforcing behavior are:

1. Reinforcing positively and negatively
2. Using verbal and non-verbal techniques

The only reason people do things is because of the consequences (positive or negative) of doing it or not doing it. Behavior only changes when there are consequences. For the most part, an inmate has been rewarded during his life for bad behavior. For instance, most inmates commit several crimes before they get caught. The inmate doesn’t realize that not getting caught or being let off easy is not really in his best interest. In addition to the rewards for negative behavior, most inmates live in a world where being honest and decent is seen as negative and weak. To turn this crazy picture around, institutions and officers must be sure to reward (or punish) the appropriate behaviors. Also, the punishments and rewards themselves have to be appropriate. That is, the inmate has to experience an action as a reward or a punishment. The reward must also be seen as worth the price and the punishment as equal to the deed to be effective in changing behavior. If you send a man to isolation as punishment and he ends up with a private cell and no loss of privileges, you may not really be punishing him. In fact, you may actually be rewarding a negative behavior. In a prison setting, the inmate is always testing to find out what his limits are and who is really in control. Many inmates want to know “How much do I have to do wrong before somebody tells me to stop?” Once an inmate knows who is really in control, he will reduce his testing behavior. The result is that the inmate is in your control instead of you being in the inmate’s control.

There are essentially two kinds of reinforcement: verbal and non-verbal. Rather than dealing with these separately, we will consider them together.

HANDLING REINFORCEMENT

You have several options for giving verbal reinforcements. If a warning is appropriate, you can use a format such as “If you do not do _____ then _____ will happen.” If a warning is not appropriate, the format would be “Since you have (name the behavior), then (name the consequences).” Another kind of reinforcement is just personally expressing your approval of the inmate’s behavior. The format here would be “That’s really a helpful thing” or “_____, this place is looking good.”

FORCE IS RISKY!

Non-verbal reinforcement (physical force) should only be used where there is a threat of physical harm to you, to the inmate himself or to other inmates. The risk of such reinforcement is too high and it should be used as a last alternative.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Provide the following information and examples and have the class discuss them.

An all too real example of this happened when an officer was told by an informant that an inmate had a knife in his cell. The officer went to the cell and called the inmate out so he could search the cell. The inmate appeared reluctant, so the officer grabbed him and pulled him out. The inmate had the knife hidden in his shirt and stabbed the officer in the back. The officer should have thought the situation over before attempting to get the inmate out of his cell. Instead, he got caught up in his need to negatively reinforce the inmate with physical force.

Reinforcements are not threats. You never threaten what you won’t and/or can’t do; and you never give consequences which you don’t intend to follow through on. When you reinforce negatively, you are not setting up a challenge. You are only making clear where it’s at and what will happen (what the inmate is going to force you to do or what you are required to do). You can’t reinforce if you are out of control. When you are out of control, you can only threaten. And this puts the inmate in control. Your manner and tone of voice should be firm but calm. For example, you might say, “I’m giving you a direct order to stop. If you do not, then I’m going to have to write up a disciplinary action on you.”

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

While you list them on the blackboard or flip chart, have the class name some of the punishments you can administer and/or take part in personally and the behavior for which you might give them.

POSITIVE REINFORCEMENT

It’s just as important to positively reinforce or reward good behavior as it is to negatively reinforce or punish poor behavior. In fact, trouble can sometimes get started simply because an officer doesn’t know how to keep things going as well as they have been going! The effective officer knows which men are handling things well and does everything possible to keep them on track. In addition, he positively reinforces even occasional good work by men who may mess up at other times. This officer may tell the man who always works well, “glad to see you’re doing your usual fine job, Ben -- I know I can always count on you.” This sort of verbal reinforcement helps the man keep going in a constructive direction. The officer may also call “Way to go, Bill” to an inmate who has just done his first positive thing of the day. The officer knows it’s important for this inmate to recognize when he’s on track -- just as he has to realize when he’s off the track as well.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

While you list them on the blackboard or flip chart, have the class indicate some positive reinforcements (rewards) they can personally give and/or take part in and the behavior for which they would give them.

CONCLUSION

We've talked a lot about security and management in this and the last two lessons. These are obviously the most important aspects of your work. You may wonder why we haven't brought up the familiar matter of inmate rehabilitation. We chose to pass over this matter for a very simple reason: there's no point in making promises you can't keep. And at this point it would be foolish to promise any officer that he or she could learn all that is needed to completely rehabilitate even one inmate, never mind an entire population of them.

But we can make a promise: the skills you have learned in this and the last two lessons are the first step toward meaningful rehabilitation of inmates. This means that you have done more than master specific methods of managing inmate populations. This also means that you have more than you have suspected to be proud of.

You've developed professional skills to do a professional's job. The cornerstone of what we have been talking about is decency. Simple human decency! You've got a job to do. But in doing it, you've learned how you can handle inmates like the human beings they are.

QUIZ

1. Define the term “control” when used to indicate “controlling inmates.”
2. What is the first step in handling inmate requests?
3. What does the term “reinforcing behavior” mean?

Answers to Quiz

1. Control means to “taking charge”
2. Make sure that it is legitimate or not. That means that it does not violate any rules or regulations and that the request itself is for a proper purpose.
3. Reinforcing behavior is the ability to administer punishment and rewards effectively.

LESSON PLAN 20 – First Aid and Health Promotion

INSTRUCTOR’S NOTES:

THIS LESSON PLAN SHOULD BE COMPLETED IN CONJUNCTION WITH THE RED CROSS, RED CRESCENT SOCIETY, PRISON OR OTHER MEDICAL PERSONNEL. ITEMS SHOULD BE INCLUDED AS DETERMINED BY THE ROLE OF THE INSTITUTION (I.E. EMERGENCY CHILDBIRTH IN SOME FEMALE PRISONS AND JAILS) OR BY THE CONSULTING MEDICAL STAFF

Method of Instruction: Lecture, demonstration, video presentations

Time Frame: 8 Hours

Performance Objectives: At the conclusion of this block of instruction the student will:

1. Know what is expected of him or her during a medical emergency
2. Know how to apply basic life saving first aid
3. Understand the basic concepts of good health and how to encourage it

Training Aides Required: First Aid kit, video presentation equipment, black board or flip chart

INTRODUCTION

The government of Bosnia and Herzegovina requires that during every emergency an organized effort be made to protect employees, inmates and the public from further injury and to minimize property damage. All prison resources can be made available to respond to an emergency. Each prison employee must know what to do during an emergency in their area and what his or her role is.

No Loitering: Each employee not involved in the emergency must stay away from the scene and follow the instructions issued by the person in charge. Employees must not reenter an area that they have evacuated until notified by management that it is safe to return.

Employee Responsibilities:

- A. If there is a further threat of injury or exposure to hazardous materials, remove all injured persons, if possible, and leave the immediate vicinity. If there is no threat of further injury or exposure, leave seriously injured persons where they are.
- B. Report the emergency immediately. State what happened, the specific location, what injury has occurred and your name and where you can be reached.
- C. Proceed with first aid or attempt to control the incident to the extent of your training.
- D. Show the ranking emergency response officer or medical personnel where the incident occurred, inform them of the hazards associated with the area, the status of any injured persons and any other information that will help avoid further injury. Follow the instructions of the trained emergency responder.

BASIC LIFE SUPPORT PROCEDURES AND TECHNIQUES

THE BASIC SKILL SCAN CONSISTS OF:

R = IS THE PERSON RESPONSIVE?

A = IS THE AIRWAY OPEN?

B = IS THE PERSON BREATHING?

C = IS THERE CIRCULATION AT THE CAROTID PULSE?

H = IS THERE HEMORRHAGE - SEVERE BLEEDING?

IT WILL BE REFERRED TO DURING THE LESSONS AS THE “ABCHs”

1. ADULT RESCUE BREATHING and CPR (Procedure if the heart stops beating)
 - a. Check responsiveness
 - i. If head or neck injury is suspected, move the person only if absolutely necessary.
 - ii. Tap or gently shake victim’s shoulder
 - iii. Shout near victim’s ear . . . “Are you all right?”
 - b. Call for help
 - i. Ask a bystander to call the medical or emergency staff
 - ii. If alone, shout for help.
 - c. Roll the person onto their back
 - i. Gently roll victim’s head, body, and legs over at the same time. Do this without further injuring the victim.
 - d. Open airway (use head-tilt/chin-lift method)
 - i. Place hand nearest victim’s head on victim’s forehead and apply backward pressure to tilt head back.
 - ii. Place fingers of other hand under bony part of jaw near chin and lift. Avoid pressing on soft tissues under jaw.
 - iii. Tilt head backward without closing victim’s mouth.
 - iv. Do not use your thumb to lift the chin.
 - v. If you suspect a neck injury do not move victim’s head or neck. First try lifting ching without tilting the head back. If breaths do not go in, slowly and gently bend the head back until breaths can go in.
 - e. Check for breathing
 - i. Place your ear over victim’s mouth and nose while keeping airway open.
 - ii. Look at victim’s chest to check for rise and fall: listen and feel for breathing.
 - f. Give 2 slow breaths
 - i. Keep head tilted back with head-tilt/chin-tilt to keep airway open
 - ii. Pinch nose shut
 - iii. Take a deep breath and seal your lips tightly around victim’s mouth.
 - iv. Give 2 slow breaths, each lasting 1 ½ to 2 seconds (you should take a breath after each breath given to the victim).
 - v. Watch the chest rise to see if your breaths go in.
 - vi. Allow for chest deflation after each breath.
 - vii. If neither of these 2 breaths went in retilt the head and try 2 more breaths. If still unsuccessful, suspect choking, also known as foreign body airway obstruction (use Unconscious Adult Foreign Body Airway Obstruction Procedures)
 - viii. If you cannot use victims mouth (i.e. injured, teeth clenched, etc.) Seal your lips around victim’s nose and breathe into nose. Remove your mouth to allow exhalation.
 - g. Check for pulse
 - i. Maintain head-tilt with hand nearest head on forehead.

- ii. Locate Adam's apple with 2 or 3 fingers of hand nearest victim's feet.
- iii. Slide your fingers down into groove of neck on side closest to you (do not use your thumb because you may feel your own pulse).
- iv. Feel for carotid pulse (take 5 - 10 seconds). Carotid artery is used because it lies close to the heart and is accessible.
- h. Perform rescue procedures based on what you found:
 - i. If there is a pulse but no breathing give one rescue breath (mouth-to-mouth resuscitation) every 5 to 6 seconds. Use the same techniques for rescue breathing found in step F above but only give one. Every minute (10 to 12 breaths) stop and check the pulse to make sure there is a pulse. Continue until:
 - (1) Adult starts breathing on his or her own OR until
 - (2) Trained help, such as emergency medical technicians, arrive and relieve you OR until
 - (3) You are completely exhausted.
 - ii. If there is no pulse, give CPR
 - (1) Find hand position
 - (a) Use your fingers to slide up rib cage edge nearest you to notch at end of sternum.
 - (b) Place your middle finger on or in the notch and index finger next to it.
 - (c) Put heel of other hand (one closest to victim's head) on sternum next to index finger.
 - (d) Remove hand from notch and put it on top of hand on chest.
 - (e) Interlace, hold, or extend fingers up
 - (2) Do 15 compressions
 - (a) Place your shoulders directly over your hands on the chest.
 - (b) Keep arms straight and elbows locked.
 - (c) Push sternum straight down 1 ½ to 2 inches.
 - (d) Do 15 compressions at 80 per minute. Count as you push down: "one and, two and, three and, four and, five and, six and, seven and . . . fifteen and."
 - (e) Push smoothly; do not jerk or jab; do not stop at the top or at the bottom.
 - (f) When pushing, bend from your hips, not knees.
 - (g) Keep fingers pointing across victim's chest, away from you.
 - (3) Give 2 slow breaths
 - (4) Complete 4 cycles of 15 compressions and 2 breaths (takes about 1 minute) and check the pulse. If there is no pulse, restart CPR with chest compressions. Recheck the pulse every few minutes. If there is a pulse, give rescue breathing.
 - (5) Give CPR or rescue breathing until:
 - (a) Victim revives OR
 - (b) Trained help arrives and relieves you OR
 - (c) You are completely exhausted.

2. CONSCIOUS ADULT FOREIGN BODY AIRWAY OBSTRUCTION (CHOKING)--if the person is conscious and cannot speak, breathe, or cough . . .

- a. Give up to 5 abdominal thrusts (Heimlich maneuver):
 - i. Stand behind the victim.
 - ii. Wrap your arms around victim's waist. (Do not allow your forearms to touch ribs.)
 - iii. Grasp fist with your other hand.
 - iv. Press fist into victim's abdomen with 5 quick upward thrusts.
 - v. Each thrust should be a separate and distinct effort to dislodge the object.

- vi. After each 5 abdominal thrusts, check the victim and your technique.
- vii. For advanced pregnant women and obese victims, consider using chest thrusts.
- b. Repeat cycles of up to 5 abdominal thrusts until:
 - i. Victim coughs up object OR
 - ii. Victim becomes unconscious (call for help and start methods for an unconscious victim with finger sweep first) OR
 - iii. You are relieved by emergency medical personnel or other trained person.
- c. Reassess victim and your technique after every 5 thrusts.
- 3. UNCONSCIOUS ADULT FOREIGN BODY AIRWAY OBSTRUCTION (CHOCKING)--if the person is unconscious and breaths have not gone in . . .
 - a. Give up to 5 abdominal thrusts (Heimlich maneuver):
 - i. Straddle victim's thighs.
 - ii. Put heel of one hand against middle of victim's abdomen slightly above navel and well below sternum's notch (fingers of hand should point toward victim's head).
 - iii. Put other hand directly on top of first hand.
 - iv. Press inward and upward using both hands with up to 5 quick abdominal thrusts.
 - v. Each thrust should be distinct and a real attempt made to relieve the airway obstruction. Keep heel of hand in contact with abdomen between abdominal thrusts.
 - vi. For advanced pregnant women and obese victims consider using chest thrusts.
 - b. Perform finger sweep
 - i. Use only on an unconscious victim. On a conscious victim, it may cause gagging or vomiting.
 - ii. Use your thumb and fingers to grasp victim's jaw and tongue and lift upward to pull tongue away from back of throat and away from foreign object.
 - iii. If unable to open mouth to perform tongue-jaw lift, use the crossed-finger method by crossing the index finger and thumb and pushing the teeth apart.
 - iv. With index finger of your other hand, slide finger down along the inside of one cheek deeply into mouth and use a hooking action across the other cheek to dislodge foreign objects.
 - v. If foreign body comes within reach, grab and remove it. Do not force object deeper.
 - c. If the above steps are unsuccessful cycle through the following steps in rapid sequence until the object is expelled or emergency medical help arrives:
 - i. Give 2 rescue breaths. If unsuccessful, retilt head and try 2 more.
 - ii. Do up to 5 abdominal thrusts.
 - iii. Do a finger sweep.
- 4. HYPOVOLEMIC SHOCK
 - a. Check the ABCs
 - b. Preserve body heat
 - c. Check for Head injury or breathing difficulty
 - i. If yes, elevate the head and shoulders if there is no spinal injury, then move to next step
 - ii. If no, move to next step
 - d. Check to see if the person is unconscious or if there is a chance of vomiting
 - i. If yes, turn the person on their side if there is no spinal injury, then move to next step
 - ii. If no, elevate legs 8 to 12 inches if no spinal injury is suspected, then move to the next step

- e. Are you less than 1 to 2 hours from medical care, is surgery a possibility or is there an abdominal wound?
 - i. If yes, do not give fluids except to conscious who are severely burned
 - ii. If no, if conscious and can swallow, small amounts of liquid allowed
 - f. Seek medical attention
5. SHOCK - FAINTING
- a. Fainting has occurred
 - i. If no see if the person is about to faint. If they are, prevent them from falling, lay them on their back with legs elevated 8 to 12 inches
 - ii. If yes, lay victim on back with legs elevated 8 to 12 inches. If vomiting occurs or is anticipated, turn victim on side. Loosen clothes around victims neck. Wipe victims forehead and face with cool, wet cloth.
 - b. Seek medical attention if victim
 - i. Is over 40 years old.
 - ii. Has repeated attacks of unconsciousness.
 - iii. Losses consciousness while sitting or lying down.
 - iv. Faints for no apparent reason.
 - v. Does not regain consciousness within 4-5 minutes.
 - c. Review -- the usual position for shock victims is on their back with their legs elevated 8 to 12 inches. Exceptions:
 - i. Elevate the head for injuries or stroke
 - ii. Lay an unconscious, semiconscious or vomiting victim on his or her side
 - iii. Use a semisitting position for those with breathing difficulties, chest injuries, or a heart attack
 - iv. Keep victim flat if a neck or spine injury is suspected or victim has leg fractures.
6. BLEEDING AND WOUNDS
- a. Locate bleeding source
 - b. Apply direct pressure over wound
 - i. Place sterile dressing or cleanest cloth available.
 - ii. If possible, use latex gloves, extra dressings, or plastic wrap.
 - iii. Do not remove first dressing if blood-soaked; add others over it.
 - iv. Do not remove impaled objects.
 - c. Bleeding stops?
 - i. If no elevate bleeding part above victims heart and continue pressing on wound, if bleeding still does not stop
 - ii. Locate a pressure point (Brachial under arm near arm pit. Femoral on the leg near groin. You can usually feel the pulse or Artery) and apply pressure, if bleeding still does not stop and it is an arm or leg, apply a tourniquit
 - d. Treat for shock, cover the wound and seek medical attention.
7. HEAD INJURIES
- a. Check the ABCs and treat accordingly. Check for possible spinal injury of the neck.
 - b. If the head is bleeding and a fracture is suspected, apply pressure only to the outer edges of the intact bone, otherwise apply pressure over the wound.
 - c. Do not remove impaled objects.
 - d. If the person is unconscious keep the person lying on their side if no spinal injury is suspected. If the person is unconscious for longer than 5 minutes, seek medical help immediately.

- e. If the person is conscious, raise the person's head and shoulders if no spinal injury is suspected.
- f. Head Injury Follow Up -- after a head injury, certain signs may indicate the need for medical attention.
 - i. Headache -- expect a headache. If it lasts more than one or two days or increases in severity, seek medical advice.
 - ii. Nausea, vomiting. If nausea lasts more than two hours, seek medical advice. Vomiting once or twice, especially in children, may be expected after a head injury. Vomiting does not tell anything about the severity of the injury. However, if vomiting begins again hours after one or two episodes have ceased, consult a doctor.
 - iii. Drowsiness. Allow a victim to sleep, but wake the victim at least every hour to check the state of orientation by asking his or her name, address, and if information can be processed by having them add or multiply numbers. If the victim cannot answer correctly or appears confused or disoriented, call a physician.
 - iv. Vision problems. If the victim sees double. If the eyes fail to move together, or if one pupil appears to be larger than the other, seek medical advice.
 - v. Mobility. If the victim cannot use his or her arms or legs as well as previously or is unsteady in walking, medical care should be sought.
 - vi. Speech or convulsions. If the victim's voluntary muscles start to contract involuntarily, seek medical assistance.
- 8. EYE INJURIES - Correct treatment of an eye injury immediately following an accident can prevent loss of sight. However, because it is difficult to determine the extent of damage to the eye, medical help should be sought as soon as possible.
 - a. Chemical in the eye
 - i. Hold injured eye wide open and flush with warm water for 15 - 20 minutes
 - ii. Loosely bandage both eyes
 - iii. Seek medical attention
 - b. Object embedded in eye
 - i. Do not remove embedded object
 - ii. Place padding around object
 - iii. Place disposable drinking cup over impaled object to keep it from being pushed further into the eye
 - iv. Cover uninjured eye with dressing and tape into place
 - v. Keep victim flat on back
 - vi. Seek medical attention
 - c. Loose object in eye
 - i. Attempt in order each procedure until one is effective
 - (1) Pull upper eyelid down
 - (2) Pull lower lid down and look at the inner surface while victim looks up. If object is seen, flush gently with water.
 - (3) Invert upper eyelid over matchstick or Q-tip. If object is seen, flush gently with water.
 - ii. If successful, medical attention is usually not needed.
 - d. Cut on eye
 - i. Do not apply pressure. Cover both eyes with gauze pads. Keep victim in half-sitting position and seek medical attention.

- ii. If a blunt injury (hit in eye with fist for example), keep victim flat on back with eyes closed. Apply ice pack for 15 minutes. Seek medical attention.
- 9. NOSEBLEEDS
 - a. If nose was hit, suspect a fracture.
 - b. Sit victim leaning slightly forward so blood does not run down throat.
 - c. Pinch nostrils together for 5 minutes
 - i. If bleeding does not stop pinch nostrils together again for 5 minutes
 - ii. If bleeding does not stop, seek medical attention.
- 10. CHEST INJURIES
 - a. Check ABCs and treat accordingly
 - b. Penetrating wound
 - i. If an impaled object, do not remove the object. Stabilize it and seek medical attention.
 - ii. If a sucking chest wound, seal the wound to prevent air from entering and seek medical attention.
 - iii. If a rib fracture is suspected, stabilize the rib and chest and seek medical attention.
- 11. ABDOMINAL INJURIES
 - a. Check ABCs and treat accordingly
 - b. Penetrating wound
 - i. If an impaled object, do not remove the object. Stabilize it and seek medical attention
 - ii. If an organ is protruding, do not reinsert the organ. Do not touch the organs. Cover them with a moist, clean dressing and seek medical attention.
 - iii. If a blow to the abdomen, place the victim on one side in case of vomiting. Do not give liquids. Seek medical attention.
- 12. BURNS
 - a. First Degree Burns - redness, mild swelling tenderness and pain. Healing occurs without scarring within a week.
 - i. Apply cold water and/or dry sterile dressing.
 - ii. Do not apply butter or grease
 - b. Second Degree Burns - extend through the entire outer skin layer and into the inner skin layer. Blister formation, swelling, weeping of fluids, and severe pain. Intact blisters maintain a sterile covering whereas broken blister results in a weeping wound.
 - i. Immerse in cold water, blot dry with a sterile cloth for protection.
 - ii. Treat for shock.
 - iii. Obtain medical care if severe.
 - iv. Do not break blisters or cover with grease or ointment
 - c. Third Degree Burns - severe burns extend through all skin layers into the underlying fat, muscle and bone. Discoloration (charred, white, or cherry red), and a leathery, parchment-like dry appearance indicating this degree of burn. Pain is absent because the nerve endings have been destroyed. Any pain found with this burn is caused by accompanying burns of lesser degrees (first and third). Proper healing requires skin grafting.
 - i. Cover with sterile cloth to protect.
 - ii. Treat for shock.
 - iii. Watch for breathing difficulty.
 - iv. Obtain medical attention quickly.
 - d. Chemical Burn

- i. Remove by flushing with large quantities of water for at least 15 minutes.
 - ii. Remove surrounding clothing.
 - iii. Obtain medical attention.
 - e. Electrical Burns
 - i. Turn off electricity -- do not attempt to remove wires with tools, wooden poles or objects with a high moisture content.
 - ii. When danger from electricity to rescuers passes
 - (1) Check ABCs and treat accordingly
 - (2) Treat for shock
 - (3) Treat burns as heat burns (2 wounds may be present -- where electricity enters and leaves the body)
 - (4) Seek immediate medical attention.
13. COLD- AND HEAT-RELATED INJURIES
- a. Frostbite
 - i. Remove from cold exposure if possible
 - ii. Remove clothing, rings from affected parts
 - iii. If near a medical facility, transport the person
 - iv. If no medical facility is near
 - (1) If warm water (not hot, about 104 degrees) is available, put affected parts of body in warm water until parts are flushed and numbness decreases.
 - (2) If no warm water is available, put affected parts of the body next to someone else's body until parts are flushed and numbness decreases
 - v. Do not rub
 - vi. Put dry, clean gauze or cloth between fingers and toes and over broken blisters
 - vii. Seek medical attention
 - b. Hypothermia
 - i. Move victim out of cold
 - ii. Handle victim very gently
 - iii. Replace wet clothing with dry clothing or coverings
 - iv. Insulate from cold
 - c. Heat Related Emergencies -- hot skin, high body temperature, and altered mental status
 - i. Heat exhaustion
 - (1) Move victim to cool place
 - (2) Raise victim's legs 8 to 12 inches
 - (3) Remove excessive clothing
 - (4) Sponge victim with cool water and fan
 - (5) Give cold water to drink
 - (6) Seek medical attention if no improvements happen within 80 minutes
 - ii. Heat stroke
 - (1) Seek medical attention immediately
 - (2) Move victim to cool place and remove clothing
 - (3) If humidity is greater than 75%
 - (a) place ice packs on neck, armpits and groin
 - (4) If humidity is less than 75%
 - (a) spray water on victim's skin and vigorously fan
 - (b) cover victim with wet sheet or similar cloth, keep it wet and vigorously fan victim
 - (5) Stop cooling when consciousness and mental status improves

14. STROKE
 - a. Check ABCCHs
 - b. If conscious place on their side with the head and upper body slightly raised
 - c. If not conscious raise the victims head and shoulders slightly
 - d. Do not give anything to eat or drink
 - e. Seek medical attention immediately
15. SEIZURES - convulsions
 - a. Cushion victim's head
 - b. Loosen victim's tight neckwear
 - c. Turn victim onto side
 - d. Look for medic alert tag
 - e. Do not give anything to drink or eat
 - f. Do not hold victim down
 - g. Do not put anything between victim's teeth

GENERAL HEALTH

Good nutrition, exercise and cleanliness are especially important in a prison. The close living conditions have an impact on the body and the mind. Though the nutrition and exercise are generally planned by the Administration, every officer must be sure that all areas they supervise are kept clean and that prisoners wash as often as possible. Soap and water is still one of the best ways to stop the spread of communicable diseases.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

The quiz for this session should consist of having the students practice various skills and the asking of questions of individual students. You should be sure that all students practice CPR and demonstrate they know how to apply artificial respiration can stop bleeding and know the "ABCCHs"

TRAINER'S HANDOUT/BASIC FIRST AID

NOTES AND METHODOLOGY	CONTENTS
INTRODUCTION Write session topic on the white board.	Introduce yourself and the session topic. The corrections officer has the obligation to provide custody, care and control over inmates. Deriving from the role of care is the responsibility to respond to all forms of emergencies, including medical emergencies. In medical emergencies, the correctional officer provides care for the victim until competent medical professionals arrive at the scene. This session is designed to provide the correctional officer with useful lessons in basic first aid care in medical emergencies.

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES Write session topic on the white board and explain them to the trainees. Ask question – “What is your understanding of first aid?” DEFINING FIRST AID DEFINING AN EMERGENCY? WHAT IS EMERGENCY RESPONSE?	At the end of the session, you will be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Explain what first aid is. • Explain an emergency. • Explain what emergency response is. • State the three-step model for emergency response. • Explain what is meant by standard precautions • State the types of bleeding and how to control bleeding emergencies. • State the signs of shock and care for shock. • State the types of burns and state the dos and don'ts when caring for burns generally. • Describe first aid care for 1st, 2nd and 3rd degree burns. • Explain strains and sprains. • Describe first aid care for strains, contusions and sprains. • Detect signs and symptoms of dislocations and fractures. • Describe first aid care for dislocations and fractures. • Detect the signs and symptoms of poisoning. • Provide first aid care for poisoning. Let's now have a look at the definition of first aid First is the immediate care given to an injured or suddenly ill person until the arrival of competent medical personnel at the scene or the victim is transported to hospital. An emergency is any unforeseen event or condition that requires a prompt response. Emergency response is the ability to react promptly, make a quick decision and render an appropriate level of first aid care until competent help arrives on the scene. When you recognize an emergency, you must be prepared to take immediate action with an overall plan in mind. To help you do this effectively, the three-step model for emergency response has been developed. The three-step model of emergency response comprises:

EXPLAIN STANDARD PRECAUTION AND BODY SUBSTANCE ISOLATION

- Assess – assess the emergency scene for safety. If the scene is not safe alert the Emergency Medical Service/Ambulance Service (EMS). If the scene is safe and you approach the victim, assess him/her for breathing, circulation, severe bleeding, etc.
- Alert – Call EMS for medical assistance if necessary. Arrange to send victim to hospital.
- Attend – examine victim from head to toe and provide care until medical help arrives or the victim is taken to the hospital.

Standard precaution means all blood and body fluids that may contain blood should be considered potentially infectious and so the care provider should take the necessary precautions to protect him/herself against them.

Body Substance Isolation (BSI) is recommended as a way of protecting oneself from infection. The BSI entreats first aid providers to avoid contact with all body fluids by using barriers such as gloves, gowns, masks and other protective devices.

Now that you know what first aid is and what constitutes an emergency and emergency response as well as the standard precaution, let's turn our attention to specific medical emergencies and how to handle them until the victim can receive professional help.

The first medical emergency we shall look at is bleeding.

BLEEDING EMERGENCIES

It is estimated that the average adult's body holds approximately six/6 quarts of blood. The rapid loss of one quart or more of blood can lead to shock and death.

There are three classes of bleeding. These are the capillary, venous and arterial bleeding.

Classifications of bleeding

Write the bleeding classification on the white board and explain them.

Capillary bleeding – the capillaries are the smallest and most numerous blood vessels in the body. When a cut opens capillaries, the bleeding is normally slow. The body is able to control this type of bleeding through its blood clotting ability.

First Aid Care For Minor Wounds With Minimal Bleeding

When caring for minor wounds with minimal bleeding,

- Clean wound with warm water and soap.
- Dress wound with bandage to prevent infection or leave wound uncovered if it is safe to do so.

Venous bleeding – this class of bleeding results from a deep cut that opens the veins. This wound will release blood that is its way back to the heart. The blood will be dark red and it will flow steadily. If left untreated for a long time, a life threatening condition may result.

First Aid Care For Venous Bleeding

- Apply Direct Pressure to the wound with the palm of the hand over the entire area of the wound using a thick pad of sterile gauze or a soft clean material. The pressure can be secured in place by the application of a pressure bandage. The application of pressure must continue for 20 – 30 minutes.
- Elevation – if you do not see evidence of a fracture, raise a bleeding wound on the head, neck, arm or leg above the level of the victim's heart, while sustaining the direct pressure.
- If bleeding persists after you have provided first aid care transport the victim to the hospital. The wound may need to be sutured.

Arterial bleeding – arterial bleeding results from a deep cut that opens an artery. It is the most serious bleeding emergency. Blood released from an artery is rich in oxygen so will look bright red. The blood will discharge in spurts that coincide with the heart's contractions. If a major artery is cut and is not treated in time, it may lead to death in as little as one minute.

First aid Care For Arterial Bleeding

- Same as procedures for controlling venous bleeding.

We shall now consider shocks, their symptoms and first

SHOCKS What is shock? Signs of shock Providing care for shock BURNS	aid care. Shock is a condition in which the body's circulatory system fails to deliver an adequate supply of blood to all parts of the body. When the body's organs do not receive adequate supply of blood, they fail to function properly. In minor injury, the body will compensate and the situation will be resolved in a short time. In major injuries, the body may not be able to adjust. Whenever the body is unable to compensate for blood or other body fluid loss, shock may occur. The signs and symptoms of shock are: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Anxiety, restlessness or irritability • Altered consciousness • Rapid pulse rate • Rapid breathing • Dazed look • Weak • Thirst • Nausea To provide care for a shock victim, <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Keep victim lying down. • Try to make victim feel comfortable. • Speak in a reassuring tone to relieve victim of stress and anxiety. • Control external bleeding, if required. • Elevate legs 10-12 inches, unless you suspect spinal or bone injury. • Cover victim to maintain body temperature. • Don't give victim anything to eat or drink. • Provide victim with plenty of fresh air. • If victim is vomiting, place him/her on her left side. • Activate emergency medical service or arrange to send victim to hospital. Another medical emergency we may encounter at the work place are burns. There are various degrees of burns.
---	---

First degree/Superficial burns Caring for First Degree Burns	These are minor burns are caused by scalding or contact with hot objects. The skin will be red and dry and is painful. Caring for first degree burns involve: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Cooling the burned area. Immense in water or apply cold cloths. • Covering with clean dry dressing. • Elevating limbs above heart level. • Treating for shock if necessary.
Second degree/Partial thickness Caring for Second Degree Burns	Following first degree burns is second degree burns. These are caused by contact with hot liquids, flash burns from gasoline, kerosene, etc. The top layers of the skin are burned. The skin will be red and blistered. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Provide same care as in the case of first degree burns.
Third degree/Full thickness Caring for Third Degree Burns	Finally, we have third degree or thick fullness burns. Third degree burns are caused by flame, burning clothing, contact with objects, electricity or immersion in hot water. The skin will appear white or charred. All layers of the skin are destroyed as well as underlying structure (fat, muscle, bones, nerves, etc.). It may be quite painful or relatively painless due to destructions caused to nerve endings. When caring for a victim of third degree burns, follow the under-listed procedures: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Activate emergency medical service or arrange to send victim to hospital. • Cover with clean dry dressing. • Elevate limbs above heart level. • Treat for shock if necessary. • Do not apply any home-made ointments.
General Care for Burns

STRAINS AND SPRAINS

Caring for Strains, Contusions and Sprains

DISLOCATION AND FRACTURES

Now let's look at the 'do's' and 'don'ts' when caring for burns generally.

Do's

- Watch for signals and changes in breathing and consciousness.
- Keep victim from getting cold or overheated.
- Seek medical attention if appropriate.

Don'ts

- Don't apply home remedies or ointments.
- Don't apply ice directly on the skin.
- Don't break blisters.
- Don't remove pieces of clothing or any item stuck to burn.
- Don't apply a moist dressing to a burn.
- Don't give victim anything to eat or drink unless he/she is fully conscious.

Let's now turn our attention to emergencies relating to strains and sprains.

- A muscle strain occurs when the muscle is stretched beyond its normal range of motion resulting in a muscle fiber tear.
- A muscle contusion results from a blow to a muscle.
- A sprain occurs when a joint is twisted beyond its normal range.

To care for strains, contusions and sprains,

- Let the victim take a rest. Discontinue activity.
- Apply a cold pack. Don't place ice directly on skin.
- Use a neat material to hold ice on injury.
- Elevate above heart level to control internal bleeding.

Other medical emergencies we may have to handle are dislocations and fractures.

Signs and Symptoms of Dislocations and Fractures	A dislocation involves a displacement of a bone from its normal position. A fracture involves a break of a bone. Dislocations and fractures reveal themselves in: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Deformity to bone(s) • Swelling and dislocation • Grating sound • Pain • Inability to move injured area • Exposed bone
Caring for Dislocations and Fractures (I ACT)	When providing first aid care to a victim who has dislocated or fractured a bone, <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Immobilize are. • Activate emergency medical service or arrange to send victim to hospital. Handle injured area with care. • Care for shock • Treat secondary injuries
POISONING Signs and symptoms of Poisoning	Poisoning is another emergency that might be handled in the corrections settings as some inmates have suicide tendencies. The signs and symptoms of poisoning are: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Abdominal pain • Vomiting • Diarrhea • Burn stains and odour in and around the mouth. • Change in consciousness.

First Aid Care for Poisoning

SUMMARY

- Poison container in the area.

Act swiftly when providing care to a poison victim.

- Assess the scene for clues and safety.
- Get victim away from poison if necessary.
- Assess victim's response (level of consciousness, breathing and circulation)
- Provide care for life threatening conditions.
- If victim is conscious try to get more information.
- If the victim is unconscious, keep the airway open.
- Activate emergency medical service or arrange to send victim to hospital. Take along any empty container at the scene along.

Now that I have taken you through the session on basic first aid, you should be able to:

- Explain what first aid is.
- Explain an emergency.
- Explain what emergency response is.
- State the three-step model for emergency response.
- Explain what is meant by standard precautions
- State the types of bleeding and how to control bleeding emergencies.
- State the signs of shock and care for shock.
- State the types of burns and state the dos and don'ts when caring for burns generally.
- Describe first aid care for 1st, 2nd and 3rd degree burns.
- Explain strains and sprains.
- Describe first aid care for strains, contusions and sprains.
- Detect signs and symptoms of dislocations and fractures.
- Describe first aid care for dislocations and fractures.
- Detect the signs and symptoms of poisoning.
- Provide first aid care for poisoning.

International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights

Adopted and opened for signature, ratification and accession by General Assembly resolution 2200A (XXI) of 16 December 1966 entry into force 3 January 1976, in accordance with article 27

Article 12

1. The States Parties to the present Covenant recognize the right of everyone to the enjoyment of the highest attainable standard of physical and mental health.

Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners

Adopted by the First United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, held at Geneva in 1955, and approved by the Economic and Social Council by its resolutions 663 C (XXIV) of 31 July 1957 and 2076 (LXII) of 13 May 1977

Accommodation

10. All accommodation provided for the use of prisoners and in particular all sleeping accommodation shall meet all requirements of health, due regard being paid to climatic conditions and particularly to cubic content of air, minimum floor space, lighting, heating and ventilation.

11. In all places where prisoners are required to live or work,

(a) The windows shall be large enough to enable the prisoners to read or work by natural light, and shall be so constructed that they can allow the entrance of fresh air whether or not there is artificial ventilation;

(b) Artificial light shall be provided sufficient for the prisoners to read or work without injury to eyesight.

12. The sanitary installations shall be adequate to enable every prisoner to comply with the needs of nature when necessary and in a clean and decent manner.

13. Adequate bathing and shower installations shall be provided so that every prisoner may be enabled and required to have a bath or shower, at a temperature suitable to the climate, as frequently as necessary for general hygiene according to season and geographical region, but at least once a week in a temperate climate.

14. All parts of an institution regularly used by prisoners shall be properly maintained and kept scrupulously clean at all times.

Personal hygiene

15. Prisoners shall be required to keep their persons clean, and to this end they shall be provided with water and with such toilet articles as are necessary for health and cleanliness.

16. In order that prisoners may maintain a good appearance compatible with their self-respect, facilities shall be provided for the proper care of the hair and beard, and men shall be enabled to shave regularly.

Clothing and bedding

17. (1) Every prisoner who is not allowed to wear his own clothing shall be provided with an outfit of clothing suitable for the climate and adequate to keep him in good health. Such clothing shall in no manner be degrading or humiliating.

(2) All clothing shall be clean and kept in proper condition. Underclothing shall be changed and washed as often as necessary for the maintenance of hygiene.

Food

20. (1) Every prisoner shall be provided by the administration at the usual hours with food of nutritional value adequate for health and strength, of wholesome quality and well prepared and served.

(2) Drinking water shall be available to every prisoner whenever he needs it.

Exercise and sport

21. (1) Every prisoner who is not employed in outdoor work shall have at least one hour of suitable exercise in the open air daily if the weather permits.

(2) Young prisoners, and others of suitable age and physique, shall receive physical and recreational training during the period of exercise. To this end space, installations and equipment should be provided.

Medical services

22. (1) At every institution there shall be available the services of at least one qualified medical officer who should have some knowledge of psychiatry. The medical services should be organized in close relationship to the general health administration of the community or nation. They shall include a psychiatric service for the diagnosis and, in proper cases, the treatment of states of mental abnormality.

(2) Sick prisoners who require specialist treatment shall be transferred to specialized institutions or to civil hospitals. Where hospital facilities are provided in an institution, their equipment, furnishings and pharmaceutical supplies shall be proper for the medical care and treatment of sick prisoners, and there shall be a staff of suitable trained officers.

(3) The services of a qualified dental officer shall be available to every prisoner.

23. (1) In women's institutions there shall be special accommodation for all necessary pre-natal and post-natal care and treatment. Arrangements shall be made wherever practicable for children to be born in a hospital outside the institution. If a child is born in prison, this fact shall not be mentioned in the birth certificate.

24. The medical officer shall see and examine every prisoner as soon as possible after his admission and thereafter as necessary, with a view particularly to the discovery of physical or mental illness and the taking of all necessary measures; the segregation of prisoners suspected of infectious or contagious conditions; the noting of physical or mental defects which might hamper rehabilitation, and the determination of the physical capacity of every prisoner for work.

25. (1) The medical officer shall have the care of the physical and mental health of the prisoners and should daily see all sick prisoners, all who complain of illness, and any prisoner to whom his attention is specially directed.

(2) The medical officer shall report to the director whenever he considers that a prisoner's physical or mental health has been or will be injuriously affected by continued imprisonment or by any condition of imprisonment.

26. (1) The medical officer shall regularly inspect and advise the director upon:

- (a) The quantity, quality, preparation and service of food;
- (b) The hygiene and cleanliness of the institution and the prisoners;
- (c) The sanitation, heating, lighting and ventilation of the institution;
- (d) The suitability and cleanliness of the prisoners' clothing and bedding;
- (e) The observance of the rules concerning physical education and sports, in cases where there is no technical personnel in charge of these activities.

(2) The director shall take into consideration the reports and advice that the medical officer submits according to rules 25 (2) and 26 and, in case he concurs with the recommendations made,

shall take immediate steps to give effect to those recommendations; if they are not within his competence or if he does not concur with them, he shall immediately submit his own report and the advice of the medical officer to higher authority.

62. The medical services of the institution shall seek to detect and shall treat any physical or mental illnesses or defects which may hamper a prisoner's rehabilitation. All necessary medical, surgical and psychiatric services shall be provided to that end.

Code of Conduct for Law Enforcement Officials

Adopted by General Assembly resolution 34/169 of 17 December 1979

Article 6

Law enforcement officials shall ensure the full protection of the health of persons in their custody and, in particular, shall take immediate action to secure medical attention whenever required.

Body of Principles for the Protection of All Persons under Any Form of Detention or Imprisonment

Adopted by General Assembly resolution 43/173 of 9 December 1988

Principle 24

A proper medical examination shall be offered to a detained or imprisoned person as promptly as possible after his admission to the place of detention or imprisonment, and thereafter medical care and treatment shall be provided whenever necessary. This care and treatment shall be provided free of charge.

Basic Principles for the Treatment of Prisoners

Adopted and proclaimed by General Assembly resolution 45/111 of 14 December 1990

9. Prisoners shall have access to the health services available in the country without discrimination on the grounds of their legal situation.

Principles of Medical Ethics relevant to the Role of Health Personnel, particularly Physicians, in the Protection of Prisoners and Detainees against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment.

Adopted by General Assembly resolution 37/194 of 18 December 1982.

Principle 1

Health personnel, particularly physicians, charged with the medical care of prisoners and detainees have a duty to provide them with protection of their physical and mental health and treatment of disease of the same quality and standard as is afforded to those who are not imprisoned or detained.

Recommendation No R (87) 3 of the Committee of Ministers to member states on the European Prison Rules

Adopted by the Committee of Ministers on 12 February 1987 at the 404th meeting of the Ministers' Deputies.

17. The sanitary installations and arrangements for access shall be adequate to enable every prisoner to comply with the needs of nature when necessary and in clean and decent conditions.

18. Adequate bathing and showering installations shall be provided so that every prisoner may be enabled and required to have a bath or shower, at a temperature suitable to the climate, as frequently as necessary for general hygiene according to season and geographical region, but at least once a week. Wherever possible there should be free access at all reasonable times.

19. All parts of an institution shall be properly maintained and kept clean at all times.

Personal hygiene

20. Prisoners shall be required to keep their persons clean, and to this end they shall be provided with water and with such toilet articles as are necessary for health and cleanliness.

21. For reasons of health and in order that prisoners may maintain a good appearance and preserve their self-respect, facilities shall be provided for the proper care of the hair and beard, and men shall be enabled to shave regularly.

Clothing and bedding

22. 1. Prisoners who are not allowed to wear their own clothing shall be provided with an outfit of clothing suitable for the climate and adequate to keep them in good health. Such clothing shall in no manner be degrading or humiliating.

2. All clothing shall be clean and kept in proper condition. Underclothing shall be changed and washed as often as necessary for the maintenance of hygiene.

24. Every prisoner shall be provided with a separate bed and separate and appropriate bedding which shall be kept in good order and changed often enough to ensure its cleanliness.

Food

25. 1. In accordance with the standards laid down by the health authorities, the administration shall provide the prisoners at the normal times with food which is suitably prepared and presented, and which satisfies in quality and quantity the standards of dietetics and modern hygiene and takes into account their age, health, the nature of their work, and so far as possible, religious or cultural requirements.

2. Drinking water shall be available to every prisoner.

Medical services

26. 1. At every institution there shall be available the services of at least one qualified general practitioner. The medical services should be organised in close relation with the general health administration of the community or nation. They shall include a psychiatric service for the diagnosis and, in proper cases, the treatment of states of mental abnormality.

2. Sick prisoners who require specialist treatment shall be transferred to specialised institutions or to civil hospitals. Where hospital facilities are provided in an institution, their equipment, furnishings and pharmaceutical supplies shall be suitable for the medical care and treatment of sick prisoners, and there shall be a staff of suitably trained officers.

3. The services of a qualified dental officer shall be available to every prisoner.

29. The medical officer shall see and examine every prisoner as soon as possible after admission and thereafter as necessary, with a particular view to the discovery of physical or mental illness and the taking of all measures necessary for medical treatment; the segregation of prisoners suspected of infectious or contagious conditions, the noting of physical or mental defects which might impede resettlement after release; and the determination of the fitness of every prisoner to work.

30. 1. The medical officer shall have the care of the physical and mental health of the prisoners and shall see, under the conditions and with a frequency consistent with hospital standards, all sick prisoners, all who report illness or injury and any prisoner to whom attention is specially directed.
2. The medical officer shall report to the director whenever it is considered that a prisoner's physical or mental health has been or will be adversely affected by continued imprisonment or by any condition of imprisonment.

31. 1. The medical officer or a competent authority shall regularly inspect and advise the director upon:

- a. the quantity, quality, preparation and serving of food and water;
- b. the hygiene and cleanliness of the institution and prisoners;
- c. the sanitation, heating, lighting and ventilation of the institution;
- d. the suitability and cleanliness of the prisoners' clothing and bedding.

32. The medical services of the institution shall seek to detect and shall treat any physical or mental illnesses or defects which may impede a prisoner's resettlement after release. All necessary medical, surgical and psychiatric services including those available in the community shall be provided to the prisoner to that end.

Recommendation No. R (98) 7 of the Committee of Ministers to member states concerning the ethical and organisational aspects of health care in prison.

Adopted by the Committee of Ministers on 8 April 1998, at the 627th meeting of the Ministers' Deputies)

I. Main characteristics of the right to health in prison

A. Access to a doctor

1. When entering prison and later on while in custody, prisoners should be able at any time to have access to a doctor or a fully qualified nurse, irrespective of their detention regime and without undue delay, if required by their state of health. All detainees should benefit from appropriate medical examinations on admission. Special emphasis should be put on the screening of mental disorders, of psychological adaptation to prison, of withdrawal symptoms resulting from use of drugs, medication or alcohol, and of contagious and chronic conditions.

3. A prison's health care service should at least be able to provide out-patient consultations and emergency treatment. When the state of health of the inmates requires treatment which cannot be guaranteed in prison, everything possible should be done to ensure that treatment is given, in all security in health establishments outside the prison.

4. Prisoners should have access to a doctor, when necessary, at any time during the day and the night. Someone competent to provide first aid should always be present on the prison premises. In case of serious emergencies, the doctor, a member of the nursing staff and the prison management should be warned; active participation and commitment of the custodial staff is essential.

5. An access to psychiatric consultation and counselling should be secured. There should be a psychiatric team in larger penal institutions. If this is not available as in the smaller establishments, consultations should be assured by a psychiatrist, practising in hospital or in private.

6. The services of a qualified dental surgeon should be available to every prisoner.

7. The prison administration should make arrangements for ensuring contacts and co-operation with local public and private health institutions. Since it is not easy to provide appropriate treatment in prison for certain inmates addicted to drugs, alcohol or medication, external consultants belonging to the system providing specialist assistance to addicts in the general community should be called on for counselling and even care purposes.

8. Where appropriate, specific services should be provided to female prisoners. Pregnant inmates should be medically monitored and should be able to deliver in an external hospital service most appropriate to their condition.

9. In being escorted to hospital the patient should be accompanied by medical or nursing staff, as required.

13. Medical confidentiality should be guaranteed and respected with the same rigour as in the population as a whole.

14. Unless inmates suffer from any illness which renders them incapable of understanding the nature of their condition, they should always be entitled to give the doctor their informed consent before any physical examination of their person or their body products can be undertaken, except in cases provided for by law. The reasons for each examination should be clearly explained to, and understood by, the inmates. The indication for any medication should be explained to the inmates, together with any possible side effects likely to be experienced by them.

19. Doctors who work in prison should provide the individual inmate with the same standards of health care as are being delivered to patients in the community. The health needs of the inmate should always be the primary concern of the doctor.

20. Clinical decisions and any other assessments regarding the health of detained persons should be governed only by medical criteria. Health care personnel should operate with complete independence within the bounds of their qualifications and competence.

Body of Principles for the Protection of All Persons under Any Form of Detention or Imprisonment

Adopted by General Assembly resolution 43/173 of 9 December 1988

Principle 22

No detained or imprisoned person shall, even with his consent, be subjected to any medical or scientific experimentation which may be detrimental to his health.

World Medical Association Declaration of HELSINKI Ethical Principles for Medical Research Involving Human Subjects

Adopted by the 18th WMA General Assembly, Helsinki, Finland, June 1964, and amended by the:

29th WMA General Assembly, Tokyo, Japan, October 1975

35th WMA General Assembly, Venice, Italy, October 1983

41st WMA General Assembly, Hong Kong, September 1989

48th WMA General Assembly, Somerset West, Republic of South Africa, October 1996 and the 52nd WMA General Assembly, Edinburgh, Scotland, October 2000

Note of Clarification on Paragraph 29 added by the WMA General Assembly, Washington 2002

Note of Clarification on Paragraph 30 added by the WMA General Assembly, Tokyo 2004

Medical research is subject to ethical standards that promote respect for all human beings and protect their health and rights. Some research populations are vulnerable and need special protection. The particular needs of the economically and medically disadvantaged must be recognized. Special attention is also required for those who cannot give or refuse consent for themselves, for those who may be subject to giving consent under duress, for those who will not benefit personally from the research and for those for whom the research is combined with care.

19. Medical research is only justified if there is a reasonable likelihood that the populations in which the research is carried out stand to benefit from the results of the research.

20. The subjects must be volunteers and informed participants in the research project.

21. The right of research subjects to safeguard their integrity must always be respected. Every precaution should be taken to respect the privacy of the subject, the confidentiality of the patient's information and to minimize the impact of the study on the subject's physical and mental integrity and on the personality of the subject.

22. In any research on human beings, each potential subject must be adequately informed of the aims, methods, sources of funding, any possible conflicts of interest, institutional affiliations of the researcher, the anticipated benefits and potential risks of the study and the discomfort it may entail. The subject should be informed of the right to abstain from participation in the study or to withdraw consent to participate at any time without reprisal. After ensuring that the subject has understood the information, the physician should then obtain the subject's freely-given informed consent, preferably in writing. If the consent cannot be obtained in writing, the non-written consent must be formally documented and witnessed.

23. When obtaining informed consent for the research project the physician should be particularly cautious if the subject is in a dependent relationship with the physician or may consent under duress. In that case the informed consent should be obtained by a well-informed physician who is not engaged in the investigation and who is completely independent of this relationship.

Recommendation No R (87) 3 of the Committee of Ministers to member states on the European Prison Rules

Adopted by the Committee of Ministers on 12 February 1987 at the 404th meeting of the Ministers' Deputies.

27. Prisoners may not be submitted to any experiments which may result in physical or moral injury.

Principles of Medical Ethics relevant to the Role of Health Personnel, particularly Physicians, in the Protection of Prisoners and Detainees against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment.

Adopted by General Assembly resolution 37/194 of 18 December 1982.

Principle 1

Health personnel, particularly physicians, charged with the medical care of prisoners and detainees have a duty to provide them with protection of their physical and mental health and treatment of disease of the same quality and standard as is afforded to those who are not imprisoned or detained.

Principle 2

It is a gross contravention of medical ethics, as well as an offence under applicable international instruments, for health personnel, particularly physicians, to engage, actively or passively, in acts which constitute participation in, complicity in, incitement to or attempts to commit torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

LESSON PLAN 21 – Personal Protection Techniques

Method of Instruction: Lecture, discussion, demonstration, individual exercise, group exercise

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

THIS LESSON PLAN SHOULD BE COMPLETED BY THE LOCAL TRAINING STAFF IN COORDINATION WITH THE SPECIFIC TYPE OF SELF-PROTECTION SYSTEM USED BY THE PRISON SERVICE. This material is in addition to the institution's normal physical fitness and personal protection training program

Time Frame: 2 hours

Performance Objectives: At the conclusion of this block of instruction the students will be able to evade and/or defend themselves from physical attacks by one or more assailants.

Training Aides Required: Flip Chart, Overhead projector

INTRODUCTION

Situations can occur when Correctional staff members will be required to protect themselves, other staff, offenders, visitors and property. Therefore, Correctional staff must be able to defend themselves against physical attack.

Self-defense in a Correctional environment may be compared to defensive driving, in that personnel have to be aware of potential hazards, anticipate events, react to them quickly and avoid them if possible.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

The initial training of self-defense is based on making sure the students understand that self-defense is not being "tougher" than their opponents, rather it is based on being constantly aware of where you are and knowing what to look for. This part of the lesson is a combination of lecture and discussion. Ask the students questions about the various points and allow questions and discussion to insure the points are understood.

Principles of Self-Defense

1. Mind and body must function as one
 - ☞ Separation of mind and body can be dangerous. If you are distracted, this may cause hesitation or an improper response to a threat
 - ☞ You must learn to concentrate on the entire situation when confronted with a threat. You become vulnerable if you only concentrate on one aspect
 - ☞ You must maintain control when faced with a threatening or stressful situation.
2. Awareness

- ☞ You must be aware of your surroundings
- ☞ You must appreciate the consequences of action or non-action
- ☞ You must be prepared to seek assistance, offer distractions, identify and use improvised weapons or to find an escape route
- ☞ You must be aware of the potential for violence of individual offenders
- ☞ You must be aware of the overall mood or tone of the institution
- ☞ You must learn to use your eyes so that no movement will surprise you

Hazards to be aware of:

- A. Hands - always be aware of the position of the hands
 - B. Weapons/Chemical Agents - Is the offender holding anything that could be used as a weapon? Is there anything in the immediate area that could be used as a weapon? Anything in the area that could be thrown into the face of a staff member?
 - C. Other Persons - Are there others who may interfere or come to the attacker's assistance?
 - D. Escape Routes - Do you have an escape route? Does the offender have an escape route?
 - E. Footing, Visibility and Odors - Slippery floors, debris, etc. could place you at a disadvantage. Poor lighting, smoke or other pollutants can affect visibility. Fumes from chemicals may result in an explosion or render you unconscious
 - F. Cover - Physical objects can be used to protect yourself from being struck by missiles, liquids or firearms
3. Don't meet force with force

Deflect force away from you so that you may respond to the offender's use of force by the application of defensive tactics or by escape

Theoretical Concepts Applicable to Personal Self-Defense

- 1. Distance - Attackers will place themselves at one of three distances from a Correctional staff member in any confrontation:
 - A. Very far distance - Attacker is positioned 6 feet or more away -- kicking attacks or sudden lunges may occur with the attacker first stepping forward to get within range of attack
 - B. Safe distance - Attacker's head and feet are visible by using peripheral vision while viewing facial area -- punches, kicks and sudden lunges may occur. An adequate safety margin of space of 2 arm's lengths must be established to enable the Correctional staff member to defend against an attack

C. Very near distance - Attacker is closer than arm's length and may be touching the Correctional staff member. Reaction time is short so that the chances of defending oneself is minimal

2. Defensive Stance - Must consider balance and target areas

A. Balance - If you are not properly balanced, you are vulnerable to being knocked down

- * Distribute weight equally over both legs. Keep 95% of your weight on the balls of your feet
- * Keep knees unlocked
- * Use full body movements
- Position feet to give yourself strength, balance and mobility in any direction

B. Minimize Target Areas - Proper positioning of the torso and arms is important in minimizing the attacker's opportunity to strike at vital target areas (face, throat, chest, abdomen and groin). Keep arms in front of the body at waist height in a relaxed but steady position with chin inclined towards the front shoulder

3. Body Space - Personal space (all areas around the body) should extend 6 feet (18 to 30 inches would be considered a minimum depending upon the individual situation)

4. Body language - Body motion or posture are non-verbal messages transmitted by the approach of one individual to another. The motions and posture of the body can influence attacker's perception of danger, aggression, fear or hostility in the Correctional staff member

5. Voice tone, volume and inflection - Refers to the inflection of the voice and determines how the message is perceived.

Evasion and Escape

Evasion skills combine the knowledge and application of the Principles of Defense and the Theoretical concepts of distance, space, body language, voice tone with the skill of the defensive stance.

Evasion and escape combined provide the basic techniques which a Correctional staff member may successfully defend against attacks, with the minimum use of force.

When situations arise that require a Correctional staff member to defend themselves, seek escape from the attacker and return with assistance whenever possible.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

The following should be explained, demonstrated, discussed and each student given a chance to practice. It would be good to divide the group into teams of three so one can act as the Correctional staff person, one as the aggressor and one as the observer to help insure accuracy. They should trade off until each has had an opportunity to practice.

DEFENSIVE TACTICS

Forcibly moving a prisoner

This involves compressing parts of the body in order to move a person from one place to another without having to be stronger than the person you are moving. Before using any of the techniques discussed, the officer should distract the prisoner. One of the best methods for distracting the prisoner is to strike the person, with your knee, about 4 to 6 inches above the prisoner's knee along the seam of the pants. When the prisoner is struck in such a manner, it will cause a low level of temporary paralysis. It is during this time that the officer should apply the pressure to be used to move the prisoner.

During the application of the pressure, the officer should give loud, repeated verbal commands to the prisoner. This insures that the prisoner knows exactly what the officer wants and makes it easier for him to cooperate. Generally, application of these pressure techniques should be on the right hand side of the prisoner, as most people tend to be right handed.

Bending the wrist to move a prisoner

This involves using the officers thumbs to grip the prisoner's hand with pressure across the knuckles. The prisoner's knuckles should be located under the officer's middle fingers. The prisoner's arm should be between the officer's arm and body, with the prisoner's elbow pressed firmly against the officer's body. The officer should make sure that the prisoner's forearm is high enough to cause the prisoner to stand on his or her toes. During the application of pressure, the officer should have the prisoner place his or her free hand on top of his or her head with their palm facing up.

The officer can also hold the prisoner's hand in a palm up position and bend the hand back. The position of the prisoner's arm against the officer's body is the same as previously described.

A variation of the wrist pressure technique is to hold the prisoner's arm out from his or her body, with the prisoner's elbow pointed up. The prisoner's fingers are pointed down and the officer grasps the prisoner's hand from the back with his fingers in the palm of the prisoner's hand. The officer's other hand is bending the fingers back. The officer's hands should not overlap and the prisoner's hand should be rotated to keep the prisoner's arm muscles and tendons tight. As before, the officer should order the prisoner to place his or her free hand on top of his or her head with the palms facing up.

The prisoner's bent wrist can also be placed behind him or her in the classic "hammerlock" position. The officer puts his inside hand on the prisoner's elbow for leverage. This gives maximum control for the officer in that the officer is facing towards the front of the prisoner and can walk the prisoner backwards, thus maintaining superior balance.

Using Pressure Points to Control a Prisoner

Pressure points are nerve centers on the body that when pushed cause pain. When using pressure points, as in all use of defensive tactics, the officer should use loud, repeated verbal commands to let the prisoner know what is expected of him.

In order for pressure points to be effective the officer must make sure that the prisoner can not simply move away from the pressure, thus most pressure point control must be accompanied with the application of pressure on the opposite side of the subject to maintain contact.

Three types of pressure can be applied:

1. Touching the pressure point and applying approximately 2 pounds of pressure. This will normally cause enough pain so the prisoner will follow the officer's order.
2. Pushing deeply into the pressure point, followed by quick jabs that push approximately 2 inches into the nerve can stun the prisoner.
3. Striking the nerve can cause a short period of paralysis to the impacted part of the prisoner's body

CONCLUSION

The best personal protection methods are to avoid conflict by using your skills of communication and observation. However, if you do have to protect yourself, you will only be able to do so effectively if you continue to practice the skills you have learned here.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

No written quiz is given. Students should have demonstrated, during the lesson, their ability to perform the various activities.

Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners

Adopted by the First United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, held at Geneva in 1955, and approved by the Economic and Social Council by its resolutions 663 C (XXIV) of 31 July 1957 and 2076 (LXII) of 13 May 1977

54. (1) Officers of the institutions shall not, in their relations with the prisoners, use force except in self-defence or in cases of attempted escape, or active or passive physical resistance to an order based on law or regulations. Officers who have recourse to force must use no more than is strictly necessary and must report the incident immediately to the director of the institution.

(2) Prison officers shall be given special physical training to enable them to restrain aggressive prisoners.

(3) Except in special circumstances, staff performing duties which bring them into direct contact with prisoners should not be armed. Furthermore, staff should in no circumstances be provided with arms unless they have been trained in their use.

Recommendation No R (87) 3 of the Committee of Ministers to member states on the European Prison Rules

Adopted by the Committee of Ministers on 12 February 1987 at the 404th meeting of the Ministers' Deputies.

63. 1. Staff of the institutions shall not use force against prisoners except in self-defence or in cases of attempted escape, or active or passive physical resistance to an order based on law or regulations. Staff who have recourse to force must use no more than is strictly necessary and must report the incident immediately to the director of the institution.

2. Staff shall as appropriate be given special technical training to enable them to restrain aggressive prisoners.

3. Except in special circumstances, staff performing duties which bring them into direct contact with prisoners should not be armed. Furthermore, staff should in no circumstances be provided with arms unless they have been fully trained in their use.

LESSON PLAN 22 – Key and Tool Control

Method of Instruction: Discussion/Lecture, Individual Exercise, Group Exercise

Time Frame 2 Hours

SESSION OBJECTIVES:

Understand the importance of effective control of keys in the prison. Teach staff of the differences between dangerous, hazardous and non-hazardous tools. Teach staff the proper procedures for key and tool control.

1. Be able to describe the procedures for obtaining and accounting for all keys within the institution.
2. Given a list of tools, be able to correctly identify the classification and the amount of supervision required for each tool with at least 75% accuracy.

EVALUATION(S): Student participation.

Training Aides Required:

1. Tool Control Training Quiz
2. Tool List Exercise
3. Tool Control Exercise
4. Blackboard or flip chart

INTRODUCTION

Effective control of keys is one of the most essential security elements of any correctional operation, regardless of security level. In order to maintain effective security, the staff must control the doors, gates, and other locking devices that comprise physical security both inside and outside the perimeter. To do so, staff must have total command of all keys and locking devices.

Tool control is important to all of us because poor tool control can put all of us into a potentially dangerous situation. Your attention to details can greatly influence tool control. You can bet if you become lax with tool control, the inmates will take advantage of the situation. Strict adherence to policies and procedures, are required to maintain the balance between the use of tools on the job and the institution's need to prevent the use of tools for escape or disruption of security.

KEY CONTROL

Good key control is not only a program or system, it is a skill that every staff member must learn and practice. Its fundamentals must be incorporated into every institution's operation and ingrained into every staff member's work habits.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

THIS FIRST PART OF THE LESSON PLAN MUST BE WRITTEN BY THE SECURITY AND FACILITY PERSONNEL AND SHOULD BE BASED ON THE INSTITUTION'S WRITTEN KEY CONTROL POLICY. INMATES SHOULD NOT HAVE ACCESS TO THESE POLICIES AND SHOULD NOT BE PERMITTED TO ESTABLISH ANY BASE OF INFORMATION ABOUT THE INSTITUTION'S LOCKING SYSTEM.

The lesson should clearly define the various categories of keys used in the institution and the different accountability requirements for each. These categories ordinarily include:

- * Emergency keys: maintained on key rings and kept separate from all regular-issue keys. They provide prompt access to all parts of the institution during fires, riots, or other urgent situations
- * Inactive keys: no longer used but which are retained as spares and backups for unused locking devices
- * Master keys: cut so that one key may unlock more than one locking device in a series of locks from a single manufacturer
- * Nonsecurity keys: do not require urgent security response if lost or stolen
- * Pattern keys: from which all other keys for a particular lock or series of locks are cut.
- * Restricted keys: allow access to sensitive areas of the institution. Special authorization must be obtained before they are issued to anyone other than the employee designated to draw them on a regular basis
- * Security keys: if lost or duplicated by inmates, these would facilitate an escape or jeopardize the security of the institution, institutional property, employees, visitors, or inmates. Urgent remedial action is necessary if a security key is lost, compromised, or missing
- * Vehicle keys: typically actuate motorized vehicles operated by institution staff for official purposes, including tractors and other specialized machines located inside or outside the secure perimeter of the facility

TOOL CONTROL

The focus of this session will include:

- o Tool Classification
- o Tool Control
- o Program Review

It is vital for everyone to adhere to policies regarding tool control. I believe this will be obvious at the conclusion of this session. No matter what department you are assigned to within the institution, you are all responsible for maintaining the security of the institution.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Now if everyone would please complete the Tool List Exercise I am currently handing out. When a few minutes you're finished, just hang onto it as we will to complete discuss each question later on in the session. Quiz is found at the end of this lesson plan.

II. TOOL CLASSIFICATION

The classification of tools is very important. All staff regardless of assigned post, should be familiar with the classification of tools we have at this institution.

A. TYPES OF TOOLS All tools can be classified under three general headings:

DANGEROUS - CLASS AA:

HAZARDOUS - CLASS A: and NON-HAZARDOUS - CLASS B.

a. CLASS AA - DANGEROUS

The class AA group includes those tools deemed too dangerous to institutional security for an inmate ever to handle without constant, visual staff supervision or secured to deny inmates even the remotest possibility of access. These tools can only be issued directly to the employee. Class AA tools must be removed from the Institution at the end of each work day, or stored in a combination locked safe in a Class A tool room, in the armory or turned into the Control Center.

b. CLASS A - HAZARDOUS

The class A group includes those tools most likely to be used in an escape or escape attempt, used to manufacture or serve as weapons capable of doing serious bodily harm, or as being hazardous to institutional security or personal safety. These tools as well, can only be issued to an employee.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Can anyone tell me what types of tools are included in this group? Write them on the blackboard or flip chart as they list them.

c. CLASS B - NON-HAZARDOUS

The Class B group includes tools of non-hazardous nature. These tools may be used by inmates but must be accounted for following each work period by the shop foreman or Detail Supervisor.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Let's see if we can list 6 types of Class AA tools and list them on the chart:

- Metal Cutting Blades
- Mixing Chambers
- Bolt Cutters
- Any Diamond Tipped Tool
- Core Drills

III. TOOL CONTROL TECHNIQUES

All institution staff are responsible for tool control. Tool control is maintained through proper MARKING, STORAGE, INVENTORIES AND ACCESS. ALL new tools must be marked according to the assigned class as defined in the Correctional Services manual.

A. TOOL IDENTIFICATION AND MARKING

All tools are marked in each work location with an identification symbol identifying the department or detail. The Tool Control Officer is responsible for assuring the correct markings. Tools which cannot be marked are inventoried and kept locked. In addition Class AA tools are marked as to the storage location.

B. STORAGE OF TOOLS

How many of you in this room have seen a shadow board? A shadow board is considered the best method of storing any tool which can be mounted. Only one tool shall be kept on each shadow and the shadow must be identical to the tool in size and shape. Shadow boards are usually framed plywood, painted white, with a hook for each tool. A colored shadow is made for each tool. All institutions use the same standardized color coding system for the tool shadow on the shadow board, depending on the class of tool.

- bright yellow = Class AA
- red = Class A
- black = Class B

All shadow boards accessible to inmates will be covered with expanded metal and a locked screen.

C. TOOL INVENTORIES

All tools received into the institution will be marked and included in the appropriate inventory prior to issue.

Employees responsible for tools will assist with this inventory and certify the accuracy of the inventory. Probably the most important fact this group needs to remember is your responsibility for inventory of the tools stored in your work area.

D. CONTROLLING ACCESS TO TOOLS

During normal working hours the control of tools is accomplished through the chit system. Your personalized key chits which are inscribed with your name are used to account for tools issued. In order to receive the tool you need, you must exchange your key chit for it.

E. LIST TOOL

If you remember nothing else about this section, remember that lost tools must be reported the same day. Immediately notify the captain and shift lieutenant.

The lieutenant's office maintains a file of lost tool reports and will monitor these carefully and accuracy, frequency of losses from a particular areas or shop, search efforts for lost tools, etc.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Encourage discussion among the group on the material that follows:

Does anyone know what we do at the actual work site when a tool is found to be missing?

- o Immediately notify the captain and shift lieutenant
 - o conduct a thorough search of the area.
 - o Any inmate who may have had access to the tool will be held at the work location until a thorough search has been made.
- o Complete form entitled Lost or Missing Tool Report on the same day the loss occurs.
- o Send copies to the captain and lieutenant.

Distribute copies of the Tool Control Exercise. Give the students a few minutes to complete it. Then provide the students with the answers, encouraging discussion.

IV. SPECIAL ITEMS OF CONCERN

Let's spend some time now talking about items that don't fit the normal definition of tools or cannot be accommodated by the procedures we discussed.

a. Acetylene tank - use of this tank must be severely limited, only the amounts needed to complete a daily task should enter the institution. At the end of the day the used and unused tanks should be stored outside the perimeter.

b. Ramset Guns (this is a gun that shoots nails into concrete and is used more and more on construction projects) - and ammunition will be stored in the institution Armory. Staff requiring use of this item will check out the Ramset Gun and ammunition from the Security Officer and return the same to the Security Officer including spent load completion.

c. Flammable, Hazardous, Poisonous Materials and Chemicals - will be maintained on inventory as determined by the Safety Manager.

These items can be drawn by employees only.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Before we move on in this session I would like to now have you retake the TOOL LIST EXERCISE and TOOL CONTROL TRAINING QUIZ. When everyone is finished we will review your answers and see how they compared to your earlier answers. Encourage group discussion

CONCLUSION

By now you should understand that key and tool control is vital to the security of the institution. If we do lose control of a key or tool, your safety, the safety of other staff members, the community and inmates are compromised. As stated earlier, we are all responsible for key and tool control.

QUIZ

1. The maintenance of the tool inventory at each individual work site is the responsibility of the _____ . (three words)
2. In order to ensure compliance with established tool control procedures, each institution will designate, in writing, a staff member to the position of Tool Control Officer.
 - a. true
 - b. false
3. All the following are considered Class AA tools EXCEPT:
 - a. bolt cutters
 - b. metal cutting blades
 - c. core drills
 - d. hydraulic jacks
4. When tools are issued from the central tool room to a special project for extended periods, the Central Tool Room Officer will be responsible for periodic on-site checks at least once a month in addition to the daily inspection by the detail officer.
5. When an employee draws any flammable/toxic materials, the issuing officer is required to record all the following _____ information EXCEPT:
 - a. person's name
 - b. purpose for use
 - c. date issued
 - d. amount issued
6. Class AA tools will be marked as to location of storage by the Security Officer.
 - a. true
 - b. false
7. Class B tools may be used by inmates under _____ supervision, but must be accounted for following each work period by the Shop Foreman or Detail Supervisor. (one word)
8. a lost Class AA or Class A tool requires _____ notification to the Captain or Lieutenant. (one word)
9. Employees responsible for tools and the Tool Control _____ Officer, will conduct inventories and certify their accuracy. The inventories will be approved by the Captain. When does this occur?
 - a. monthly
 - b. bi-monthly
 - c. semi-annually
 - d. annually
10. All tools can be classified under three general headings:
_____, _____, and _____.

11. Each institution will designate in writing, a staff member to be the Tool Control Officer.
a. true
b.false

12. The Detail Supervisor is responsible for marking each tool with an identification symbol within this area of responsibility.

- a. true
- b. false

13. The standard color code for shadow boards is _____. (one word)

14. Match each color code with the correct tool classification.

- | | |
|-------------------|-------------|
| _____ Black | 1. Class AA |
| _____ Curb Yellow | 2. Class a |
| _____ Red | 3. Class B |

15. Willie Welder, machine shop foreman, is supervising the use of a metal grinder when suddenly the control room officer announces an escape attempt near the rear gate. What action should Willie Welder take?

- _____ Maintain supervision.
- _____ Respond immediately.
- _____ Lock cover to grinder and respond to emergency.
- _____ Lock power source and respond to emergency.

TOOL CONTROL TRAINING
QUIZ (ANSWERS)

1. The maintenance of the tool inventory at each individual work site is the responsibility of the TOOL CONTROL OFFICER. (three words)
2. In order to ensure compliance with established tool control procedures, each institution will designate, in writing, a staff member to the position of Tool Control Officer.
 - a.* true
 - b. false
3. All the following are considered Class AA tools EXCEPT:
 - a. bolt cutters
 - b. metal cutting blades
 - c. core drills
 - d.* hydraulic jacks
4. When tools are issued from the central tool room to a special project for extended periods, the Central Tool Room Officer will be responsible for periodic on-site checks at least once a month in addition to the daily inspection by the detail officer.
 - a.* true
 - b. false
5. When an employee draws any flammable/toxic materials, the Issuing officer is required to record the following information EXCEPT:
 - a. person's name
 - b.* purpose for use
 - c. date issued
 - d. amount issued
6. Class AA tools will be marked as to location of storage by the Security Officer.
 - a. true
 - b.*false
7. Class B tools may be used by inmates under INTERMITTENT supervision but must be accounted for following each work period by the Shop Foreman or Detail Supervisor. (one word)
8. a lost Class AA or Class a tool requires immediate notification to the Captain or Lieutenant. (one word)
9. Employees responsible for tools and the Tool Control Officer, will conduct inventories and certify their accuracy. The inventories will be approved by the Captain. When does this occur?
 - a. monthly
 - b. bi-monthly
 - c. semi-annually
 - d.* annually
10. All tools can be classified under three general headings:

DANGEROUS, HAZARDOUS and NON-HAZARDOUS.

11. Each institution will designate in writing, a staff member to be the Tool Control Officer.

- a.* true
- b. false

12. The Detail Supervisor is responsible for marking each tool with an identification symbol within this area of responsibility.

- a. true
- b.*false

13. The standard color code for shadow boards is WHITE . (one word)

14. Match each color code with the correct tool classification.

- | | | |

| 3 _____ | Black | 1. Class AA |
| 1 _____ | Curb Yellow | 2. Class a |
| 2 _____ | Red | 3. Class B |

Supplement to LESSON PLAN 22

TOOL LOST EXERCISE

Test your knowledge of tools by providing the correct CLASS and SUPERVISION REQUIRED. The CLASS should indicate AA, a and B. Supervision should denote "C" for Constant Visual Staff Supervision or "I" for Intermittent Supervision.

NAME	CLASS	SUPERVISION
1. grinder, hand held	_____	_____
2. ice pick	_____	_____
3. Ramset gun	_____	_____
4. 12' ladder	_____	_____
5. rulers, pocket	_____	_____
6. bolt cutters	_____	_____
7. wrench, flare nut	_____	_____
8. core drills	_____	_____
9. saw, meat	_____	_____
10. razor blade scrappers	_____	_____
11. pipe wrench (over 18")	_____	_____
12. utility knife	_____	_____
13. needle nose pliers	_____	_____
14. cement spreader	_____	_____
15. diamond tip circular saw blade 14"	_____	_____
16. meat cleaver	_____	_____

TOOL CONTROL EXERCISE

Your group should discuss each of the major procedural discrepancies in tool control listed below. Appoint a recorder to record your group consensus on each of the discrepancies and report this to the large group.

1. TOOLS IMPROPERLY MARKED:

Why does this problem exist?

Under what circumstances does this problem occur?

What measures/procedures should be implemented to prevent this from occurring in the future?

2. INADEQUATE INVENTORIES:

What are some of the reasons that cause this problem to exist?

Under what circumstances does this problem occur?

What controls should be implemented to prevent this problem from occurring in the future?

3. SEPARATING CLASSES OF TOOLS:

What are some of the contributing factors that cause this problem to exist?

What causes this problem to occur?

What controls should be implemented to prevent this problem from occurring in the future?

4. IMPROPER SUPERVISION OF TOOLS:

What are some of the contributing factors that cause this problem to exist?

What causes this problem to occur?

What controls should be implemented to prevent this problem from occurring in the future?

KEY SYSTEM

INTRODUCTION

The key system is an important component of any correctional institution for the purpose of ensuring security. Prisoners have been known to escape because of the haphazard manner in which keys are handled

INSTRUCTOR’S NOTES:

THIS LESSON PLAN SHOULD BE COMPLETED BY THE PRISON ADMINISTRATION. It should be based on the written institution policy and should contain, at a minimum, count procedures including that no inmate movement should be permitted during the counts, how counts are handled in work areas, how the count is recorded, how staff is notified when the count has cleared and what procedures to follow during emergencies (disturbances, inmates thought to be missing, after lengthy power failures, natural disasters, escape attempts). This must be written so it conforms to the physical layout of the facility. It will be different in different facilities.

Full information on the Correctional Officer Correspondence Course can be found at: www.aca.org/development/products.asp.

Time Frame: 1 Hour

Performance Objectives: At the conclusion of this block of instruction the student will be able to:

1. Define the term “count.”
2. Identify and define the three types of counts that are taken within correctional facilities.
3. List three common methods that inmates use to avoid detection when they’re absent.
4. List four rules for ensuring the integrity of counts.

INTRODUCTION

A count is a physical acknowledgement of the number of inmates in certain locations. The number of inmates in each area is compared with the number assigned there. Conducting accurate counts is one of your routine duties and essential to maintaining an effective security program. Because the count is so significant, all other activities stop while it is being conducted.

TYPES OF COUNTS

- Formal Count
Regular, required count of all inmates in the institution. It is normally done five or six times each 24-hour period. In some maximum security facilities, counts may occur as often as every two hours. While they are not as frequent in minimum security facilities, counts are still conducted at mealtime and before lock-down.
- Census Count
Frequent but irregular check to verify that all inmates under the supervision of an officer are present. This count is often done on work details or programs.

- Emergency Count
Taken due to unusual circumstances such as escapes, riots, or disturbances.

COUNTING PROCEDURES

How you conduct a count is crucial to the security of your institution and its employees. Too many assaults and escapes have occurred because officers did not count according to established rules.

For most escapes to be successful, an inmate must find a way to avoid detection for at least one count. Therefore, inmates have developed many ways to prevent their absence from being noticed. The most common methods that inmates use to avoid detection while they're absent are:

- Having another inmate be counted twice
- Using a dummy for evening counts
- Forging passes that indicate they are in the hospital, or on a certain detail

You can take a count in a cellblock by yourself as long as the inmates are locked in their cells and the cell does not contain more than four inmates. You will probably be required to complete and sign a printed slip that indicates the number of inmates you have counted.

However, when you conduct a count in an area where inmates can move about freely – such as a dormitory – you should have another officer assist you. First, you should ask the inmates to stand in a line. Then, one of you should watch the inmates so that they do not move out of line or switch places. The other should conduct the actual count and complete the official count slip.

Regardless of where a count is taken, you should follow three fundamental rules to ensure the integrity of the count:

- 1. Make sure that you see each inmate you count.
This means that you must see skin – a breathing body – not merely a mound on the bed. In keeping with this principle, do not rely on a roll call, or base your count on the number of meals eaten.
- 2. Never allow inmates to conduct a count for you, or to help you in any way during the count.
A count is a security tool and should be treated as such. In fact, inmates should never be involved in procedures that affect the security of the institution.
- 3. Do not allow any inmate movement or other interruptions during the count.
Inmate movements or outside interruptions can easily distract you while you are conducting a count, thereby decreasing the count's reliability. If an inmate moves or if you become confused during a count, stop and begin the count again. Do not attempt to continue the count where you left off.

Once you conduct the count, you usually call the number into the control center. The control center staff are responsible for knowing the location of all inmates and coordinating the count as well as verifying it through written documentation.

Any count that does not match the number on the official roster (whether over or under), results in a recount. If the count cannot be verified, inmates are locked in the living units while another full count is conducted. If the discrepancy still exists, emergency search procedures are activated.

Quiz

1. Trustees can take counts if they are accompanied by an officer. True or False
2. Match the following counts with their definitions.
 - a. Formal Count
 - b. Census Count
 - c. Emergency Count

___ 1. A regular, required count of all inmates in the institution.

___ 2. A count taken due to unusual circumstances, such as a riot, escape, or disturbance.

___ 3. A frequent but irregular count to verify that all inmates under the supervision of an officer are present.
3. When should a count be taken by two officers?
4. If an interruption occurs during a count, you should _____?
5. List two ways that an inmate can avoid detection while being absent.
6. For an inmate to be listed as present, the officer must _____.

Answers to the Quiz

1. False
2. 1-a, 2-c, 3-b
3. When inmates are in an area where they can move about.
4. Stop the count and, when the interruption is dealt with, begin a new, complete count.
5. Having another inmate be counted twice
Using a dummy for evening counts
Forging passes that indicate they are in the hospital, or on a certain detail.
6. See the inmate.

Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners

Adopted by the First United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, held at Geneva in 1955, and approved by the Economic and Social Council by its resolutions 663 C (XXIV) of 31 July 1957 and 2076 (LXII) of 13 May 1977

Register

7. (1) In every place where persons are imprisoned there shall be kept a bound registration book with numbered pages in which shall be entered in respect of each prisoner received:

- (a) Information concerning his identity;
- (b) The reasons for his commitment and the authority therefore;
- (c) The day and hour of his admission and release.

(2) No person shall be received in an institution without a valid commitment order of which the details shall have been previously entered in the register.

27. Discipline and order shall be maintained with firmness, but with no more restriction than is necessary for safe custody and well-ordered community life.

LESSON PLAN 24 – Report Writing

Method of Instruction: Lecture, Discussion, Practice Writing Reports

Time Frame: 2 Hours

Performance Objectives: At the conclusion of this block of instruction the student will:

1. Know why writing accurate reports is important
2. Correctly list the essential information to be included in a report
3. Correctly list the four items to ask oneself prior to handing in a report

Training Aides Required: Black board or flip chart, Exercise

INTRODUCTION

Reports serve as the memory of the corrections department. If they are not maintained accurately and in a readily available form, complaints, minor offenses and incidents would only be available if personnel were able to remember the incidents. In the same manner, personal notes serve as the memory of an individual. As the original information taken down at the time of the incident or crime they provide a way of remembering what happened and the actions taken by the staff.

Reports provide accurate details. No one can remember all the details of an incident: what was said; what was stolen; who was suspected; the location of a witness; which witness said what.

In the report and in the form of personal notes such information is safe, it remains accurate and available until needed.

Reports document activities. Often the victims, witnesses, or staff respond to an incident in a manner which, if the circumstances were not known would be suspect. Good records document what happened at the scene, what was said and what was done.

Reports make information available. Unless the information collected is readily available, it is of little value. This has been one of the main problems of many prisons in the past. Much information concerning incidents was lost either when it was forgotten by the officer involved or when he left the prison service.

SEVEN ESSENTIALS ADDRESSED IN a WELL WRITTEN REPORT ARE:

1 WHO Who was hurt? Who did it? Who saw it? Who responded to it? Who said what or did what or saw what or . . . ?

2. WHAT What happened?

3 WHERE Where did it happen?

4. WHEN What time? What day? How long did it last?

5. WHY Why were those involved, involved? Why did it happen? Why did not normal procedures prevent it?

6. HOW How did it happen?

7. ACTION TAKEN Depending upon the circumstances, it may be necessary to take some type of action either before or after you gather the information for your report. The type of action taken will depend on the situation. However, any action you take should be carefully and accurately recorded in your notes along with the time the action was taken. These actions may include, but are not limited to, the following:

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Have the class discuss each one and add others

1. Advising the security staff to look for a certain inmate or visitor or vendor.
 2. Advising the suspect of his or her rights and that you will be writing them up in a disciplinary report.
 3. Obtaining the names of witnesses to the incident for the purpose of conducting future interviews.
 4. Actions taken to protect the area (or protect a crime scene).
 5. Giving first aid to an injured person.
 6. Actions taken to protect items of physical evidence observed at the scene (describe locations in your reports)
 7. Drawing diagram/sketch of the scene

BEFORE SUBMITTING a WRITTEN REPORT, ASK YOURSELF:

1. Is my report COMPLETE?
2. Is my report CONCISE?
3. Is my report CLEAR?
4. Is my report CORRECT?

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Have the class, using the Report Exercise, find the errors in the report. Write down the errors on the blackboard or flip chart. Encourage discussion.

Then, using the Report Writing Worksheet, have the class write a report on an inmate who refused to go to work -- they can make up the facts. Have them write a report on finding a homemade knife in the exercise yard after everyone was back in their cells. Have them write a report on finding a broken lock that needed to be repaired.

CONCLUSION

Remember that a good report leaves the reader with a clear understanding of what occurred. STICK TO THE FACTS!

Quiz

1. Why is it important to write accurate reports?
2. List the essential information to be included in a report
3. Correctly list the four items to ask oneself prior to handing in a report

Answers to Quiz

1. Accurate reports preserve knowledge, provide accurate facts, document activities and make information available.
2. Who, What, Where, When, Why, How, and Action Taken.
3. Is my report complete? Is it concise? Is it clear? Is it correct?

54. (1) Officers of the institutions shall not, in their relations with the prisoners, use force except in self-defence or in cases of attempted escape, or active or passive physical resistance to an order based on law or regulations. Officers who have recourse to force must use no more than is strictly necessary and must report the incident immediately to the director of the institution.

Treatment

66. (2) For every prisoner with a sentence of suitable length, the director shall receive, as soon as possible after his admission, full reports on all the matters referred to in the foregoing paragraph. Such reports shall always include a report by a medical officer, wherever possible qualified in psychiatry, on the physical and mental condition of the prisoner.

(3) The reports and other relevant documents shall be placed in an individual file. This file shall be kept up to date and classified in such a way that it can be consulted by the responsible personnel whenever the need arises.

Body of Principles for the Protection of All Persons under Any Form of Detention or Imprisonment

Adopted by General Assembly resolution 43/173 of 9 December 1988

Principle 23

1. The duration of any interrogation of a detained or imprisoned person and of the intervals between interrogations as well as the identity of the officials who conducted the interrogations and other persons present shall be recorded and certified in such form as may be prescribed by law.

2. A detained or imprisoned person, or his counsel when provided by law, shall have access to the information described in paragraph 1 of the present principle.

Basic Principles on the Use of Force and Firearms by Law Enforcement Officials

Adopted by the Eighth United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, Havana, Cuba, 27 August to 7 September 1990

6. Where injury or death is caused by the use of force and firearms by law enforcement officials, they shall report the incident promptly to their superiors, in accordance with principle 22.

Recommendation No R (87) 3 of the Committee of Ministers to member states on the European Prison Rules

Adopted by the Committee of Ministers on 12 February 1987 at the 404th meeting of the Ministers' Deputies.

Reception and registration

7. 1. No person shall be received in an institution without a valid commitment order.

2. The essential details of the commitment and reception shall immediately be recorded.

8. In every place where persons are imprisoned a complete and secure record of the following information shall be kept concerning each prisoner received:

a. information concerning the identity of the prisoner;

b. the reasons for commitment and the authority therefor;

c. the day and hour of admission and release.

10. 1. As soon as possible after reception, full reports and relevant information about the personal situation and training programme of each prisoner with a sentence of suitable length in preparation for ultimate release shall be drawn up and submitted to the director for information or approval as appropriate.

2. Such reports shall always include reports by a medical officer and the personnel in direct charge of the prisoner concerned.

3. The reports and information concerning prisoners shall be maintained with due regard to confidentiality on an individual basis, regularly kept up to date and only accessible to authorised persons.

63. 1. Staff of the institutions shall not use force against prisoners except in self-defence or in cases of attempted escape, or active or passive physical resistance to an order based on law or regulations. Staff who have recourse to force must use no more than is strictly necessary and must report the incident immediately to the director of the institution.

LESSON PLAN 25 – Stress Management

Method of Instruction: Lecture, Discussions

Time Frame: 2 Hours

Performance Objectives: At the conclusion of this block of instruction the student will:

1. Correctly define the terms “stress,” “stressor,” as they relate to the subject of working in prisons
2. Correctly describe the three stages of the General Adaptation Syndrome
3. Correctly describe the stressors which are most commonly associated with prison work
4. Correctly list 6 early warning signs associated with stress problems
5. Correctly list the three techniques emphasized in the management of stress
6. Correctly name at least 5 procedures for controlling stress

Training Aides Required: Blackboard or flip chart

INTRODUCTION

It has long been recognized that prison work can be most stressful. The nature of the work has been cited as the reason for the high frequency of family problems, divorce, alcoholism, heart trouble and suicides found among people in law enforcement. Prison personnel are routinely confronted with the worst examples of human behavior. We are expected to be calm when dealing with belligerent, sometimes dangerous people and to be sensitive to the needs of people who are openly hostile towards us. Moreover, we are required to remain respectful, courteous and considerate to all even when faced with severe provocation. For many, living up to these expectations requires considerable emotional constraint and adjustment. Recent research suggests it may be this stifling of emotions which causes the stress related to our job. Whatever the cause, many prison workers do suffer from stress related problems and steps must be taken to reduce this problem as much as possible. It should be remembered, that inmates also are exposed to the same types of stress.

Education and training in the causes and methods of coping with prison stress has been shown to significantly reduce the problem. As such, it is important that you as a member of the prison staff learn to recognize and deal with stress early in your career. In so doing you can avoid the potential behavioral, physical and emotional damage of prison related stress.

THE CONCEPT OF STRESS

Stress has been defined by Dr. Hans Selye in his book, Stress Without Distress. He says stress is the “nonspecific response of the body to ANY DEMAND placed upon it.”

1. All behavior is an attempt to satisfy certain needs. These needs may be physical, psychological, social or emotional.
2. “ANY DEMAND” refers to the fact that all behavior is an attempt by the body to respond to some internal or external desire and that stress problems can result from both pleasant and unpleasant demands.
3. a “stressor” is an event, object circumstance or situation which may evoke such a demand.

4. Negative or “bad” stress is called “distress” and refers to unpleasant demands.
5. Positive or “good” stress is called “eustress” and refers to demands which are defined by most people as pleasing or pleasant.
6. Basically, stress occurs when an individual becomes aware of a situation where his or her usual methods of behaving are not adequate and the consequences are perceived as mentally or physically serious.
7. Stress is not always bad. In fact, a person will quickly die without some level of steps. He or she would not breathe or eat or move. Stress only becomes a problem if it is intense, prolonged or unmanageable.

STRESS AND PERCEPTION

According to many authorities, prison work is one of the most emotionally demanding jobs in the world

1. All stress is caused by our reaction to the presence of specific stressors. These same stressors may or may not be perceived as stressful by all who are confronted by them
 - a. Stressors which are not perceived have no affect on the person. For instance, say you were in the car of a friend being driven to work. You got to work and went on your way. The brakes line in the car was broken. The brake fluid was in the process of leaking out. Fortunately, you had departed from the car before the brakes failed and you were in an accident. A situation which would be most stressful to anyone. Yet, because you were unaware of the broken brake line you were not concerned.
2. There are many types of work which are more dangerous than prison work. Underwater salvage, high steel construction, deep tunnel mining to name just a few:
 - a. These jobs deal with things rather than people and while they are perceived as dangerous they are not considered stressful by those who do them. They are looked upon as a prestigious and profitable activity which involves overcoming a specific set of dangers. Personal danger is perceived only if the person begins to question his or her ability to deal with the specific hazards. If that happens, the job becomes stressful and it is unusually necessary to change jobs.
3. In prison work, there is not a single set of dangers, the job is dealing with people and they constitute an infinite, unpredictable variety of hazards. Further, there is seldom any real reward other than a personal sense of satisfaction. Even so, perception is still the key to stress.
 - B. Training and education has been found to significantly lower stress levels
 1. It gives you a better understanding of the types of situations you will be expected to handle.
 2. The training allows you to define the work as a specific set of dangers which you can safely overcome with set procedures

THE MODEL OF STRESS

- a. There are numerous concepts about how stress develops. One of the most informative is called the “model of stress.” Using this approach, we can see stress develop and affect the person. The model consists of:

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Draw on the blackboard or flip chart

1. a stimuli, something which causes an action or reaction. In this case the stimuli is a stressor
 - a. Frustration (not getting what you want)
 - b. Fear (not able to control future events)
 - c. Guilt (for actions or thoughts which you know were wrong but did not try to stop)
 - d. Shock (finding conditions which are not expected)
2. Appraisal (perceptions of the stressor)
 - a. Place emphasis here
 - b. Person cannot control many of the stimuli in the environment (war, inflation, famine)
3. Reaction (psychological or physiological)
 - a. This is often the only part the person can control
 - b. How you react to a crime scene, scene of death, etc.
4. Behavior (actions taken to cope with the stressor)
 - a. Become sick at the sight of blood
 - b. Strike out at a person who provokes you
 1. What can the person do about it
 2. Conditioning, preparation, practice

B. All stressors have one thing in common. They increase the demand for coping with the problem.

1. Some stressors are always around and the human body has become used to adjusting to the needs
2. Other stressors are rarely encountered and require major adjustments to successfully handle

RESPONSES TO STRESS

- a. Physiological Responses
 1. The “general adaption syndrome,” often called the “fight or flight” response
 - a. Energies are gathered for fighting or running away
 - b. Involves all major parts of the body
 - c. Increases the ability to handle injury
 - d. Coordinates all functions for survival
 - e. Divided into 3 phases
 1. Alarm reaction

Body prepares for defense through the autonomic nervous system. Adrenalin is released.
 2. Resistance stage

Body is prepared and systems are stimulated to repair any damage caused by the arousal or the stressor
 3. Exhaustion stage

The defenses begin to collapse
 2. Once invoked, the General Adaption Syndrome requires vigorous physical activity
 - a. Regular exercise will keep the problem from becoming serious
- B. Psychological Responses

1. The main problem at the time of the incident involves changes in the emotion-reason scale
2. During the time the G.A.S. is in operation in the body, the mind is also working to defend itself
3. At the conscious level, the individual reacts to stress in one or a combination of three ways
 - a. Attack the source of the stress
 - b. Compromise in some way
 - c. Withdraw
4. At the unconscious level, defense mechanisms “mental defenders of the mind” are brought into play whenever the “self” is threatened
 - a. Denial - denies perception, seeks to disregard or disclaim the existence of the source of the stress
 - b. Rationalization - seeking to make something more reasonable or acceptable by deceiving itself as to the real nature of the stressor
 - c. Isolation of affect - removing the emotional aspects of the stressor
 - d. Projection - placing the blame for unacceptable feelings or shortcomings on others
 - e. Repression - removing unacceptable knowledge or thoughts from the conscious mind by forcing them into the unconscious
 - f. Some 19 or 20 others have been identified

C. Chronic Stress Problems

When the individual has been under severe stress for a prolonged period of time, the body begins to break down in one of several ways

1. The onset of behavioral problems
 - a. Alcoholism
 - b. Promiscuity
 - c. Gambling
 - d. Bragging, discipline problems
 - e. Procrastination
 - f. Other irrational activities
 - g. Illegal activities, graft, corruption
2. The onset of emotional problems
 - a. Anxiety disorders and neuroses
 - b. Depression
 - c. Burnout
3. The onset of physical problems
 - a. Ulcers
 - b. Diarrhea
 - c. Headaches
 - d. Gastro-intestinal disorders
 - e. Cardio-vascular disorders
 - f. Involuntary ticks and other similar disorders

WARNING SIGNS

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

You have been given a list of warning signs associated with stress problems. Please get it out and we will go over each of the signs

1. a significant increase in drinking or drug use
2. The initiation of a sexual relationship with a member of the criminal element
3. An increase in risk taking behavior or an unrealistic “carefree” feeling towards work
4. Always preferring to be completely alone
5. Feeling helpless
6. a dramatic increase in feelings of exhaustion; going without sleep for more than 3 days; or averaging less than 4 hours sleep a night for an extended period
7. An inability to imagine or look forward to promotions or different assignments in the future
8. Feelings of liking or preferring the company of members of the criminal element to your colleagues or family
9. Constant or persistent headaches, indigestion or diarrhea without apparent cause
10. Remaining mentally “on duty” when at home with family or friends
11. Becoming depressed or overly pessimistic about your work, the prison, or the criminal justice system
12. Feeling the need to strike out or hit someone to relieve your frustrations

STRESS MANAGEMENT

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Encourage discussion as you go over these

- A. Stress management is the responsibility of the individual
- B. You can learn to manage stress
- C. You can learn to monitor your own stress reactions and how to reduce them
 1. Basically, stress management emphasizes 3 techniques:
 - a. Exercise and diet
 - b. Relaxation
 - c. Training
- D. Exercise and diet
 1. Eat 3 meals each day
 2. Avoid sugar, salt, animal fat and processed white flour
 3. Pursue a regular course of exercises
 - a. Aerobic exercises are preferred
 1. At least 20 minutes every other day
 4. Get enough sleep (6 to 8 hours per night)
 5. Practice abdominal breathing and relaxation
 6. Do not smoke
 7. Limit your caffeine and alcohol intake
 8. Pace yourself

9. Identify and accept your emotional needs (and limits)
10. Look for the warning signs of stress
11. Take appropriate dietary supplements if needed
12. Avoid self-medication
13. Do not dwell on things you cannot change
14. Give in once in awhile
15. Talk about your worries

E. Relaxation

1. Allocate your life into three categories with adequate time for each area.

Do not neglect one for the other

- a. Occupational time
- b. Family time
- c. Personal time

F. Training

1. Prepare yourself to handle different types of problems

- a. Read books on the subject
- b. Talk to older personnel to determine their methods
- c. Take all training offered
- d. Seek out information on other law enforcement agencies and how they handle similar problems

- e. Become familiar with stress reduction techniques and which ones would be most effective for you

1. Progressive relaxation
2. Self-hypnosis
3. Bio-feedback
4. Exercise
5. Hobbies
6. Religious activities
7. Nutritional approaches

CONCLUSION

Stress management is the responsibility of the individual. Assuming you have a personality which can cope with a normal amount of stress, you can learn to handle the added stress associated with law enforcement duties. You can learn how to monitor your own stress reactions and how to reduce them. Basically, all techniques of stress management emphasize a combination of 3 techniques. Just remember that training in handling personal and professional problems, relaxation and exercise will effectively reduce almost any form of stress.

QUIZ

1. Define the following terms:
 - a. Stress
 - B. Stressor
 - C. Reaction
 - D. Behavior
2. What are the 4 primary stressors in prison work?
3. What is the General Adaptation Syndrome?
4. List at least 6 of the early warning signs for stress
5. List 5 suggestions for the management of personal stress
6. What are the 3 techniques emphasized in the Management of Stress?

Answers to Quiz

Stress: Stress is the “nonspecific response to the body to any demand placed upon it”

Stressor: a “Stressor” is any event, object, circumstance or situation which may evoke such a demand

Reaction: The response to the stressor (Psychological or physiological)

Behavior: The activity conducted to remove or relieve the effects of the stressor

2. The 4 primary stressors in prison work are:

1. Frustration
2. Fear
3. Guilt
4. Shock

3. The General Adaptation Syndrome is the physical response to a stressor. It consists of 3 phases which are, Alarm, Resistance and Exhaustion

4. Any 6 of the following early warning signs:

1. a significant increase in drinking or drug use
2. The initiation of a sexual relationship with a member of the criminal element
3. An increase in risk taking behavior or an unrealistic “carefree” feeling towards work
4. Always preferring to be completely alone
5. Feeling helpless
6. a dramatic increase in feelings of exhaustion; going without sleep for more than 3 days; or averaging less than 4 hours sleep a night for an extended period
7. An inability to imagine or look forward to promotions or different assignments in the future
8. Feelings of liking or preferring the company of members of the criminal element to your colleagues or family
9. Constant or persistent headaches, indigestion or diarrhea without apparent cause
10. Remaining mentally “on duty” when at home with family or friends
11. Becoming depressed or overly pessimistic about your work, the prison, or the criminal justice system
12. Feeling the need to strike out or hit someone to relieve your frustrations

5. Five suggestions for handling stress:

1. Eat 3 meals each day
2. Avoid sugar, salt, animal fat and processed white flour
3. Pursue a regular course of exercises
 - a. Aerobic exercises are preferred
 1. At least 20 minutes every other day
4. Get enough sleep (6 to 8 hours per night)
5. Practice abdominal breathing and relaxation
6. Do not smoke

7. Limit your caffeine and alcohol intake
 8. Pace yourself
 9. Identify and accept your emotional needs (and limits)
 10. Look for the warning signs of stress
 11. Take appropriate dietary supplements if needed
 12. Avoid self-medication
 13. Do not dwell on things you cannot change
 14. Give in once in awhile
 15. Talk about your worries
6. The 3 techniques emphasized in the management of stress are:
1. Training
 2. Relaxation
 3. Exercise

WARNING SIGNS

The following is a list of indicators that stress is beginning to affect a person. If you or someone you know is experiencing several of these signs, it is recommended that a physician be consulted.

1. a significant increase in drinking or drug use
2. The initiation of a sexual relationship with a member of the criminal element
3. An increase in risk taking behavior or an unrealistic “carefree” feeling towards work
4. Always preferring to be completely alone
5. Feeling helpless
6. a dramatic increase in feelings of exhaustion; going without sleep for more than 3 days; or averaging less than 4 hours sleep a night for an extended period
7. An inability to imagine or look forward to promotions or different assignments in the future
8. Feelings of liking or preferring the company of members of the criminal element to your colleagues or family
9. Constant or persistent headaches, indigestion or diarrhea without apparent cause
10. Remaining mentally “on duty” when at home with family or friends
11. Becoming depressed or overly pessimistic about your work, the prison, or the criminal justice system
12. Feeling the need to strike out or hit someone to relieve your frustrations

LESSON PLAN 26 – Use of Force

Method of Instruction: Lecture, discussion, question and answer

Time Frame: 2 Hours

Performance Objectives: At the conclusion of this block of instruction, the student will:

1. Be able to state when life threatening force can be used.
2. Know when it is permissible to use lethal force when it might place an innocent bystander in danger.
3. Describe, in order of preferred use, the five general techniques which can be used to control an inmate or suspect.

Training Aides Required: Blackboard or flip chart

INTRODUCTION

Whether in a prison or on the streets, arrests, control of crowds, maintaining order and acting as a mediator between people angry with each other places prison (law enforcement) personnel in the position where they might be called upon to use force, even deadly force, in the performance of their duties. There is no difference between the policy for prison officers or civilian police or military police as regards the accepted policies regarding the use of force. This lesson is the same as would be given to the police or other law enforcement personnel. For that reason, prison personnel in this lesson will be referred to as Law Enforcement personnel.

Law enforcement officers are given the lawful authority to use force to protect the public and to uphold the laws of the land. However, that authority is balanced by the requirements of not violating human rights. The policies are simple to state:

1. Law enforcement officers shall use only that degree of force which is reasonably necessary to effectively bring an incident under control or arrest a suspect.
2. Law enforcement officers shall meet force with like force and no more while protecting the lives of the officer or another.
3. Under no circumstances may deadly force be used unless the life of the officer or another person is in IMMEDIATE danger.
4. Deadly force may NOT be used to apprehend a fleeing misdemeanor. Deadly force may be used to stop a fleeing felon ONLY if all other means have been exhausted AND if the felon is believed to pose a significant threat to human life should he or she escape.
5. Deadly force is justified in the following cases:

a. To protect the law enforcement officer or others from what is reasonably believed to be an eminent threat of death or serious bodily harm.

b. To prevent the escape of a fleeing felon if all other means of effecting an arrest have been exhausted and the officer reasonably believes that the escape of the felon will pose a significant threat to human life should escape occur.

c. To destroy an animal that represents a threat to public safety or as a humanitarian measure where the animal is gravely injured.

6. Except for maintenance and training, the FIREARM SHALL NOT BE DRAWN OR EXHIBITED unless there is reasonable cause to believe there is a necessity to use the weapon in conformance with this policy.

7. Even under circumstances where the use of a weapon is justified:

a. a weapon shall never be fired from a moving vehicle.

b. Weapons shall not be fired at a moving vehicle unless that vehicle poses an immediate threat to human life.

c. Firearms shall not be discharged if it appears likely that an innocent person may be injured.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

This is a good time to ask the class what happens in this case if they are fired upon and innocent people are in near the suspect. The discussion must end with the class understanding that the rule of not injuring an innocent person takes precedence and the officer must not return fire if it would endanger innocent people.

d. Due to the danger to the public, most law enforcement department have adopted a policy stating that NO WARNING SHOTS WILL BE FIRED.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Have the group discuss the local policy in regards to firing warning shots.

e. Individuals not trained and certified in the use of the firearm by the law enforcement department are prohibited from carrying or using the weapon.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Many people in and around the law enforcement profession have military training. Several are excellent marksman. Therefore, why must they have law enforcement training and certification?

Among the items important to be pointed out is that the law enforcement have duties and responsibilities very different from soldiers. Their training is also very different. For example, the military is taught to use maximum force to take their objective as quickly as possible. In military terms that usually saves lives. In a law enforcement situation, the opposite is true. Law enforcement are taught to use the least amount of force necessary to control the situation and to escalate the use of that force only as necessary.

B. In most law enforcement departments, the only non-deadly weapon authorized for use is the baton. Some departments also provide officers with tear or pepper gas. The use of these weapons also cannot be used without prior training and also come under the rules which apply to the use of deadly force.

At the beginning of this section we indicated that the policies are simple to state. However, the practice, without training and knowledge, is much more difficult. Every arrest requires the suspect to respond to a specific command by an officer. In many cases, the suspect will not respond to that verbal command and some form of physical force is necessary. The judgement of whether reasonable force was used or excessive force was used is given after the incident is over and it is often given by superior officers, courts or even juries.

The use of force must be able to be justified as “reasonable” when analyzed after it has taken place and away from the emotions of the actual situation. That means that the need to use force must outweigh the right of a person to remain free of searches and seizures by the government, the officer and the law enforcement department. “Reasonableness,” when used as a test of whether the use of force was justified or not, is measured by:

1. “balancing” of governmental interests and physical effects to the suspect
2. isolating and analyzing specific actions of the suspect and the reactions of the officers
3. recognizing the totality of circumstances as applies to the use of force
4. recognizing the severity of the crime at issue and previous data concerning the suspect
5. recognizing the level of immediate threat the suspect posed
6. recognizing the level of resistance
7. ordering probable consequences of the suspects actions
8. considering the use of force alternatives available to the officer along with their probable consequences

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

All those factors considered after the fact can present a totally different picture than the officer felt was the reality at the time. Being frightened, excited, having to react quickly and without benefit of all the facts make such an analysis very difficult if not impossible on the spot. That is why what follows is designed to help the officer place the situation into one of a few easily and quickly identifiable categories to determine the appropriate amount of force to use.

8. Suspect is Cooperative

- a. Appears willing to follow officers lead
 - i. Presence of the officer -- as a symbol of legal authority and as a source of intimidation by the size, demeanor, apparent physical condition and training (also, the presence of several officers adds to the deterrent effect)
- b. Cooperative, but must be given directions for compliance
 - i. Presence of the officer

ii. Verbal command -- from a friendly “please” to “Stop or I’ll shoot!” Often times an officer trained in how to talk, even after having to apply physical force, can get the suspect to discontinue resistance by calling the person’s name or giving commands while using weapons or physical manipulations

- (1) Persuasion
- (2) Advice
- (3) Warning

9. Suspect resists

a. Suspect is not controlled by verbal direction. Suspect resists by not moving

- i. Presence of the officer
- ii. Verbal command

- (1) Persuasion
- (2) Advice
- (3) Warning

iii. Control Measures without weapons

(1) Pressure/Pain Holds -- the use of non-impact pressure to pain receptors (such as wrist locks or pressure sensitive areas of the body -- these will be trained in other sessions). This pressure causes the suspect to move in the direction of relief allowed by the officer

iv. Control Measures with weapons

(1) Control Instruments -- Control instruments are those which are designed to apply non-impact pressure to pain sensors. The use of the control instrument, such as the Yawara or other short stick instrument when expertly applied, can increase the chances of establishing control by amplifying non-impact pressure. These instruments are designed to maximize pain, but when used strictly as a control instrument, cause little tissue damage. Using control instruments simply to gain information is not considered ethical, but is a form of torture. Using them to avoid using another more destructive form of control, such as striking, is ethical. The pain should cease when the suspect ceases to resist.

(2) Electrical Shocking Devices -- These are not particularly reliable nor effective, but can cause pain and small burns.

b. Suspect actively resists in a defensive manner

- i. Presence of the officer
- ii. Verbal command

- (1) Persuasion
- (2) Advice
- (3) Warning

iii. Control Measures without weapons

(1) Pressure/Pain Holds

(2) Stunning -- Inhibition of respiration, muscular capability, or the ability to concentrate are forms of stunning. Examples are: a palm heel strike to the head, a similar strike to the lower rib cage, or a strike to the solar plexus. The use of stunning can give the officer the opportunity to apply immobilization techniques, handcuffs, or other restraining devices. Impact pressure is purposefully limited in the use of stunning, so that force is spread over a wider surface area of the suspects body. This lessening of pressure of a given amount of force changes the quality of effect from sharp penetrating and breaking, to padded shocking.

iv. Control Measures with Weapons

- (1) Control Instruments
- (2) Electrical Shocking Devices

(3)Chemical Agents -- Chemical agents, such as tear gas and pepper gas, are usually not lethal. They require time to take effect. Therefore, they are generally useful on subjects who resist, but who are not actually assaulting in close range when the chemical agent is used.

10.Suspect is an assailant

a.Suspect aggressively offensive but without weapons

i.Presence of the officer

ii.Verbal command

(1)Persuasion

(2)Advice

(3)Warning

iii.Control Measures without weapons

(1)Pressure/Pain Holds

(2)Stunning shocking

(3)Direct Mechanical Techniques -- These deal directly with the skeletal or mechanical support structure of the suspect's body and the use of mechanical impact pressure or leverage directly on it. Either impact pressure or opposing prohibitive pressures are used. Any of these pressures can fracture bone or cause damage to connective tissue, muscles, or organs. Mechanical techniques generally offer the best chance for establishing physical control of a subject, but also the greatest chance of injury to him or her. Techniques in this category include:

a. Concentrated impact pressure such as penetrating karate strikes and kicks

B. Prohibitive Joint Locking and Breaking Techniques such as wrist and arm locks

C. Chokes and Neck Restraints such as vascular control or choke holds

iv.Control Measures with Weapons

(1)Control Instruments

(2)Electrical Shocking Devices

(3)Chemical Agents

(4)Impact Weapons -- Straight Baton, Side Handle Baton are examples of impact weapons that can be used with varying degrees of intensity b.Suspect immediately threatens to harm others

i.Presence of the officer

ii.Verbal command

(1)Persuasion

(2)Advice

(3)Warning

iii.Control Measures without weapons

(1)Pressure/Pain Holds

(2)Stunning shocking

(3)Direct Mechanical Techniques

iv.Control Measures with Weapons

(1)Control Instruments

(2)Electrical Shocking Devices

(3)Chemical Agents

(4)Impact Weapons

(5)K-9

- c. Suspect immediately threaten death or serious physical injury
 - i. Presence of the officer
 - ii. Verbal command
 - (1) Persuasion
 - (2) Advice
 - (3) Warning
 - iii. Control Measures without weapons
 - (1) Pressure/Pain Holds
 - (2) Stunning shocking
 - (3) Direct Mechanical Techniques
 - iv. Control Measures with Weapons
 - (1) Control Instruments
 - (2) Electrical Shocking Devices
 - (3) Chemical Agents
 - (4) Impact Weapons
 - (5) K-9
 - v. Lethal Force

CONCLUSION

When considering the use of force, law enforcement officers must remember that the primary purpose of the law enforcement is the protection of life and property. All life and property, citizen and criminal alike. In accepting the job of law enforcement officer, this is the officers sworn duty. Simply stated, the job of the law enforcement is to protect and serve the public, all other duties are secondary. Using force, except in self defense or to defend a citizen from harm, violates the sworn duty of the officers.

WHATEVER THE CIRCUMSTANCES, AT NO TIME IS AN OFFICER JUSTIFIED IN PLACING OR ALLOWING a MEMBER OF THE PUBLIC TO BE PLACED IN DANGER.

QUIZ

1. Under law enforcement policy, life threatening force can be used when?
2. What is the recommended law enforcement policy regarding the firing of warning shots?
3. Can an officer ever use lethal force when it might place an innocent bystander in danger?
4. Describe the five general techniques which can be used to control an inmate or suspect and put them in order of preferred use (that is from least harmful to the inmate/suspect to the most harmful).

ANSWERS TO THE QUIZ

1. Life threatening force can be used when:
 - a. As a last resort in any situation where such force is justified
 - b. To prevent escape if the fleeing felon constitutes a significant danger
 - c. To destroy an animal which is a threat or as a humanitarian act
2. Warning shots are NOT permitted
3. No
4. Control techniques in order of preferred use are:
 - a. Presence of the officer
 - b. Verbal command
 - c. Control measures without weapons
 - d. Control measures with weapons
 - e. Lethal force

Human Rights Instruments Related to LESSON PLAN 26

Universal Declaration of Human Rights, 1948.

Article 5

No one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights

Adopted and opened for signature, ratification and accession by General Assembly resolution 2200A (XXI) of 16 December 1966 entry into force 23 March 1976, in accordance with Article 49

Article 7

No one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment. In particular, no one shall be subjected without his free consent to medical or scientific experimentation.

Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners

Adopted by the First United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, held at Geneva in 1955, and approved by the Economic and Social Council by its resolutions 663 C (XXIV) of 31 July 1957 and 2076 (LXII) of 13 May 1977

Institutional personnel

54. (1) Officers of the institutions shall not, in their relations with the prisoners, use force except in self-defence or in cases of attempted escape, or active or passive physical resistance to an order based on law or regulations. Officers who have recourse to force must use no more than is strictly necessary and must report the incident immediately to the director of the institution.

(2) Prison officers shall be given special physical training to enable them to restrain aggressive prisoners.

(3) Except in special circumstances, staff performing duties which bring them into direct contact with prisoners should not be armed. Furthermore, staff should in no circumstances be provided with arms unless they have been trained in their use.

Code of Conduct for Law Enforcement Officials

Adopted by General Assembly resolution 34/169 of 17 December 1979

Article 3

Law enforcement officials may use force only when strictly necessary and to the extent required for the performance of their duty.

Article 5

No law enforcement official may inflict, instigate or tolerate any act of torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment, nor may any law enforcement official invoke superior orders or exceptional circumstances such as a state of war or a threat of war, a threat to national security, internal political instability or any other public emergency as a justification of torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

Body of Principles for the Protection of All Persons under Any Form of Detention or Imprisonment

Adopted by General Assembly resolution 43/173 of 9 December 1988

Principle 6

No person under any form of detention or imprisonment shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment. No circumstance whatever may be invoked as a justification for torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

Principle 21

1. It shall be prohibited to take undue advantage of the situation of a detained or imprisoned person for the purpose of compelling him to confess, to incriminate himself otherwise or to testify against any other person.

2. No detained person while being interrogated shall be subject to violence, threats or methods of interrogation which impair his capacity of decision or his judgement.

Principle 33

1. A detained or imprisoned person or his counsel shall have the right to make a request or complaint regarding his treatment, in particular in case of torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment, to the authorities responsible for the administration of the place of detention and to higher authorities and, when necessary, to appropriate authorities vested with reviewing or remedial powers.

Basic Principles on the Use of Force and Firearms by Law Enforcement Officials

Adopted by the Eighth United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, Havana, Cuba, 27 August to 7 September 1990

General provisions

1. Governments and law enforcement agencies shall adopt and implement rules and regulations on the use of force and firearms against persons by law enforcement officials. In developing such rules and regulations, Governments and law enforcement agencies shall keep the ethical issues associated with the use of force and firearms constantly under review.

2. Governments and law enforcement agencies should develop a range of means as broad as possible and equip law enforcement officials with various types of weapons and ammunition that would allow for a differentiated use of force and firearms. These should include the development of non-lethal incapacitating weapons for use in appropriate situations, with a view to increasingly restraining the application of means capable of causing death or injury to persons. For the same purpose, it should also be possible for law enforcement officials to be equipped with self-defensive equipment such as shields, helmets, bullet-proof vests and bullet-proof means of transportation, in order to decrease the need to use weapons of any kind.

3. The development and deployment of non-lethal incapacitating weapons should be carefully evaluated in order to minimize the risk of endangering uninvolved persons, and the use of such weapons should be carefully controlled.

4. Law enforcement officials, in carrying out their duty, shall, as far as possible, apply non-violent means before resorting to the use of force and firearms. They may use force and firearms only if other means remain ineffective or without any promise of achieving the intended result.

5. Whenever the lawful use of force and firearms is unavoidable, law enforcement officials shall:

(a) Exercise restraint in such use and act in proportion to the seriousness of the offence and the legitimate objective to be achieved;

(b) Minimize damage and injury, and respect and preserve human life;

- (c) Ensure that assistance and medical aid are rendered to any injured or affected persons at the earliest possible moment;
- (d) Ensure that relatives or close friends of the injured or affected person are notified at the earliest possible moment.
6. Where injury or death is caused by the use of force and firearms by law enforcement officials, they shall report the incident promptly to their superiors, in accordance with principle 22.

Special provisions

9. Law enforcement officials shall not use firearms against persons except in self-defence or defence of others against the imminent threat of death or serious injury, to prevent the perpetration of a particularly serious crime involving grave threat to life, to arrest a person presenting such a danger and resisting their authority, or to prevent his or her escape, and only when less extreme means are insufficient to achieve these objectives. In any event, intentional lethal use of firearms may only be made when strictly unavoidable in order to protect life.
10. In the circumstances provided for under principle 9, law enforcement officials shall identify themselves as such and give a clear warning of their intent to use firearms, with sufficient time for the warning to be observed, unless to do so would unduly place the law enforcement officials at risk or would create a risk of death or serious harm to other persons, or would be clearly inappropriate or pointless in the circumstances of the incident.

Policing persons in custody or detention

15. Law enforcement officials, in their relations with persons in custody or detention, shall not use force, except when strictly necessary for the maintenance of security and order within the institution, or when personal safety is threatened.
16. Law enforcement officials, in their relations with persons in custody or detention, shall not use firearms, except in self-defence or in the defence of others against the immediate threat of death or serious injury, or when strictly necessary to prevent the escape of a person in custody or detention presenting the danger referred to in principle 9.

Reporting and review procedures

24. Governments and law enforcement agencies shall ensure that superior officers are held responsible if they know, or should have known, that law enforcement officials under their command are resorting, or have resorted, to the unlawful use of force and firearms, and they did not take all measures in their power to prevent, suppress or report such use.
25. Governments and law enforcement agencies shall ensure that no criminal or disciplinary sanction is imposed on law enforcement officials who, in compliance with the Code of Conduct for Law Enforcement Officials and these basic principles, refuse to carry out an order to use force and firearms, or who report such use by other officials.
26. Obedience to superior orders shall be no defence if law enforcement officials knew that an order to use force and firearms resulting in the death or serious injury of a person was manifestly unlawful and had a reasonable opportunity to refuse to follow it. In any case, responsibility also rests on the superiors who gave the unlawful orders.

Recommendation No R (87) 3 of the Committee of Ministers to member states on the European Prison Rules

Adopted by the Committee of Ministers on 12 February 1987 at the 404th meeting of the Ministers' Deputies.

63. 1. Staff of the institutions shall not use force against prisoners except in self-defence or in cases of attempted escape, or active or passive physical resistance to an order based on law or regulations. Staff who have recourse to force must use no more than is strictly necessary and must report the incident immediately to the director of the institution.
2. Staff shall as appropriate be given special technical training to enable them to restrain aggressive prisoners.
3. Except in special circumstances, staff performing duties which bring them into direct contact with prisoners should not be armed. Furthermore, staff should in no circumstances be provided with arms unless they have been fully trained in their use.

LESSON PLAN 27 – Weapons

NOTE:

MANY PRISON SYSTEMS DO NOT USE ANY WEAPONS AND THEREFORE THEIR STAFF DOES NOT NEED TRAINING IN THE USE OF WEAPONS. HOWEVER, ALL PRISON STAFF WHO MIGHT CARRY WEAPONS MUST BE TRAINED IN THEIR SAFE USE.

For purposes of this lesson, weapons include firearms, chemical agents and less-than-lethal weapons (e.g. stun guns, stun guns and tasers).

Of special importance is the training of former military personnel or combatants who are now part of the prison staff and who carry weapons. The use of weapons and rules of engagement are totally different for military and law enforcement personnel. It is necessary to teach personnel who have previous weapons experience in other disciplines to understand those differences and to make sure that they follow the policies and procedures that are appropriate for law enforcement. It is often more difficult to forget (or unlearn) former habits than to learn new ones.

THIS LESSON PLAN SHOULD BE COMPLETED BY THE PRISON ADMINISTRATION AND APPROPRIATE FIREARM TRAINING STAFF BASED ON THE WEAPONS USED BY THE PRISON.

This lesson should be a series of lessons that include, at a minimum:

A. INTRODUCTION TO WEAPONS

This module prepares the staff for the potentiality of carrying firearms and chemical agents as a job responsibility related to the authority granted them by the State. This course presents basic introductory skills and a familiarization with the handling characteristics and functional operation of each of the weapons they will use in their job. Classroom demonstration is provided for each weapon. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

B. WEAPONS – CLASSROOM PRACTICE

Each trainee is given ample time to become physically acquainted with the operation of each weapon as a prelude to range practice and qualification. A series of drills and simulations are used to develop and enhance good shooting skills prior to range use of these weapons. Special training on the handling and use of chemical agents will be covered. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

C. RANGE PRACTICE AND QUALIFICATION

Each trainee will have an opportunity to practice with each weapon and then demonstrate a minimum of 70% proficiency with each weapon that they may be authorized to use in the course of their working duties. The courses of fire are designed to demonstrate accuracy and timeliness in weapon use. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

D. LOW-LIGHT AND NIGHT FIRING COURSES

Firing at Dusk and during night conditions provides an important familiarization with the limitations of using a weapon in these conditions. The course of fire includes the use of all basic weapons under both low-light and full night darkness conditions. Minimum time that should be allocated to this subject is 2 hours.

Basic Principles on the Use of Force and Firearms by Law Enforcement Officials

Adopted by the Eighth United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, Havana, Cuba, 27 August to 7 September 1990

General provisions

1. Governments and law enforcement agencies shall adopt and implement rules and regulations on the use of force and firearms against persons by law enforcement officials. In developing such rules and regulations, Governments and law enforcement agencies shall keep the ethical issues associated with the use of force and firearms constantly under review.
2. Governments and law enforcement agencies should develop a range of means as broad as possible and equip law enforcement officials with various types of weapons and ammunition that would allow for a differentiated use of force and firearms. These should include the development of non-lethal incapacitating weapons for use in appropriate situations, with a view to increasingly restraining the application of means capable of causing death or injury to persons. For the same purpose, it should also be possible for law enforcement officials to be equipped with self-defensive equipment such as shields, helmets, bullet-proof vests and bullet-proof means of transportation, in order to decrease the need to use weapons of any kind.
3. The development and deployment of non-lethal incapacitating weapons should be carefully
5. Whenever the lawful use of force and firearms is unavoidable, law enforcement officials shall:
 - (a) Exercise restraint in such use and act in proportion to the seriousness of the offence and the legitimate objective to be achieved;
 - (b) Minimize damage and injury, and respect and preserve human life;
 - (c) Ensure that assistance and medical aid are rendered to any injured or affected persons at the earliest possible moment;
 - (d) Ensure that relatives or close friends of the injured or affected person are notified at the earliest possible moment.

Special provisions

9. Law enforcement officials shall not use firearms against persons except in self-defence or defence of others against the imminent threat of death or serious injury, to prevent the perpetration of a particularly serious crime involving grave threat to life, to arrest a person presenting such a danger and resisting their authority, or to prevent his or her escape, and only when less extreme means are insufficient to achieve these objectives. In any event, intentional lethal use of firearms may only be made when strictly unavoidable in order to protect life.
10. In the circumstances provided for under principle 9, law enforcement officials shall identify themselves as such and give a clear warning of their intent to use firearms, with sufficient time for the warning to be observed, unless to do so would unduly place the law enforcement officials at risk or would create a risk of death or serious harm to other persons, or would be clearly inappropriate or pointless in the circumstances of the incident.

Policing persons in custody or detention

16. Law enforcement officials, in their relations with persons in custody or detention, shall not use firearms, except in self-defence or in the defence of others against the immediate threat of death or serious injury, or when strictly necessary to prevent the escape of a person in custody or detention presenting the danger referred to in principle 9.

Reporting and review procedures

24. Governments and law enforcement agencies shall ensure that superior officers are held responsible if they know, or should have known, that law enforcement officials under their command are resorting, or have resorted, to the unlawful use of force and firearms, and they did not take all measures in their power to prevent, suppress or report such use.

25. Governments and law enforcement agencies shall ensure that no criminal or disciplinary sanction is imposed on law enforcement officials who, in compliance with the Code of Conduct for Law Enforcement Officials and these basic principles, refuse to carry out an order to use force and firearms, or who report such use by other officials.

Recommendation No R (87) 3 of the Committee of Ministers to member states on the European Prison Rules

Adopted by the Committee of Ministers on 12 February 1987 at the 404th meeting of the Ministers' Deputies.

63. 3. Except in special circumstances, staff performing duties which bring them into direct contact with prisoners should not be armed. Furthermore, staff should in no circumstances be provided with arms unless they have been fully trained in their use.

LESSON PLAN 28 – Use of Restraining Devices

INSTRUCTOR’S NOTES:

THIS LESSON PLAN SHOULD BE COMPLETED BY THE PRISON ADMINISTRATION AND APPROPRIATE SECURITY TRAINING STAFF BASED ON THE RESTRAINING DEVICES USED BY THE PRISON. IT IS IMPORTANT THAT THE TRAINING INCLUDE PRACTICE AND THE POLICY FOR USE OF THE EQUIPMENT WHICH MUST CONTAIN INFORMATION ON THE HUMAN RIGHTS STANDARDS THAT SAY, “INSTRUMENTS OF RESTRAINT, SUCH AS HANDCUFFS, CHAINS, IRONS AND STRAITJACKETS, SHALL NEVER BE APPLIED AS A PUNISHMENT.”

Furthermore, chains or irons shall not be used as restraints. Other instruments of restraint shall not be used except in the following circumstances:

- a. As a precaution against escape during a transfer, provided that they shall be removed when the prisoner appears before a judicial or administrative authority;
- b. On medical grounds by direction of the medical officer;
- c. By order of the director, if other methods of control fail, in order to prevent a prisoner from injuring himself or others or from damaging property; in such instances the director shall at once consult the medical officer and report to the higher administrative authority.

Such instruments of restraint shall not be applied for any longer than is strictly necessary.

Method of Instruction:

Lecture, demonstration, practice

Time Frame: 3.5 Hours

Performance Objectives: At the conclusion of this block of instruction the student will:

- Explain what security restraints/equipment are.
- State the reasons for the use of security restraints.
- Identify the approved security restraints used in the Liberia Prisons Department.
- Demonstrate the proper application of security restraints.
- Explain why inmates get out of restraints.

INTRODUCTION

During your career as a Corrections Officer, you will be placing security restraints on inmates. There are many reasons why restraints are used to control inmates. In all cases, you must know exactly what mechanical restraining device you are using and how to apply it correctly. Understanding the skills that you will be learning takes practice in order for you to become proficient. This session aims at making you proficient in the application of the restraining devices available to the Prisons Department. The session is divided into two sessions. The first session will be devoted to the theory and reasons for the application of restraints. In the second session, you will be taken through the practice of applying restraints on inmates.

DEFINING A SECURITY RESTRAINT

A security restraint is any approved equipment used to secure an inmate to ensure his/her safety and continued custody.

USES OF SECURITY RESTRAINTS

Security restraints are used:

- When transporting/escorting an inmate to court, hospital or transferring an inmate to another correctional facility.
- During emergencies to prevent escapes.
- To secure an inmate whose medical condition could cause him/her to hurt him/her self or others.
- Before or after a confrontation has become physical.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTE:

It is important for corrections officers to know that security restraints are not used as a means of punishment, to inflict pain or to humiliate an inmate.

APPROVED SECURITY RESTRAINTS IN THE LIBERIA PRISONS DEPARTMENT

The approved security restraints are:

- Handcuffs
- Foot cuffs

Staff must understand that these are only temporary restraining devices. Do not apply them to an inmate and become complacent. You need to remain vigilant even after you have applied them to an inmate because some inmates can get out of these devices. Continuous observation of a restrained inmate will ensure the inmate stays restrained.

REASONS INMATES GET OUT OF RESTRAINTS

Inmates get out of restraints because:

- The restraints are not properly applied.
- The locking mechanisms are picked up by inmates, using paper clips, wire, or thin pieces of metal, etc.
- The inmate breaks the restraints.
- The officer becomes complacent and fails to continuously observe the inmate, allowing the inmate the opportunity to tamper with the devices.

DEMONSTRATION OF APPLICATION OF SECURITY RESTRAINTS

Application of handcuffs:

(i) To open the restraint, push on the blade of the restraint. This rotating portion of the unit will pass through the cheek plates and the restraint is now open for application.

(ii) After the restraint is applied, in most cases you will double lock the restraint. To double lock the handcuff, depress the double lock pin utilizing the cuff key's double lock actuator. After the pin has been depressed, check to ensure the double lock mechanism is engaged by pressing on the blade. If the unit is double locked, the blade will remain fixed.

Procedures for applying handcuffs:

The following procedures shall be used when applying handcuffs to inmates:

(i) The officer shall stand to the side of the inmate if cuffing the hands in front of the body, or behind the inmate when cuffing the hands behind the body.

(ii) He/she shall hold the cuffs in his/her strong hand, holding the closed cuff with the cheek plates up, and the key way facing the officer's palm.

(iii) The officer shall hold the inmate's wrist with his or her other hand and place the blade of the cuff on the inmate's wrist. The preferred method of handcuffing an inmate is with the inmate's palms facing away from each other and in the back.

(iv) The officer shall press down firmly on the restraint causing the blade of the cuff to pass through the cheek plates. Tighten the restraint so it is snug and barely passes over the wrist area. The restraint should not be too tight that it impedes blood circulation.

(v) While maintaining control of the handcuffs, the officer shall apply the other restraint in the same manner to the other wrist.

(vi) After ensuring both restraints are correctly applied, double lock the handcuff.

(vii) To remove the handcuffs, stand to the side and remove the handcuff closest to you, and while holding this restraint, pull the other restraint to you and remove.

CONCLUSION

Now that I have taken you through the session on security restraints/equipment, you should be able to:

- Explain what security restraints/equipment are.
- State the reasons for the use of security restraints.
- Identify the approved security restraints used in the Prisons Department.
- Demonstrate the proper application of security restraints.
- Explain why inmates get out of restraints.

QUIZ

1. What are the four proper reasons for using security restraints?
2. Inmates get out of restraints because (state at least 3 reasons)?

Demonstrate the proper application of each of the security restraints

Answers to Quiz

1.

- When transporting/escorting an inmate to court, hospital or transferring an inmate to another correctional facility.
- During emergencies to prevent escapes.
- To secure an inmate whose medical condition could cause him/her to hurt him/her self or others.
- Before or after a confrontation has become physical.

2.

- The restraints are not properly applied.
- The locking mechanisms are picked up by inmates, using paper clips, wire, or thin pieces of metal, etc.
- The inmate breaks the restraints.
- The officer becomes complacent and fails to continuously observe the inmate, allowing the inmate the opportunity to tamper with the devices

Supplement to LESSON PLAN 28

DOUBLE CUFFING

The Double Cuffing method restricts the prisoner's movements so reducing the ability to overcome staff. The diagrams below show how this must be done.

Double Cuffing of Prisoner to Officer:

Diagram 1:

Handcuff the prisoner's 2 hands together with the prisoner's palm down. Fit the handcuffs tightly above the wrist bone, using inserts as necessary. Keep a firm grip on the handcuffs during this operation to ensure the prisoner does not have the opportunity to use them as a weapon.

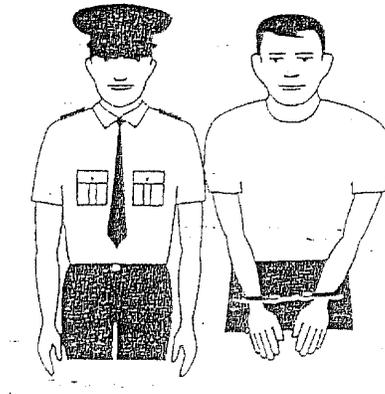

Diagram 2:

Fit one end of a second pair of handcuffs to the officer

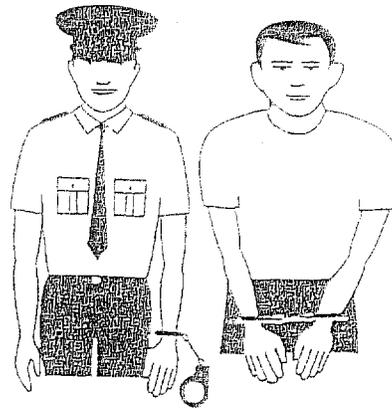

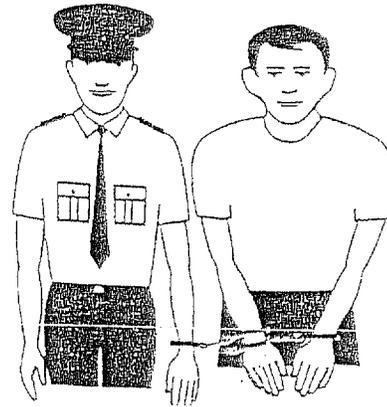

Diagram 3:

Fit the free end of the second pair of second pair of handcuffs to the prisoner, above the handcuff that is already in place

Double Cuffing of Prisoner to Prisoner:

Diagram 4:

Handcuff each prisoner's hands together, with hands palm down.

Ensure handcuffs are fitted securely above wrist bones.

Keep a firm grip on the handcuffs during application to ensure they are not used as weapons.

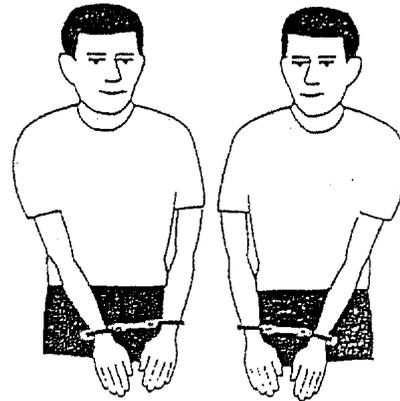

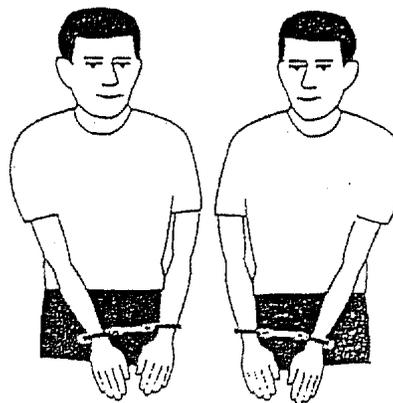

Diagram 5:

Fit one end of a third pair of handcuffs to one prisoner's wrist above the pair already in place.

Diagram 6:

With the second prisoner standing beside the first, fit the other end of the third pair of handcuffs to the closet wrist, again above the original pair.

Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners

Adopted by the First United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, held at Geneva in 1955, and approved by the Economic and Social Council by its resolutions 663 C (XXIV) of 31 July 1957 and 2076 (LXII) of 13 May 1977

Instruments of restraint

33. Instruments of restraint, such as handcuffs, chains, irons and strait-jackets, shall never be applied as a punishment. Furthermore, chains or irons shall not be used as restraints. Other instruments of restraint shall not be used except in the following circumstances:

(a) As a precaution against escape during a transfer, provided that they shall be removed when the prisoner appears before a judicial or administrative authority;

(b) On medical grounds by direction of the medical officer;

(c) By order of the director, if other methods of control fail, in order to prevent a prisoner from injuring himself or others or from damaging property; in such instances the director shall at once consult the medical officer and report to the higher administrative authority.

34. The patterns and manner of use of instruments of restraint shall be decided by the central prison administration. Such instruments must not be applied for any longer time than is strictly necessary.

Recommendation No R (87) 3 of the Committee of Ministers to member states on the European Prison Rules

Adopted by the Committee of Ministers on 12 February 1987 at the 404th meeting of the Ministers' Deputies

Instruments of restraint

39. The use of chains and irons shall be prohibited. Handcuffs, restraint-jackets and other body restraints shall never be applied as a punishment. They shall not be used except in the following circumstances:

a. if necessary, as a precaution against escape during a transfer, provided that they shall be removed when the prisoner appears before a judicial or administrative authority unless that authority decides otherwise;

b. on medical grounds, by direction and under the supervision of the medical officer;

c. by order of the director, if other methods of control fail, in order to protect a prisoner from self-injury, injury to others or to prevent serious damage to property; in such instances the director shall at once consult the medical officer and report to the higher administrative authority.

40. The patterns and manner of use of the instruments of restraint authorised in the preceding paragraph shall be decided by law or regulation. Such instruments must not be applied for any longer time than is strictly necessary.

1 LESSON PLAN 29 - Transportation of Prisoners

Method of Instruction: Lecture, Discussion, Question and Answer

Time Frame: 1.5 Hours

Performance Objectives:

1. List 4 things that must be Completed for pre-trip preparation.
2. List the forms and documentation that must be completed before, during the trip.
3. List the major considerations during the transportation of the inmate.
4. List the steps to be taken upon return.

References: Vernell Allen, Ray Holt, U.S. Federal Bureau of Prisons

INTRODUCTION:

Before leaving the confines and security of the institution, the armed escort team must realize that preparation and planning are important to the overall success of the trip. You should now about the inmates(s) you are transporting; your life, the lives and well being of fellow staff or inmates may depend on these issues.

The Prisons provides approved inmates with staff-escorted trips into the community for such purposes as receiving medical treatment not other wise available, for visiting a critically ill member of the inmate's immediate family, or for participating in programmer work related functions.

If you are planning on transferring an inmate with restraints outside the institution you should review:

- o Fact about the pre-trip preparation
- o Facts about the forms and documentation use
- o Steps in transporting the inmate
- o Steps to take on return

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

At the appropriate place in the following lesson, use the forms designed and used by the Prison Administration for inmate identification and transportation procedures.

PLAN THE TRIP

In planning your escort trip you should identify pre-transport procedures to ensure you have enough information about the inmate (s) prior to departure. Planning the trip is the first major step that you must perform. It is as follows:

A. ORDERS

First, you will receive orders requiring you to transport an inmate outside the institution. These orders will consist of:

- o Trip authorization
- o Schedule or an unscheduled trip
- o Local or cross country trip

B. FINANCES AND LOGISTICS

The business office will make financial arrangements, and correctional service will plan the trip.

First, you must verify the identification and custody status of each inmate to be transported. You can do this by:

- o Current custody status
- o Escape attempts
- o Violent or disruptive behavior

C. RESTRAINTS, ADDITIONAL STAFF, WEAPONS, AND VEHICLES

First you must determine policy requirements for restraints, additional staff, weapons, and vehicles.

Restraints Requirements

- o Handcuffs
- o C & S Handcuff Cover
- o Belly Chain
- o Leg Cuffs

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

In the following sections, several plans are to be prepared (i.e. communication, contingency). Have the class discuss why so much paperwork and what good it does. Be sure, during the discussion to make sure that the class identifies, among other things, the writing of the plan helps them think everything through and that it provides a written document others can use to know their thinking and planned activities if they need help during the trip.

D. PLAN AND PREPARATION

You should prepare a communication plan and coordinate it with the Control Center prior to your departure.

Meal Preparation

- o The meal requirement will be provided by Food Service
- o Meals should be prepared transported, and secured by staff members only

Contingency Plan

You should prepare a contingency plan for delay or maintenance problems prior to vehicle departure.

E. VEHICLE PREPARATION

Prior to beginning a trip with inmates you must not only take the usual precaution that you would take before heading out on a personal trip, but you must also take precautions unique to the correctional environment. Let's look in preparing the vehicle(s).

- o Sign out the vehicle
- o Check vehicle for general operating condition and servicing.
- o Conduct shakedown of vehicle using search techniques.
- o Check the vehicle communication equipment installation and operation.
- o Check installed security equipment (secures, grills, restraints, sirens, etc.).

F. TRANSPORTATION DOCUMENTATION

Before an inmate can be transported outside of the institution, the following inmates and staff records must be completed:

Staff Records

As the escorting officer you must sign the Escort Instruction form. This form explains your duties and responsibilities as an escort officer.

G. PREPARE INMATE FOR THE TRIP

After all of the above preparation have been discussed, now we are ready to prepare the inmate for the trip.

" Verify the identity of the inmate by checking the Inmate Picture or Identity Card.

" Obtain and inspect clothing to be worn by inmate during trip.

" Visual search the inmate by using a metal detector or a pat search to discover contraband.

" Issue clean clothing to inmate and use ensure inmate does not acquire contraband after dressing.

" Apply restraints to the inmate using the procedures we previously discussed.

" The Lieutenant, or officer-in-charge of trip, is responsible for checking the restraints being used, the tightness of restraints, the condition of the restraint locks, and the identity of inmate being transported.

EN ROUTE

a. Now let's discuss the steps necessary while transporting an inmate.

First you will check out with the Control Center in person. Do not check out over the radio.

YOU WILL:

1. Identify yourself
2. Identify the inmate
3. State the purpose of the trip

Now you must conduct a preboarding briefing.

Brief inmate on his/her expected conduct during the trip.

Do not disclose trip details to inmate(s)

During the trip you must maintain supervision and security procedures you can do this by:

1. Maintaining constant visual supervision of inmate
2. Maintaining at least the minimum restraints required for the inmate at all times.

B. If you should happen to change vehicles you should use proper security precaution such as:

1. Establish a secure perimeter around vehicle.
2. Maintain proper identification and security measures of inmate.
3. Secure vehicles during inmate transfers.
4. If possible, vary route but keep institution aware of your route.
5. Never allow the inmate to visit with anyone.
6. Make sure that armed staff member never comes in direct contact with the inmate at all during the trip.

7. If you have an escape, immediately notify the nearest law enforcement agency and your institution.

C. MAINTAIN ACCOUNTABILITY

As we have said before, you must ensure that the inmate is accounted for at all times. Again, you may do this by:

1. Transferring accountability of inmate to receiving supervisor.
2. Keeping the inmate under direct supervision until the trip is completed.

D. Think ahead -- your survival depends on it! While the number of major incidents is low, it can happen. Be prepared.

IV. CHECK IN ON RETURN

Upon completion of trip and return to your institution you must follow specific procedures.

YOU MUST

1. Check in with the Control Center.
2. Identify the inmate by using the inmate Identity Card.
3. Check the inmate in with the Control Center.

CONCLUSION

During the lesson you have learned why we escort inmates from one place to another to prevent problems associated with violent or disruptive inmates.

QUIZ

1. List 4 things that must be completed for trip preparation.
2. List the forms and documentation that must be completed before, during and after the trip.
3. List the major considerations during the transportation of the inmate.
4. List the steps to be taken upon return.

Answers to Quiz

1. Before the trip you must prepare: (any 4 of the following)
 - a. a communication plan
 - b. a contingency plan
 - c. Inmate preparations
 - d. Vehicle preparation
 - e. Restraints and weapons
2. The documents identified during the training.
3. The major considerations during the transportations are:
 - a. Maintaining supervision of the inmate
 - b. Maintaining accountability of the inmate
4. Upon return
 - a. Check in with the Control Center
 - b. Identify the inmate by using his/her identity card
 - c. Check the inmate in with the Control Center

Supplemental to LESSON PLAN 29

Prior to departure, the Officer in Charge of the escort will be identified. It is essential that this Officer has been properly trained in all aspects of Escort Procedures. They should either have completed their probation or at least completed their SVQ Level 3 Module, which includes Escorting. If operational requirements make it impossible to comply with this, Governors have the responsibility for ensuring that any officer placed in charge of an escort understands his / her responsibilities and is fully capable of discharging them. Arrangements and instructions will be clearly conveyed to the officer designated in charge of the escort. It is the responsibility of the Officer in Charge of the Escort to ensure that the escort is conducted in accordance with this briefing and any other instruction given by line management, and that he or she seeks and is in possession of All relevant information and such equipment as may be necessary. While the Officer in Charge of the Escort carries particular responsibilities, it is the responsibility of All escorting staff to ensure that no prisoner escapes.

The identities of the Line Manager carrying out the briefing and of those staff being briefed, eg officers / drivers, must be recorded, together with a note of instructions issued, in a register provided for that purpose. The register to be available to line management, local and national Audit Teams.

The Briefing must include the following:

- Communication during Escort;
- Strength of Escort;
- Mix of male / female officer, ie male prisoner(s) must not have an all female escort and female prisoners must not have an all male escort;
- Escort staff will be provided with all relevant information concerning the prisoners in their charge, ie character, current behavior, relevant intelligence etc.

The number and level of escort staff will be determined by conducting a risk assessment, taking account of:

- Number of prisoners on escort;
- Prisoner's supervision level;
- Nature of escort;
- Location of escort destination;
- Layout of escort destination;
- Estimated duration of escort;
- Assessment of likelihood that the prisoner(s) will attempt to escape;
- Assessment of potential external threat.

Before setting out the Officer in Charge of the Escort will have a Route Form and all relevant documentation in respect of prisoners in his / her charge including up-to-date photographs, descriptive forms (including a record of the clothing worn by the prisoner), special risk forms or escaper movement books as appropriate. It is recommended that SPIN generated information is used in conjunction with Form 308 (Revised 10/85).

The Officer in Charge of the Escort will draw sufficient handcuffs, 'D' Locks (of which there are 3 sizes), keys, escort chain(s) and a mobile phone. The officer will ensure that they are in good working order and that all the escorting staff are competent in their use. Additionally, if the escort involves a prolonged journey or is to a non secure location, consideration should be given to carrying a mobile telephone, including emergency telephone numbers and operating instructions.

The Officer in Charge of the Escort will ensure that:

- Escort staff check the identity of the prisoner to be escorted;
- The prisoner's legal status is known to the escort, eg must return from court etc;
- The escort vehicle is searched prior to its occupation by prisoners;
- The escort vehicle is adequately fuelled for the journey, prior to departure. Except in unavoidable circumstances, eg long journeys, vehicles should not stop for refuelling while prisoners are being carried;
- Escort staff search the prisoner(s) to be escorted, prior to departure. This must include the use of metal detection equipment;
- Prisoners have access to toilet facilities prior to departure;
- Handcuffs are securely applied Above the knuckle of the wrist;
- The location of staff in the vehicle is appropriate to the seating layout and door configuration;
- The officer handcuffed to the prisoner should position the prisoner on to the vehicle first and ensure that the prisoner is last to alight.

During the escort the Officer in Charge of the Escort will ensure that:

- Handcuffs are examined on frequent occasions during the escort to ensure that they are securely applied;
- Escort staff minimise the prisoner's exposure to public view and that no unauthorised person has access to the prisoner(s);
- On bus escorts, staff will position themselves beside all exits and in such a position as to permit them adequate supervision of prisoners;
- Arrangements for meals and toilet stops will be made with other penal establishments or police forces. Escort vehicles must not stop unnecessarily when carrying prisoners.

Note: Stops for snack foods are NOT permitted.

The instructions to escort staff will vary according to the nature and destination of the escort.

Common destinations are:

- Court;
- Hospital - as an out-patient or visiting sick relative;
- Hospital - in-patient;
- Church / Cemetery / Crematorium;
- Registry Office;
- Children's Panel Hearing;
- Home or other domicile;
- Other Penal Establishments.

Operations Unit Managers must ensure the most frequently used escort locations are security risk assessed and that local escorting policies are formulated accordingly. Liaison should also be established with those in charge at the locations to ensure that the most secure arrangements for dealing with prisoners can be put in place. Where possible, plans of locations should be obtained for use in briefing staff prior to escorts. Operations Managers should share risk assessment information with other prisons that are likely to use these locations.

TREATMENT OF CERTAIN CLASSES OF PRISONER

Note: No prisoner will be handcuffed to an inanimate object except in an emergency. The Officer in Charge of the Escort must report such circumstances in writing to the Governor of the receiving establishment and to their own Governor upon return.

Extreme Security Escorts Memorandum of Understanding:

The following points refer to escort procedures in respect of prisoners requiring the above precautions:

- Except in emergency, prisoners subject to extreme security escort precautions will not be moved outwith the prison without the prior authority of the Deputy Director of Operations;
- Prisoners subject to extreme security escort precautions will not be escorted with prisoners of another security category;
- Except in an emergency, or unless agreed with the Deputy Director of Operations, prisoners subject to extreme security escort precautions will only be conveyed in a special escort vehicle, accompanied by an armed police escort;
- They will be handcuffed to an escort officer at all times;
- They should not be handcuffed to the securing points of the vehicle unless their behaviour warrants it or in emergency. The First Line Manager in charge of the escort must report such circumstances, in writing, to the Governor of the receiving establishment and to their own Governor on return;
- The local police force should, where possible, be given at least 48 hours notice than an escort is due to take place. The police will determine the route to be taken , and no movement shall occur until a police escort is present. (A Memorandum of Understanding between ACPOS and SPS on extreme risk prisoner movement is in place to support these arrangement)s;
- Prisoners subject to extreme security escort precautions should not normally be given prior warning when a move is to take place;
- Prisoners subject to extreme security escort precautions will be designated 'Escapee'.

High Security:

High Security Escort (applies to all High and Medium Supervision Prisoners and Low Supervision Prisoners risk assessed as requiring full escort security).

The police will be informed about the movement of any high or medium supervision prisoner (records of such contacts should be maintained). Supervision, handcuffs and escort chains are mandatory, except for the purpose of receiving medical treatment or while they are non-ambulant bed patients and after a risk assessment has been carried out.

Escaper Precautions:

Security escort requirements, if not assessed as extreme, are as for high or medium supervision prisoners but with the addition of carrying and maintaining the Escaper Book. Escorting staff must be fully appraised of the prisoner(s) case history.

- Escorting staff must carry the ‘Escapee Book’ pertaining to the prisoner. It must contain written instructions as to the escape precautions which are to be applied to that prisoner;
- Police will be informed about the escort of any prisoner subject to escape precautions;
- Prisoners subject to escape precautions who are travelling with other prisoners will be separated and clearly identified to all members of the escort staff;
- Prisoners designated escapee should be handcuffed to a member of staff.

Risk Assessment of Low Supervision Prisoners (not in open prisons or on supervised placements for top ends or participating in SEL Scheme:

Before any escort involving a low supervision prisoner, as defined above, takes place an Escape Risk Assessment must be carried out. The assessments will take into account:

- Past history of prisoner;
- Apparent stability in prison;
- Notoriety;
- Any current or domestic or family problems;
- Any recent occurrences, eg positive drug tests, assaults, or misconduct reports.

The assessor will make an assessment of the likelihood of an escape and the likely impact of an escape, ie media interest or public concern. Where it appears that there are no factors which make an escape attempt likely, and where if there was a successful attempt, it would have little impact, the escort will be classed as low security. If not assessed as low security, high security escort precautions will apply (as for high and medium supervision prisoners). The same risk assessment will be applied before allocating a prisoner to an outside work party or any other activity outside the security perimeter.

Low Security Escorts:

Except in cases where the risk assessment concludes that the strength of an escort should be greater, it is proposed that it should apply to prisoners on low supervision who are not in open prisons, on supervised placements from ‘Top Ends’, or are participating in the Special Escorted Leave Scheme (SEL). The only further amendment to these arrangements, one officer and civilian driver, would be that the use of handcuffs would be mandatory.

Minimum Security Escorts

Handcuffs will not be used as a matter of course, but will be carried by the Officer in Charge of the Escort and prisoners will be warned, that the escorting staff have the authority to use these, before the escort sets out. The escort strength may be a single officer but the officer must be able to remain with the prisoner at all times. The officer may be the vehicle driver, in low security escorts, provided they can remain with the prisoner at all times. The officer may apply handcuffs at any time, if they consider it to be appropriate, and will immediately contact the local police for assistance and they will despatch support to the officer without delay.

Low Supervision Prisoners in Open Conditions and Supervised Placements:

There are no mandatory security requirements for the escorting of prisoners located in open prisons or those participating in supervised placements. Governors should use their discretion in circumstances where an escort would be deemed appropriate.

Untried Prisoners:

As far as is reasonably practicable untried prisoners will not be handcuffed to convicted prisoners.

Female Prisoners:

- Will be subject to the same security precautions, appropriate to their supervision status, as male prisoners;
- Pregnant female prisoners who are in labour and who are subject to high or medium supervision will have an all female escort but handcuffs or escort chains will Not be used. Where the risk assessment indicates a high risk of escape the escort strength should be increased.

Prisoners Displaying Violent Behaviour:

- Where one or more prisoners who have a history of, or are currently displaying, violent behaviour are to be escorted, arrangements and escort strength should take account of such factors;
- Police will be informed and may be requested to escort the prison vehicle.

High Profile Prisoners:

- Special arrangements may require to be made with regard to the escort of certain prisoners who may be of a high media profile, or of interest to pressure groups. It will be necessary to reduce to an absolute minimum their exposure to public view and to deny them access to unauthorised personnel.

USE OF HANDCUFFS / ESCORT CHAINS

(See attached Table of Minimum Standards – Annex A)

With the exception of minimum security escorts, prisoners under escort will be allowed to use toilets only when they are restrained by use of an escort chain. The toilet should be checked for contraband and ease of exit before the prisoner is allowed to use it.

The only exceptions to these procedures are:

- Women in labour;
- A prisoner undergoing either in-patient or out-patient treatment in hospital where it is impractical for an escort chain to remain in place, removal is permitted only for the duration of such treatment.

SPECIAL ESCORT TYPES

Long Journeys:

In the case of escorts necessitating long journeys then special arrangements may require to be made:

By Road: There should be sufficient staff to ensure that tiredness does not affect the degree of supervision. The journey should be broken into stages which will allow rest periods. Wherever possible, contact should be made with other penal establishments or police forces to arrange for the breaks to be taken in secure conditions. The Officer in Charge of the Escort should regularly advise the home establishment of progress throughout the duration of the escort.

By Air: The airline should be advised of any forthcoming escort and request for special considerations made, eg seating arrangements. Police at both the departure and arrival airports should be informed and arrangements for holding accommodation made, if this is considered necessary. Aircraft Captains may insist on handcuffs being removed, but this should not be done until the aircraft doors are closed and the prisoner should be seated in a window seat. Handcuffs should be re-applied after landing before the doors are opened. Where possible, the escort should be collected from the arrival airport by authorised prison or police personnel.

By Rail: The railway should be advised in advance and special seating arrangements should be made. Police at both the departure and arrival stations should be informed and arrangements for holding accommodation made, if this is considered necessary.

Repatriation of Prisoners:

Arrangements for such escorts are contained in Circular No 64/1985 (Criminal) dated 27 September which also specifies escorting staff's authority in certain situations.

Hospital Escorts:

Prisoners attending hospitals / clinics etc for examination / treatment will normally have an escort chain attached during the actual examination / treatment. This will permit the escort to maintain maximum control, but at a distance which permits discreet supervision. Where there is a likelihood that medical reasons will require the removal of handcuffs (including the admission of prisoners as non-ambulant in-patients) a risk assessment must be carried out prior to the escort. The Governor or Duty Manager must approve the exact circumstances under which the handcuffs may be removed and this must be fully covered in the pre-escorting briefing.

- The security of the room – windows, exits, location;
- The number of escort staff;
- The nature of the treatment and the condition of the prisoner;
- The police support available.

In the case of emergency treatment or changes to treatment where the medical staff indicate that there is an urgent medical reason for the handcuffs or escort chain to be removed, this should be done. The Officer in Charge of the Escort will carry out a risk assessment (if possible before the removal of handcuffs) and then communicate this to the establishment. The escorting officer and the establishment will log the exact terms of this communication and the establishment must assess whether additional support is necessary. The escorting staff must do what they can do to minimise the risk.

In-patient Hospital Escorts:

The following additional procedures should apply when prisoners are treated as an in-patient in hospital:

- Local police should always be informed of the admission of in-patient prisoners;
- The clothing of a prisoner in-patient should be returned to the establishment immediately after admission.

As previously stated, handcuffs should not be used on women in labour, either during the journey to the hospital or during the period they are in hospital to give birth, but will be carried by the escort and will be used on departure from the hospital.

COMMUNICATION DURING ESCORTS

Communication to Prison / Police:

The method of communication to prison / police escorts should be established during the pre-departure briefing. This should cover the use of radio and / or mobile phone with all relevant call signs and contact numbers being provided.

When prison vehicles are being escorted by the police, the prison driver or escort in charge should have radio contact with the escorting vehicles.

REPORT ON UPON COMPLETION OF ESCORTS

Upon return to the parent establishment the Officer in Charge of the Escort will submit a report on the completed escort. This report should include:

- Any incident during the escort;
- Any unusual occurrences;
- Any contact between prisoners and unauthorised persons;
- Any general difficulties experienced.

ANNEX A

SECURITY STANDARD 8

SUPERVISION OF PRISONERS (EXTERNAL) ESCORTS

Principle:

To ensure that appropriate levels of supervision are maintained to prevent escape and breaches of security.

The following Table sets out Minimum requirements with regard to escort strength and use of equipment:

Prisoner's Supervision Status	Type of Escort	No of Prisoners	Minimum Staffing	Special Escort Vehicle	Cuffs and Escort Chain	Police	Escaper Book
High Supervision Level Prisoner	Extreme Security	Per Prisoner	Manager + 2 + Driver	Mandatory	Mandatory	MOU Directive	Mandatory
	High Security	Per Prisoner	2 + Driver	-	Mandatory	Informed	-
Medium Supervision Level Prisoner	High Security	One	2 + Driver	-	Mandatory	Informed	-
		2 – 15	3 + Driver	-	Mandatory	Informed	-
		16 - 23	4 + Driver	-	Mandatory	Informed	-
		24 plus	Manager + 5 + Driver	-	Mandatory	Informed	-
		Escaper	2 + Driver	-	Mandatory	Informed	Mandatory
Low Supervision Level Prisoner	High Security	One	2 + Driver	-	Mandatory	Informed	-
	Low Security	One	1 + Driver	-	Mandatory	Informed	-

	Minimum Security	One	One (who can be the Driver)	-	Carried by Escorting Officer	-	-
Open Prison or Supervised Placement	None	Any	Nil	-	-	-	-

ANNEX B

DETERMINATION OF TYPE OF ESCORT REQUIREMENT

OF PRISONERS OUTSIDE A SECURE PERIMETER

This includes all prisoners other than those in open prisons and includes outside work parties.

For All High / Medium Security Escorts:

- Has prisoner had prior warning of Escort?
- Is there any intelligence information indicating that the prisoner is likely to attempt to escape?
- Are there any unusual features of the prisoner (notoriety, mental illness, discipline problems etc)?
- Is there any intelligence information on potential external threat?
- Are there any problems or unusual features concerning the escort route?
- Are there any problems or unusual features concerning the escort destination?

For Low Supervision Prisoners Eligible for Low Security Escorts:

- Past History of Prisoner : have they a record of violence or unpredictability?
- Apparent Stability in Prison : any known difficulties?
- Notoriety : will an escape by this prisoner attract particular public interest?
- Any current domestic or family problems?
- Any recent occurrences, eg positive drug test, assault or misconduct report?

Defined Bus or Van Escorts:

Escorts which start and finish within a secure prison or at a court which has a secure disembarking area do not necessarily require the minimum number of staff shown in Annex A.

Escort Plans:

All escorts to be planned on the basis of the number and supervision level of the prisoners involved, the risk assessment, the type of transport to be used and the number of staff.

Communications:

The Officer in Charge of each escort must be provided with a reliable method of radio or mobile telephone communications, whatever the type of escort. The system must be capable of operating at all points of the escort and must be reasonably secure, ie UHF radio or digital mobile phone.

Staff Competence:

Governors will be responsible for ensuring that staff escorting prisoners outwith the establishment will have received the full training required and will have been assessed as competent to perform these duties.

Briefing:

Prior to departure, arrangements and instructions will be clearly conveyed to the Officer in Charge of the Escort by an identified line manager. The identity of the parties involved in the briefing will be recorded.

Minimising Escorts:

The incidence of external escorts should be minimised with medical expertise etc being brought into the establishment, where possible.

Local Manuals:

Local Security Manuals should contain full guidance on how all aspects of security, including how escorting is managed. The Manual should reflect local considerations but must incorporate the minimum standard set out in this document.

Exceptions:

These minimum standards will apply to all escorts. The only exceptions will be medical emergencies, hospital escorts where a risk assessment has been carried out, or where the Deputy Director of Operations had given written approval.

GUIDANCE TO STAFF ESCORTING PRISONERS TO WEDDINGS AND FUNERALS

RELIGION	WEDDINGS		FUNERALS			COMMENT
	PLACE	DRESS	BURIAL / CREMATION	PLACE	DRESS
BUDDHISM	Registry Office with possible subsequent ceremony at temple or shrine for a blessing	Remove shoes in temple or shrine	Cremations more usual than burial	Cemetery or crematorium direct or after ceremony at temple or shrine	Remove shoes in temple or shrine	Buddhist ceremony and practice vary according to cultural background and traditions of the country concerned

Any social function after a wedding is not an essential part of the ceremony; at a burial the officer may be invited to throw earth into the grave - Not obligatory
SIKHISM	Gurdwara (temple) or Registry Office and ceremony at Gurdwara	Remove shoes and cover head in Gurdwara	Cremation only	Gurdwara and cremation	Remove shoes and cover head in Gurdwara	No tobacco allowed on the person when in the Gurdwara; at cremation prisoner, if eldest son, is expected to press button. Upon return to establishment, full shower facilities should be offered, after ceremony at Gurdwara officer may be offered a kind of spiced sweetmeat or other ceremonial food, eg Kara Prashad (Holy food) – part of religious ceremony and officer should sample, taking a small portion with right hand

TRANSFER PROCEDURES

INTRODUCTION: Within the correctional environment, inmates may be moved from one facility to another for various reasons. This session is designed to expose the participant to the reasons that may occasion the transfer of an inmate and the procedures to adopt when transferring an inmate as well as the documents to accompany the transferred inmate and the sources of authority to transfer an inmate.

Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners

Adopted by the First United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, held at Geneva in 1955, and approved by the Economic and Social Council by its resolutions 663 C (XXIV) of 31 July 1957 and 2076 (LXII) of 13 May 1977

Instruments of restraint

33. Instruments of restraint, such as handcuffs, chains, irons and strait-jackets, shall never be applied as a punishment. Furthermore, chains or irons shall not be used as restraints. Other instruments of restraint shall not be used except in the following circumstances:

(a) As a precaution against escape during a transfer, provided that they shall be removed when the prisoner appears before a judicial or administrative authority;

(b) On medical grounds by direction of the medical officer;

(c) By order of the director, if other methods of control fail, in order to prevent a prisoner from injuring himself or others or from damaging property; in such instances the director shall at once consult the medical officer and report to the higher administrative authority.

34. The patterns and manner of use of instruments of restraint shall be decided by the central prison administration. Such instruments must not be applied for any longer time than is strictly necessary.

Notification of death, illness, transfer, etc.

44. (3) Every prisoner shall have the right to inform at once his family of his imprisonment or his transfer to another institution.

Removal of prisoners

45. (1) When the prisoners are being removed to or from an institution, they shall be exposed to public view as little as possible, and proper safeguards shall be adopted to protect them from insult, curiosity and publicity in any form.

(2) The transport of prisoners in conveyances with inadequate ventilation or light, or in any way which would subject them to unnecessary physical hardship, shall be prohibited.

(3) The transport of prisoners shall be carried out at the expense of the administration and equal conditions shall obtain for all of them.

Body of Principles for the Protection of All Persons under Any Form of Detention or Imprisonment

Adopted by General Assembly resolution 43/173 of 9 December 1988

Principle 16

Promptly after arrest and after each transfer from one place of detention or imprisonment to another, a detained or imprisoned person shall be entitled to notify or to require the competent authority to notify members of his family or other appropriate persons of his choice of his arrest, detention or imprisonment or of the transfer and of the place where he is kept in custody.

Recommendation No R (87) 3 of the Committee of Ministers to Member States on the European Prison Rules

Adopted by the Committee of Ministers on 12 February 1987 at the 404th meeting of the Ministers' Deputies

Notification of death, illness, transfer, etc.

49. 1. Upon the death or serious illness of or serious injury to a prisoner, or removal to an institution for the treatment of mental illnesses or abnormalities, the director shall at once inform the spouse, if the prisoner is married, or the nearest relative and shall in any event inform any other person previously designated by the prisoner.

3. All prisoners shall have the right to inform at once their families of imprisonment or transfer to another institution.

Removal of prisoners

50. 1. When prisoners are being removed to or from an institution, they shall be exposed to public view as little as possible, and proper safeguards shall be adopted to protect them from insult, curiosity and publicity in any form.

2. The transport of prisoners in conveyances with inadequate ventilation or light, or in any way which would subject them to unnecessary physical hardship or indignity shall be prohibited.

3. The transport of prisoners shall be carried out at the expense of the administration and in accordance with duly authorised regulations.

Recommendation No R (98) 7 of the Committee of Ministers to Member States concerning the ethical and organisational aspects of health care in prison.

Adopted by the Committee of Ministers on 8 April 1998, at the 627th meeting of the Ministers' Deputies).

18. All transfers to other prisons should be accompanied by full medical records. The records should be transferred under conditions ensuring their confidentiality. Prisoners should be informed that their medical record will be transferred. They should be entitled to object to the transfer, in accordance with national legislation.

Procedure Assessment – Escorting

Corrections Officer Name (please print): _____

Introduction

Read through the following security skill. Place a check (√) under Yes or No in the column stating whether or not the officer performed this part of the task, they must perform this skill twice (on different days) and be graded both times.

Escorting	1 st Practice		2 nd Practice
	Yes	No	Yes	No
1. Knowledge of Institutional Policies and/or Post Orders
• able to reference and state the reference numbers of the Policy and/or Post Order
• demonstrates understanding that all movement of inmates under the supervision of an escort officer.
• demonstrates understanding that the escort officer shall know the number of inmates under their supervision at all times.
• demonstrates understanding that there is no deviation from direct supervision of the inmate(s) without expressed authority from the superintendent
2. Procedures	Yes	No	Yes	No
• assumes responsibility for escorting inmates to the various areas of activities
• performs a through body search of the inmate before departing the area
• ensures a strip search is conducted by an officer of the same sex upon returning from the outside
• immediately informs the supervisor of any contraband found on the inmate
• inspects any package for contraband the officer may receive while conducting the escort
3. Administration	Yes	No	Yes	No
• documents in the log book all inmates used for outside work

LESSON PLAN 30 – Use of Radio/Telephones

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

THIS LESSON PLAN SHOULD BE COMPLETED BY THE PRISON ADMINISTRATION AND BE BASED ON THE COMMUNICATIONS EQUIPMENT USED BY THE PRISON. THE LESSON SHOULD ALLOW EACH STUDENT TO PRACTICE WITH EACH TYPE OF COMMUNICATION DEVICE.

Method of Instruction: Lecture

Time Frame: 1.5 Hours

Performance Objectives: At the conclusion of this block of instruction the student will be able to:

- STATE:
 - the reasons why radios are used
 - the authority for the use of radios
 - the situations when radios are to be used
 - the conditions and restrictions on the use of radios
- DEMONSTRATE:
 - the application of radios under training conditions
 - an ability to set-up [power-up] and close-down [power-down] radios under training conditions
 - an ability to transmit and receive a range of radio messages
- NAME AND INDICATE:
 - the various parts of a radio

Training Aides Required:

Blackboard or Flip Chart, Radios

INTRODUCTION

Radios are used to communicate information of an operational nature:

- 2-way radios must only be used to communicate official business
- Communications must adhere strictly to the guidelines set out in the Radio Communications Act and associated Regulations

Situations in which to use 2-way Radios

Any time when there is an operational necessity :

- to broadcast a message to a specific location or the radio net as a whole
- where other means of communication are inappropriate, insecure, unsafe or not available
- any time when the use of other communications may cause undue delay where that delay is likely to affect safety or security of individuals and/or property.

DISCUSSION GUIDE: Ask the class, “when might you NOT use a radio?” – Record their responses on the blackboard or flip chart.

Conditions & Restrictions on the use of 2-way Radios

- Always assume that what you say will be heard by other people
- Use only for official business
- Use only official codes and the phonetic alphabet
- Be brief, accurate and to the point

Checking & Operation of 2-way Radios

- RECEIVING
 - listen for your ‘call-sign’ or the ‘net call-sign’
 - wait for transmission to cease
 - think about your response
- TRANSMITTING / SENDING
 - depress and hold ‘Transmit’ button
 - reply briefly and accurately
 - release ‘Transmit’ button and await reply or acknowledgment
- CONTINGENCIES
 - Radio does not operate, check:-
 - Battery
 - Settings
 - Connections
 - Still not operating, return for replacement

Official Call Signs

As Radios are not in use at present call signs have not been designated. However in normal circumstances the call sign has two components. The First Designates the Location of the Radio, for example MCP could be ‘M’ which is ‘MIKE’ the second part is the position within MCP. Escort position may be 3. Therefore the Call Sign would be ‘MIKE 3’

International Radio Codes

Yellow - Officer requiring assistance
Black - Medical alert
Green - Escape
Red - Fire or fire alarm
Brown - Hostage
Orange - Bomb threat
White - Evacuation

Phonetic Alphabet

	PHONETIC	Spoken as		PHONETIC	Spoken as
A	ALFA	AL-fah	N	NOVEMBER	No-VEM-ber
B	BRAVO	BRAH-voh	O	OSCAR	OSS-car
C	CHARLIE	CHAR-lee	P	PAPA	pa-PAH
D	DELTA	DEL-ta	Q	QUEBEC	CUE-bec
E	ECHO	ECK-oh	R	ROMEO	RO-me-oh
F	FOXTROT	FOKS-trot	S	SIERRA	see-AIR-rah
G	GOLF	Golf	T	TANGO	TANG-go
H	HOTEL	hoh-TEL	U	UNIFORM	YOU-nee-form

K	KILO	KEY-loh	X	XRAY	ECKS-ray
L	LIMA	LEE-mah	Y	YANKEE	YANG-key
M	MIKE	mike	Z	ZULU	ZOO-loo

CONCLUSION

- Radios are only used to communicate official information
- The authority for the issue and operation of 2-way radios is the Radio Communication Act 1992
- Radios provide a quick and effective means of transmission but can generally be overheard by anyone on the net or near a radio that is receiving
- Listen and think before you speak
- Transmission should be brief and accurate
- Always remember and monitor for your 'call-sign' or the 'net call-sign' [broadcasts]

QUIZ

1. List 2 restrictions on the use of radios
2. List 3 things you would check if your radio did not work.
3. What are the following emergency color codes for?
 - i. Red
 - ii. Yellow
 - iii. Green
 - iv. Black
 - v. Orange
 - vi. Brown
 - vii. Grey
 - viii. White

Hands on Operation

- Switching on - switching off
- Battery removal
- Dos & Don'ts
- Buttonology
- Switching on - switching off
- Battery removal
- Dos & Don'ts
- Buttonology

Answers to Quiz

- 1 Remember what you say will be heard by other people
 - Use only for official business
 - Use only official codes and the phonetic alphabet
 - Be brief, accurate and to the point
 - Always listen before you transmit
 - Always think before you speak
 - Remember all radio transmissions are monitored
- 2 Radio does not operate, check:-
 - Battery, Settings, Connections
3.
 - Red - fire
 - Yellow - officer requires assistance
 - Green - escape
 - Black - medical emergency
 - Orange - bomb threat
 - Brown - hostage
 - Grey - riot
 - White - evacuation

Supplement to LESSON PLAN 30

Transmitting a message

- Stations wishing to communicate on a net must make an initial transmission in the following sequence:
- THE CALL SIGN that identifies the station that is being called
- “THIS IS” to indicate that a call sign follows
- THE CALL SIGN identifying the station which is calling - e.g. “Zulu 1 - THIS IS - Zulu CONTROL”.
- TEXT - the text of the information that is to be passed
- ENDING - either one of the following pro-words advising that transmission has ended by that station
- OVER or
- OUT

Responding to a message

Stations called upon to reply must respond with a three part transmission which consists of:

- THE CALL SIGN that identifies the station that required the response
- “THIS IS”
- THE CALL SIGN identifying the station which is answering - e.g. “Zulu CONTROL - THIS IS - Zulu 1”

Talkgroups

- A Talkgroup is a group of users who have a common need to communicate regardless of location
- A Talkgroup allows communication over a wide geographical area

LESSON PLAN 31 – HIV-AIDS

Method of Instruction: Lecture, discussion

Time Frame: One Hour

Performance Objectives:

To make the trainees (both inmates and staff) aware of HIV/AIDS, its causes, symptoms, treatment and preventive techniques.

LESSON OBJECTIVE: At the end of this session, each trainee will be able to :

1. Understand what HIV/AIDS is and how it is and is not spread.
2. Identify the symptoms of HIV/AIDS.
3. Know how to treat a person with HIV/AIDS symptoms.
4. Understand how to prevent getting AIDS.

Training Aids Required: Blackboard or flip chart

Resource Information: The information in this lesson plan came from several sources, including the San Francisco AIDS Foundation; however, one of the best was “Where There Is No Doctor” by David Werner and published by the Hesperian Foundation. This is a publication that is recommended for every prison and detention center, especially those with limited professional medical staff. It has been translated into more than 80 languages and information on where to obtain it can be found on the Internet at: www.hesperian.org.

INSTRUCTOR’S NOTES: This lesson is given the same way to all audiences including staff, inmates and visitors. Where possible, obtain and pass out informative material from local, national or international health agencies.

INTRODUCTION

AIDS is a dangerous disease spread from person to person through the HIV virus. It is now found in most countries around the world, and in many has become a leading cause of death.

HIV are the initials for “Human Immunodeficiency Virus” and AIDS are initials for “Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome”. To help understand the disease, we can explain it by its initials:

H – Human – because this virus can only infect human beings.

I – Immuno-deficiency – because the effect of the virus is to create a deficiency, a failure to work properly, within the body’s immune system.

V – Virus – because this organism is a virus, which means one of its characteristics is that it is incapable of reproducing by itself. It reproduces by taking over the machinery of the human cell.

A – Acquired – because it’s a condition one must acquire or get infected with, not something transmitted through the genes.

I – Immune – because it affects the body’s immune system, the part of the body that usually works to fight off germs such as bacteria and viruses.

D – Deficiency – because it makes the immune system deficient (makes it not work properly).

S – Syndrome – because someone with AIDS may experience a wide range of different diseases and opportunistic infections.

HIV/AIDS reduces the body's ability to fight disease. A person with HIV/AIDS can get sick very easily – from many different illnesses such as diarrhea, pneumonia, tuberculosis or a serious type of skin cancer. Most persons with AIDS die from diseases their bodies are no longer strong enough to fight.

HIV/AIDS is spread when blood, semen (sperm) or vaginal juice of someone with the HIV virus enters the body of another person. It can be spread through:

1. Sex with someone who has the HIV virus. That means that a person who has sex with more than one person has a higher risk of getting HIV/AIDS.
2. Using the same needle or syringe or any instrument that cuts the skin without sterilizing it. Drug users and others who share needles have a very high risk. People who use another person's razor or who use the same needle as someone else for body piercing or tattooing also have a very high risk of getting HIV/AIDS.
3. About one third of babies of mothers with the HIV virus will get HIV/AIDS.

It is important to understand that you can get HIV/AIDS from someone who looks completely healthy. Often, it takes months or years after the virus enters the body for the first signs to appear – but the person can still spread HIV/AIDS to others through sex or sharing needles.

HIV is not spread through everyday contact such as shaking hands, or living, playing or eating together. Also, it is not spread by food, water, insects, toilet seats or communion cups.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Divide the class into groups of no more than six. Give each group a sheet of paper and ask them to list the ways in which HIV can be spread on one side of the paper and list the ways it cannot be spread on the other side. Give the group ten minutes to discuss this and then call them back together.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

The purpose of the above exercise is to make sure all trainees personally understand that HIV/AIDS is spread through specific types of personal contact that they can generally control. It is also important to eliminate unfounded fear they might have because they are forced to live and work close to others who might already be infected with the HIV virus.

REQUIREMENTS FOR HIV TO BE SPREAD

Three conditions must be met for HIV transmission from one person to another to occur:

- HIV must be present;

Infection can only happen if one of the persons involved is infected with HIV. Some people assume that certain behaviors (such as anal sex) cause AIDS, even if HIV is not present. This is not true.

- In sufficient quantity;

The concentration of HIV determines whether infection may happen. In blood, for example, the virus is very concentrated. A small amount of blood is enough to infect someone. A much larger amount of other fluids would be needed for HIV transmission.

- And it must get into the bloodstream.

It is not enough to be in contact with an infected fluid to become infected. Healthy, unbroken skin does not allow HIV to get into the body; it is an excellent barrier to HIV infection. HIV can only enter through an open cut or sore, or through contact with the mucous membranes in the anus and rectum, the genitals, the mouth and the eyes.

HOW HIV IS PASSED FROM ONE PERSON TO ANOTHER

Sexual Activity

- Sexual intercourse (vaginal and anal): In the genitals and the rectum, HIV may infect the mucous membranes directly or through cuts and sores caused during intercourse (many of which would be unnoticed).
- Oral sex (mouth-penis, mouth-vagina): The mouth is an inhospitable environment for HIV (in semen, vaginal fluid or blood), meaning the risk of HIV transmission through the throat, gums and oral membranes is lower than through vaginal or anal membranes. There are, however, documented cases where HIV was transmitted orally, so we can't say that getting HIV-infected semen, vaginal fluid or blood in the mouth is without risk.

Non-Sexual Activity

- Sharing injection needles: An injection needle can pass blood directly from one person's bloodstream to another. It is a very efficient way to transmit a blood-borne virus.
- Needle sticks: A study of over 2,000 health care workers has been underway for several years to assess the risk of their exposure to people with AIDS. Over 1,000 of these workers had a needle stick accident with a needle that had been used on a person living with AIDS. The rest had some sort of mucous membrane exposure, such as being splashed in the face with blood or vomit.

Of all these people, only 21 show signs of being infected with HIV (as determined by the antibody test). One of these people was a nurse who had multiple needle stick accidents, another was a lab worker who was working with a test tube of infected blood that broke and cut his finger, exposing the infected blood to his bloodstream. This study shows that AIDS is a difficult disease to get, and even the intimate exposure of these health care workers was not enough to infect them, except in the most extreme cases.

- Blood transfusions: Since the mid-1980's much of the blood used for transfusions has been screened with the HIV antibody test. This practice has almost eliminated the risk of getting HIV through blood transfusions. However, people become HIV+ through blood products every year. The numbers are small, but it is still a problem.
- Hemophilia treatments: Hemophilia is a genetic disease in which people (almost all men) lack the ability to clot blood. To control the condition, hemophiliacs take Factor VIII, a clotting factor. Each dose of Factor VIII comes from the pooled blood of many donors. Though previously the use of contaminated Factor VIII infected many hemophiliacs with HIV, currently Factor VIII is heat-treated to kill the virus and new, synthetic products have been developed that do not pose any risk for HIV and that accomplish the same function.

- Other blood products: Besides whole blood, platelets (red blood cells) have transmitted the virus. Current blood screening, however, should prevent all but a very few cases. No other blood products are suspected of transmitting HIV. Gamma globulin or hepatitis B vaccine does not transmit HIV.
- Mother to child: It is possible for an HIV-infected mother to pass the virus directly before or during birth, or through breast milk.
- Donor insemination: Donor semen is checked for HIV antibodies when the semen is collected. The semen is then frozen. The donor is required to come back after six months for a second HIV test to confirm the initial HIV screening. The semen is not used before the procedure is completed.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Have each group indicate what they wrote down about how HIV can be spread and using the blackboard or flip chart write down what each group says.

As each one is called out, explain how it fits or does not fit the criteria discussed above.

HIV IS NOT TRANSMITTED BY:

- Insect bites: HIV is not transmitted by mosquitoes, flies, ticks, fleas, bees or wasps. If a bloodsucking insect bites someone with HIV, the virus dies almost instantly in the insect's stomach (as it digests the blood). HIV can only live in human cells.
- Casual contact/sharing dishes or food: HIV is not transmitted through casual, every-day contact. Since HIV is not transmitted by saliva, it is impossible to get it through sharing a glass, a fork, a sandwich or fruit.

Three studies of household contacts, in the U.S., Europe and Africa, have shown that AIDS is not casually transmitted by normal activities, even when people are in close living arrangements. All the studies examined households where someone had AIDS to see if any of the other members in that household had become infected (sexual contact was excluded). Many of these households included a small child as the one who has AIDS. These children continued to play with siblings in the manner that children play: wrestling, fighting, spitting, sharing food and clothes, and many other activities. No other member of any of the households shows any sign of being infected. This study shows that AIDS is a difficult disease to get, and that even the intimate exposure common among small children living together is not sufficient to transmit the virus.

- Donating blood: Sterilized needles are always used in taking blood from donors, so HIV is not spread in this manner.
- Animals: Humans are the only animals that can harbor HIV.
- Contact with saliva, tears, sweat, feces or urine: Transmission can only occur when a sufficient amount of HIV enters the bloodstream, through cuts or mucous membranes. These "bodily fluids" either contain no HIV or it exists in a quantity too small to result in transmission.

HIV is not transmitted by saliva. There is a great deal of evidence to support this fact. In spite of the countless numbers of people who have had saliva contact with people with AIDS – including kissing, sharing food, sharing “joints”, and many other means – there is no evidence that these activities have transmitted the virus even a single time.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Have each group indicate what they wrote down about how HIV is not spread and using the blackboard or flip chart write down what each group says.

As each one is called out, explain how it fits or does not fit the criteria discussed above.

SIGNS OF AIDS

The signs of AIDS are different in different persons. Often they are the typical signs of other common illnesses, but are more severe and last longer.

If a combination of these three signs appear and the person gets sick more and more often, he or she may have AIDS (but you cannot be sure without a HIV test to detect the virus):

- Gradual weight loss. The person becomes thinner and thinner.
- Diarrhea for more than one month.
- A fever for more than one month, sometimes with chills or soaking night sweats.

The person may also have one or more of these signs:

- A bad cough that lasts for more than one month.
- Yeast infection in the mouth (‘thrush’ – small white patches on the inside of the mouth and tongue that look like milk curds stuck to raw meat).
- Swollen lymph nodes anywhere in the body (lymph nodes, often called “glands”, are little traps for germs that form small lumps under the skin when they get infected).
- Rashes or painless dark patches on the skin.
- Warts or sores that keep growing and do not go away with treatment, especially around the genital area and buttocks.
- Feels tired all the time.

TREATMENT

If available, competent medical personnel should handle all treatment. If they are not, the following is provided.

There is still no medicine to cure AIDS, but because people with AIDS have difficulty fighting infections, the following treatments should be used:

- For diarrhea, give Rehydration Drink. Two of the ways to make this are:
 - In one liter of clean water put half a level teaspoon of salt and 8 level teaspoons of sugar or
 - In one liter of clean water put half a teaspoon of salt and 8 heaping teaspoons (or 2 handfuls) of powdered cereal (powdered rice is best, but could be finely ground maize, white flour, sorghum or cooked and mashed potatoes). Boil for 5 to 7 minutes to form a liquid gruel or watery porridge. Cool the drink quickly and give to the dehydrated person.

- In some countries packets of Oral Rehydration Salts (ORS) are available for mixing with water.
- For thrush, use gentian violet, nystatin, or miconazole (chewing garlic or eating yogurt may also help).
- For warts, use bichloroacetic acid or trichloroacetic acid or podophyllin.
- For fever give lots of fluids, aspirin and lower high fever with a cool bath.
- Treat cough and pneumonia with antibiotics. If cough and fever last long (a month), try to take a TB test. Seek local advice about TB prevention and treatment for people with the HIV virus.
- For itchy skin, give antihistamines and treat any infection.

Persons with AIDS who have a lot of fever, diarrhea or pain need special care. This can usually be done without risk. But to prevent spreading the virus, some things should be remembered:

- Blood, open sores, bloody diarrhea or bloody vomit can spread the virus. To prevent touching these, if possible, wear rubber latex or plastic gloves or plastic bags on your hands. Wash your hands often.
- Soiled or bloody clothes, bedding or towels should be handled with care. Wash them in hot soapy water, or add some chlorine bleach.

Though all people should eat well and stay clean, this is especially important for people with the HIV virus. They should stay as healthy as possible by eating well balanced and nutritious meals; wash often; avoid tobacco (smoking and chewing) and alcohol; get enough rest and sleep; and use a condom when having sex.

New medicines called “anti-retrovirals” (ARVs, such as zidovudine (AZT), nevirapine and “triple therapy” combination drugs can help people with HIV/AIDS stay healthy and live longer. They do not kill HIV or cure AIDS, but they make the sickness easier to live with. Unfortunately, these medicines are often expensive and difficult to get.

There is no need for people with HIV/AIDS to live or sleep alone. Their skin or breathing does not spread the infection.

PREVENTION OF AIDS

- Have sex only with one faithful partner.
- Use a condom if you or your partner have had other sexual partners. Using a condom reduces the risk of getting or giving HIV/AIDS.
- Do not have sex with persons who have many sex partners or with persons who inject illegal drugs.
- Treat sexually transmitted infections early – especially those that cause sores.
- Do not have an injection unless you are sure the instruments are sterilized first. Health workers should NEVER re-use a needle or syringe without sterilizing it first. Some of the ways to sterilize equipment include:
 - Boil for 20 minutes. (if you do not have a clock, add 1 or 2 grains of rice to the water. When the rice is cooked, the equipment will be sterile).
 - Or steam for 15 minutes in a special pot called a pressure cooker (or autoclave).
 - Or soak for 20 minutes in a solution of 1 part chlorine bleach to 7 parts water, or in a solution of 70% ethanol alcohol. If possible prepare these solutions fresh each day because they lose their strength. (Be sure to sterilize the inside of a syringe by pulling some solution inside and then squirting it out).

- Do not inject illegal drugs. If you do, do not share the same needle or syringe with someone else unless it is first sterilized with bleach or boiled for 20 minutes.
- Make sure instruments for ear or body piercing, acupuncture or traditional practices such as scarring, are boiled.
- If possible, do not accept a transfusion of blood that has not first been tested. Avoid transfusions except when absolutely necessary.
- The chances of becoming infected with HIV by handling a body fluid are extremely small, because that fluid will rarely have access to a person's bloodstream. However, anyone handling blood, semen or vaginal fluids should be careful to avoid touching them with broken skin or getting them into mucous membranes (such as those around the eye). Spills of blood should be mopped up, cleaned with soap and water, then cleaned with bleach. For maximum safety, the person cleaning the spill should also wear latex gloves or plastic bags over his/her hands, and should wash their hands thoroughly after the cleanup.
- Look for ways to educate colleagues and others, especially drug users, sex workers and others at "high risk" about how not to get or to give HIV/AIDS.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

When this section is finished, ask for questions or comments. Make sure the trainees have a full understanding of the various preventive techniques.

CONCLUSION

HIV/AIDS is a dangerous disease, but is much harder to get than most people think. You cannot get the HIV virus from casual contact with people who are infected. You can only get infected one of five ways: 1. By having unprotected sex with someone who has the virus; 2. By using a syringe and needle that is not sterilized; 3. By having your skin pierced with an unsterilized instrument that was used on a person with the virus; 4. By receiving a transfusion from contaminated blood; and 5. an AIDS carrier mother can pass the virus on to her unborn baby.

QUIZ

1. Name two ways to sterilize needles or other instruments used to penetrate the skin.
2. Explain how HIV/AIDS is spread. Give five examples of how this might occur.
3. Answer “yes” or “no” to the following:
 - a. If someone throws feces or urine on you and you have an open sore, can you be infected with the HIV virus?
 - b. If you clean up spilled blood and have an open sore on your hand can you be infected with the HIV virus?
 - c. If someone spits on you and some of their saliva gets in your mouth or eyes can you be infected with the HIV virus?
4. List three main ways to protect yourself from being exposed to the HIV virus
5. Should people who are known to be infected with the HIV virus be separated from others? Explain your answer.

Answers to Quiz

1. Any two of the following three:
 - Boil for 20 minutes. (if you do not have a clock, add 1 or 2 grains of rice to the water. When the rice is cooked, the equipment will be sterile).
 - Or steam for 15 minutes in a special pot called a pressure cooker (or autoclave).

2. HIV/AIDS is spread when blood, semen (sperm) or vaginal juice of someone with the HIV virus enters the body of another person. Five ways this can happen are:
 - a. Having unprotected sex
 - b. Using an unsterilized needle or syringe
 - c. Using an unsterilized instrument to puncture the skin
 - d. Receiving a blood transfusion from contaminated blood
 - e. Having the virus passed on to an unborn child by an infected mother 3.
 - a. No
 - b. Yes
 - c. No

COMMUNICABLE DISEASES

INTRODUCTION

These are diseases that are transmitted by a specific type of contact. They can be transmitted from person to person or from one organism to another. According to the Webster dictionary communicable diseases can be defined as diseases that are caused by the entrance, growth, and multiplication of bacteria or protozoan in the body; a germ disease. Biologically communicable disease can be defined as an illness caused by bacteria or virus that can be transmitted from organism to organism. Not all infectious diseases are communicable. In many countries especially in Africa communicable diseases remain a health priority. This is because in the world over they are the top killers in terms of causing deaths.

CONTENT

Communicable simply means being able to pass on from one organism to another, communicable disease is caused by bacteria or virus.

Microbes are tiny organisms that cause disease, it is the short term for microorganisms, and they are tiny and can not be seen without the aid of a microscope, (microscopic organism).

A pathogen is a disease causing organism.

A virus is the smallest pathogen programmed to infect only certain body cells.

A protozoa is single celled microorganism that produces that produces toxics that cause disease.

A bacteria is a single celled microorganism that causes disease there are 1000 different types but only 100 cause diseases.

Fungi singe celled or multi-cellular plant like organism it causes disease of the mucus membrane and lungs.

Body defenses are those body systems that stop disease causing organism from entering the body

The body has two lines of defense the fist one

Handout on COMMUNICABLE DISEASES

Introduction

Communicable diseases are usually transmitted by a specific type of contact. They are transmitted from one person to another or from one organism to another .According to the Webster dictionary these type of diseases are defined as diseases that are caused by the entrance growth and multiplication of bacteria or protozoa in the body; a germ disease. Biological definition is a bit varied but explains almost the same thing, it is an illness caused by the bacteria or virus that can be transmitted from organism to organism. Communicable diseases are infectious but not all infectious disease is communicable.

To be able to understand the concept of communicable disease the meaning of the following terms is important

Microbes this are tiny organisms that cause disease. It is a term used as a short for the word microorganisms. They are very tiny that they can not be seen without the help of a microscope (microscopic organisms).

Pathogen: it is a disease causing organism

Virus: it is the smallest pathogen programmed to infect only certain body cells.

A protozoa: it is a single celled microorganism that produces toxics that cause disease

Bacteria: it is a single celled organism that causes disease there are 1000 different types but only 100 cause disease

Fungi it is a single celled or multi-cellular plant like organism that causes the disease of the mucus membrane and the lungs

Body defense system these are those systems of the body that stop the disease causing organisms from entering the body

The human body has two lines of the defense system the first line defense system consists of

- The unbroken skin forms an excellent barrier between the body and its surrounding. It prevents pathogens from entering the body
- The mucus membrane the membranes of your nose mouth and respiration are coated by a sticky substance called mucus. It serves to trap pathogens and destroy.
- Tears saliva and perspiration they contain chemicals that kill pathogens
- stomach acids, they kill the pathogens that enter through the mouth
- Fever, high body temperature may be helpful in fighting infections. Many scientists believe that it stops the growth and reproduction many disease causing organisms.
- The cilia the linings of the nose throat and airways to the lungs contain cilia .This are tiny hairs that beat in a wavelike motion sweeping bacteria dirt and excess mucus away from your breathing tubes and LUNGS

The second line of the defense system consists of the immune system. This is a body system of cells and organs that fight disease. When an organism invades the body the T- cells and B- cells are alerted, T- cells alert the B- cells to produce anti bodies. B-cells produce anti bodies that cover the surface of the pathogen with a kind of protein; this covering on the surface of the pathogen makes it very difficult for the pathogen to attack the body cells.

Immunization; this is the prevention of disease by the use of vaccines to boost the immune system.

Pandemic; is disease that affects all regions of the world

An epidemic; this is an outbreak of disease that affects many people at a time in one region

TYPES OF COMMUNICABLE DISEASES

Scabies; this is spread through contaminated clothing and the basins and buckets that are contaminated and direct contact with infected person

Common cold; it is spread through droplets in the air and direct contact with an infected individual

Mumps; droplets in the air and contact with the infected persons

Whooping cough; it is spread through droplets in the air

Influenza; it is spread through direct contact with an infected person, it may also be airborne jumping from birds to people

Chicken pox; it is spread through droplets in the air or direct contact with an infected person

Brucellosis it spread through contaminated dairy products

Dysentery; it is spread by eating food or drinking water that is contaminated

Typhoid fever; it is spread by eating food or drinking water that is contaminated

Cholera: the germ is passed in the stool of an infected person. It is spread by eating or drinking food or water that is contaminated by the fecal waste of the an infected person

Tuberculosis; it is spread through droplets in the air contaminated milk and dairy products a direct contact with an infected person

Hepatitis A&B; Hepatitis A virus can enter a person's body by drinking something that is contaminated with stool or blood of someone who has the disease. Hepatitis B&C virus can infect a person if the mucus membranes or blood are exposed to an infected persons blood, saliva, wound exudates, semen or vaginal secretions

Bubonic plaque; it is spread to humans through bites of fleas which pick up the bacteria by sucking blood from rodents especially rats. It was last reported in 1977

Ebola –heamorrhagic fever; it is spread through contact with an infected person the contaminated body fluids, ie blood. It is one of the most recent plaques that attacked mankind in the recent past in certain parts of Africa i.e. Sudan Uganda and Congo

SARS (severe acute respiratory syndrome) it is a typical pneumonia of unknown etiology. It was recognized end of february2001. There was the recent SARS outbreak

HOW COMMUNICABLE DISEASES ARE SPREAD

Most communicable diseases are spread though the following ways

- Contact with an infected person
- Inhaling droplets of the disease
- In air contaminated water food
- Contact with a dirty object
- contact with an infected animal
- sexual contact
- contaminated body fluids

Contaminated body fluids

They include

- Blood
- Saliva
- Vomit urine
- semen or vaginal secretions

METHODS OF PREVENTING COMMUNICABLE DISEASE

Hand washing; it is the simplest yet the most important way of getting and passing on many germs. The following is recommended

1. Wash with soap and water before
 - preparing or eating food
 - after coughing or sneezing
 - after using the bathrooms
2. treat all body fluids as if they were contaminated
3. use personal protective equipment when handling infected persons i.e. latex or nitrite gloves ,goggles, mouth barriers , aprons ,and respirators
4. see a doctor incase of the following
 - you have been bitten by an animal
 - you have difficulty breathing

- your cough has lasted for more than a week
- you have high fever
- you have episodes of high heart beat
- you have a swelling
- you have difficulty seeing
- you have been vomiting

Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners

Adopted by the First United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, held at Geneva in 1955, and approved by the Economic and Social Council by its resolutions 663 C (XXIV) of 31 July 1957 and 2076 (LXII) of 13 May 1977

25. (1) The medical officer shall have the care of the physical and mental health of the prisoners and should daily see all sick prisoners, all who complain of illness, and any prisoner to whom his attention is specially directed.

(2) The medical officer shall report to the director whenever he considers that a prisoner's physical or mental health has been or will be injuriously affected by continued imprisonment or by any condition of imprisonment.

World Medical Association Declaration Edinburgh on Prison Conditions and the Spread of Tuberculosis and other communicable diseases.

Adopted: October 2000.

PREAMBLE

1. Prisoners have the right to humane treatment and appropriate medical care. Standards for the treatment of prisoners have been set down in a number of Declarations and Guidelines adopted by various bodies of the United Nations (See annex).

2. The relationship between physician and prisoner is governed by the same ethical principles as that between the physician and any other patient.

3. There are strong public health reasons for reinforcing the importance of these rules. The recently reported increase in incidence of tuberculosis amongst prisoners in a number of countries reinforces the need for considering public health issues when designing new prison regimens, and for pressing for reforms of existing penal and prison systems.

4. Prisons can be breeding grounds for infection. Overcrowding, lengthy confinement within closed, poorly lit, badly heated and consequently poorly ventilated and often humid spaces are all conditions frequently associated with imprisonment and which contribute to the spread of disease and ill-health. Where these factors are combined with poor hygiene, inadequate nutrition and limited access to adequate health care, prisons can represent a major public health challenge. Keeping prisoners in conditions which expose them to substantial medical risk constitutes a humanitarian challenge. An infectious prisoner poses a risk not only to other prisoners but also to prison personnel, the prisoner's relatives, other prison visitors and the wider community when the prisoner is released. The most effective and efficient way of reducing disease transmission is to improve the prison environment, targeting overcrowding for the most urgent action.

5. The increase in active Tuberculosis (TB) in prison populations and the development within some of these populations of resistant and especially "multi-drug" resistant forms of tuberculosis, as recognised by the World Medical Association in its Statement on Drug Treatment of Tuberculosis, is reaching very high prevalence and incidence rates in prisons in some parts of the world.

6. Other conditions, such as Hepatitis C and HIV Disease, do not have as high a risk of person-to-person communicability as tuberculosis but pose transmission risks from blood to blood spread, or sharing and exchange of body fluids. Overcrowded prison conditions also promote the spread of sexually transmitted diseases. Intravenous drug use will also contribute to the spread of HIV as well as Hepatitis B and C. These need specific solutions that are not dealt with in this statement. However the principles set out below will also be helpful in reducing the risk from such infective agents.

7. The World Medical Association considers it crucial both for public health and humanitarian reasons that careful attention is paid to:

2. ensuring that the conditions in which detainees and prisoners are kept, whether they are held during the investigation of a crime, whilst waiting for trial, or for punishment once sentenced, do not contribute to the development, worsening or transmission of disease. This also refers to the conditions in which persons are held while going through immigration procedures, although prisons should not normally be used to house such persons;

3. ensuring that prisoners are not isolated, or placed in solitary confinement, without adequate access to health care and all appropriate responses to their infected status;

4. upon transfer to a different prison, inmates' health status should be reviewed within 12 hours of arrival to ensure continuity of care;

5. ensuring the provision of follow-up treatment for prisoners who, on their release, are still ill, particularly with an infectious disease. Because interruptions of treatment may be particularly hazardous both epidemiologically and to the individual, planning for and providing continuing care are essential elements of prison health care provision

8. Physicians working in prisons have the duty to report to the health authorities and professional organisations of their country any deficiency in health care provided to the inmates and any situation involving high epidemiological risk for them. NMAs are obliged to protect those physicians against any possible reprisals.

9. The WMA calls upon member associations to persuade national and local governments and prison authorities to address urgently these aspects of health promotion and health care in their institutions, and to adopt programmes that ensure a safe and healthy prison environment.

COUNCIL OF EUROPE. COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS. RECOMMENDATION No. R (98) 7-OF THE COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS TO MEMBER STATES CONCERNING THE ETHICAL AND ORGANISATIONAL ASPECTS OF HEALTH CARE IN PRISON
Adopted by the Committee of Ministers on 8 April 1998, at the 627th meeting of the Ministers' Deputies.

A. Transmitted diseases, in particular: HIV infection and Aids, Tuberculosis, Hepatitis

36. In order to prevent sexually transmitted infections in prison adequate prophylactic measures should be taken.

37. HIV tests should be performed only with the consent of the inmates, on an anonymous basis and in accordance with existing legislation. Thorough counselling should be provided before and after the test.

38. The isolation of a patient with an infectious condition is only justified if such a measure would also be taken outside the prison environment for the same medical reasons.

39. No form of segregation should be envisaged in respect of persons who are HIV antibody positive, subject to the provisions contained in paragraph 40.

40. Those who become seriously ill with Aids-related illnesses should be treated within the prison health care department, without necessarily resorting to total isolation. Patients, who need to be protected from the infectious illnesses transmitted by other patients, should be isolated only if such a measure is necessary for their own sake to prevent them acquiring intercurrent infections, particularly in those cases where their immune system is seriously impaired.

41. If cases of tuberculosis are detected, all necessary measures should be applied to prevent the propagation of this infection, in accordance with relevant legislation in this area. Therapeutic intervention should be of a standard equal to that outside of prison.

42. Because it is the only effective method of preventing the spread of hepatitis B, vaccination against hepatitis B should be offered to inmates and staff. Information and appropriate prevention facilities should be made available in view of the fact that hepatitis B and C are transmitted mainly by the intravenous use of drugs together with seminal and blood contamination.

SECTION IV

TRAINING TECHNIQUES AND TRAINING OF TRAINERS

THE BASICS OF MODERN TEACHING TECHNIQUES

When establishing a training program, probably more difficult than determining what to teach is the problem of our instructors learning how to teach. Many of our experienced personnel can do the various tasks in perfect harmony with the goal to be accomplished. Because of this, they are often chosen to teach the craft of corrections to basic trainees and even to experienced peers who wish to upgrade their skills. Unfortunately, experience, proficiency and even personal performance skills have little to do with the ability to teach others. Individuals learn at different paces; each class of students develops its own identity and personality. How does a teacher know when a student has acquired the necessary knowledge? How, in a classroom filled with people, does an instructor get the quiet and shy to participate without stifling those eager to participate? What question should an instructor ask and at what time during the lesson and to which student? What should be written on the blackboard? When should that become a group discussion? When should it be a discussion only between students? What follows is intended to answer those questions and to provide a general road map on the modern techniques which correctional instructors can and should use.

Much of the information presented below comes from the Harvard-Danforth Center for Teaching and Learning and specifically from ten of its gifted and experienced lecturers. Teaching is an art, a craft and a science and I make no apologies for stealing ideas and in many cases direct quotes from those who are recognized leaders in this difficult and wondrous field.

TEACHING

Most learning does not occur in the classroom. Much is learned on the job, or in the home or with friends or through individual interest. So what is the purpose of the classroom? What is the role of the teacher? The teacher is the magnet that brings student and knowledge together. Both the teacher and the classroom offer structure, support and a method to evaluate what has been learned. A trained teacher can anticipate problems the student will have learning specific material. A teacher helps the student find the appropriate pace to tackle information and the course structure allows the random data gained from unsupervised study and life experiences to be interpreted and added to a chain of learning that leads to a comprehensive understanding of a particular subject. The teacher initiates discussions and provides a critical reaction. Not only must students absorb information, but they must also be able to answer questions about that information and to defend their conclusions. The teacher provides the motivation for students to reach beyond their self-imposed limits. The group dynamic of a classroom, when led by an experienced teacher, allows the students to share ideas of others and to accept or reject beliefs, standards and information that can be ignored or evaded when studying alone.

STARTING OFF

The first day of class is when the students "check out the professor" and find out what will be covered in the course. Most will have had some contact with former students or will have seen an outline of the course. As much as we would like the major concern of the students to be the material to be covered, we know that they are equally and usually more concerned about how difficult it will be and what will be the minimum required of them. Students, during the initial contact with their instructor, are attempting to find out what they will be expected to read, how they will be tested and also the less tangible elements of the course such as the way the classes will be conducted, how much student-teacher interaction there will be and how they will be treated when they ask a question. The first meeting of the class establishes the tone that will last the entire course. It is during the first hour of the first class that the teacher must establish the framework which will take the students from where they are personally, academically and philosophically to their final position at graduation.

Some of the beginning teacher-student contact is around the established course outline and is very explicit. However, the informal communication provided by the instructor's attitude and behavior and body language provides much of the students' expectations about the way the class will be run, the requirements for being prepared for class, and the sort of relationships this particular instructor is willing to establish with students.

Students also communicate with instructors on more than one level. An effective teacher must learn to recognize that the class is composed of individuals, each arriving with a different background, different goals, different ethics and different values. In order for the teacher to control the learning environment and help students achieve their goals, he or she must learn about the students. One task of the first day is to collect information about the students by asking them to respond to a series of questions. The instructor must also begin to "read" the behavior of the students in order to become sensitive to the individual in the classroom process.

During the first class, the instructor should tell the students as specifically as possible what material will be covered in the course and why. The description should show where the course fits in to the scope of the field of corrections and what specific issues will be covered in detail. One way to do this is to go over the outline of the course and to explain the reading material to be used.

In this beginning session, instructors should try to convey enthusiasm about the course material. They may offer information on themselves and explain their own interest in corrections, what their particular specialties are and why they find the field exciting. The teacher might also point out the relevance of the course material.

Students are very concerned about the workload and won't be ready to listen to other topics until they know how much work will be required of them. They will also have concerns about the type and frequency of tests. Students should be told during the first day of class how they will be graded and what will determine passing or failing both individual elements of the class and the entire course.

The instructor must specify how he or she expects students to prepare for the class and the kinds of questions they should think about preparing for class. In the case of an introductory course, the instructor should offer some tips on how to study the material. If the students will need a special skill, such as unarmed self-defense, the instructor should indicate when it will be taught.

Finally, the standard operating procedure of the class should be established. These range from the time at which class will begin to the acceptability of raising questions: will there be time set aside for questions during class or can students raise their hands to ask questions at any time or should all questions be saved for office hours? Students should be told the extent to which the course will be organized around lectures as opposed to discussion and practical demonstrations.

Just as students see the first day of class as the time when they learn about the instructor and the way the class will be run, the first class meeting also provides an opportunity for an instructor to begin learning about his or her students. Learning involves altering beliefs and changing thought processes. To be successful in helping students learn, the instructor needs a sense of their beliefs and modes of analysis at the outset of the course. This allows a more precise choice of examples, assignments, and discussion topics to help carry the students from their starting point to the desired end point.

At the most basic level, instructors should learn the names of their students. Students generally work harder and respond in a more positive way if they believe the instructor views them as individuals rather than anonymous faces in a crowd. In addition, the instructor's use of names helps students get to know one another so they may interact in class more easily.

There are several things an instructor might do to make learning names easier. One technique is to have each student fill out an index card giving his or her name and some personal information mentioned below. The instructor must not compromise the student's right to privacy. At a minimum, the instructor should be able to justify each request for information by explaining how it will be useful in teaching the course, and should be willing to provide similar autobiographical information. Some suggested information that might be useful:

1. The student's address and phone number. This is useful if the instructor needs to contact the student during the course in regard to an assignment or a student's extended absence from class. The address may also indicate which students are likely to know one another outside of class. The telephone number will also be useful if the instructor decides after class he wants a particular student to discuss an issue in the next class, without taking the student by surprise.
2. Other courses taken in the field and in related fields. The student background in the discipline helps establish his or her familiarity with ideas like those developed in the course.
3. Job and military experience. This may also indicate to the instructor who the resource people are for certain types of information, the types of examples that are appropriate, and the way individual students might handle a discussion question.
4. The student's home town. This information indicates which students can be used as resources in a class discussion of a particular example according to their familiarity with the characteristics and problems of urban or rural areas or various parts of the world.
5. Why the student is taking the course.

Instructors should also be aware of seating patterns in the class. Some students are eager to sit up front. Others are less interested and are taking the class only because it is a prerequisite for employment. Students tend to establish seating patterns early in the course and maintain them. Thus, any deviation from this established pattern is a potential source of information. Students may relocate as new friendships develop and groups form, composed of people who prepare for class together. A student may retreat to the back of the room if she or he is unprepared for class, is preoccupied with a personal problem, or is losing the thread of the course. The instructor should avoid calling on these people when they have not volunteered. Lack of sensitivity on the part of the instructor can greatly affect the working relationship that exists in the classroom, not only between the student in question, but between the instructor and the entire class: students tend to bond together if their cohort is attacked in a moment of weakness. If a student's unusual behavior persists, the instructor should talk to him or her outside of class.

If possible, the instructor should arrive at class early. This provides an opportunity to talk informally with students and to observe the cultural patterns of the class.

The heart of teaching is communication. People communicate both verbally and nonverbal, by their attitudes and behavior. All of these forms of communications are important in the classroom because they help students and the instructor understand one another. Only through careful attention to details and recognition of the human aspects of the process can the instructor gain the control of the classroom that is the prerequisite for learning.

METHODS

LECTURES: The difference between a lecture that stimulates the students and provides them with the maximum amount of information and one that fails is best summarized in one word -- planning. a lecture must, in a pre-defined period of time, give facts, interpretations, examples AND must show the relevance of that information and how the various bits of information fit together.

Most lectures should be contained in a fifty-minute period. The lecture must show how its contents ties into the information presented in previous classes in order to place the students on familiar ground. Many good lectures allow some time to talk about the broad view in addition to the narrow limits of the specific subject being covered. This requires that the lectures be planned as part of an overall class strategy and that they be prepared, at least in outline form, well in advance. Once the overall plan is prepared, then comes the planning of each lecture in detail.

Lectures will provide the basic framework that holds the overall class together. The lectures help bring the assigned readings, discussions and practical sessions into line with the goals of what must be learned. The teacher must never assume that the students will be prepared for the lecture because they have read the advance material or understood all that has been covered previously. Most students will fall behind at some time during the course; some will lag from the very beginning. One of the jobs of the lecturer is to introduce books or articles from the assigned reading list and to whet the appetite of the students to understand their value and importance. Other classes that contain discussions or demonstrations or practice should not duplicate the lectures, but should complement them.

The key to a good lecture is delivery. All the planning and preparation in the world will not by itself insure a successful course; the expert who cannot communicate what he or she knows is useless as a teacher, for the art of teaching is to help others understand by making their knowledge accessible. That means that the lecturer must follow several steps:

I. The lecturer must develop and use notes. These need not be a verbatim text, but must at least be a detailed outline, with the major points and transitions between them set out legibly. Ten pages of typed, single-spaced notes, including quotations written out in full, is generally a maximum of what can be used in one fifty-minute lecture.

II. Delivery must be planned and practiced. The delivery of the lecture should be lively and engaging. The teacher must learn to vary his or her speed, speaking slowly and emphatically when covering an important point, relaxing and picking up the delivery when moving on to another point. Under no circumstances should the teacher speak as rapidly as they would in normal conversation, since students need time for words to sink in and to take notes. a way to understand and develop the proper rhythm is to mimic the delivery speed of a news broadcaster on radio or television. You will discover that he or she is speaking much more slowly than you imagined.

III. Variety and balance must be worked into each lecture. In order to hold the students' attention, the teacher must alternate between general information and detail, difficult concepts and easy ones, gravity and humor. Special attention should be paid to the preparation of the first ten minutes and the final five minutes of each lecture. It is important to start well and end well since that is when students will be most receptive to the message. One of the best ways is to begin with a problem and end with a solution. During the thirty-five intervening minutes you can present the logical steps and illustrative material leading from one to the other, being especially careful to watch for signs of students' boredom about halfway through the lecture. This is the dead point for most audiences; if you have any entertaining stories that relate to your argument, use them here.

IV. Use aids to keep the students' attention. Besides your voice, you have your body. Movement away from the podium, pointing and gestures all help keep interest and emphasize points. Blackboards can be used to write unfamiliar terms or dates or to put up diagrams. Some instructors, prior to the beginning of the lecture, will outline the material to be covered on the blackboard and then point to it during the talk. Two of the rules to remember when using a blackboard are to be sure that you are speaking audibly when your back is to the class, and that everyone has copied what seems pertinent from the board before you erase it. Other valuable aids include slides, charts, models and pictures. Make sure they can be seen by all and check to insure equipment is working and you understand it before the class begins.

V. The physical setting of the lecture room affects both lecturer and students. Adequate lighting, easy access to a blackboard, ability for all to hear, comfortable seating all help a great deal. However, often the room will not be perfect. It is up to the instructor to visit the room before the first class begins. It is at this time that adjustments to the normal routine of the lecture can be planned or minor changes in the room made. The bottom line is simple -- the instructor can do little about the setting, but can do a great deal with his or her own delivery to adjust to any situation.

When surveyed, most students indicated that what they value most in a lecture is enthusiasm. Not only does enthusiasm convince students of the instructor's love of the subject, but it can be contagious and motivate students to do the course reading and to want to learn the material. Students also prize clarity. They like a well-ordered course because it helps them retain what they hear. Lecture organization and clarity also helps the students take good notes for later reference.

Watching the audience during the lecture will provide useful information to the teacher. If the students are motionless except for taking notes, then most are with you and all is well. Yawns, fidgeting, staring out of the window are all obvious trouble signs; the more restless the class, the more bored it is. The test tactic is to move quickly to your next substantive point. It is also a time to vary your delivery to make sure you are being heard or speaking slowly enough. There are times in a lecture when something goes seriously wrong and you find yourself forced to react on the spot. If you make a slip of the tongue that elicits laughter or hisses, correct the error (apologize if need be) and move on. If lights go out or pipes begin to bang, send someone for the janitor and explain to the class that you have done so. If your problem is an openly disruptive student or students, however, then you are going to have to show some diplomatic flair. In general, the class will side with you and against the rowdy types as long as you act in a civil manner and do not overplay your authority. To give a little, and then be firm but polite is the best rule.

After class, don't leave immediately. Give students an opportunity to come up to ask specific questions or to discuss a point with you. This helps their learning and provides feedback on how the class went. Ask colleagues to sit in on occasion so they can let you know what might be presented differently. Videotaping your lecture will allow you to see yourself as the students do. You can find mannerisms that might annoy the audience or identify habits you were not aware of. You can also see and hear your delivery and make changes if appropriate.

QUESTIONS:

When a student asks a question, it is almost always directed to the content of the class. a teacher's question is often more complex in its intention -- the teacher may wish not only to raise a certain issue, but also to change the tempo of the discussion or to involve a quiet student in the dialogue. In other words, the teacher must be aware of, and responsible for, all three interrelated dimensions: the content (what the class is about), the process (how the class is functioning) and the persons (who is involved in the class).

The teacher's primary tool is the question. For a question to be effective, it must ask about the right issue, at the right time, to the right person. Suppose, for instance, that a student has just made a comment about the purpose of corrections in society and you want her to expand on it. If the class dynamics have been satisfactory and the student's participation in the class unproblematic, than one might simply ask, "Mary, could you elaborate on that point a little further?" Suppose, however, the class process has been such that the teacher would like to increase the student-student interaction. One might say in that case, "Mary, could you relate that to what John was saying earlier?" It may be that Mary did not really listen to what John had said, and the teacher might have to help a bit at first. But if one starts asking questions that require students to respond to each other, they will become more attentive. If the teacher wants students to examine anyone else's view critically, the teacher might try to force a confrontation by asking, "Then you don't accept the interpretation John just gave?" To increase confrontation, ask questions of people sitting across the room from each other; to decrease it ask questions of people along the same side. It is easier to argue with someone whom you face at a distance.

In terms of content, questions may elicit a factual or an interpretive response: that is, a question may ask for a straight-forward answer ("What is the effective range of the MKIII Tear Gas gun?") or for an arguable one ("Which non-lethal weapon is more effective?"). Factual questions help clarify a point. Factual questions may work well as a warm-up for more complex and abstract questions. Factual questions are relatively nonthreatening and so may be a way of involving a well-prepared, but shy student in the discussion. An interpretive question, on the other hand, requires the student to go beyond the letter of the text in order to relate, criticize, clarify, justify, extrapolate, or apply the ideas under discussion. Any effective discussion will go back and forth between the factual and the interpretive.

There are at least five ways in which questions can be specifically designed to accomplish a change in the discussion process:

1. a question may create a break, to start over, or to mark the transition from one point of the discussion to another. "That was one way of looking at it. What is another?" This gives the class a chance to return to square one and start over. Similarly, simple factual questions can be used as a quick review of where the discussion has gone or to pick up the tempo of the class. a series of short, quickly answered questions that are not too simple tend to make the class more alert and ready to handle more difficult issues. Their purpose is not really to elicit information, but rather to accomplish something in the classroom dynamics.

2. a question can facilitate the process of discussion by including a specific qualifying instruction with it, such as, "In a few words . . ." or "If you had to pick just one . ." Such questions are obviously designed to elicit something other than definitive analysis. They set a lively tempo for the discussion and establish a cornerstone on which the class can build.

3. Questions such as, "If you were to generalize . . ." or "Can you give some specific examples?" can move a class discussion from the too detailed to the more general or from the abstract to the practical.

4. a question may serve the discussion process by making reference to students' comments, such as, "Harry, would you tend to agree with Rick on that point?" As noted before that helps with student-student interaction. Or a question can be used to emphasize an earlier point that was not fully appreciated by the class at the time. If the teacher refers back to Rick's earlier comment, students infer that it was something important.

5. a question may be used to elicit a summary or give closure, as in, "Jennifer, if you had to pick two or three themes that recurred most often in our discussion today, what would they be?"

The art of questioning involves a cultivation of skills. For a few classes, one may work on personalizing questions. One can develop one's technique by imagining classroom situations and working out appropriate responses. Then one can try the new skill in a real classroom discussion. Finally, one should review the particular session (videotapes can be invaluable) in order to see how it can be improved. Skillful teachers use questioning in such a way that they seldom have to lecture during a discussion.

DISCUSSION:

The atmosphere in the classroom emanates in part from the instructor's own temperament in response to the role: the climate is determined by the leader's perceived humanity -- intellectual openness, respect for others, gentleness toward ignorance, ability to convey warmth and enthusiasm for the material.

Many instructors find they are more comfortable, and the discussions more relaxed when they play down their "teacher role." One way to do this is to sit down in the midst of the students, thus communicating a willingness to be a participant in the discussion, rather than its master. In practice, this means that the instructor has to arrive early enough to take a seat, arrange the chairs in a circle in a circle or a half-circle or around a table, and talk to students beforehand in an informal way. In the conversation before class, the teacher can ask the students how they responded to the readings, and take cues from their answers to determine the course of the discussion to follow.

Even the most relaxed and humane person may find that the class is silent, however, or that some students suffer from their own nervousness or others' malice, despite the good example before them. The practical suggestions that follow are aimed at increasing student participation and reducing tensions -- directly through stimulating and monitoring discussion and indirectly through eliminating potential sources of discomfort.

1. Having students prepare short "opinion papers" has proven to be extremely useful in encouraging students to study the subject from printed material and to help them form opinions about it. If a brief paper on some aspect of the current discussion subject is required from the students, this guarantees that each student will be a "specialist" on some topic, and will have a point of view already defended in writing.

2. Assigning topics to students (who voluntarily accept the assignment) and having them present reports during the next session, requires students to do the reading and become responsible for teaching one another. Sometimes it is useful to assign two students to the same piece of reading and invite them to complement or question each other's presentation.

3. Many problems in the classroom can be solved by using "difficult" students as resources, in the very situations in which one's first reaction might be to avoid or silence them. The knowledgeable and eloquent student, for example, who sometimes tries to dominate small discussion groups, can often be soothed into self-restraint by being asked from time to time to expound on some area of interest. The ignorant but talkative student may become more cautious about jumping on the conversation, when given the same polite treatment.

a teacher must be prepared to deal, in a diplomatic way, with the student of special, unpredictable philosophical, religious, or political convictions. Such students may be voluble and dogmatic, especially if they are in the process of creating or losing their faith, or if they feel that their perspective is dismissed or ridiculed by their classmates. Instructors need to be conscious that racist and sexist attitudes can and do erupt in the classroom discussion periods. Besides being prepared for racist or sexist language or examples from students, the instructor must be careful to purge his or her own presentations and responses from offensive language.

The chief aim of a teacher, in discussion sessions as elsewhere, is still to make intellectual enthusiasm live. Without that, little real learning -- and possibly no permanent learning -- can take place. There is no magic formula for instilling enthusiasm during a discussion. Different techniques will be required at different times. However, by establishing a congenial atmosphere, the instructor can increase the frequency with which students participate in the learning process and the likelihood that they will enjoy and become excited by the subject matter.

PARTICIPANTS

Teachers.

Just as the degree and style of learning during a course may vary over time and can be greatly affected by the pacing and selection of course material, so, too, the roles of teachers and students do not remain static.

As the class evolves, the instructor must vary his or her style or methods to keep pace with the changes taking place in the students. As students move from total ignorance of the subject to qualified practitioners, the instructor must show respect and acceptance of the students' development. That means talking to them differently, allowing them to talk more and showing respect for their opinions. That means that preparation for each class must conceive of the purpose for which a teaching style is adopted, a conversation in class begun, a lecture presented.

Students.

A teacher's plans for the life of the class should carefully provide opportunities for students to change, discovering new and more mature selves. As some students learn more about the profession they may become more enthused with the prospect of being part of it. Other students may begin to find it is not what they want to do with their lives. Different students will see the same subject, the same example, the same principle in very different ways. Some will fight for individuality, others will want to melt into the group and be noticed as little as possible.

Student-Faculty Relationships.

Most of the previous discussion has kept student and teacher roles separate. The interaction between student and teacher is important to monitor and keep in its proper perspective. The teacher who wants to be the "parent" of the students or the "best-friend" of the students runs the danger of showing favoritism or hurting the learning process by giving up classroom discipline for popularity. This is not to suggest that personal development, cultivation of character, and even friendship are not legitimate goals in teaching, but rather than one must distinguish between these qualities and the desire for popularity.

One's classroom identity needs careful and considered control. Certain relationships with students are totally inappropriate. Neither department nor agency gossip nor a physically intimate relationship with a student have any place.

GRADING AND EVALUATION

The evaluation of students' work is one of the most difficult of a teacher's tasks. It is not within the power of instructors to make grading and evaluation painless, but the amount of pain caused can be kept to a minimum and the usefulness of evaluations can be made greater by analyzing how and why we grade. It is important to remember that grading is inherently subjective.

It is important that the students get the exam they are prepared for, or are prepared for the exam they will get. The material to be covered on the exam should always be clearly delineated for the students. To prepare properly they should know whether an exam is to be comprehensive or only since the last test, and whether some particular aspect of the course is to be stressed. In the making of the exam, identifications, short answers, and multiple choice questions test factual knowledge as well as a student's ability to place a bit of information in context. Questions like these enable you to cover a lot of material, and the students' ability to answer a number of these questions suggest a good understanding of the subject. These brief, generally factual questions imply a deeper knowledge of the subject but do not actually test it. Essay questions test students' ability to synthesize the material of the course for themselves. a good essay question should push the students to think over the implications and ramifications of what they have learned, and not merely to recall what they have read or heard.

In designing an exam, the instructor should decide how directive he or she wants to be. If all students are to answer the same question, it is often easier to grade comparatively. To some extent, subject matter influences the type of test to be given. Courses that stress mastery of a body of material, like legal rights of offenders or operation of weapons, are more likely to be directive than tests on subjects that call for understanding overall principles such as correctional history or theory.

Whatever kind of exam is chosen, it should be administered with some care. The students should know at the beginning of the course how many exams there will be and when, so that they plan accordingly. In a more objective exam, students should be advised to pass over questions that they do not know immediately and return to them later, after answering those that they do know. The exam directions should be clearly stated at the beginning of the exam, the exam itself should have been carefully proofread, and the teacher should plan to stay in the room during the exam period to answer questions and to insure fair exam conditions.

THE FINAL CLASS

Much time was spent in the beginning of this paper on the first class, how it should be organized and how the tone should be set. The final class of the course is also important. The final class is not the time for new material or to catch up on everything that was left out. Rather, the final class should review the course work and the students own development, perhaps return to the outline presented in the first class and, in short, hold the course up for examination and give it a finish. The last class, like true scholarship, does not close the topic: the very ending should direct the attention of the students to the next logical questions they will want to ask while on the job, and most of all to leave the students not in panic about going to work, but in anticipation of continuing to learn while they serve.

COACHING

No training program can adequately prepare a person for everything they will find when they actually begin the job. Class work, skills practice are excellent and necessary, but must be supplemented with help from senior staff. One of the worst things that can happen to a new officer is for an experienced staff to tell him or her, as they begin their job, "Forget what you heard in training, just listen to me." Often senior staff has, for a variety of reasons, forgotten some of what they learned or become sloppy in the application. Thus, in order to get the proper benefit of experienced staff and in order to make experienced staff feel a part of the training program, formal coaching training should be given to them. What follows is a lesson plan on coaching for experienced staff who will be paired with new personnel.

Lesson Title: Coaching Skills

Method of Instruction: Lecture, discussion, demonstration, structured role play

Time Frame: 2 Hours

Performance Objectives: At the end of this session with-out the aid of instructional materials, the participants will:

1. Define the term or concept of coaching, relevant to the relationship
2. Describe the techniques of conducting a coaching interview according to guidelines developed by Morey Stettner
3. Describe the purpose of demonstrations.
4. Identify six basic steps in structuring the process of developing and conducting demonstrations according to
5. Conduct a coaching interview, according to the coaching interview checklist.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Pair the group off --the entire lesson is conducted as a combination of open discussion and role playing

INTRODUCTION

In approximately two weeks, a probationary correction officer will be assigned to work with you. Let's consider that first meeting. Each of you have been paired off with a partner. For the next 6 minutes, I want you to meet each other.

- 1) greet each other as if you are meeting for the very first time
- 2) one person interviews the other for the first 3 minutes. You will then switch interview should be personal; get to know your partner ie: special interests, special talents; family; etc.
- 3) each of you will then present (introduce) your partner to the group.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Ask the group the following

- How did you feel when you were being introduced to the group?
 - Do you feel that your interviewer has a good grasp of you?
 - Do you feel that, based on your interview, you have a good grasp of your partner?
 - What dynamics are involved during a first meeting? What are examples of some of the things that you do? What is the first overall picture that you pay attention to?
 - What is the non-verbal communication?

a) clothing b) posture c) overall hygiene

- What about the handshake? ie. limp vs. firm; partial vs. full
- What about eye-contact? ie. direct, indirect, not at all.
- Other considerations

a) posture, b) space (positioning), c) listening (active/non-active), d) language (slang vs. standard) |

As you can see from this brief exercise, there are numerous interactive cues that impact a first meeting (first impression). These are just a few considerations for you to bear in mind, as you meet the probationary officer assigned to you for the first time.

Several times during this training program, experienced officer, such as yourselves, have been referred to as coaches. What is coaching?

It is: Assisting, training someone on "how to improve", "how to do".

In order to do this effectively, what kind of relationship will the coach need to have with the probationary correctional officer? (ie. respectful, accepting; positive, etc.). Remember, your goal is to coach individuals through positive people management. Dealing effectively with the probationary officer means helping them to strive for excellence. This can be achieved through a positive tone in all interactions, particularly when related to job appraisals and corrections for improvement. During this session, we are going to look at descriptions of techniques for making the coaching process a success for both you and the probationary officer.

In the Field of Management, often times analogies are drawn between how a supervisor treats his/her staff and how he/she would treat his/her car. For example: What do you do when you notice something unusual with your car? Do you get it checked out immediately or ignore it until something definite happens; fix the problem immediately before it gets expensive, or wait and see how long it will last; get a new car.

Some supervisors see something wrong, but they ignore it. At some point this "minor" problem becomes worse. There are other supervisors that will move-in on the problem when it is first observed. This type of supervisor will always provide on-going training and guidance to avoid problems.

Oftentimes, something may appear as minor, but it really isn't because it is fundamental to an overall process.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Ask the class to provide examples

An example is timely tours: an officer may decide to do a tour of his/her area later or miss one. This is dangerous because it can create a lackadaisical attitude and result in the officer missing the opportunity to prevent a serious incident or suicide. Hence, alert and active coaching is critical.

Lets look at some recommended coaching techniques.

- 1) Define the problem
- 2) Analyze the causes
- 3) Decide on corrective action*
- 4) Think through (rehearse) your approach
- 5) Initiate the coaching session

STEPS & CONSIDERATIONS IN CONDUCTING THE COACHING SESSION:

1. PREPARE -

- a) check your observation to ensure clear communication -BE SURE ABOUT YOUR OBSERVATION.
- b) Make certain that it is well timed. Feedback after delay will cause for the problem to be attributed to lack of motivation or ability, rather than the actual observed behavior.
- c) Think (rehearse) what you are going to say and how - Think about the last big mistake you made and how you felt.

2. SET TONE

Let the probationary officer know immediately that the purpose of the conference is to work out a way to improve future performance and not to criticize negatively.

3. GET FACTS ON THE TABLE:

- a) Be specific, rather than general
- b) Be descriptive, rather than evaluative
- c) Direct observations toward the behavior not perception
- d) Offer corrections to improve performance, not to blame or demeanor.

4. MAINTAIN PARTNERSHIP TRAINING

- a) Encourage PROBATIONARY OFFICER to evaluate his/her performance. You should share your past performance -"no one is perfect"
- b) Defuse negative emotions - respond to skills. Always try to focus on positive attitudes. Listen carefully but get the probationary officer refocused on the skills.
- c) Many probationary officers will criticize themselves Summarize by reviewing when things go wrong. Try to minimize self-criticism and get on with improving the performance.

IMPLEMENTING TRAINING (THE CORRECTIVE ACTION)

Coaching is about helping an individual to improve his/her performance. a job performance is demonstrated by the application of specific knowledge, skills, abilities, and attitudes to the duties and responsibilities of a specific job.

Earlier in this session we established that coaching is the act of helping someone to improve -- "How to do". The primary manner in which we achieve this is through demonstrations. All of us have seen demonstrations in one form or another. The thing to keep in mind when using demonstrations is that they can serve as a very powerful instructional technique that can help to promote learning and long term retention.

What are the purposes of demonstrations

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Have the class give ideas

THE PURPOSES _ DEMONSTRATIONS

1. Show a procedure
2. Show how to perform an act ~ (psychomotor skill)
3. Show the results
4. Show the consequences of failure to perform properly
5. Uses more than one sense (vision and hearing)
6. provides an opportunity to learn by doing

Remember that retention is a primary concern.

The following are steps to help structure the process of developing and conducting demonstrations and improve the likelihood that they will be effective.

1. Know what behaviors, skills, techniques, or results are to be demonstrated.
2. Identify the material, supplies, or equipment needed.
3. Try the demonstration out in advance to be sure that it does what you want it to.
4. Tell the probationary officer. what you are going to do; prepare them to observe critically.
5. Show the probationary officer how to do it, discuss the subskills involved in the task simultaneously.
6. Maximize the learning. Have the probationary officer practice the procedures, skills, or techniques and evaluate their performance (give feedback immediately).

In order to go from paramilitary to human services - the development must take a different role of instruction. The instructor must not be an authoritarian, but more of a facilitator of the learning experience.

Carl Rogers in his book A Freedom To Learn,@ emphasizes the establishment of a good relationship between teacher and learner as primary to the learning process. The facilitator's role has five basic characteristics, these are:

1. Effective Listening
2. Genuineness
3. Understanding/Empathizing
4. Respect
5. interpersonal Communication

These characteristics must be developed in all instructors who are working with adults.

1. Effective Listening - when listening to your probationary employee you must listen carefully, accurately, and sensitively. Any individual who speaks is worthwhile, worth understanding, consequently he/she is worthwhile for having expressed something.

2. Genuineness - "Managing Feelings" When we talk about "managing feelings" we are referring to the ownership of one's feelings.

Such concepts as:

- a. Self (Who Am I)
- b. Self-Determination
- c. Commitment
- d. Inner-direction
- e. Self-Acceptance
- f. Self-Esteem.
- g. Self-Confidence

If you have each of the concepts above the you will have a better attitude towards yourself and if you have a good attitude towards self, you will have a greater attitude towards others. You as the facilitator will be able to:

- a. Decrease in authoritarianism.
- b. Have a greater acceptance to others.

3. Understanding - listen to the meaning and the feelings the probationary officer is experiencing. It is to these meanings and feelings that you will respond to.

4. Respect - you want the probationary officer to be safe, you want him/her to feel, from the beginning of the interaction, that if he/she risks saying something personal, absurd, or cynical, there will be at least one person who respects him/her enough to hear him/her clearly and listen to that statement as expression of himself/herself.

The facilitator must be well aware that one cannot make the experience safe from pain from the rest of the environment. However, the facilitator would like to make the individual feel that whatever happens he is available and supportive.

To Summarize On Criticism - keep in mind that recipients prefer feedback that is specific and is delivered promptly. Those of you who give feedback that is general and is delivered only after a delay often fall into another, more serious trap: You attribute poor performance to internal causes (such as lack of motivation or ability), rather than observable behavior.

III. APPLICATION

At this point I'm going to give you an opportunity to practice the steps and techniques in conducting a coaching interview.

DISCUSSION GUIDE:

Have the students count off from 1 to 5. Have all of the 1's form a group, the 2's another group, etc. Designate an area for each group to cluster.

I'm now going to distribute to you 5 Coaching Interview Checklists, together with a background scenario about a probationary correction officer. You are to review the information and have a small group discussion on the case before you. Decide what behavior is of specific concern and how the coaching interview should be approached. Once you have accomplished this task, chose one person from your group who will conduct the interview with the probationary correctional officer. Someone from a group other than your own, will play the role of the probationary officer.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTE: Each group has a different probationary officer case. You will have 15 minutes for this exercise. Now, while each of the coaching interviews are taking place, I want everyone else to use the checklist to assess each of the sessions. Each of you have 5 checklists, one for each scenario. At the end get group feedback

CONCLUSION

As the coach, your primary goal is to help the probationary correctional officer strive for excellence. It can best be done by setting a positive tone in all interactions with workers. When performance problems or questions arise, you need to examine the situation closely, first by describing the problem and deciding if it is important. Then the causes of the deficiency are analyzed and corrective action chosen. Once a course of action has been determined, it needs to be implemented and followed up. Finally, you have to evaluate whether the problem has been solved.

NOTE: One corrective action that improves job performance is coaching. Coaching provides a positive approach for both the experienced officer (the Coach) and new person (the probationary officer) to analyze a problem and work to eliminate it. Coaching also builds from the employee's strengths and minimizes blame.

EVALUATION

You have had an opportunity to practice some of the coaching techniques and considerations presented in this session as well as to assess that performance. Now I will ask you to complete a brief quiz. |

COACHING SKILLS QUIZ

INSTRUCTIONS: Read each item carefully and circle the letter of the answer that best completes the statement.

1. Coaching is best defined as:
 - a) Keeping someone in check.
 - b) Guiding someone to stay out of trouble.
 - c) Training someone to improve.
 - d) Supervising someone.

2. The first thing that you as a coach should do in preparing for a coaching interview is to:
 - a) Check your observation to ensure clear communications.
 - b) Rehearse what you are going to say.
 - c) Make sure it is a positive observation.
 - d) Minimize self-criticism.

3. In the coaching process, "set the tone" means:
 - a) Speak loudly.
 - b) Speak softly and deliberately.
 - c) Be stern.
 - d) Let the probationary officer know immediately that the purpose of the conference is to work out a way to improve.

4. In order to get the facts on the table, the Coach should-
 - a) Be specific, firm, and evaluative.
 - b) Immediately talk to the captain about the problem.
 - c) Be specific; descriptive; discuss the behavior; and offer corrections to improve.
 - d) Ignore his/her observations and wait for the Coach to initiate the discussion.

5. To maintain Partnership in Training, the Coach should:
 - a) Constantly remind the probationary officer that the Coach is the experienced senior over him or her.
 - b) Threatened the probationary officer with going to the captain.
 - c) Keep the probationary officer dependent on the more experienced, senior officer
 - d) Encourage the probationary officer to evaluate his/her performance, diffuse negative emotions, and minimize the probationary officer's self-criticism.

6. The purpose of demonstrations is to:
 - a) Show how to perform an act, show the consequences of failure to perform, and provide an opportunity to learn by doing.

- b) Make the probationary officer look bad.
 - c) Show how easy a task actually is.
 - d) To impress the Housing Area Captain.
7. In preparing for a demonstration, the Coach should:
- a) Inform the captain of his/her intentions.
 - b) Make sure that no one is around, besides the probationary officer
 - c) Know what is going to be demonstrated; identify materials needed; and try the demonstration out in advance.
 - d) Minimize the learning.
8. In conducting a demonstration, the Coach should:
- a) Tell the probationary officer what he is going to do.
 - b) Use inmates to make his/her point more clear.
 - c) Catch the probationary officer by surprise.
 - d) Conduct demonstration away from the facility.
9. To maximize the learning means:
- a) Give the probationary officer a lot of work.
 - b) Give the probationary officer an opportunity to practice the procedures, skills, or techniques and give him/her immediate feedback.
 - c) Give the probationary officer high praise.
 - d) Award the probationary officer for doing the right thing.
10. When conducting the coaching interview, the Coach should:
- a) Speak to the probationary officer in private.
 - b) Be harsh.
 - c) Share criticism only.
 - d) Immediately report the outcome to the captain.

INSTRUCTIONS: Please check the box that best represents your observations.

- 1. NOT OBSERVED
 - 2. FAIR
 - 3. GOOD
 - 4. EXCELLENT
- 1. Set Tone
 - 2. Get Facts On Table:
 - a) Be Specific
 - b) Be Descriptive
 - c) Observations Directed To Behavior
 - d) Corrections To Improve
 - 3. Maintain Partnership In Training:
 - a) Encourage Evaluation

- _____ b) Diffuse Negative
- _____ c) Minimize Self-Criticism

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

The instructor should develop the five background scenarios about a probationary correction officer to distribute for the exercise. Make each on fairly simple, but consistent with the various types of people who apply for corrections jobs in your area

SECTION V

TESTING MECHANISMS

INTRODUCTION by Dr. Jess Maghan, Executive Director for Comparative Corrections at the University of Illinois at Chicago and former Director of the Illinois Department of Correction and New York City Department of Corrections Training Academies. Dr. Maghan is also an officer of the International Association of Correctional Officers and has more than two decades experience in line-level duties.

Measuring Training

No training program is worth its salt if it doesn't establish and invoke enabling, training, and performance objectives. The linkage of enabling objectives, which serve as visionary goals, to training and performance objectives will provide the essential comprehensive format for correctional training.

Training objectives represent the instructional guidelines and learning objectives of a specific program. They must seek to:

- ② Use three types of analysis to identify topics suitable for a course;
- ② Specify overall objectives and supporting sub-objectives for the course topics;
- ② Construct criterion test items which match the objectives;
- ② Select learning materials and activities that match the objectives and the trainee's needs;
- ② Modify existing materials and activities to avoid "reinventing the wheel";
- ② Recognize when to design and produce additional materials and activities not existing;
- ② Plan strategies for harnessing the motivation of the trainee;
- ② Plan for the evaluation and revision of the course; and List and describe the components which should be present in a comprehensive leader's guide.

J. Haas in his unpublished paper, Job and Task Analysis: A Useful Tool for Trainers, notes the assurance that training objectives are practical and useful and always determined by the stated performance objectives. Performance objectives represent the on-the-job application of training content. They must seek to:

- ② Ensure that the skills and tasks of the job function are accurately reflected in the application of the training course delivered to support the job function;
- ② Ensure that the evaluation of job performance includes measurable tasks and objectives related to the unit and larger agency mission; and
- ② Ensure that a feedback system exists which accurately indicates changes and adjustments in the job function in order to maintain accuracy in entry and post-entry training programs.

The chief breakdown in any training program comes at the point where what is learned in the training fails to be used by the trainees in the program operation.

Training is not a discreet, isolated function; it is inextricably linked to program operations. Either training contributes to employee understanding of policies and procedures, proficiency in job tasks, and accomplishments of agency goals or it constitutes an obstruction of these matters.

Therefore, every other program component within a correctional department has a vested interest in the effectiveness of correctional training. Training belongs to management. Training cannot do what management will not do.

Objectives For Enabling Training

A comprehensive training program must seek to:

1. Explore the concepts of discipline, self-discipline, authority, power and discretion in order to develop a deeper understanding of the role of the correctional officer.
2. Relate these concepts to specific issues of corrections training, classroom management and control and the overall philosophy and atmosphere of the correctional training environment.
3. Examine and develop the concepts of self-image and self-awareness through reflective insight and relate these elements to those of assertiveness, confidence building and authority.
4. Apply the principles and theories of adult learning to assist others to learn through the creation of an educationally sound, pleasant and safe environment.
5. Employ principles or educational technology in designing lesson plans, audio visual aids, computer-based training and training manuals.
6. Apply examples of practical correction work to training content.
7. Explore the relationship between the correctional officer and the community including issues related to attitude, culture, society and race.
8. Develop correctional officer interpersonal and problem solving skills by improving their ability to communicate and listen.
9. Practice reflective listening skills in a helping and counseling role and develop an empathetic approach.
10. Provide feedback to others regarding performance in a non-threatening manner and provide counselling in terms of improvement and future performance including the use of video for that purpose.

SECTION VI: CORRECTIONAL OFFICER TRAITS AND SKILLS

The following was compiled by the U.S. Department of Justice, National Institute of Corrections. It is the result of the work of a panel of correctional officers.

The material is included in this manual as a sample of what an individual institution or corrections academy might want to develop for its own officers. It is good to let staff, political leaders, media and the general public understand the importance and complexity of skills of corrections officers.

It is important to remind the user that this manual is a generic version and must be modified for the unique needs of each correctional facility and nation's legal and social system. Thus, each reader is encouraged to use the following as a guide and to rewrite the material as deemed appropriate.

SECTION VI

CORRECTIONAL OFFICER SKILLS

COMPETENCY PROFILE OF CORRECTIONAL OFFICER

CORRECTIONAL OFFICER . . . ensures the public safety by providing for the care, custody, control and maintenance of inmates.

DUTIES:

Manage and Communicate with Inmates

Orient new arrivals on rules, procedures, and general information of facility/unit.

Enforce rules and regulations.

Conduct cell inspections (for contraband, obstructions, sanitation, jammed locks, etc.).

Establish rapport (introduce self, use good body language, listen, etc.).

Provide verbal and written counseling (i.e. disciplinary behavior, information, confidential).

Write disciplinary and incident reports.

Intervene in crises: manage conflicts.

Use of force continuum (minimum, less-than-lethal, lethal).

Direct Inmate Movement

Observe monitor and supervise movement of inmates/inmate property.

Properly identify and escort inmates individually or in groups.

Implement schedules for controlled movement of inmates at specified times.

Restrict movement during scheduled physical counts of inmates.

Receive/issue inmates passes/appointment slips.

Implement emergency operating plans.

Enforce custody/privilege/disciplinary restrictions.

Receive/recommend inmate request for bed, cell, or unit move.

Maintain Key, Tool, and Equipment Control

Inspect keys, equipment, tools, and keepers.

Report broken/missing keys, equipment, and tools.

Inventory keys, equipment, and tools at beginning and end of shift.

Maintain physical control of keys, equipment, and tools.

Log keys, equipment and tools in the work area.

Maintain Health, Safety, and Sanitation

Report changes in behavior.

Search persons, personal property, and units.

Report security violations.

Submit health, safety, and sanitation recommendations to appropriate departments.

Implement proper health procedures for inmates with infectious diseases.

Communicate with Staff

Establish positive rapport with other staff.

Maintain constant communication/vigilance of other staff.

Operate communication equipment per established guidelines.
Document incidents, write reports, write recommendations via chain-of-command.
Brief oncoming staff for next shift.
Explain unusual procedures to staff.
Participate in staff meetings.
Participate in Training
Participate in mandatory/elective training.
Read daily log book and other information.
Review new/updated post orders, administrative regulations and memos.
Participate in cross-training.
Review simulate emergency procedures (fire drills).
Participate in continuing education.
Seek additional training opportunities.
Distribute Authorized Items to Inmates
Order/request authorized items.
Inventory and distribute authorized items.
Document the distribution of authorized items.

SOURCES OF INFORMATION

Little in this manual is original. Both the intent and purpose was to take proven training material, outlines, techniques and curriculum to use as a guide. What is here is considered by professionals and practitioners from all parts of the world as the minimum. Most of the information and material is not standards or guidelines or goals to reach someday. Rather it is what those who work in the field feel must be taught (and is practical to teach) to all who work in corrections. Most of the examples come from material currently in use by successful training personnel. The following are sources of information and help on issues related to corrections.

As we began: It is important to remind the user that this manual is a generic version and must be modified for the unique needs of each correctional facility and nation's legal and social system. Thus, each reader is encouraged to use the following to find additional information and as a guide to rewrite the material as deemed appropriate.

THE UNITED NATIONS CRIME PREVENTION AND CRIMINAL JUSTICE PROGRAM NETWORK

Finding the answers to difficult criminal justice questions is never easy, especially if you want accurate or verified data. Much of the world lacks the sophisticated research personnel, equipment and budgets necessary to produce data in an easily retrievable format. It must also be remembered that to many nations their crime, court and correction data are seen as sources of embarrassment and/or are modified for propaganda purposes.

However, there are some excellent sources of information that can help get answers on a regional basis or which can help determine the accuracy of information received from other sources. The reader should be aware that most of the organizations and sources listed below receive only enough financial support to do the work they are mandated to do by their own boards or governing agencies. Therefore, you should be prepared to pay the cost (including postage) of any booklets or documents you receive from them.

United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Program Network

The United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Program network consists of the United Nations Center for International Crime Prevention and a number of interregional and regional institutes around the world, as well as specialized centers. It has been developed to assist the international community in strengthening international cooperation in the crucial area of crime prevention and criminal justice. Its components provide a variety of services, including exchange of information, research, training and public education.

United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime

The United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime is the United Nations office responsible for crime prevention, criminal justice and criminal law reform. Its work focuses on combating transnational organised crime, corruption, illicit trafficking in human beings and the prevention of terrorism.

UNODC assists States in the elaboration, ratification and implementation of international legal instruments, such as United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime (2002) and the negotiations for a Convention against Corruption, due to be completed by December 2003. It also promotes internationally recognised principles, standards and norms in such areas as independence of the judiciary, protection of victims, juvenile justice, alternatives to imprisonment, treatment of prisoners, police use of force, mutual legal assistance, extradition and other matters pertaining to criminal justice and crime prevention. CICP promotes the fundamental principles of maintenance of the rule of law through national, regional and interregional activities. The Center's technical co-operation activities focus particular attention on developing countries, and countries in transition.

UNODC also promotes research and studies of new and emerging forms of crime in co-operation with the United Nations Interregional Crime and Justice Research Institute (UNICRI). The Center maintains the Internet-based United Nations Crime and Justice Information Network (UNCJIN), a substantial database with www links to other criminal justice related sites.

SECTION VIII

UNITED NATIONS AND INTERNATIONAL STANDARDS

This portion of the chapter was taken directly from material prepared by the United Nations Center for Social Development and Humanitarian Affairs in preparation for their excellent Handbook on Detention.

Not long after the United Nations was founded, the organization began to promulgate international norms for the protection of persons accused of crimes and/or deprived of liberty by their government. Two of the foundational instruments of human rights law, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, guarantee persons freedom from torture and arbitrary arrest, the right to a fair trial, and the presumption of their innocence of any criminal charges brought against them. The General Assembly and other U.N. organs have promulgated over thirty instruments in regard to crime prevention and control interpreting, specifying, and securing protection of human rights.

The source documents use different terms. The following glossary may be useful:

"Administration" means those persons and agencies responsible for the operation of a place of detention, when used in standards governing conditions of detention.

"Administrative detention" means the taking into detention of a person by a state without a criminal charge filed against that person and without judicial oversight of the detention. It includes, but is not limited to, persons under investigation who have not been charged with a criminal offense; persons detained by government agencies not involved in criminal law enforcement, such as immigration officials or military personnel; persons detained in mental health institutions; and situations where the reason for detention is not made clear.

"Arrest" means the act of depriving a person of liberty under government authority for the purpose of taking that person into detention and charging the person with a criminal offense.

"Detained person" means any person deprived of liberty by a governmental authority without having been convicted of a criminal offense.

"Detention" means the conditions of being a detained person under investigation for having committed a criminal offense, having been accused of a criminal offense, or during trial; under administrative detention; or for any other reason other than as a consequence of a criminal conviction.

"Imprisoned person" or "prisoner" means any person deprived of liberty by a governmental authority as a consequence of having been convicted of a criminal offense, except that in the Standard Minimum Rules on the Treatment of Prisoners the word "prisoner" also includes detained persons.

"Institution" refers to a place of detention, when used in the Standard Minimum Rules.

"Judicial or other authority" means a judicial or other authority under the law whose status and tenure should afford the strongest possible guarantees of competence, impartiality and independence.

"Place of detention" means any place where detained persons are kept by a government authority.

[1] Universal Declaration of Human Rights

Adopted and proclaimed by General Assembly resolution 217 A (III) of 10 December 1948

PREAMBLE

Whereas recognition of the inherent dignity and of the equal and inalienable rights of all members of the human family is the foundation of freedom, justice and peace in the world,

Whereas disregard and contempt for human rights have resulted in barbarous acts which have outraged the conscience of mankind, and the advent of a world in which human beings shall enjoy freedom of speech and belief and freedom from fear and want has been proclaimed as the highest aspiration of the common people,

Whereas it is essential, if man is not to be compelled to have recourse, as a last resort, to rebellion against tyranny and oppression, that human rights should be protected by the rule of law,

Whereas it is essential to promote the development of friendly relations between nations,

Whereas the peoples of the United Nations have in the Charter reaffirmed their faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person and in the equal rights of men and women and have determined to promote social progress and better standards of life in larger freedom,

Whereas Member States have pledged themselves to achieve, in cooperation with the United Nations, the promotion of universal respect for and observance of human rights and fundamental freedoms,

Whereas a common understanding of these rights and freedoms is of the greatest importance for the full realization of this pledge,

Now, therefore,

The General Assembly

Proclaims the Universal Declaration of Human Rights as a common standard of achievement for all peoples and all nations, to the end that every individual and every organ of society, keeping this Declaration constantly in mind, shall strive by teaching and education to promote respect for these rights and freedoms and by progressive measures, national and international, to secure their universal and effective recognition and observance, both among the peoples of Member States themselves and among the peoples of territories under their jurisdiction.

Article 1

All human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights. They are endowed with reason and conscience and should act towards one another in a spirit of brotherhood.

Article 2

Everyone is entitled to all the rights and freedoms set forth in this Declaration, without distinction of any kind, such as race, color, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth or other status.

Furthermore, no distinction shall be made on the basis of the political, jurisdictional or international status of the country or territory to which a person belongs, whether it be independent, trust, non-self-governing or under any other limitation of sovereignty.

Article 3

Everyone has the right to life, liberty and security of person.

Article 4

No one shall be held in slavery or servitude; slavery and the slave trade shall be prohibited in all their forms.

Article 5

No one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

Article 6

Everyone has the right to recognition everywhere as a person before the law.

Article 7

All are equal before the law and are entitled without any discrimination to equal protection of the law. All are entitled to equal protection against any discrimination in violation of this Declaration and against any incitement to such discrimination.

Article 8

Everyone has the right to an effective remedy by the competent national tribunals for acts violating the fundamental rights granted him by the constitution or by law.

Article 9

No one shall be subjected to arbitrary arrest, detention or exile.

Article 10

Everyone is entitled in full equality to a fair and public hearing by an independent and impartial tribunal, in the determination of his rights and obligations and of any criminal charge against him.

Article 11

1. Everyone charged with a penal offence has the right to be presumed innocent until proved guilty according to law in a public trial at which he has had all the guarantees necessary for his defence.

2. No one shall be held guilty of any penal offence on account of any act or omission which did not constitute a penal offence, under national or international law, at the time when it was committed. Nor shall a heavier penalty be imposed than the one that was applicable at the time the penal offence was committed.

Article 12

No one shall be subjected to arbitrary interference with his privacy, family, home or correspondence, nor to attacks upon his honor and reputation. Everyone has the right to the protection of the law against such interference or attacks.

Article 13

1. Everyone has the right to freedom of movement and residence within the borders of each State.

2. Everyone has the right to leave any country, including his own, and to return to his country.

Article 14

1. Everyone has the right to seek and to enjoy in other countries asylum from persecution.

2. This right may not be invoked in the case of prosecutions genuinely arising from nonpolitical crimes or from acts contrary to the purposes and principles of the United Nations.

Article 15

1. Everyone has the right to a nationality.

2. No one shall be arbitrarily deprived of his nationality nor denied the right to change his nationality.

Article 16

1. Men and women of full age, without any limitation due to race, nationality or religion, have the right to marry and to found a family. They are entitled to equal rights as to marriage, during marriage and at its dissolution.

2. Marriage shall be entered into only with the free and full consent of the intending spouses.

3. The family is the natural and fundamental group unit of society and is entitled to protection by society and the State.

Article 17

1. Everyone has the right to own property alone as well as in association with others.

2. No one shall be arbitrarily deprived of his property.

Article 18

Everyone has the right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion; this right includes freedom to change his religion or belief, and freedom, either alone or in community with others and in public or private, to manifest his religion or belief in teaching, practice, worship and observance.

Article 19

Everyone has the right to freedom of opinion and expression; this right includes freedom to hold opinions without interference and to seek, receive and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers.

Article 20

1. Everyone has the right to freedom of peaceful assembly and association.

2. No one may be compelled to belong to an association.

Article 21

1. Everyone has the right to take part in the government of his country, directly or through freely chosen representatives.

2. Everyone has the right to equal access to public service in his country.

3. The will of the people shall be the basis of the authority of government; this will shall be expressed in periodic and genuine elections which shall be by universal and equal suffrage and shall be held by secret vote or by equivalent free voting procedures.

Article 22

Everyone, as a member of society, has the right to social security and is entitled to realization, through national effort and international cooperation and in accordance with the organization and resources of each State, of the economic, social and cultural rights indispensable for his dignity and the free development of his personality.

Article 23

1. Everyone has the right to work, to free choice of employment, to just and favorable conditions of work and to protection against unemployment.
2. Everyone, without any discrimination, has the right to equal pay for equal work.
3. Everyone who works has the right to just and favorable remuneration ensuring for himself and his family an existence worthy of human dignity, and supplemented, if necessary, by other means of social protection.
4. Everyone has the right to form and to join trade unions for the protection of his interests.

Article 24

Everyone has the right to rest and leisure, including reasonable limitation of working hours and periodic holidays with pay.

Article 25

1. Everyone has the right to a standard of living adequate for the health and well-being of himself and of his family, including food, clothing, housing and medical care and necessary social services, and the right to security in the event of unemployment, sickness, disability, widowhood, old age or other lack of livelihood in circumstances beyond his control.

2. Motherhood and childhood are entitled to special care and assistance. All children, whether born in or out of wedlock, shall enjoy the same social protection.

Article 26

1. Everyone has the right to education. Education shall be free, at least in the elementary and fundamental stages. Elementary education shall be compulsory. Technical and professional education shall be made generally available and higher education shall be equally accessible to all on the basis of merit.

2. Education shall be directed to the full development of the human personality and to the strengthening of respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms. It shall promote understanding, tolerance and friendship among all nations, racial or religious groups, and shall further the activities of the United Nations for the maintenance of peace.

3. Parents have a prior right to choose the kind of education that shall be given to their children.

Article 27

1. Everyone has the right freely to participate in the cultural life of the community, to enjoy the arts and to share in scientific advancement and its benefits.

2. Everyone has the right to the protection of the moral and material interests resulting from any scientific, literary or artistic production of which he is the author.

Article 28

Everyone is entitled to a social and international order in which the rights and freedoms set forth in this Declaration can be fully realized.

Article 29

1. Everyone has duties to the community in which alone the free and full development of his personality is possible.

2. In the exercise of his rights and freedoms, everyone shall be subject only to such limitations as are determined by law solely for the purpose of securing due recognition and respect for the rights and freedoms of others and of meeting the just requirements of morality, public order and the general welfare in a democratic society.

3. These rights and freedoms may in no case be exercised contrary to the purposes and principles of the United Nations.

Article 30

Nothing in this Declaration may be interpreted as implying for any State, group or person any right to engage in any activity or to perform any act aimed at the destruction of any of the rights and freedoms set forth herein.

[2] International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights

Adopted and opened for signature, ratification and accession by General Assembly resolution 2200 A (XXI) of 16 December 1966

PREAMBLE

The States Parties to the present Covenant,

Considering that, in accordance with the principles proclaimed in the Charter of the United Nations, recognition of the inherent dignity and of the equal and inalienable rights of all members of the human family is the foundation of freedom, justice and peace in the world,

Recognizing that these rights derive from the inherent dignity of the human person,

Recognizing that, in accordance with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the ideal of free human beings enjoying freedom from fear and want can only be achieved if conditions are created whereby everyone may enjoy his economic, social and cultural rights, as well as his civil and political rights,

Considering the obligation of States under the Charter of the United Nations to promote universal respect for and observance of, human rights and freedoms,

Realizing that the individual, having duties to other individuals and to the communities to which he belongs, is under a responsibility to strive for the promotion and observance of the rights recognized in the present Covenant,

Agree upon the following articles:

PART I

Article 1

1. All peoples have the right of self-determination. By virtue of that right they freely determine their political status and freely pursue their economic, social and cultural development.

2. All peoples may, for their own ends, freely dispose of their natural wealth and resources without prejudice to any obligations arising out of international economic cooperation, based upon the principle of mutual benefit and international law. In no case may a people be deprived of its own means of subsistence.

3. The State Parties to the present Covenant, including those having responsibility for the administration of Non-Governing and Trust Territories, shall promote the realization of the right of self-determination and shall respect that right, in conformity with the provisions of the Charter of the United Nations.

PART II

Article 2

1. Each State Party to the present Covenant undertakes to take steps, individually and through international assistance and cooperation, especially economic and technical, to the maximum of its available resources, with a view to achieving progressively the full realization of the rights recognized in the present Covenant by all appropriate means, including particularly the adoption of legislative measures.

2. The State Parties to the present Covenant undertake to guarantee that the rights enunciated in the present Covenant will be exercised without discrimination of any kind as to race, color, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth or other status.

3. Developing countries, with due regard to human rights and their national economy, may determine to what extent they would guarantee the economic rights recognized in the present Covenant to non-nationals.

Article 3

The State Parties to the present Covenant undertake to ensure the equal right of men and women to the enjoyment of all economic, social and cultural rights set forth in the present Covenant.

Article 4

The State Parties to the present Covenant recognize that, in the enjoyment of those rights provided by the State in conformity with the present Covenant, the State may subject such rights only to such limitations as are determined by law only in so far as this may be compatible with the nature of these rights and solely for the purpose of promoting the general welfare in a democratic society.

Article 5

1. Nothing in the present Covenant may be interpreted as implying for any State, group or person any right to engage in any activity or to perform any act aimed at the destruction of any of the rights or freedoms recognized herein, or at their limitation to a greater extent than is provided for in the present Covenant.

2. No restriction upon or derogation from any of the fundamental human rights recognized or existing in any country in virtue of law, conventions, regulations or custom shall be admitted on the pretext that the present Covenant does not recognize such rights or that it recognizes them to a lesser extent.

PART III

Article 6

1. The States Parties to the present Covenant recognize the right to work, which includes the right of everyone to the opportunity to earn his living by work which he freely chooses or accepts, and will take appropriate steps to safeguard this right.

2. The steps to be taken by a State Party to the present Covenant to achieve the full realization of this right shall include technical and vocational guidance and training programs, policies and techniques to achieve steady economic, social and cultural development and full and productive employment under conditions safeguarding fundamental political and economic freedoms to the individual.

Article 7

The States Parties to the present Covenant recognize the right of everyone to the enjoyment of just and favorable conditions of work which ensure, in particular:

- (a) Remuneration which provides all workers, as a minimum, with:
 - (i) Fair wages and equal remuneration for work of equal value without distinction of any kind, in particular women being guaranteed conditions of work not inferior to those enjoyed by men, with equal pay for equal work;
 - (ii) A decent living for themselves and their families in accordance with the provisions of the present Covenant;
- (b) Safe and healthy working conditions;
- (c) Equal opportunity for everyone to be promoted in his employment to an appropriate higher level, subject to no considerations other than those of seniority and competence;
- (d) Rest, leisure and reasonable limitation of working hours and periodic holidays with pay, as well as remuneration for public holidays.

Article 8

1. The State Parties to the present Covenant undertake to ensure:

- (a) The right of everyone to form trade unions and join the trade union of his choice, subject only to the rules of the organization concerned, for the promotion and protection of his economic and social interests. No restrictions may be placed on the exercise of this right other than those prescribed by law and which are necessary in a democratic society in the interests of national security or public order or for the protection of the rights and freedoms of others;
- (b) The right of trade unions to establish national federations or confederations and the right of the latter to form or join international trade-union organizations;
- (c) The right of trade unions to function freely subject to no limitations other than those prescribed by law and which are necessary in a democratic society in the interest of national security or public order or for the protection of the rights and freedoms of others;

(d) The right to strike, provided that it is exercised in conformity with the laws of the particular country.

2. This article shall not prevent the imposition of lawful restrictions on the exercise of these rights by members of the armed forces or of the police or of the administration of the State.

3. Nothing in this article shall authorize State Parties to the International Labor Organization Convention of 1948 concerning Freedom of Association and Protection of the Right to Organize to take legislative measures which would prejudice, or apply the law in such a manner as would prejudice, the guarantees provided for in that Convention.

Article 9

The State Parties to the present Covenant recognize the right of everyone to social security, including social insurance.

Article 10

The State Parties to the present Covenant recognize that:

1. The widest possible protection and assistance should be accorded to the family, which is the natural and fundamental group unit of society, particularly for its establishment and while it is responsible for the care and education of dependent children. Marriage must be entered into with the free consent of the intending spouses.

2. Special protection should be accorded to mothers during a reasonable period before and after childbirth. During such a period working mothers should be accorded paid leave or leave with adequate social security benefits.

3. Special measures of protection and assistance should be taken on behalf of all children and young persons without any discrimination for reasons of parentage or other conditions. Children and young persons should be protected from economic and social exploitation. Their employment in work harmful to their morals or health or dangerous to life or likely to hamper their normal development should be punishable by law. States should also set age limits below which the paid employment of child labor should be prohibited and punishable by law.

Article 11

1. The States Parties to the present Covenant recognize the right of everyone to an adequate standard of living for himself and his family, including adequate food, clothing and housing, and to the continuous improvement of living conditions. The States Parties will take appropriate steps to ensure the realization of this right, recognizing to this effect the essential importance of international cooperation based on free consent.

2. The States Parties to the present Covenant, recognizing the fundamental right of everyone to be free from hunger, shall take, individually and through international cooperation, the measures, including specific programs, which are needed.

(a) to improve methods of production, conservation and distribution of food by making full use of technical and scientific knowledge, by disseminating knowledge of the principles of nutrition and by developing or reforming agrarian systems in such a way as to achieve the most efficient development and utilization of natural resources;

(b) Taking into account the problems of both food-importing and food-exporting countries, to ensure an equitable distribution of world food supplies in relation to need.

Article 12

1. The States Parties to the present Covenant recognize the right of everyone to the enjoyment of the highest attainable standard of physical and mental health.

2. The steps to be taken by the States Parties to the present Covenant to achieve the full realization of this right shall include those necessary for:

(a) The provision for the reduction of the stillbirth-rate and of infant mortality and for the healthy development of the child;

(b) The improvement of all aspects of environmental and industrial hygiene;

(c) The prevention, treatment and control of epidemic, endemic, occupational and other diseases;

(d) The creation of conditions which would assure to all medical service and medical attention in the event of sickness.

Article 13

1. The States Parties to the present Covenant recognize the right of everyone to education. They agree that education shall be directed to the full development of the human personality and the sense of its dignity, and shall strengthen the respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms. They further agree that education shall enable all persons to participate effectively in a free society, promote understanding, tolerance and friendship among all nations and all racial, ethnic or religious groups, and further the activities of the United Nations for the maintenance of peace.

2. The States Parties to the present Covenant recognize that, with a view to achieving the full realization of this right:

(a) Primary education shall be compulsory and available free to all;

(b) Secondary education in its different forms, including technical and vocational secondary education, shall be made generally available and accessible to all by every appropriate means, and in particular by the progressive introduction of free education;

(c) Higher education shall be made equally accessible to all, on the basis of capacity, by every appropriate means, and in particular by the progressive introduction of free education;

(d) Fundamental education shall be encouraged or intensified as far as possible for those persons who have not received or completed the whole period of their primary education;

(e) The development of a system of schools at all levels shall be actively pursued, an adequate fellowship system shall be established, and the material conditions of teaching staff shall be continuously improved.

3. The States Parties to the present Covenant undertake to have respect for the liberty of parents and, when applicable, legal guardians to choose for their children schools, other than those established by the public authorities, which conform to such minimum educational standards as may be laid down or approved by the State and to ensure the religious and moral education of their children in conformity with their own convictions.

4. No part of this article shall be constructed so as to interfere with the liberty of individuals and bodies to establish and direct educational institutions, subject always to the observance of the principles set fourth in paragraph 1 of this article and to the requirement that the education given in such institutions shall conform to such minimum standards as may be laid down by the State.

Article 14

Each State Party to the present Covenant which, at the time of becoming a Party, has not been able to secure in its metropolitan territory or other territories under its jurisdiction compulsory primary education, free of charge, undertakes, within two years, to work out and adopt a detailed plan of action for the progressive implementation, within a reasonable number of years, to be fixed in the plan, of the principle of compulsory education free of charge for all.

Article 15

1. The States Parties to the present Covenant recognize the right of everyone:
 - (a) To take part in cultural life;
 - (b) To enjoy the benefits of scientific progress and its applications;
 - (c) To benefit from the protection of the moral and material interest resulting from any scientific, literary or artistic production of which he is the author.
2. The steps to be taken by the States Parties to the present Covenant to achieve the full realization of this right shall include those necessary for the conservation, the development and the diffusion of science and culture.
3. The States Parties to the present Covenant undertake to respect the freedom indispensable for scientific research and creative activity.
4. The States Parties to the present Covenant recognize the benefits to be derived from the encouragement and development of international contact and co-operation in the scientific and cultural fields.

PART IV

Article 16

1. The States Parties to the present Covenant undertake to submit in conformity with this part of the Covenant reports on the measures which they have adopted and the progress made in achieving the observance of the rights recognized herein.
2. (a) All reports shall be submitted to the Secretary-General of the United Nations, who shall transmit copies to the Economic and Social Council for consideration in accordance with the provisions of the present Covenant;
- (b) The Secretary-General of the United Nations shall also transmit to the specialized agencies copies of the reports, or any relevant parts therefrom, from States Parties to the present Covenant which are also members of these specialized agencies in so far as these reports, or parts therefrom, relate to any matters which fall within the responsibilities of the said agencies in accordance with their constitutional instruments.

Article 17

1. The States Parties to the present Covenant shall furnish their reports in stages, in accordance with a program to be established by the Economic and Social Council within one year of the entry into force of the present Covenant after consultation with the States Parties and specialized agencies concerned.

2. Reports may indicate factors and difficulties affecting the degree of fulfillment of obligations under the present Covenant.

3. Where relevant information has previously been furnished to the United Nations or to any specialized agency by any State Party to the present Covenant, it will not be necessary to reproduce that information, but a precise reference to the information so furnished will suffice.

Article 18

Pursuant to its responsibilities under the Charter of the United Nations in the field of human rights and fundamental freedoms, the Economic and Social Council may make arrangements with the specialized agencies in respect of their reporting to it on the progress made in achieving the observance of the provisions of the present Covenant falling within the scope of their activities. These reports may include particulars of decisions and recommendations on such implementation adopted by their competent organs.

Articles 19

The Economic and Social Council may transmit to the Commission on Human Rights for study and general recommendation or, as appropriate, for information the reports concerning human rights submitted by States in accordance with articles 16 and 17, and those concerning human rights submitted by the specialized agencies in accordance with article 18.

Article 20

The States Parties to the present Covenant and the specialized agencies concerned may submit comments to the Economic and Social Council on any general recommendation under article 19 or reference to such general recommendation in any report of the Commission on Human Rights or any documentation referred to therein.

Article 21

The Economic and Social Council may submit from time to time to the General Assembly reports with recommendations of a general nature and a summary of the information received from the States Parties to the present Covenant and the specialized agencies on the measures taken and the progress made in achieving general observance of the rights recognized in the present Covenant.

Article 22

The Economic and Social Council may bring to the attention of other organs of the United Nations, their subsidiary organs and specialized agencies concerned with furnishing technical assistance any matters arising out of the reports referred to in this part of the present Covenant which may assist such bodies in deciding, each within its field of competence, on the advisability of international measures likely to contribute to the effective progressive implementation of the present Covenant.

Article 23

The States Parties to the present Covenant agree that international action for the achievement of the rights recognized in the present Covenant includes such methods as the conclusion of conventions, the adoption of recommendations, the furnishing of technical assistance and the holding of regional meetings and technical meetings for the purpose of consultation and study organized in conjunction with the Governments concerned.

Article 24

Nothing in the present Covenant shall be interpreted as impairing the provisions of the Charter of the United Nations and of the constitutions of the specialized agencies which define the respective responsibilities of the various organs of the United Nations and of the specialized agencies in regard to the matters dealt with in the present Covenant.

Article 25

Nothing in the present Covenant shall be interpreted as impairing the inherent right of all peoples to enjoy and utilize fully and freely their natural wealth and resources.

PART V

Article 26

1. The present Covenant is open for signature by any State Member of the United Nations or member of any of its specialized agencies, by any State Party to the Statute of the International Court of Justice, and by any other State which has been invited by the General Assembly of the United Nations to become a party to the present Covenant.

2. The present Covenant is subject to ratification. Instruments of ratification shall be deposited with the Secretary-General of the United Nations.

3. The present Covenant shall be open to accession by any State referred to in paragraph 1 of this article.

4. Accession shall be effected by the deposit of an instrument of accession with the Secretary-General of the United Nations.

5. The Secretary-General of the United Nations shall inform all States which have signed the present Covenant or acceded to it of the deposit of each instrument of ratification or accession.

Article 27

1. The present Covenant shall enter into force three months after the date of the deposit with the Secretary-General of the United Nations of the thirty-fifth instrument of ratification or instrument of accession.

2. For each State ratifying the present Covenant or acceding to it after the deposit of the thirty-fifth instrument of ratification or instrument of accession the present Covenant shall enter into force three months after the date of the deposit of its own instrument of ratification or instrument of accession.

Article 28

The provisions of the present Covenant shall extend to all parts of federal States without any limitations or exceptions.

Article 29

1. Any State Party to the present Covenant may propose an amendment and file it with the Secretary-General of the United Nations. The Secretary-General shall thereupon communicate any proposed amendments to the States Parties to the present Covenant with a request that they notify him whether they favour a conference of States Parties for the purpose of considering and voting upon the proposals. In the event that at least one third of the States Parties favours such a conference, the Secretary-General shall convene the conference under the auspices of the United Nations. Any amendment adopted by a majority of the States Parties present and voting at the conference shall be submitted to the General Assembly of the United Nations for approval.

2. Amendments shall come into force when they have been approved by the General Assembly of the United Nations and accepted by a two-thirds majority of the States Parties to the present Covenant in accordance with their respective constitutional processes.

3. When amendments come into force they shall be binding on those State Parties still being bound by the provisions of the present Covenant and any earlier amendment which they have accepted.

Article 30

Irrespective of the notifications made under article 26, paragraph 5, the Secretary-General of the United Nations shall inform all States referred to in paragraph 1 of the same article of the following particulars:

(a) Signatures, ratifications and accessions under article 26;

(b) The date of the entry into force of the present Covenant under article 27 and the date of the entry into force of any amendments under article 29.

Article 31

1. The present Covenant, of which the Chinese, English, French, Russian and Spanish texts are equally authentic, shall be deposited in the archives of the United Nations.

2. The Secretary-General of the United Nations shall transmit certified copies of the present Covenant to all States referred to in article 26.

[3] International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights

Adopted and opened for signature, ratification and accession by General Assembly resolution 2200 A (XXI) of 16 December 1966

ENTRY INTO FORCE: 23 March 1976, in accordance with article 49

PREAMBLE

The States Parties to the present Covenant,

Considering that, in accordance with the principles proclaimed in the Charter of the United Nations, recognition of the inherent dignity and of the equal and inalienable rights of all members of the human family is the foundation of freedom, justice and peace in the world.

Recognizing that these rights derive from the inherent dignity of the human person,

Recognizing that, in accordance with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the ideal of free human beings enjoying civil and political freedom and freedom from fear and want can only be achieved if conditions are created whereby everyone may enjoy his civil and political rights, as well as his economic, social and cultural rights,

Considering the obligation of States under the Charter of the United Nations to promote universal respect for, and observance of, human rights and freedoms.

Realizing that the individual, having duties to other individuals and to the community to which he belongs, is under a responsibility to strive for the promotion and observance of the rights recognized in the present Covenant,

Agree upon the following articles:

PART I

Article 1

1. All peoples have the right of self-determination. By virtue of that right they freely determine their political status and freely pursue their economic, social and cultural development.

2. All peoples may, for their own ends, freely dispose of their natural wealth and resources without prejudice to any obligations arising out of international economic cooperation, based upon the principle of mutual benefit, and international law. In no case may a people be deprived of its own means of subsistence.

3. The States Parties to the present Covenant, including those having responsibility for the administration of Non-Self-Governing and Trust Territories, shall promote the realization of the right of self-determination, and shall respect that right, in conformity with the provisions of the Charter of the United Nations.

PART II

Article 2

1. Each State Party to the present Covenant undertakes to respect and to ensure to all individuals within its territory and subject to its jurisdiction the rights recognized in the present Covenant, without distinction of any kind, such as race, color, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth or other status.

2. Where not already provided for by existing legislative or other measures, each State Party to the present Covenant undertakes to take the necessary steps, in accordance with its constitutional processes and with the provisions of the present Covenant, to adopt such legislative or other measures as may be necessary to give effect to the rights recognized in the present Covenant.

3. Each State Party to the present Covenant undertakes:

(a) To ensure that any person whose rights or freedoms as herein recognized are violated shall have an effective remedy, notwithstanding that the violation has been committed by persons acting in an official capacity;

(b) To ensure that any person claiming such a remedy shall have his right thereto determined by competent judicial, administrative or legislative authorities, or by any other competent authority provided for by the legal system of the State, and to develop the possibilities of judicial remedy;

(c) To ensure that the competent authorities shall enforce such remedies when granted.

Article 3

The States Parties to the present Covenant undertake to ensure the equal right of men and women to the enjoyment of all civil and political rights set forth in the present Covenant.

Article 4

1. In time of public emergency which threatens the life of the nation and the existence of which is officially proclaimed, the States Parties to the present Covenant may take measures derogating from their obligations under the present Covenant to the extent strictly required by the agencies of the situation, provided that such measures are not inconsistent with their other obligations under international law and do not involve discrimination solely on the ground of race, color, sex, language, religion or social origin.

2. No derogation from articles 6, 7, 8 (paragraphs 1 and 2), 11, 15, 16 and 18 may be made under this provision.

3. Any State Party to the present Covenant availing itself of the right of derogation shall immediately inform the other States Parties to the present Covenant through the intermediary of the Secretary-General of the United Nations, of the provisions from which it has derogated and of the reasons by which it was actuated. A further communication shall be made through the same intermediary, on the date on which it terminates such derogation.

Article 5

1. Nothing in the present Covenant may be interpreted as implying for any State, group or person any right to engage in any activity or perform any act aimed at the destruction of any of the rights or freedoms recognized herein or at their limitation to a greater extent than is provided for in the present Covenant.

2. There shall be no restriction upon or derogation from any of the fundamental human rights recognized or existing in any State Party to the present Covenant pursuant to law, conventions, regulations or custom on the pretext that the present Covenant does not recognize such rights or that it recognizes them to a lesser extent.

PART III

Article 6

1. Every human being has the inherent right to life. This right shall be protected by law. No one shall be arbitrarily deprived of his life.

2. In countries which have not abolished the death penalty, sentence of death may be imposed only for the most serious crimes in accordance with the law in force at the time of the commission of the crime and not contrary to the provisions of the present Covenant and to the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide. This penalty can only be carried out pursuant to a final judgement rendered by a competent court.

3. When deprivation of life constitutes the crime of genocide it is understood that nothing in this article shall authorize any State Party to the present Covenant to derogate in any way from any obligation assumed under the provisions of the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide.

4. Anyone sentenced to death shall have the right to seek pardon or commutation of the sentence. Amnesty, pardon or commutation of the sentence of death may be granted in all cases.

5. Sentence of death shall not be imposed for crimes committed by persons below eighteen years of age and shall not be carried out on pregnant women.

6. Nothing in this article shall be invoked to delay or to prevent the abolition of capital punishment by any State Party to the present Covenant.

Article 7

No one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment. In particular, no one shall be subjected without his free consent to medical or scientific experimentation.

Article 8

1. No one shall be held in slavery; slavery and the slave-trade in all their forms shall be prohibited.

2. No one shall be held in servitude.

3. (a) No one shall be required to perform forced or compulsory labor;

(b) Paragraphs 3 (a) shall be held to preclude, in countries where imprisonment with hard labour may be imposed as a punishment for a crime, the performance of hard labour in pursuance of a sentence to such punishment by a competent court;

(c) For the purpose of this paragraph the term "forced or compulsory labor" shall not include:

(i) Any work or service, not referred to in subparagraph (b), normally required of a person who is under detention in consequence of a lawful order of a court, or of a person during conditional release from such detention;

(ii) Any service of a military character and, in countries where conscientious objection is recognized, any national service required by law of conscientious objectors;

(iii) Any service exacted in cases of emergency or calamity threatening the life or well-being of the community;

(iv) Any work or service which forms part of normal civil obligations.

Article 9

1. Everyone has the right to liberty and security of person. No one shall be subjected to arbitrary arrest or detention. No one shall be deprived of his liberty except on such grounds and in accordance with such procedure as are established by law.

2. Anyone who is arrested shall be informed, at the time of the arrest, of the reasons for his arrest and shall be promptly informed of any charges against him.

3. Anyone arrested or detained on a criminal charge shall be brought promptly before a judge or other officer authorized by law to exercise judicial power and shall be entitled to trial within a reasonable time or to release. It shall not be the general rule that persons awaiting trial shall be detained in custody, but release may be subject to guarantees to appear for trial, at any other stage of the judicial proceedings, and, should occasion arise, for execution of the judgement.

4. Anyone who is deprived of his liberty by arrest or detention shall be entitled to take proceedings before a court, in order that that court may decide without delay on the lawfulness of his detention and order his release if the detention is not lawful.

5. Anyone who has been victim of unlawful arrest or detention shall have an enforceable right to compensation.

Article 10

1. All persons deprived of their liberty shall be treated with humanity and with respect for the inherent dignity of the human person.

2. (a) Accused persons shall, save in exceptional circumstances, be segregated from convicted persons and shall be subject to separate treatment appropriate to their status as unconvicted persons;

(b) Accused juvenile persons shall be separated from adults and brought as speedily as possible for adjudication.

3. The penitentiary system shall comprise treatment of prisoners the essential aim of which shall be their reformation and social rehabilitation. Juvenile offenders shall be segregated from adults and be accorded treatment appropriate to their age and legal status

Article 11

No one shall be imprisoned merely on the ground of inability to fulfill a contractual obligation.

Article 12

1. Everyone lawfully within the territory of a State shall, within that territory, have the right to liberty of movement and freedom to choose his residence.

2. Everyone shall be free to leave any country, including his own.

3. The above-mentioned rights shall not be subject to any restrictions except those which are provided by law, are necessary to protect national security, public order (ordre public) public health or morals or the rights and freedoms of others, and are consistent with the other rights recognized in the present Covenant.

4. No one shall be arbitrarily deprived of the right to enter his own country.

Article 13

An alien lawfully in the territory of a State Party to the present Covenant may be expelled therefrom only in pursuance of a decision reached in accordance with law and shall, except where compelling reasons of national security otherwise require, be allowed to submit the reasons against his expulsion and to have his case reviewed by, and be represented for the purpose before, the competent authority or a person or persons especially designated by the competent authority.

Article 14

1. All persons shall be equal before the courts and tribunals. In the determination of any criminal charge against him, or of his rights and obligations in a suit at law, everyone shall be entitled to a fair public hearing by a competent, independent and impartial tribunal established by law. The Press and the public may be excluded from all or part of a trial for reasons of morals, public order (ordre public) or national security in a democratic society or when the interest of the private lives of the parties so requires, or to the extent strictly necessary in the opinion of the court in special circumstances where publicity would prejudice the interests of justice; but any judgement rendered in a criminal case or in a suit at law shall be made public except where the interest of juvenile persons otherwise requires or the proceedings concern matrimonial disputes of the guardianship of children.

2. Everyone charged with a criminal offence shall have the right to be presumed innocent until proved guilty according to law.

3. In the determination of any criminal charge against him, everyone shall be entitled to the following minimum guarantees, in full equality:

(a) To be informed promptly and in detail in a language which he understands of the nature and cause of the charge against him;

(b) To have adequate time and facilities for the preparation of his defence and to communicate with counsel of his own choosing;

(c) To be tried without undue delay;

(d) To be tried in his presence, and to defend himself in person or through legal assistance of his own choosing; to be informed, if he does not have legal assistance of this right; and to have legal assistance assigned to him, in any case where the interests of justice so require, and without payment by him in any such case if he does not have sufficient means to pay for it.

(e) To examine, or have examined the witnesses against him and to obtain the attendance and examination of witnesses on his behalf under the same conditions as witnesses against him;

(f) To have the free assistance of an interpreter if he cannot understand or speak the language used in court;

(g) Not to be compelled to testify against himself or to confess guilt.

4. In the case of juvenile persons, the procedure shall be such as will take account of their age and the desirability of promoting their rehabilitation.

5. Everyone convicted of a crime shall have the right to his conviction and sentence being reviewed by a higher tribunal according to law.

6. When a person has by a final decision been convicted of a criminal offence and when subsequently his conviction has been reversed or he has been pardoned on the ground that a new or newly discovered fact shows conclusively that there has been a miscarriage of justice. The person who has suffered punishment as a result of such conviction shall be compensated according to law, unless it is proven that the nondisclosure of the unknown fact in time is wholly or partly attributable to him.

7. No one shall be liable to be tried or punished again for an offence for which he has already been finally convicted or acquitted in accordance with the law and penal procedure of each country.

Article 15

1. No one shall be held guilty of any criminal offence on account of any act or omission which did not constitute a criminal offence, under national or international law, at the time when it was committed. Nor shall a heavier penalty be imposed than the one that was applicable at the time when the criminal offence was committed. If subsequent to the commission of the offence, provision is made by law for the imposition of the lighter penalty, the offender shall benefit thereby.

2. Nothing in this article shall prejudice the trial and punishment of any person for any act or omission which, at the time when it was committed, was criminal according to the general principles of law recognized by the community of nations.

Article 16

Everyone shall have the right to recognition everywhere as a person before the law.

Article 17

1. No one shall be subjected to arbitrary or unlawful interference with his privacy, family home or correspondence, nor to unlawful attacks on his honor and reputation.
2. Everyone has the right to the protection of the law against such interference or attacks.

Article 18

1. Everyone shall have the right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion. This right shall include freedom to have or to adopt a religion or belief of his choice, and freedom, either individually or in community with others and in public or private, to manifest his religion or belief in worship, observance, practice and teaching.
2. No one shall be subject to coercion which would impair his freedom to have or to adopt a religion or belief of his choice.
3. Freedom to manifest one's religion or beliefs may be subject only to such limitations as are prescribed by law and are necessary to protect public safety, order, health, or morals or the fundamental rights and freedoms of others.
4. The States Parties to the present Covenant undertake to have respect for the liberty of parents and, when applicable, legal guardians to ensure the religious and moral education of their children in conformity with their own convictions.

Article 19

1. Everyone shall have to right to hold opinions without interference.
2. Everyone shall have the right to freedom of expression; this right shall include freedom to seek, receive and impart information and ideas of all kinds, regardless of frontiers, either orally, in writing or in print, in the form of art, or through any other media of his choice.
3. The exercise of the rights provided for in paragraph 2 of this article carries with it special duties and responsibilities. It may therefore be subject to certain restrictions, but these shall only be such as are provided by law and are necessary:
 - (a) For respect of the rights or reputations of others;
 - (b) For the protection of national security or of public order (ordre public), or of public health or morals.

Article 20

1. Any propaganda for war shall be prohibited by law.
2. Any advocacy of national, racial or religious hatred that constitutes incitement to discrimination, hostility or violence shall be prohibited by law.

Article 21

The right of peaceful assembly shall be recognized. No restrictions may be placed on the exercise of this right other than those imposed in conformity with the law and which are necessary in a democratic society in the interests of national security or public safety, public order (ordre public), the protection of public health or morals or the protection of the rights and freedoms of others.

Article 22

1. Everyone shall have the right to freedom of association with others, including the right to form and join trade unions for the protection of his interests.

2. No restrictions may be placed on the exercise of this right other than those which are prescribed by law and which are necessary in a democratic society in the interests of national security or public safety, public order (ordre public), the protection of public health or morals or the protection of the rights and freedoms of others. This article shall not prevent the imposition of lawful restrictions on members of the armed forces and of the police in their exercise of this right.

3. Nothing in this article shall authorize States Parties to the International Labour Organization Convention of 1948 concerning Freedom of Association and Protection of the Right to Organize to take legislative measures which would prejudice, or to apply the law in such a manner as to prejudice the guarantees provided for in the Convention.

Article 23

1. The family is the natural and fundamental group unit of society and is entitled to protection by society and the State.

2. The right of men and women of marriageable age to marry and to found a family shall be recognized.

3. No marriage shall be entered into without the free and full consent of the intending spouses.

4. States Parties to the present Covenant shall take appropriate steps to ensure equality of rights and responsibilities of spouses as to marriage, during marriage and at its dissolution. In the case of dissolution provisions shall be made for the necessary protection of the children.

Article 24

1. Every child shall have, without any discrimination as to race, color, sex, language, religion, national or social origin, property of birth, the right to such measures of protection as are required by his status as a minor, on the part of his family, society and the State.

2. Every child shall be registered immediately after birth and shall have a name.

3. Every child has the right to acquire a nationality.

Article 25

Every citizen shall have the right and the opportunity without any of the distinctions mentioned in article 2 and without unreasonable restrictions:

(a) To take part in the conduct of public affairs directly or through freely chosen representatives;

(b) To vote and to be elected at genuine periodic elections which shall be by universal and equal suffrage and shall be held by secret ballot, guaranteeing the free expression of the will of the electors;

(c) To have access, on general terms of equality, to public service in his country.

Article 26

All persons are equal before the law and are entitled without any discrimination to the equal protection of the law. In this respect, the law shall prohibit any discrimination and guarantee to all persons equal and effective protection against discrimination on any ground such as race, color, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth or other status.

Article 27

In those States in which ethnic, religious or linguistic minorities exist, person belonging to such minorities shall not be denied the right, in community with the other members of their group, to enjoy their own culture, to profess and practice their own religion, or to use their own language.

STANDARD MINIMUM RULES FOR THE TREATMENT OF PRISONERS

Resolution adopted on 30 August 1955

The First United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders,

Having adopted the Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners annexed to the present Resolution,

1. Requests the Secretary-General, in accordance with paragraph (d) of the annex to resolution 415(V) of the General Assembly of the United Nations, to submit these rules to the Social Commission of the Economic and Social Council for approval;

2. Expresses the hope that these rules be approved by the Economic and Social Council and, if deemed appropriate by the Council, by the General Assembly, and that they be transmitted to governments with the recommendation (a) that favorable consideration be given to their adoption and application in the administration of penal institutions, and (b) that the Secretary-General be informed every three years of the progress made with regard to their application;

3. Expresses the wish that, in order to allow governments to keep themselves informed of the progress made in this respect, the Secretary-General be requested to publish in the International Review of Criminal Policy the information sent by governments in pursuance of paragraph 2, and that he be authorized to ask for supplementary information if necessary;

4. Expresses also the wish that the Secretary-General be requested to arrange that the widest possible publicity be given to these rules.

Annex

STANDARD MINIMUM RULES FOR THE TREATMENT OF PRISONERS

Preliminary observations

1. The following rules are not intended to describe in detail a model system of penal institutions. They seek only, on the basis of the general consensus of contemporary thought and the essential elements of the most adequate systems of today, to set out what is generally accepted as being good principle and practice in the treatment of prisoners and the management of institutions.

2. In view of the great variety of legal, social, economic and geographical conditions of the world, it is evident that not all of the rules are capable of application in all places and at all times. They should, however, serve to stimulate a constant endeavor to overcome practical difficulties in the way of their application, in the knowledge that they represent, as a whole, the minimum conditions which are accepted as suitable by the United Nations.

3. On the other hand, the rules cover a field in which thought is constantly developing. They are not intended to preclude experiment and practices, provided these are in harmony with the principles and seek to further the purposes which derive from the text of the rules as a whole. It will always be justifiable for the central prison administration to authorize departures from the rules in this spirit.

4. (1) Part I of the rules covers the general management of institutions, and is applicable to all categories of prisoners, criminal or civil, untried or convicted, including prisoners subject to "security measures" or corrective measures ordered by the judge.

(2) Part II contains the rules applicable only to the special categories dealt with in each section. Nevertheless, the rules under section A, applicable to prisoners under sentence, shall be equally applicable to categories of prisoners dealt with in sections B, C and D, provided they do not conflict with the rules governing those categories and are for their benefit.

5. (1) The rules do not seek to regulate the management of institutions set aside for young persons such as Borstal institutions or correctional schools, but in general part I would be equally applicable in such institutions.

(2) The category of young prisoners should include at least all young persons who come within the jurisdiction of juvenile courts. As a rule, such young persons should not be sentenced to imprisonment.

Part I. Rules of general application

Basic principle

6. (1) The following rules shall be applied impartially. There shall be no discrimination on grounds of race, color, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth or other status.

(2) On the other hand, it is necessary to respect the religious beliefs and moral precepts of the group to which a prisoner belongs.

Register

7. (1) In every place where persons are imprisoned there shall be kept a bound registration book with numbered pages in which shall be entered in respect of each prisoner received:

- (a) Information concerning his identity;
- (b) The reasons for his commitment and the authority therefor;
- (c) The day and hour of his admission and release.

(2) No person shall be received in an institution without a valid commitment order of which the details shall have been previously entered in the register.

Separation of categories

8. The different categories of prisoners shall be kept in separate institutions or parts of institutions taking account of their sex, age, criminal record, the legal reason for their detention and the necessities of their treatment. Thus,

(a) Men and women shall so far as possible be detained in separate institutions; in an institution which receives both men and women the whole of the premises allocated to women shall be entirely separate;

(b) Untried prisoners shall be kept separate from convicted prisoners;

(c) Persons imprisoned for debt and other civil prisoners shall be kept separate from persons imprisoned by reason of a criminal offence;

(d) Young prisoners shall be kept separate from adults.

Accommodation

9. (1) Where sleeping accommodation is in individual cells or rooms, each prisoner shall occupy by night a cell or room by himself. If for special reasons, such as temporary overcrowding, it becomes necessary for the central prison administration to make an exception to this rule, it is not desirable to have two prisoners in a cell or room.

(2) Where dormitories are used, they shall be occupied by prisoners carefully selected as being suitable to associate with one another in those conditions. There shall be regular supervision by night, in keeping with the nature of the institution.

10. All accommodation provided for the use of prisoners and in particular all sleeping accommodation shall meet all requirements of health, due regard being paid to climatic conditions and particularly to cubic content of air, minimum floor space, lighting, heating and ventilation.

11. In all places where prisoners are required to live or work,

(a) The windows shall be large enough to enable the prisoners to read or work by natural light, and shall be constructed that they can allow the entrance of fresh air whether or not there is artificial ventilation;

(b) Artificial light shall be provided sufficient for the prisoners to read or work without injury to eyesight.

12. The sanitary installations shall be adequate to enable every prisoner to comply with the needs of nature when necessary and in a clean and decent manner.

13. Adequate bathing and shower installations shall be provided so that every prisoner may be enabled and required to have a bath or shower, at a temperature suitable to the climate, as frequently as necessary for general hygiene according to season and geographical region, but at least once a week in a temperate climate.

14. All parts of an institution regularly used by prisoners shall be properly maintained and kept scrupulously clean at all times.

Personal Hygiene

15. Prisoners shall be required to keep their persons clean, and to this end they shall be provided with water and with such toilet articles as are necessary for health and cleanliness.

16. In order that prisoners may maintain a good appearance compatible with their self-respect, facilities shall be provided for the proper care of the hair and beard, and men shall be enabled to shave regularly.

Clothing and bedding

17. (1) Every prisoner who is not allowed to wear his own clothing shall be provided with an outfit of clothing suitable for the climate and adequate to keep him in good health. Such clothing shall in no manner be degrading or humiliating.

(2) All clothing shall be clean and kept in proper condition. Underclothing shall be changed and washed as often as necessary for the maintenance of hygiene.

(3) In exceptional circumstances, whenever a prisoner is removed outside the institution for an authorized purpose, he shall be allowed to wear his own clothing or other inconspicuous clothing.

18. If prisoners are allowed to wear their own clothing, arrangements shall be made on their admission to the institution to ensure that it shall be clean and fit for use.

19. Every prisoner shall, in accordance with other local or national standards, be provided with a separate bed, and with separate and sufficient bedding which shall be clean when issued, kept in good order and changed often enough to ensure its cleanliness.

Food

20. (1) Every prisoner shall be provided by the administration at the usual hours with food of nutritional value adequate for health and strength, of wholesome quality and well prepared and served.

(2) Drinking water shall be available to every prisoner whenever he needs it.

Exercise and sport

21. (1) Every prisoner who is not employed in outdoor work shall have at least one hour of suitable exercise in the open air daily if the weather permits.

(2) Young prisoners, and others of suitable age and physique, shall receive physical and recreational training during the period of exercise. To this end space, installation and equipment should be provided.

Medical services

22. (1) At every institution there shall be available the services of at least one qualified medical officer who should have some knowledge of psychiatry. The medical services should be organized in close relationship to the general health administration of the community or nation. They shall include a psychiatric service for the diagnosis and, in proper cases, the treatment of states of mental abnormality.

(2) Sick prisoners who require specialist treatment shall be transferred to specialized institutions or to civil hospitals. Where hospital facilities are provided in an institution, their equipment, furnishings and pharmaceutical supplies shall be proper for the medical care and treatment of sick prisoners, and there shall be a staff of suitably trained officers.

(3) The services of a qualified dental officer shall be available to every prisoner.

23. (1) In women's institutions there shall be special accommodation for all necessary prenatal and postnatal care and treatment. Arrangements shall be made wherever practicable for children to be born in a hospital outside the institution. If a child is born in prison, this fact shall not be mentioned in the birth certificate.

(2) Where nursing infants are allowed to remain in the institution with their mothers, provisions shall be made for a nursery staffed by qualified persons, where the infants shall be placed when they are not in the care of their mothers.

24. The medical officer shall see and examine every prisoner as soon as possible after his admission and thereafter as necessary, with a view particularly to the discovery of physical or mental illness and the taking of all necessary measures; the segregation of prisoners suspected of infectious or contagious conditions; the noting of physical or mental defects which might hamper rehabilitation, and the determination of the physical capacity of every prisoner for work.

25. (1) The medical officer shall have the care of the physical and mental health of the prisoners and should daily see all sick prisoners, all who complain of illness, and any prisoner to whom his attention is specially directed.

(2) The medical officer shall report to the director whenever he considers that a prisoner's physical or mental health has been or will be injuriously affected by continued imprisonment or by any condition of imprisonment.

26. (1) The medical officer shall regularly inspect and advise the director upon:

(a) The quantity, quality, preparation and service of food;

(b) The hygiene and cleanliness of the institution and the prisoners;

(c) The sanitation, heating, lighting and ventilation of the institution;

(d) The suitability and cleanliness of the prisoners' clothing and bedding;

(e) The observance of the rules concerning physical education and sports, in cases where there is no technical personnel in charge of these activities.

(2) The director shall take into consideration the reports and advice that the medical officer submits according to rules 25 (2) and 26 and, in case he concurs with the recommendations made, shall take immediate steps to give effect to those recommendations; if they are not within his competence or if he does not concur with them, he shall immediately submit his own report and the advice of the medical officer to higher authority.

Discipline and punishment

27. Discipline and order shall be maintained with firmness, but with no more restriction than is necessary for safe custody and well-ordered community life.

28. (1) No prisoner shall be employed, in the service of the institution, in any disciplinary capacity.

(2) This rule shall not, however, impede the proper functioning of systems based on self-government, under which specified social, educational or sports activities or responsibilities are entrusted, under supervision, to prisoners who are formed into groups for the purposes of treatment.

29. The following shall always be determined by the law or by the regulation of the competent administrative authority:

- (a) Conduct constituting a disciplinary offence;
- (b) The types and duration of punishment which may be inflicted;
- (c) The authority competent to impose such punishment.

30. (1) No prisoner shall be punished except in accordance with the terms of such law or regulation, and never twice for the same offence.

(2) No prisoner shall be punished unless he has been informed of the offence alleged against him and given a proper opportunity of presenting his defence. The competent authority shall conduct a thorough examination of the case.

(3) Where necessary and practicable the prisoner shall be allowed to make his defence through an interpreter.

31. Corporal punishment, punishment by placing in a dark cell, and all cruel, inhuman or degrading punishments shall be completely prohibited as punishments for disciplinary offences.

32. (1) Punishment by close confinement or reduction of diet shall never be inflicted unless the medical officer has examined the prisoner and certified in writing that he is fit to sustain it.

(2) The same shall apply to any other punishment that may be prejudicial to the physical or mental health of a prisoner. In no case may such punishment be contrary to or depart from the principle stated in rule 31.

(3) The medical officer shall visit daily prisoners undergoing such punishment and shall advise the director if he considers the termination or alteration of the punishment necessary on grounds of physical or mental health.

Instruments of restraint

33. Instruments of restraint, such as handcuffs, chains, irons and strait-jackets, shall never be applied as a punishment. Furthermore, chains or irons shall not be used as restraints. Other instruments of restraint shall not be used except in the following circumstances:

- (a) As a precaution against escape during a transfer, provided that they shall be removed when the prisoner appears before a judicial or administrative authority;
- (b) On medical grounds by direction of the medical officer;
- (c) By order of the director, if other methods of control fail, in order to prevent a prisoner from injuring himself or others or from damaging property; in such instances the director shall at once consult the medical officer and report to the higher administrative authority.

34. The patterns and manner of use of instruments of restraint shall be decided by the central prison administration. Such instruments must not be applied for any longer time than is strictly necessary.

Information to and complaints by prisoners

35. (1) Every prisoner on admission shall be provided with written information about the regulations governing the treatment of prisoners of his category, the disciplinary requirements of the institution, the authorized methods of seeking information and making complaints, and all such other matters as are necessary to enable him to understand both rights and his obligations and to adapt himself to the life of the institution.

(2) If a prisoner is illiterate, the aforesaid information shall be conveyed to him orally.

36. (1) Every prisoner shall have the opportunity each week day of making requests or complaints to the director of the institution or the officer authorized to represent him.

(2) It shall be possible to make requests or complaints to the inspector of prisons during his inspection. The prisoner shall have the opportunity to talk to the inspector or to any other inspecting officer without the director or other members of the staff being present.

(3) Every prisoner shall be allowed to make a request or complaint, without censorship as to substance but in proper form, to the central prison administration, the judicial authority or other proper authorities through approved channels.

(4) Unless it is evidently frivolous or groundless, every request or complaint shall be promptly dealt with and replied to without undue delay.

Contact with the outside world

37. Prisoners shall be allowed under necessary supervision to communicate with their family and reputable friends at regular intervals, both by correspondence and by receiving visits.

38. (1) Prisoners who are foreign nationals shall be allowed reasonable facilities to communicate with the diplomatic and consular representatives of the State to which they belong.

(2) Prisoners who are nationals of States without diplomatic or consular representation in the country and refugees or stateless persons shall be allowed similar facilities to communicate with the diplomatic representative of the State which takes charge of their interests or any national or international authority whose task it is to protect such persons.

39. Prisoners shall be kept informed regularly of the more important items of news by the reading of newspapers, periodicals or special institutional publications, by hearing wireless transmissions, by lectures or by any similar means as authorized or controlled by the administration.

Books

40. Every institution shall have a library for the use of all categories of prisoners, adequately stocked with both recreational and instructional books, and prisoners shall be encouraged to make full use of it.

Religion

41. (1) If the institution contains a sufficient number of prisoners of the same religion, a qualified representative of that religion shall be appointed or approved. If the number of prisoners justifies it and conditions permit, the arrangement should be on a full-time basis.

(2) A qualified representative appointed or approved under paragraph (1) shall be allowed to hold regular services and to pay pastoral visits in private to prisoners of his religion at proper times.

(3) Access to a qualified representative of any religion shall not be refused to any prisoner. On the other hand, if any prisoner should object to a visit of any religious representative, his attitude shall be fully respected.

42. So far as practicable, every prisoner shall be allowed to satisfy the needs of his religious life by attending the services provided in the institution and having in his possession the books of religious observance and instruction of his denomination.

Retention of prisoners' property

43. (1) All money, valuables, clothing and other effects belonging to a prisoner which under the regulations of the institution he is not allowed to retain shall on his admission to the institution be placed in safe custody. An inventory thereof shall be signed by the prisoner. Steps shall be taken to keep them in good condition.

(2) On the release of the prisoner all such articles and money shall be returned to him except in so far as he has been authorized to spend money or send any such property out of the institution, or it has been found necessary on hygienic grounds to destroy any article of clothing. The prisoner shall sign a receipt for the articles and money returned to him.

(3) Any money or effects received for a prisoner from outside shall be treated in the same way.

(4) If a prisoner brings in any drugs or medicine, the medical officer shall decide what use shall be made of them.

Notification of death, illness, transfer, etc.

44. (1) Upon the death or serious illness of, or serious injury to a prisoner, or his removal to an institution for the treatment of mental affections, the director shall at once inform the spouse if the prisoner is married, or the nearest relative and shall in any event inform any other person previously designated by the prisoner.

(2) A prisoner shall be informed at once of the death or serious illness of any near relative. In case of the critical illness of a near relative, the prisoner should be authorized, whenever circumstances allow, to go to his bedside either under escort or alone.

(3) Every prisoner shall have the right to inform at once his family of his imprisonment or his transfer to another institution.

Removal of prisoners

45. (1) When prisoners are being removed to or from an institution, they shall be exposed to public view as little as possible, and proper safeguards shall be adopted to protect them from insult, curiosity and publicity in any form.

(2) The transport of prisoners in conveyances with inadequate ventilation or light, or in any way which would subject them to unnecessary physical hardship, shall be prohibited.

(3) The transport of prisoners shall be carried out at the expense of the administration and equal conditions shall obtain for all of them.

Institution personnel

46. (1) The prison administration shall provide for the careful selection of every grade of the personnel, since it is on their integrity, humanity, professional capacity and personal suitability for the work that the proper administration of the institutions depends.

(2) The prison administration shall constantly seek to awaken and maintain in the minds both of the personnel and of the public the convictions that this work is a social service of great importance, and to this end all appropriate means of informing the public should be used.

(3) To secure the foregoing ends, personnel shall be appointed on a full-time basis as professional prison officers and have civil service status with security of tenure subject only to good conduct, efficiency and physical fitness. Salaries shall be adequate to attract and retain suitable men and women; employment benefits and conditions of service shall be favorable in view of the exacting nature of work.

47. (1) The personnel shall possess an adequate standard of education and intelligence.

(2) Before entering on duty, the personnel shall be given a course of training in their general and specific duties and be required to pass theoretical and practical tests.

(3) After entering on duty and during their career, the personnel shall maintain and improve their knowledge and professional capacity by attending courses of in-service training to be organized at suitable intervals.

48. All members of the personnel shall at all times so conduct themselves and perform their duties as to influence the prisoners for good by their examples and to command their respect.

49. (1) So far as possible, the personnel shall include a sufficient number of specialists such as psychiatrist, psychologist, social workers, teachers and trade instructors.

(2) The services of social workers, teachers and trade instructors shall be secured on a permanent basis, without thereby excluding part-time or voluntary workers.

50. (1) The director of an institution should be adequately qualified for his task by character, administrative ability, suitable training and experience.

(2) He shall devote his entire time to his official duties and shall not be appointed on a part-time basis.

(3) He shall reside on the premises of the institution or in its immediate vicinity.

(4) When two or more institutions are under the authority of one director, he shall visit each of them at frequent intervals. A responsible resident official shall be in charge of each of these institutions.

51. (1) The director, his deputy, and the majority of the other personnel of the institution shall be able to speak the language of the greatest number of prisoners, or a language understood by the greatest number of them.

(2) Whenever necessary, the services of an interpreter shall be used.

52. (1) In institutions which are large enough to require the services of one or more full-time medical officers, at least one of them shall reside on the premises of the institution or in its immediate vicinity.

(2) In other institutions the medical officer shall visit daily and shall reside near enough to be able to attend without delay in cases of injury.

53. (1) In an institution for both men and women, the part of the institution set aside for women shall be under the authority of a responsible woman officer who shall have the custody of the keys of all that part of the institution.

(2) No male member of the staff shall enter the part of the institution set aside for women unless accompanied by a woman officer.

(3) Women prisoners shall be attended and supervised only by women officers. This does not, however, preclude male members of the staff, particularly doctors and teachers, from carrying out their professional duties in institutions or parts of institutions set aside for women.

54. (1) Officers of the institutions shall not, in their relations with the prisoners, use force except in self-defence or in cases of attempted escape, or active or passive physical resistance to an order based on law or regulations. Officers who have recourse to force must use no more than is strictly necessary and must report the incident immediately to the director of the institution.

(2) Prison officers shall be given special physical training to enable them to restrain aggressive prisoners.

(3) Except in special circumstances, staff performing duties which bring them into direct contact with prisoners should not be armed. Furthermore, staff should in no circumstances be provided with arms unless they have been trained in their use.

Inspection

55. There shall be a regular inspection of penal institutions and services by qualified and experienced inspectors appointed by a competent authority. Their task shall be in particular to ensure that these institutions are administered in accordance with existing law and regulation and with a view to bringing about the objectives of penal and correctional services.

PART II. RULES APPLICABLE TO SPECIAL CATEGORIES

A. Prisoners under sentence

Guiding principles

56. The guiding principles hereafter are intended to show the spirit in which penal institutions should aim, in accordance with the declaration made under Preliminary Observation 1 of the present text.

57. Imprisonment and other measures which result in cutting off an offender from the outside world are afflictive by the very fact of taking from the person the right of self-determination by depriving him of his liberty. Therefore the prison system shall not, except as incidental to justifiable segregation or the maintenance of discipline, aggravate the suffering inherent in such a situation.

58. The purpose and justification of a sentence of imprisonment or a similar measure deprivative of liberty is ultimately to protect society against crime. This end can only be achieved if the period of imprisonment is used to ensure, so far as possible, that upon his return to society the offender is not only willing but able to lead a law-abiding and self-supporting life.

59. To this end, the institution should utilize all the remedial educational, moral, spiritual and other forces and forms of assistance which are appropriate and available, and should seek to apply them according to the individual treatment needs of the prisoners.

60. (1) The regime of the institution should seek to minimize any differences between prison life and life at liberty which tend to lessen the responsibility of the prisoners or the respect due to their dignity as human beings.

(2) Before the completion of the sentence, it is desirable that the necessary steps be taken to ensure for the prisoner a gradual return to life in society. This aim may be achieved, depending on the case, by a pre-release regime organized in the same institution or in another appropriate institution, or by release on trial under some kind of supervision which must not be entrusted to the police but should be combined with effective social aid.

61. The treatment of prisoners should emphasize not their exclusion from the community, but their continuing part in it. Community agencies should, therefore, be enlisted wherever possible to assist the staff of the institution in the task of social rehabilitation of the prisoners. There should be in connection with every institution social workers charged with the duty of maintaining and improving all desirable relations of a prisoner with his family and with valuable social agencies. Steps should be taken to safeguard, to the maximum extent comparable with the law and the sentence, the rights relating to civil interests, social security rights and other social benefits of prisoners.

62. The medical services of the institution shall seek to detect and shall treat any physical or mental illnesses or defects which may hamper a prisoner's rehabilitation. All necessary medical, surgical and psychiatric services shall be provided to that end.

63. (1) The fulfillment of these principles requires individualization of treatment and for this purpose a flexible system of classifying prisoners in groups; it is therefore desirable that such groups should be distributed in separate institutions suitable for the treatment of each group.

(2) These institutions need not provide the same degree of security for every group. It is desirable to provide varying degrees of security according to the needs of different groups. Open institutions, by the very fact that they provide no physical security against escape but rely on the self-discipline of the inmates, provide the conditions most favorable to rehabilitation for carefully selected prisoners.

(3) It is desirable that the large number of prisoners in closed institutions should not be so large that the individualization of treatment is hindered. In some countries it is considered that the population of such institution should not exceed five hundred. In open institutions the population should be as small as possible.

(4) On the other hand, it is undesirable to maintain prisons which are so small that proper facilities cannot be provided.

64. The duty of society does not end with a prisoner's release. There should, therefore, be governmental or private agencies capable of lending the released prisoner efficient after care directed towards the lessening of prejudice against him and towards his social rehabilitation.

Treatment

65. The treatment of persons sentenced to imprisonment or a similar measure shall have as its purpose, so far as the length of the sentence permits, to establish in them the will to lead lawabiding and self-supporting lives after their release and to fit them to do so. The treatment shall be such as will encourage their self-respect and develop their sense of responsibility.

66. (1) To these ends, all appropriate means shall be used, including religious care in the countries where this is possible, education, vocational guidance and training, social casework, employment counselling, physical development and strengthening of moral character, in accordance with the individual needs of each prisoner, taking account of his social and criminal history, his physical and mental capacities and aptitudes, his personal temperament, the length of his sentence and his prospects after release.

(2) For every prisoner with a sentence of suitable length, the director shall receive, as soon as possible after his admission, full reports on all the matters referred to in the foregoing paragraph. Such reports shall always include a report by a medical officer, wherever possible qualified in psychiatry, on the physical and mental condition of the prisoner.

(3) The reports and other relevant documents shall be placed in an individual file. This file shall be kept up to date and classified in such a way that it can be consulted by the responsible personnel whenever the need arises.

Classification and individualization

67. The purpose of classification shall be:

(a) To separate from others those prisoners who, by reason of their criminal records or bad characters, are likely to exercise a bad influence.

(b) To divide the prisoners into classes in order to facilitate their treatment with a view to their social rehabilitation.

68. So far as possible separate institutions or separate sections of an institution shall be used for the treatment of the different classes of prisoners.

69. As soon as possible after admission and after a study of the personality of each prisoner with a sentence of suitable length, a program of treatment shall be prepared for him in the light of knowledge obtained about his individual needs, his capacities and dispositions.

Privileges

70. Systems of privileges appropriate for the different classes of prisoners and the different methods of treatment shall be established at every institution, in order to encourage good conduct, develop a sense of responsibility and secure the interest and cooperation of the prisoners in their treatment.

Work

71. (1) Prison labor must not be of an afflictive nature.

(2) All prisoners under sentence shall be required to work, subject to their physical and mental fitness as determined by the medical officer.

(3) Sufficient work of a useful nature shall be provided to keep prisoners actively employed for a normal working day.

(4) So far as possible the work provided shall be such as will maintain or increase the prisoners' ability to earn an honest living after release.

(5) Vocational training in useful trades shall be provided for prisoners able to profit thereby and especially for young prisoners.

(6) Within the limits compatible with proper vocational selection and with the requirements of institutional administration and discipline, the prisoners shall be able to choose the type of work they wish to perform.

72. (1) The organization and methods of work in the institutions shall resemble as closely as possible those of similar work outside institutions, so as to prepare prisoners for the conditions of normal occupational life.

(2) The interests of the prisoners and of their vocational training, however, must not be subordinated to the purpose of making a financial profit from an industry in the institution.

73. (1) Preferably institutional industries and farms should be operated directly by the administration and not by private contractors.

(2) Where prisoners are employed in work not controlled by the administration, they shall always be under the supervision of the institution's personnel. Unless the work is for other departments of the government the full normal wages for such work shall be paid to the administration by the persons to whom the labor is supplied, account being taken of the output of the prisoners.

74. (1) The precautions laid down to protect the safety and health of free workmen shall be equally observed in institutions.

(2) Provisions shall be made to indemnify prisoners against industrial injury, including occupational disease, on terms not less favorable than those extended by law to free workers.

75. (1) The maximum daily and weekly working hours of the prisoners shall be fixed by law or by administrative regulation, taking into account local rules or custom in regard to the employment of free workmen.

(2) The hours so fixed shall leave one rest day a week and sufficient time for education and other activities required as part of the treatment and rehabilitation of the prisoners.

76. (1) There shall be a system of equitable remuneration of the work of prisoners.

(2) Under the system prisoners shall be allowed to spend at least a part of their earnings on approved articles for their own use and to send a part of their earnings to their family.

(3) The system should also provide that a part of the earnings should be set aside by the administration so as to constitute a savings fund to be handed over to the prisoner on his release.

Education and recreation

77. (1) Provision shall be made for the further education of all prisoners capable of profiting thereby, including religious instruction in the countries where this is possible. The education of illiterates and young prisoners shall be compulsory and special attention shall be paid to it by the administration.

(2) So far as practicable, the education of prisoners shall be integrated with the educational system of the country so that after their release they may continue their education without difficulty.

78. Recreational and cultural activities shall be provided in all institutions for the benefit of the mental and physical health of prisoners.

Social relations and after-care

79. Special attention shall be paid to the maintenance and improvement of such relations between a prisoner and his family as are desirable in the best interests of both.

80. From the beginning of a prisoner's sentence consideration shall be given to his future after release and he shall be encouraged and assisted to maintain or establish such relations with persons or agencies outside the institution as may promote the best interests of his family and his own social rehabilitation.

81. (1) Services and agencies, governmental or otherwise, which assist released prisoners to reestablish themselves in society shall ensure, so far as is possible and necessary, that released prisoners be provided with appropriate documents and identification papers, have suitable homes and work to go to, are suitably and adequately clothed having regard to the climate and season, and have sufficient means to reach their destination and maintain themselves in the period immediately following their release.

(2) The approved representatives of such agencies shall have all necessary access to the institution and to prisoners and shall be taken into consultation as to the future of a prisoner from the beginning of his sentence.

(3) It is desirable that the activities of such agencies shall be centralized or coordinated as far as possible in order to secure the best use of their efforts.

B. Insane and mentally abnormal prisoners

82. (1) Persons who are found to be insane shall not be detained in prisons and arrangements shall be made to remove them to mental institutions as soon as possible.

(2) Prisoners who suffer from other mental diseases or abnormalities shall be observed and treated in specialized institutions under medical management.

(3) During their stay in a prison, such prisoners shall be placed under the special supervision of a medical officer.

(4) The medical or psychiatric service of the penal institutions shall provide for the psychiatric treatment of all other prisoners who are in need of such treatment.

83. It is desirable that steps should be taken, by arrangement with the appropriate agencies, to ensure if necessary the continuation of psychiatric treatment after release and the provision of social-psychiatric after-care.

C. Prisoners under arrest or awaiting trial

84. (1) Persons arrested or imprisoned by reason of a criminal charge against them, who are detained either in police custody or in prison custody (jail) but have not yet been tried and sentenced, will be referred to as "untried prisoners" hereinafter in these rules.

(2) Unconvicted prisoners are presumed to be innocent and shall be treated as such.

(3) Without prejudice to legal rules for the protection of individual liberty or prescribing the procedure to be observed in respect of untried prisoners, these prisoners shall benefit by a special regime which is described in the following rules in its essential requirements only.

85. (1) Untried prisoners shall be kept separate from convicted prisoners.

(2) Young untried prisoners shall be kept separate from adults and shall in principle be detained in separate institutions.

86. Untried prisoners shall sleep singly in separate rooms, with the reservation of different local custom in respect of the climate.

87. Within the limits compatible with the good order of the institution, untried prisoners may, if they so desire, have their food procured at their own expense from the outside, either through the administration or through their family or friends. Otherwise, the administration shall provide their food.

88. (1) An untried prisoner shall be allowed to wear his own clothing if it is clean and suitable.

(2) If he wears prison dress, it shall be different from that supplied to convicted prisoners.

89. An untried prisoner shall always be offered opportunity to work, but shall not be required to work. If he chooses to work, he shall be paid for it.

90. An untried prisoner shall be allowed to procure at his own expense or at the expense of a third party such books, newspapers, writing materials and others means of occupation as are compatible with the interests of the administration of justice and the security and good order of the institution.

91. An untried prisoner shall be allowed to be visited and treated by his own doctor or dentist if there is reasonable ground for his application and he is able to pay any expenses incurred.

92. An untried prisoner shall be allowed to inform immediately his family of his detention and shall be given all reasonable facilities for communicating with his family and friends, and for receiving visits from them, subject only to such restrictions and supervision as are necessary in the interests of the administration of justice and of the security and good order of the institution.

93. For the purpose of his defence, an untried prisoner shall be allowed to apply for free legal aid where such aid is available, and to receive visits from his legal adviser with a view to his defence and to prepare and hand to him confidential instructions. For these purposes, he shall if he so desires be supplied with writing material. Interviews between the prisoner and his legal adviser may be within sight but not within the hearing of a police or institution official.

D. Civil prisoners

94. In countries where the law permits imprisonment for debt or by order of a court under any other noncriminal process, persons so imprisoned shall not be subjected to any greater restriction or severity than is necessary to ensure safe custody and good order. Their treatment shall be not less favorable than that of untried prisoners, with the reservation, however, that they may possibly be required to work.

E. Persons arrested or detained without charge

95. Without prejudice to the provisions of article 9 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, persons arrested or imprisoned without charge shall be accorded the same protection as that accorded under part I and part II, section C. Relevant provisions of part II, section A, shall likewise be applicable where their application may be conducive to the benefit of this special group of persons in custody, provided that no measures shall be taken implying that re-education or rehabilitation is in any way appropriate to persons not convicted of any criminal offence.

Declaration on the Protection of All Persons from Being Subjected to Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment

Adopted by the General Assembly of the United Nations on 9 December 1975 (resolution 3452 (XXX))

The General Assembly,

Considering that, in accordance with the principles proclaimed in the Charter of the United Nations, recognition of the inherent dignity and of the equal and inalienable rights of all members of the human family is the foundation of freedom, justice and peace in the world,

Considering that these rights derive from the inherent dignity of the human person,

Considering also the obligation of States under the Charter, in particular Article 55, to promote universal respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms,

Having regard to article 5 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and article 7 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, both of which provide that no one may be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment,

Adopts the Declaration on the Protection of All Persons from Being Subjected to Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, the text of which is annexed to the present resolution, as a guideline for all States and other entities exercising effective power.

Annex

Declaration on the protection of all persons from being subjected to torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

Article 1

1. For the purpose of this Declaration, torture means any act by which severe pain or suffering, whether physical or mental, is intentionally inflicted by or at the instigation of a public official on a person for such purposes as obtaining from him for an act he has committed or is suspected of having committed, or intimidating him or other persons. It does not include pain or suffering arising only from, inherent in or incidental to, lawful sanctions to the extent consistent with the Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners.

2. Torture constitutes an aggravated and deliberate form of cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

Article 2

Any act of torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment is an offence to human dignity and shall be condemned as a denial of the purposes of the Charter of the United Nations and as a violation of the human rights and fundamental freedoms proclaimed in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Article 3

No state may permit or tolerate torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment. Exceptional circumstances such as a state of war or a threat of war, internal political instability or any other public emergency may not be invoked as a justification of torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

Article 4

Each State shall, in accordance with the provisions of this Declaration, take effective measures to prevent torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment from being practised within its jurisdiction.

Article 5

The training of law enforcement personnel and of other public officials who may be responsible for persons deprived of their liberty shall ensure that full account is taken of the prohibition against torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment. This prohibition shall also, where appropriate, be included in such general rules or instructions as are issued in regard to the duties and functions of anyone who may be involved in the custody or treatment of such persons.

Article 6

Each State shall keep under systematic review interrogation methods and practices as well as arrangements for the custody and treatment of persons deprived of their liberty in its territory, with a view to preventing any cases of torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

Article 7

Each State shall ensure that all acts of torture as defined in article 1 are offences under its criminal law. The same shall apply in regard to acts which constitute participation in, complicity in, incitement to or an attempt to commit torture.

Article 8

Any person who alleges that he has been subjected to torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment by or at the instigation of a public official shall have the right to complain to, and to have his case impartially examined by, the competent authorities of the State concerned.

Article 9

Wherever there is reasonable ground to believe that an act of torture as defined in article 1 has been committed, the competent authorities of the State concerned shall promptly proceed to an impartial investigation even if there has been no formal complaint.

Article 10

If an investigation under article 8 or article 9 establishes that an act of torture as defined in article 1 appears to have been committed, criminal proceedings shall be instituted against the alleged offender or offenders in accordance with national law. If an allegation of other forms of cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment is considered to be well founded, the alleged offender or offenders shall be subject to criminal, disciplinary or other appropriate proceedings.

Article 11

Where it is proved that an act of torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment has been committed by or at the instigation of a public official, the victim shall be afforded redress and compensation in accordance with national law.

Article 12

Any statement which is established to have been made as a result of torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment may not be invoked as evidence against the person concerned or against any other person in any proceedings.

Code of Conduct for Law Enforcement Officials.

The General Assembly,

Considering that the purposes proclaimed in the Charter of the United Nations include the achievement of international cooperation in promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and for fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion,

Recalling, in particular, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights¹⁰⁸ and the International Covenants of Human Rights,¹⁰⁹

Recalling also the Declaration on the Protection of All Persons from Being Subjected to Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, adopted by the General Assembly in its resolution 3452 (XXX) of 9 December 1975,

Mindful that the nature of the functions of law enforcement in the defence of public order and the manner in which those functions are exercised have a direct impact on the quality of life of individuals as well as of society as a whole,

Conscious of the important task which law enforcement officials are performing diligently and with dignity, in compliance with the principles of human rights,

Aware, nevertheless, of the potential for abuse which the exercise of such duties entails,

Recognizing that the establishment of a code of conduct for law enforcement officials is only one of several important measures for providing the citizenry served by law enforcement officials with protection of all their rights and interests,

Aware that there are additional important principles and prerequisites for the humane performance of law enforcement functions, namely:

(a) That, like all agencies of the criminal justice system, every law enforcement agency should be representative of and responsive and accountable to the community as a whole,

(b) That the effective maintenance of ethical standards among law enforcement officials depends on the existence of a well-conceived, popularly accepted and humane system of laws,

(c) That every law enforcement official is part of the criminal justice system, the aim of which is to prevent and control crime, and that the conduct of every functionary within the system has an impact on the entire system,

(d) That every law enforcement agency, in fulfillment of the first premise of every profession, should be held to the duty of disciplining itself in complete conformity with the principles and standards herein provided and that the actions of law enforcement officials should be responsive to public scrutiny, whether exercised by a review board, a ministry, a procuracy, the judiciary, an ombudsman, a citizens' committee or any combination thereof, or any other reviewing agency,

(e) That standards as such lack practical value unless their content and meaning, through education and training and through monitoring, become part of the creed of every law enforcement official,

Adopts the Code of Conduct for Law Enforcement Officials set forth in the annex to the present resolution and decides to transmit it to Governments with the recommendation that favorable consideration should be given to its use within the framework of national legislation or practice as a body of principles for observance by law enforcement officials.

106th plenary meeting
17 December 1979

ANNEX

Code of Conduct for Law Enforcement Officials

Article 1

Law enforcement officials shall at all time fulfil the duty imposed upon them by law, by serving the community and by protecting all persons against illegal acts, consistent with the high degree of responsibility required by their profession.

Commentary:

(a) The term "law enforcement officials" includes all officers of the law, whether appointed or elected, who exercise police powers, especially the powers of arrest or detention.

(b) In countries where police powers are exercised by military authorities, whether uniformed or not, or by state security forces, the definition of law enforcement officials shall be regarded as including officers of such services.

(c) Service to the community is intended to include particularly rendition of services of assistance to those members of the community who by reason of personal, economic, social or other emergencies are in need of immediate aid.

(d) This provision is intended to cover not only all violent, predatory and harmful acts, but extends to the full range of prohibitions under penal statutes. It extends to conduct by persons not capable of incurring criminal liability.

Article 2

In the performance of their duty, law enforcement officials shall respect and protect human dignity and maintain and uphold the human rights of all persons.

Commentary:

(a) The human rights in question are identified and protected by national and international law. Among the relevant international instruments are the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the Declaration on the Protection of All Persons from Being Subjected to Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, the United Nations Declaration on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid, The Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide, the Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners and the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations.

(b) National commentaries to this provision should indicate regional or national provisions identifying and protecting these rights.

Article 3

Law enforcement officials may use force only when strictly necessary and to the extent required for the performance of their duty.

Commentary:

(a) This provision emphasizes that the use of force by law enforcement officials should be exceptional; while it implies that law enforcement officials may be authorized to use force as is reasonably necessary under the circumstances for the prevention of crime or in effecting or assisting in the lawful arrest of offenders or suspected offenders, no force going beyond that may be used.

(b) National law ordinarily restricts the use of force by law enforcement officials in accordance with a principle of proportionality. It is to be understood that such national principles of proportionality are to be respected in the interpretation of this provision. In no case should this provision be interpreted to authorize the use of force which is disproportionate to the legitimate objective to be achieved.

(c) The use of firearms is considered an extreme measure. Every effort should be made to exclude the use of firearms, especially against children. In general, firearms should not be used except when a suspected offender offers armed resistance or otherwise jeopardizes the lives of others and less extreme measures are not sufficient to restrain or apprehend the suspected offender. In every instance in which a firearm is discharged, a report should be made promptly to the competent authorities.

Article 4

Matters of a confidential nature in the possession of law enforcement officials shall be kept confidential, unless the performance of duty or the needs of justice strictly require otherwise.

Commentary:

By the nature of their duties, law enforcement officials obtain information which may relate to private lives or be potentially harmful to the interests, and especially the reputation, of others. Great care should be exercised in safeguarding and using such information, which should be disclosed only in the performances of duty or to serve the needs of justice. Any disclosure of such information for other purposes is wholly improper.

Article 5

No law enforcement official may inflict, instigate or tolerate any act of torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment, nor may any law enforcement official invoke superior orders or exceptional circumstance such as a state of war or a threat of war, a threat to national security, internal political instability or any other public emergency as a justification of torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

Commentary:

(a) This prohibition derives from the Declaration on the Protection of All Persons from Being Subjected to Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, adopted by the General Assembly, according to which:

"[Such an act is] an offence to human dignity and shall be condemned as a denial of the purposes of the Charter of the United Nations and as a violation of the human rights and fundamental freedoms proclaimed in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights [and other international human rights instruments]."

(b) The Declaration defines torture as follows:

". . . torture means any act by which severe pain or suffering, whether physical or mental, is intentionally inflicted by or at the instigation of a public official on a person for such purposes as obtaining from him or a third person information or confession, punishing him for an act he has committed or is suspected of having committed, or intimidating him or other persons. It does not include pain or suffering arising only from, inherent in or incidental to, lawful sanctions to the extent consistent with the Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners."111

(c) The term "cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment" has not been defined by the General Assembly but should be interpreted so as to extend the widest possible protection against abuses, whether physical or mental.

Article 6

Law enforcement officials shall ensure the full protection of the health of persons in their custody and, in particular, shall take immediate action to secure medical attention whenever required.

Commentary:

(a) "Medical attention", which refers to services rendered by any medical personnel, including certified medical practitioners and paramedics, shall be secured when needed or requested.

(b) While the medical personnel are likely to be attached to the law enforcement operation, law enforcement officials must take into account the judgement of such personnel when they recommend providing the person in custody with appropriate treatment through, or in consultation with, medical personnel from outside the law enforcement operation.

(c) It is understood that law enforcement officials shall also secure medical attention for victims of violations of law or of accidents occurring in the course of violations of law.

Article 7

Law enforcement officials shall not commit any act of corruption. They shall also rigorously oppose and combat all such acts.

Commentary:

(a) Any act of corruption, in the same way as any other abuse of authority, is incompatible with the profession of law enforcement officials. The law must be enforced fully with respect to any law enforcement official who commits an act of corruption, as Governments cannot expect to enforce the law among their citizens if they cannot, or will not, enforce the law against their own agents and within their own agencies.

(b) While the definition of corruption must be subject to national law, it should be understood to encompass the commission or omission of an act in the performance of or in connection with one's duties, in response to gifts, promises or incentives demanded or accepted, or the wrongful receipt of these once the act has been committed or omitted.

(c) The expression "act of corruption" referred to above should be understood to encompass attempted corruption.

Article 8

Law enforcement officials shall respect the law and the present Code. They shall also, to the best of their capability, prevent and rigorously oppose any violations of them.

Law enforcement officials who have reason to believe that a violation of the present Code has occurred or is about to occur shall report the matter to their superior authorities and, where necessary, to other appropriate authorities or organs vested with reviewing or remedial power.

Commentary:

(a) This Code shall be observed whenever it has been incorporated into national legislation or practice. If legislation or practice contains stricter provisions than those of the present Code, those stricter provisions shall be observed.

(b) The article seeks to preserve the balance between the need for internal discipline of the agency on which public safety is largely dependent, on the one hand, and the need for dealing with violations of basic human rights, on the other. Law enforcement officials shall report violations within the chain of command and take other lawful action outside the chain of command only when no other remedies are available or effective. It is understood that law enforcement officials shall not suffer administrative or other penalties because they have reported that a violation of this Code has occurred or is about to occur.

(c) The term "appropriate authorities or organ vested with reviewing or remedial power" refers to any authority or organ existing under national law, whether internal to the law enforcement agency or independent thereof, with statutory, customary or other power to review grievances and complaints arising out of violations within the purview of this Code.

(d) In some countries, the mass media may be regarded as performing complaint review functions similar to those described in subparagraph (c) above. Law enforcement officials may, therefore, be justified if, as a last resort and in accordance with the laws and customs of their own countries and with the provisions of article 4 of the present Code, they bring violations to the attention of public opinion through the mass media.

(e) Law enforcement officials who comply with the provisions of this Code deserve the respect, the full support and the cooperation of the community and of the law enforcement agency in which they serve, as well as the law enforcement profession.

Recommendation Rec(2006)2 of the Committee of Ministers to member states on the European Prison Rules¹

(Adopted by the Committee of Ministers on 11 January 2006 at the 952nd meeting of the Ministers' Deputies)

The Committee of Ministers, under the terms of Article 15.b of the Statute of the Council of Europe,

Having regard to the European Convention on Human Rights and the case law of the European Court of Human Rights;

Having regard also to the work carried out by the European Committee for the Prevention of Torture and Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment and in particular the standards it has developed in its general reports;

Reiterating that no one shall be deprived of liberty save as a measure of last resort and in accordance with a procedure prescribed by law;

Stressing that the enforcement of custodial sentences and the treatment of prisoners necessitate taking account of the requirements of safety, security and discipline while also ensuring prison conditions which do not infringe human dignity and which offer meaningful occupational activities and treatment programmes to inmates, thus preparing them for their reintegration into society;

Considering it important that Council of Europe member states continue to update and observe common principles regarding their prison policy;

Considering, moreover, that the observance of such common principles will enhance international co-operation in this field;

Noting the significant social changes which have influenced important developments in the penal field in Europe in the course of the last two decades;

Endorsing once again the standards contained in the recommendations of the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe, which relate to specific aspects of penitentiary policy and practice and in particular No. R (89) 12 on education in prison, No. R (93) 6 concerning prison and criminological aspects of the control of transmissible diseases including AIDS and related health problems in prison, No. R (97) 12 on staff concerned with the implementation of sanctions and measures, No. R (98) 7 concerning the ethical and organisational aspects of health care in prison, No. R (99) 22 concerning prison overcrowding and prison population inflation, Rec(2003)22 on conditional release (parole), and Rec(2003)23 on the management by prison administrations of life sentence and other long-term prisoners;

Bearing in mind the United Nations Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners;

Considering that Recommendation No. R (87) 3 of the Committee of Ministers on the European Prison Rules needs to be substantively revised and updated in order to reflect the developments which have occurred in penal policy, sentencing practice and the overall management of prisons in Europe,

Recommends that governments of member states:

- be guided in their legislation, policies and practice by the rules contained in the appendix to this recommendation, which replaces Recommendation No. R (87) 3 of the Committee of Ministers on the European Prison Rules;

- ensure that this recommendation and the accompanying commentary to its text are translated and disseminated as widely as possible and more specifically among judicial authorities, prison staff and individual prisoners.

Appendix to Recommendation Rec(2006)2

Part I

Basic principles

1. All persons deprived of their liberty shall be treated with respect for their human rights.
2. Persons deprived of their liberty retain all rights that are not lawfully taken away by the decision sentencing them or remanding them in custody.
3. Restrictions placed on persons deprived of their liberty shall be the minimum necessary and proportionate to the legitimate objective for which they are imposed.
4. Prison conditions that infringe prisoners' human rights are not justified by lack of resources.
5. Life in prison shall approximate as closely as possible the positive aspects of life in the community.
6. All detention shall be managed so as to facilitate the reintegration into free society of persons who have been deprived of their liberty.
7. Co-operation with outside social services and as far as possible the involvement of civil society in prison life shall be encouraged.

8. Prison staff carry out an important public service and their recruitment, training and conditions of work shall enable them to maintain high standards in their care of prisoners.

9 All prisons shall be subject to regular government inspection and independent monitoring.

Scope and application

10.1 The European Prison Rules apply to persons who have been remanded in custody by a judicial authority or who have been deprived of their liberty following conviction.

10.2 In principle, persons who have been remanded in custody by a judicial authority and persons who are deprived of their liberty following conviction should only be detained in prisons, that is, in institutions reserved for detainees of these two categories.

10.3 The Rules also apply to persons:

a. who may be detained for any other reason in a prison; or

b. who have been remanded in custody by a judicial authority or deprived of their liberty following conviction and who may, for any reason, be detained elsewhere.

10.4 All persons who are detained in a prison or who are detained in the manner referred to in paragraph 10.3.b are regarded as prisoners for the purpose of these rules.

11.1 Children under the age of 18 years should not be detained in a prison for adults, but in an establishment specially designed for the purpose.

11.2 If children are nevertheless exceptionally held in such a prison there shall be special regulations that take account of their status and needs.

12.1 Persons who are suffering from mental illness and whose state of mental health is incompatible with detention in a prison should be detained in an establishment specially designed for the purpose.

12.2 If such persons are nevertheless exceptionally held in prison there shall be special regulations that take account of their status and needs.

13. These rules shall be applied impartially, without discrimination on any ground such as sex, race, colour, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, association with a national minority, property, birth or other status.

Part II

Conditions of imprisonment

Admission

14. No person shall be admitted to or held in a prison as a prisoner without a valid commitment order, in accordance with national law.

15.1 At admission the following details shall be recorded immediately concerning each prisoner:

- a.* information concerning the identity of the prisoner;
- b.* the reasons for commitment and the authority for it;
- c.* the day and hour of admission;
- d.* an inventory of the personal property of the prisoner that is to be held in safekeeping in accordance with Rule 31;
- e.* any visible injuries and complaints about prior ill-treatment; and
- f.* subject to the requirements of medical confidentiality, any information about the prisoner's health that is relevant to the physical and mental well-being of the prisoner or others.

15.2 At admission all prisoners shall be given information in accordance with Rule 30.

15.3 Immediately after admission notification of the detention of the prisoner shall be given in accordance with Rule 24.9.

16. As soon as possible after admission:

- a.* information about the health of the prisoner on admission shall be supplemented by a medical examination in accordance with Rule 42;
- b.* the appropriate level of security for the prisoner shall be determined in accordance with Rule 51;
- c.* the threat to safety that the prisoner poses shall be determined in accordance with Rule 52;
- d.* any available information about the social situation of the prisoner shall be evaluated in order to deal with the immediate personal and welfare needs of the prisoner; and
- e.* in the case of sentenced prisoners the necessary steps shall be taken to implement programmes in accordance with Part VIII of these rules.

Allocation and accommodation

17.1 Prisoners shall be allocated, as far as possible, to prisons close to their homes or places of social rehabilitation.

17.2 Allocation shall also take into account the requirements of continuing criminal investigations, safety and security and the need to provide appropriate regimes for all prisoners.

17.3 As far as possible, prisoners shall be consulted about their initial allocation and any subsequent transfer from one prison to another.

18.1 The accommodation provided for prisoners, and in particular all sleeping accommodation, shall respect human dignity and, as far as possible, privacy, and meet the requirements of health and hygiene, due regard being paid to climatic conditions and especially to floor space, cubic content of air, lighting, heating and ventilation.

18.2 In all buildings where prisoners are required to live, work or congregate:

- a.* the windows shall be large enough to enable the prisoners to read or work by natural light in normal conditions and shall allow the entrance of fresh air except where there is an adequate air conditioning system;

- b. artificial light shall satisfy recognised technical standards; and
- c. there shall be an alarm system that enables prisoners to contact the staff without delay.

18.3 Specific minimum requirements in respect of the matters referred to in paragraphs 1 and 2 shall be set in national law.

18.4 National law shall provide mechanisms for ensuring that these minimum requirements are not breached by the overcrowding of prisons.

18.5 Prisoners shall normally be accommodated during the night in individual cells except where it is preferable for them to share sleeping accommodation.

18.6 Accommodation shall only be shared if it is suitable for this purpose and shall be occupied by prisoners suitable to associate with each other.

18.7 As far as possible, prisoners shall be given a choice before being required to share sleeping accommodation.

18.8 In deciding to accommodate prisoners in particular prisons or in particular sections of a prison due account shall be taken of the need to detain:

- a. untried prisoners separately from sentenced prisoners;
- b. male prisoners separately from females; and
- c. young adult prisoners separately from older prisoners.

18.9 Exceptions can be made to the requirements for separate detention in terms of paragraph 8 in order to allow prisoners to participate jointly in organised activities, but these groups shall always be separated at night unless they consent to be detained together and the prison authorities judge that it would be in the best interest of all the prisoners concerned.

18.10 Accommodation of all prisoners shall be in conditions with the least restrictive security arrangements compatible with the risk of their escaping or harming themselves or others.

Hygiene

19.1 All parts of every prison shall be properly maintained and kept clean at all times.

19.2 When prisoners are admitted to prison the cells or other accommodation to which they are allocated shall be clean.

19.3 Prisoners shall have ready access to sanitary facilities that are hygienic and respect privacy.

19.4 Adequate facilities shall be provided so that every prisoner may have a bath or shower, at a temperature suitable to the climate, if possible daily but at least twice a week (or more frequently if necessary) in the interest of general hygiene.

19.5 Prisoners shall keep their persons, clothing and sleeping accommodation clean and tidy.

19.6 The prison authorities shall provide them with the means for doing so including toiletries and general cleaning implements and materials.

19.7 Special provision shall be made for the sanitary needs of women.

Clothing and bedding

20.1 Prisoners who do not have adequate clothing of their own shall be provided with clothing suitable for the climate.

20.2 Such clothing shall not be degrading or humiliating.

20.3 All clothing shall be maintained in good condition and replaced when necessary.

20.4 Prisoners who obtain permission to go outside prison shall not be required to wear clothing that identifies them as prisoners.

21. Every prisoner shall be provided with a separate bed and separate and appropriate bedding, which shall be kept in good order and changed often enough to ensure its cleanliness.

Nutrition

22.1 Prisoners shall be provided with a nutritious diet that takes into account their age, health, physical condition, religion, culture and the nature of their work.

22.2 The requirements of a nutritious diet, including its minimum energy and protein content, shall be prescribed in national law.

22.3 Food shall be prepared and served hygienically.

22.4 There shall be three meals a day with reasonable intervals between them.

22.5 Clean drinking water shall be available to prisoners at all times.

22.6 The medical practitioner or a qualified nurse shall order a change in diet for a particular prisoner when it is needed on medical grounds.

Legal advice

23.1 All prisoners are entitled to legal advice, and the prison authorities shall provide them with reasonable facilities for gaining access to such advice.

23.2 Prisoners may consult on any legal matter with a legal adviser of their own choice and at their own expense.

23.3 Where there is a recognised scheme of free legal aid the authorities shall bring it to the attention of all prisoners.

23.4 Consultations and other communications including correspondence about legal matters between prisoners and their legal advisers shall be confidential.

23.5 A judicial authority may in exceptional circumstances authorise restrictions on such confidentiality to prevent serious crime or major breaches of prison safety and security.

23.6 Prisoners shall have access to, or be allowed to keep in their possession, documents relating to their legal proceedings.

Contact with the outside world

24.1 Prisoners shall be allowed to communicate as often as possible by letter, telephone or other forms of communication with their families, other persons and representatives of outside organisations and to receive visits from these persons.

24.2 Communication and visits may be subject to restrictions and monitoring necessary for the requirements of continuing criminal investigations, maintenance of good order, safety and security, prevention of criminal offences and protection of victims of crime, but such restrictions, including specific restrictions ordered by a judicial authority, shall nevertheless allow an acceptable minimum level of contact.

24.3 National law shall specify national and international bodies and officials with whom communication by prisoners shall not be restricted.

24.4 The arrangements for visits shall be such as to allow prisoners to maintain and develop family relationships in as normal a manner as possible.

24.5 Prison authorities shall assist prisoners in maintaining adequate contact with the outside world and provide them with the appropriate welfare support to do so.

24.6 Any information received of the death or serious illness of any near relative shall be promptly communicated to the prisoner.

24.7 Whenever circumstances allow, the prisoner should be authorised to leave prison either under escort or alone in order to visit a sick relative, attend a funeral or for other humanitarian reasons.

24.8 Prisoners shall be allowed to inform their families immediately of their imprisonment or transfer to another institution and of any serious illness or injury they may suffer.

24.9 Upon the admission of a prisoner to prison, the death or serious illness of, or serious injury to a prisoner, or the transfer of a prisoner to a hospital, the authorities shall, unless the prisoner has requested them not to do so, immediately inform the spouse or partner of the prisoner, or, if the prisoner is single, the nearest relative and any other person previously designated by the prisoner.

24.10 Prisoners shall be allowed to keep themselves informed regularly of public affairs by subscribing to and reading newspapers, periodicals and other publications and by listening to radio or television transmissions unless there is a specific prohibition for a specified period by a judicial authority in an individual case.

24.11 Prison authorities shall ensure that prisoners are able to participate in elections, referenda and in other aspects of public life, in so far as their right to do so is not restricted by national law.

24.12 Prisoners shall be allowed to communicate with the media unless there are compelling reasons to forbid this for the maintenance of safety and security, in the public interest or in order to protect the integrity of victims, other prisoners or staff.

Prison regime

25.1 The regime provided for all prisoners shall offer a balanced programme of activities.

25.2 This regime shall allow all prisoners to spend as many hours a day outside their cells as are necessary for an adequate level of human and social interaction.

25.3 This regime shall also provide for the welfare needs of prisoners.

25.4 Particular attention shall be paid to the needs of prisoners who have experienced physical, mental or sexual abuse.

Work

26.1 Prison work shall be approached as a positive element of the prison regime and shall never be used as a punishment.

26.2 Prison authorities shall strive to provide sufficient work of a useful nature.

26.3 As far as possible, the work provided shall be such as will maintain or increase prisoners' ability to earn a living after release.

26.4 In conformity with Rule 13 there shall be no discrimination on the basis of gender in the type of work provided.

26.5 Work that encompasses vocational training shall be provided for prisoners able to benefit from it and especially for young prisoners.

26.6 Prisoners may choose the type of employment in which they wish to participate, within the limits of what is available, proper vocational selection and the requirements of good order and discipline.

26.7 The organisation and methods of work in the institutions shall resemble as closely as possible those of similar work in the community in order to prepare prisoners for the conditions of normal occupational life.

26.8 Although the pursuit of financial profit from industries in the institutions can be valuable in raising standards and improving the quality and relevance of training, the interests of the prisoners should not be subordinated to that purpose.

26.9 Work for prisoners shall be provided by the prison authorities, either on their own or in co-operation with private contractors, inside or outside prison.

26.10 In all instances there shall be equitable remuneration of the work of prisoners.

26.11 Prisoners shall be allowed to spend at least a part of their earnings on approved articles for their own use and to allocate a part of their earnings to their families.

26.12 Prisoners may be encouraged to save part of their earnings, which shall be handed over to them on release or be used for other approved purposes.

26.13 Health and safety precautions for prisoners shall protect them adequately and shall not be less rigorous than those that apply to workers outside.

26.14 Provision shall be made to indemnify prisoners against industrial injury, including occupational disease, on terms not less favourable than those extended by national law to workers outside.

26.15 The maximum daily and weekly working hours of the prisoners shall be fixed in conformity with local rules or custom regulating the employment of free workers.

26.16 Prisoners shall have at least one rest day a week and sufficient time for education and other activities.

26.17 As far as possible, prisoners who work shall be included in national social security systems.

Exercise and recreation

27.1 Every prisoner shall be provided with the opportunity of at least one hour of exercise every day in the open air, if the weather permits.

27.2 When the weather is inclement alternative arrangements shall be made to allow prisoners to exercise.

27.3 Properly organised activities to promote physical fitness and provide for adequate exercise and recreational opportunities shall form an integral part of prison regimes.

27.4 Prison authorities shall facilitate such activities by providing appropriate installations and equipment.

27.5 Prison authorities shall make arrangements to organise special activities for those prisoners who need them.

27.6 Recreational opportunities, which include sport, games, cultural activities, hobbies and other leisure pursuits, shall be provided and, as far as possible, prisoners shall be allowed to organise them.

27.7 Prisoners shall be allowed to associate with each other during exercise and in order to take part in recreational activities.

Education

28.1 Every prison shall seek to provide all prisoners with access to educational programmes which are as comprehensive as possible and which meet their individual needs while taking into account their aspirations.

28.2 Priority shall be given to prisoners with literacy and numeracy needs and those who lack basic or vocational education.

28.3 Particular attention shall be paid to the education of young prisoners and those with special needs.

28.4 Education shall have no less a status than work within the prison regime and prisoners shall not be disadvantaged financially or otherwise by taking part in education.

28.5 Every institution shall have a library for the use of all prisoners, adequately stocked with a wide range of both recreational and educational resources, books and other media.

28.6 Wherever possible, the prison library should be organised in co-operation with community library services.

28.7 As far as practicable, the education of prisoners shall:

- a. be integrated with the educational and vocational training system of the country so that after their release they may continue their education and vocational training without difficulty; and
- b. take place under the auspices of external educational institutions.

Freedom of thought, conscience and religion

29.1 Prisoners' freedom of thought, conscience and religion shall be respected.

29.2 The prison regime shall be organised so far as is practicable to allow prisoners to practise their religion and follow their beliefs, to attend services or meetings led by approved representatives of such religion or beliefs, to receive visits in private from such representatives of their religion or beliefs and to have in their possession books or literature relating to their religion or beliefs.

29.3 Prisoners may not be compelled to practise a religion or belief, to attend religious services or meetings, to take part in religious practices or to accept a visit from a representative of any religion or belief.

Information

30.1 At admission, and as often as necessary afterwards all prisoners shall be informed in writing and orally in a language they understand of the regulations governing prison discipline and of their rights and duties in prison.

30.2 Prisoners shall be allowed to keep in their possession a written version of the information they are given.

30.3 Prisoners shall be informed about any legal proceedings in which they are involved and, if they are sentenced, the time to be served and the possibilities of early release.

Prisoners' property

31.1 All property that prisoners are not allowed to retain under the rules governing the prison shall be placed in safe custody on admission to the institution.

31.2 A prisoner whose property is taken into safe custody shall sign an inventory of the property.

31.3 Steps shall be taken to keep such property in good condition.

31.4 If it has been found necessary to destroy any such property, this shall be recorded and the prisoner informed.

31.5 Prisoners shall, subject to the requirements of hygiene, good order and security, be entitled to purchase or otherwise obtain goods, including food and drink for their personal use at prices that are not abnormally higher than those in free society.

31.6 If a prisoner brings in any medicines, the medical practitioner shall decide what use shall be made of them.

31.7 Where prisoners are allowed to keep possession of their property the prison authorities shall take steps to assist in its safekeeping.

Transfer of prisoners

32.1 While prisoners are being moved to or from a prison, or to other places such as court or hospital, they shall be exposed to public view as little as possible and proper safeguards shall be adopted to ensure their anonymity.

32.2 The transport of prisoners in conveyances with inadequate ventilation or light, or which would subject them in any way to unnecessary physical hardship or indignity, shall be prohibited.

32.3 The transport of prisoners shall be carried out at the expense and under the direction of the public authorities.

Release of prisoners

33.1 All prisoners shall be released without delay when their commitment orders expire, or when a court or other authority orders their release.

33.2 The date and time of the release shall be recorded.

33.3 All prisoners shall have the benefit of arrangements designed to assist them in returning to free society after release.

33.4 On the release of a prisoner all articles and money belonging to the prisoner that were taken into safe custody shall be returned except in so far as there have been authorised withdrawals of money or the authorised sending of any such property out of the institution, or it has been found necessary to destroy any article on hygienic grounds.

33.5 The prisoner shall sign a receipt for the property returned.

33.6 When release is pre-arranged, the prisoner shall be offered a medical examination in accordance with Rule 42 as close as possible to the time of release.

33.7 Steps must be taken to ensure that on release prisoners are provided, as necessary, with appropriate documents and identification papers, and assisted in finding suitable accommodation and work.

33.8 Released prisoners shall also be provided with immediate means of subsistence, be suitably and adequately clothed with regard to the climate and season, and have sufficient means to reach their destination.

Women

34.1 In addition to the specific provisions in these rules dealing with women prisoners, the authorities shall pay particular attention to the requirements of women such as their physical, vocational, social and psychological needs when making decisions that affect any aspect of their detention.

34.2 Particular efforts shall be made to give access to special services for women prisoners who have needs as referred to in Rule 25.4.

34.3 Prisoners shall be allowed to give birth outside prison, but where a child is born in prison the authorities shall provide all necessary support and facilities.

Detained children

35.1 Where exceptionally children under the age of 18 years are detained in a prison for adults the authorities shall ensure that, in addition to the services available to all prisoners, prisoners who are children have access to the social, psychological and educational services, religious care and recreational programmes or equivalents to them that are available to children in the community.

35.2 Every prisoner who is a child and is subject to compulsory education shall have access to such education.

35.3 Additional assistance shall be provided to children who are released from prison.

35.4 Where children are detained in a prison they shall be kept in a part of the prison that is separate from that used by adults unless it is considered that this is against the best interests of the child.

Infants

36.1 Infants may stay in prison with a parent only when it is in the best interest of the infants concerned. They shall not be treated as prisoners.

36.2 Where such infants are allowed to stay in prison with a parent special provision shall be made for a nursery, staffed by qualified persons, where the infants shall be placed when the parent is involved in activities where the infant cannot be present.

36.3 Special accommodation shall be set aside to protect the welfare of such infants.

Foreign nationals

37.1 Prisoners who are foreign nationals shall be informed, without delay, of their right to request contact and be allowed reasonable facilities to communicate with the diplomatic or consular representative of their state.

37.2 Prisoners who are nationals of states without diplomatic or consular representation in the country, and refugees or stateless persons, shall be allowed similar facilities to communicate with the diplomatic representative of the state which takes charge of their interests or the national or international authority whose task it is to serve the interests of such persons.

37.3 In the interests of foreign nationals in prison who may have special needs, prison authorities shall co-operate fully with diplomatic or consular officials representing prisoners.

37.4 Specific information about legal assistance shall be provided to prisoners who are foreign nationals.

37.5 Prisoners who are foreign nationals shall be informed of the possibility of requesting that the execution of their sentence be transferred to another country.

Ethnic or linguistic minorities

38.1 Special arrangements shall be made to meet the needs of prisoners who belong to ethnic or linguistic minorities.

38.2 As far as practicable the cultural practices of different groups shall be allowed to continue in prison.

38.3 Linguistic needs shall be met by using competent interpreters and by providing written material in the range of languages used in a particular prison.

Part III

Health

Health care

39. Prison authorities shall safeguard the health of all prisoners in their care.

Organisation of prison health care

40.1 Medical services in prison shall be organised in close relation with the general health administration of the community or nation.

40.2 Health policy in prisons shall be integrated into, and compatible with, national health policy.

40.3 Prisoners shall have access to the health services available in the country without discrimination on the grounds of their legal situation.

40.4 Medical services in prison shall seek to detect and treat physical or mental illnesses or defects from which prisoners may suffer.

40.5 All necessary medical, surgical and psychiatric services including those available in the community shall be provided to the prisoner for that purpose.

Medical and health care personnel

41.1 Every prison shall have the services of at least one qualified general medical practitioner.

41.2 Arrangements shall be made to ensure at all times that a qualified medical practitioner is available without delay in cases of urgency.

41.3 Where prisons do not have a full-time medical practitioner, a part-time medical practitioner shall visit regularly.

41.4 Every prison shall have personnel suitably trained in health care.

41.5 The services of qualified dentists and opticians shall be available to every prisoner.

Duties of the medical practitioner

42.1 The medical practitioner or a qualified nurse reporting to such a medical practitioner shall see every prisoner as soon as possible after admission, and shall examine them unless this is obviously unnecessary.

42.2 The medical practitioner or a qualified nurse reporting to such a medical practitioner shall examine the prisoner if requested at release, and shall otherwise examine prisoners whenever necessary.

42.3 When examining a prisoner the medical practitioner or a qualified nurse reporting to such a medical practitioner shall pay particular attention to:

- a. observing the normal rules of medical confidentiality;
- b. diagnosing physical or mental illness and taking all measures necessary for its treatment and for the continuation of existing medical treatment;
- c. recording and reporting to the relevant authorities any sign or indication that prisoners may have been treated violently;
- d. dealing with withdrawal symptoms resulting from use of drugs, medication or alcohol;
- e. identifying any psychological or other stress brought on by the fact of deprivation of liberty;
- f. isolating prisoners suspected of infectious or contagious conditions for the period of infection and providing them with proper treatment;

g. ensuring that prisoners carrying the HIV virus are not isolated for that reason alone;

h. noting physical or mental defects that might impede resettlement after release;

i. determining the fitness of each prisoner to work and to exercise; and

j. making arrangements with community agencies for the continuation of any necessary medical and psychiatric treatment after release, if prisoners give their consent to such arrangements.

43.1 The medical practitioner shall have the care of the physical and mental health of the prisoners and shall see, under the conditions and with a frequency consistent with health care standards in the community, all sick prisoners, all who report illness or injury and any prisoner to whom attention is specially directed.

43.2 The medical practitioner or a qualified nurse reporting to such a medical practitioner shall pay particular attention to the health of prisoners held under conditions of solitary confinement, shall visit such prisoners daily, and shall provide them with prompt medical assistance and treatment at the request of such prisoners or the prison staff.

43.3 The medical practitioner shall report to the director whenever it is considered that a prisoner's physical or mental health is being put seriously at risk by continued imprisonment or by any condition of imprisonment, including conditions of solitary confinement.

44. The medical practitioner or other competent authority shall regularly inspect, collect information by other means if appropriate, and advise the director upon:

a. the quantity, quality, preparation and serving of food and water;

b. the hygiene and cleanliness of the institution and prisoners;

c. the sanitation, heating, lighting and ventilation of the institution; and

d. the suitability and cleanliness of the prisoners' clothing and bedding.

45.1 The director shall consider the reports and advice that the medical practitioner or other competent authority submits according to Rules 43 and 44 and, when in agreement with the recommendations made, shall take immediate steps to implement them.

45.2 If the recommendations of the medical practitioner are not within the director's competence or if the director does not agree with them, the director shall immediately submit the advice of the medical practitioner and a personal report to higher authority.

Health care provision

46.1 Sick prisoners who require specialist treatment shall be transferred to specialised institutions or to civil hospitals, when such treatment is not available in prison.

46.2 Where a prison service has its own hospital facilities, they shall be adequately staffed and equipped to provide the prisoners referred to them with appropriate care and treatment.

Mental health

47.1 Specialised prisons or sections under medical control shall be available for the observation and treatment of prisoners suffering from mental disorder or abnormality who do not necessarily fall under the provisions of Rule 12.

47.2 The prison medical service shall provide for the psychiatric treatment of all prisoners who are in need of such treatment and pay special attention to suicide prevention.

Other matters

48.1 Prisoners shall not be subjected to any experiments without their consent.

48.2 Experiments involving prisoners that may result in physical injury, mental distress or other damage to health shall be prohibited.

Part IV

Good order

General approach to good order

49. Good order in prison shall be maintained by taking into account the requirements of security, safety and discipline, while also providing prisoners with living conditions which respect human dignity and offering them a full programme of activities in accordance with Rule 25.

50. Subject to the needs of good order, safety and security, prisoners shall be allowed to discuss matters relating to the general conditions of imprisonment and shall be encouraged to communicate with the prison authorities about these matters.

Security

51.1 The security measures applied to individual prisoners shall be the minimum necessary to achieve their secure custody.

51.2 The security which is provided by physical barriers and other technical means shall be complemented by the dynamic security provided by an alert staff who know the prisoners who are under their control.

51.3 As soon as possible after admission, prisoners shall be assessed to determine:

- a. the risk that they would present to the community if they were to escape;
- b. the risk that they will try to escape either on their own or with external assistance.

51.4 Each prisoner shall then be held in security conditions appropriate to these levels of risk.

51.5 The level of security necessary shall be reviewed at regular intervals throughout a person's imprisonment.

Safety

52.1 As soon as possible after admission, prisoners shall be assessed to determine whether they pose a safety risk to other prisoners, prison staff or other persons working in or visiting prison or whether they are likely to harm themselves.

52.2 Procedures shall be in place to ensure the safety of prisoners, prison staff and all visitors and to reduce to a minimum the risk of violence and other events that might threaten safety.

52.3 Every possible effort shall be made to allow all prisoners to take a full part in daily activities in safety.

52.4 It shall be possible for prisoners to contact staff at all times, including during the night.

52.5 National health and safety laws shall be observed in prisons.

Special high security or safety measures

53.1 Special high security or safety measures shall only be applied in exceptional circumstances.

53.2 There shall be clear procedures to be followed when such measures are to be applied to any prisoner.

53.3 The nature of any such measures, their duration and the grounds on which they may be applied shall be determined by national law.

53.4 The application of the measures in each case shall be approved by the competent authority for a specified period of time.

53.5 Any decision to extend the approved period of time shall be subject to a new approval by the competent authority.

53.6 Such measures shall be applied to individuals and not to groups of prisoners.

53.7 Any prisoner subjected to such measures shall have a right of complaint in the terms set out in Rule 70.

Searching and controls

54.1 There shall be detailed procedures which staff have to follow when searching:

- a. all places where prisoners live, work and congregate;
- b. prisoners;
- c. visitors and their possessions; and
- d. staff.

54.2 The situations in which such searches are necessary and their nature shall be defined by national law.

54.3 Staff shall be trained to carry out these searches in such a way as to detect and prevent any attempt to escape or to hide contraband, while at the same time respecting the dignity of those being searched and their personal possessions.

54.4 Persons being searched shall not be humiliated by the searching process.

54.5 Persons shall only be searched by staff of the same gender.

54.6 There shall be no internal physical searches of prisoners' bodies by prison staff.

54.7 An intimate examination related to a search may be conducted by a medical practitioner only.

54.8 Prisoners shall be present when their personal property is being searched unless investigating techniques or the potential threat to staff prohibit this.

54.9 The obligation to protect security and safety shall be balanced against the privacy of visitors.

54.10 Procedures for controlling professional visitors, such as legal representatives, social workers and medical practitioners, etc., shall be the subject of consultation with their professional bodies to ensure a balance between security and safety, and the right of confidential professional access.

Criminal acts

55. An alleged criminal act committed in a prison shall be investigated in the same way as it would be in free society and shall be dealt with in accordance with national law.

Discipline and punishment

56.1 Disciplinary procedures shall be mechanisms of last resort.

56.2 Whenever possible, prison authorities shall use mechanisms of restoration and mediation to resolve disputes with and among prisoners.

57.1 Only conduct likely to constitute a threat to good order, safety or security may be defined as a disciplinary offence.

57.2 National law shall determine:

- a. the acts or omissions by prisoners that constitute disciplinary offences;
- b. the procedures to be followed at disciplinary hearings;
- c. the types and duration of punishment that may be imposed;
- d. the authority competent to impose such punishment; and
- e. access to and the authority of the appellate process.

58. Any allegation of infringement of the disciplinary rules by a prisoner shall be reported promptly to the competent authority, which shall investigate it without undue delay.

59. Prisoners charged with disciplinary offences shall:

- a. be informed promptly, in a language which they understand and in detail, of the nature of the accusations against them;
- b. have adequate time and facilities for the preparation of their defence;
- c. be allowed to defend themselves in person or through legal assistance when the interests of justice so require;
- d. be allowed to request the attendance of witnesses and to examine them or to have them examined on their behalf; and
- e. have the free assistance of an interpreter if they cannot understand or speak the language used at the hearing.

60.1 Any punishment imposed after conviction of a disciplinary offence shall be in accordance with national law.

60.2 The severity of any punishment shall be proportionate to the offence.

60.3 Collective punishments and corporal punishment, punishment by placing in a dark cell, and all other forms of inhuman or degrading punishment shall be prohibited.

60.4 Punishment shall not include a total prohibition on family contact.

60.5 Solitary confinement shall be imposed as a punishment only in exceptional cases and for a specified period of time, which shall be as short as possible.

60.6 Instruments of restraint shall never be applied as a punishment.

61. A prisoner who is found guilty of a disciplinary offence shall be able to appeal to a competent and independent higher authority.

62. No prisoner shall be employed or given authority in the prison in any disciplinary capacity.

Double jeopardy

A prisoner shall never be punished twice for the same act or conduct.

Use of force

64.1 Prison staff shall not use force against prisoners except in self-defence or in cases of attempted escape or active or passive physical resistance to a lawful order and always as a last resort.

64.2 The amount of force used shall be the minimum necessary and shall be imposed for the shortest necessary time.

65. There shall be detailed procedures about the use of force including stipulations about:

- a. the various types of force that may be used;
- b. the circumstances in which each type of force may be used;
- c. the members of staff who are entitled to use different types of force;

- d. the level of authority required before any force is used; and
- e. the reports that must be completed once force has been used.

66. Staff who deal directly with prisoners shall be trained in techniques that enable the minimal use of force in the restraint of prisoners who are aggressive.

67.1 Staff of other law enforcement agencies shall only be involved in dealing with prisoners inside prisons in exceptional circumstances.

67.2 There shall be a formal agreement between the prison authorities and any such other law enforcement agencies unless the relationship is already regulated by domestic law.

67.3 Such agreement shall stipulate:

- a. the circumstances in which members of other law enforcement agencies may enter a prison to deal with any conflict;
- b. the extent of the authority which such other law enforcement agencies shall have while they are in the prison and their relationship with the director of the prison;
- c. the various types of force that members of such agencies may use;
- d. the circumstances in which each type of force may be used;
- e. the level of authority required before any force is used; and
- f. the reports that must be completed once force has been used.

Instruments of restraint

68.1 The use of chains and irons shall be prohibited.

68.2 Handcuffs, restraint jackets and other body restraints shall not be used except:

- a. if necessary, as a precaution against escape during a transfer, provided that they shall be removed when the prisoner appears before a judicial or administrative authority unless that authority decides otherwise; or
- b. by order of the director, if other methods of control fail, in order to protect a prisoner from self-injury, injury to others or to prevent serious damage to property, provided that in such instances the director shall immediately inform the medical practitioner and report to the higher prison authority.

68.3 Instruments of restraint shall not be applied for any longer time than is strictly necessary.

68.4 The manner of use of instruments of restraint shall be specified in national law.

Weapons

69.1 Except in an operational emergency, prison staff shall not carry lethal weapons within the prison perimeter.

69.2 The open carrying of other weapons, including batons, by persons in contact with prisoners shall be prohibited within the prison perimeter unless they are required for safety and security in order to deal with a particular incident.

69.3 Staff shall not be provided with weapons unless they have been trained in their use.

Requests and complaints

70.1 Prisoners, individually or as a group, shall have ample opportunity to make requests or complaints to the director of the prison or to any other competent authority.

70.2 If mediation seems appropriate this should be tried first.

70.3 If a request is denied or a complaint is rejected, reasons shall be provided to the prisoner and the prisoner shall have the right to appeal to an independent authority.

70.4 Prisoners shall not be punished because of having made a request or lodged a complaint.

70.5 The competent authority shall take into account any written complaints from relatives of a prisoner when they have reason to believe that a prisoner's rights have been violated.

70.6 No complaint by a legal representative or organisation concerned with the welfare of prisoners may be brought on behalf of a prisoner if the prisoner concerned does not consent to it being brought.

70.7 Prisoners are entitled to seek legal advice about complaints and appeals procedures and to legal assistance when the interests of justice require.

Part V

Management and staff

Prison work as a public service

71. Prisons shall be the responsibility of public authorities separate from military, police or criminal investigation services.

72.1 Prisons shall be managed within an ethical context which recognises the obligation to treat all prisoners with humanity and with respect for the inherent dignity of the human person.

72.2 Staff shall manifest a clear sense of purpose of the prison system. Management shall provide leadership on how the purpose shall best be achieved.

72.3 The duties of staff go beyond those required of mere guards and shall take account of the need to facilitate the reintegration of prisoners into society after their sentence has been completed through a programme of positive care and assistance.

72.4 Staff shall operate to high professional and personal standards.

73. Prison authorities shall give high priority to observance of the rules concerning staff.

74. Particular attention shall be paid to the management of the relationship between first line prison staff and the prisoners under their care.

75. Staff shall at all times conduct themselves and perform their duties in such a manner as to influence the prisoners by good example and to command their respect.

Selection of prison staff

76. Staff shall be carefully selected, properly trained, both at the outset and on a continuing basis, paid as professional workers and have a status that civil society can respect.

77. When selecting new staff the prison authorities shall place great emphasis on the need for integrity, humanity, professional capacity and personal suitability for the complex work that they will be required to do.

78. Professional prison staff shall normally be appointed on a permanent basis and have public service status with security of employment, subject only to good conduct, efficiency, good physical and mental health and an adequate standard of education.

79.1 Salaries shall be adequate to attract and retain suitable staff.

79.2 Benefits and conditions of employment shall reflect the exacting nature of the work as part of a law enforcement agency.

80. Whenever it is necessary to employ part-time staff, these criteria shall apply to them as far as that is appropriate.

Training of prison staff

81.1 Before entering into duty, staff shall be given a course of training in their general and specific duties and be required to pass theoretical and practical tests.

81.2 Management shall ensure that, throughout their career, all staff maintain and improve their knowledge and professional capacity by attending courses of in-service training and development to be organised at suitable intervals.

81.3 Staff who are to work with specific groups of prisoners, such as foreign nationals, women, juveniles or mentally ill prisoners, etc., shall be given specific training for their specialised work.

81.4 The training of all staff shall include instruction in the international and regional human rights instruments and standards, especially the European Convention on Human Rights and the European Convention for the Prevention of Torture and Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, as well as in the application of the European Prison Rules.

Prison management

82. Personnel shall be selected and appointed on an equal basis, without discrimination on any ground such as sex, race, colour, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, association with a national minority, property, birth or other status.

83. The prison authorities shall introduce systems of organisation and management that:

- a. ensure that prisons are managed to consistently high standards that are in line with international and regional human rights instruments; and
- b. facilitate good communication between prisons and between the different categories of staff in individual prisons and proper co-ordination of all the departments, both inside and outside the prison, that provide services for prisoners, in particular with respect to the care and reintegration of prisoners.

84.1 Every prison shall have a director, who shall be adequately qualified for that post by character, administrative ability, suitable professional training and experience.

84.2 Directors shall be appointed on a full-time basis and shall devote their whole time to their official duties.

84.3 The prison authorities shall ensure that every prison is at all times in the full charge of the director, the deputy director or other authorised official.

84.4 If a director is responsible for more than one prison there shall always be in addition an official in charge of each of them.

85. Men and women shall be represented in a balanced manner on the prison staff.

86. There shall be arrangements for management to consult with staff as a body on general matters and, especially, on matters to do with their conditions of employment.

87.1 Arrangements shall be in place to encourage the best possible communication among management, other staff, outside agencies and prisoners.

87.2 The director, management and the majority of the other staff of the prison shall be able to speak the language of the greatest number of prisoners, or a language understood by the majority of them.

88. Where privately managed prisons exist, all the European Prison Rules shall apply.

Specialist staff

89.1 As far as possible, the staff shall include a sufficient number of specialists such as psychiatrists, psychologists, social and welfare workers, teachers and vocational, physical education and sports instructors.

89.2 Wherever possible, suitable part-time and voluntary workers shall be encouraged to contribute to activities with prisoners.

Public awareness

90.1 The prison authorities shall continually inform the public about the purpose of the prison system and the work carried out by prison staff in order to encourage better public understanding of the role of the prison in society.

90.2 The prison authorities should encourage members of the public to volunteer to provide services in prison where appropriate.

Research and evaluation

91. The prison authorities shall support a programme of research and evaluation about the purpose of the prison, its role in a democratic society and the extent to which it is fulfilling its purpose.

Part VI

Inspection and monitoring

Governmental inspection

92. Prisons shall be inspected regularly by a governmental agency in order to assess whether they are administered in accordance with the requirements of national and international law, and the provisions of these rules.

Independent monitoring

93.1 The conditions of detention and the treatment of prisoners shall be monitored by an independent body or bodies whose findings shall be made public.

93.2 Such independent monitoring body or bodies shall be encouraged to co-operate with those international agencies that are legally entitled to visit prisons.

Part VII

Untried prisoners

Status as untried prisoners

94.1 For the purposes of these rules, untried prisoners are prisoners who have been remanded in custody by a judicial authority prior to trial, conviction or sentence.

94.2 A state may elect to regard prisoners who have been convicted and sentenced as untried prisoners if their appeals have not been disposed of finally.

Approach regarding untried prisoners

95.1 The regime for untried prisoners may not be influenced by the possibility that they may be convicted of a criminal offence in the future.

95.2 The rules in this part provide additional safeguards for untried prisoners.

95.3 In dealing with untried prisoners prison authorities shall be guided by the rules that apply to all prisoners and allow untried prisoners to participate in various activities for which these rules provide.

Accommodation

96. As far as possible untried prisoners shall be given the option of accommodation in single cells, unless they may benefit from sharing accommodation with other untried prisoners or unless a court has made a specific order on how a specific untried prisoner should be accommodated.

Clothing

97.1 Untried prisoners shall be allowed to wear their own clothing if it is suitable for wearing in prison.

97.2 Untried prisoners who do not have suitable clothing of their own shall be provided with clothing that shall not be the same as any uniforms that may be worn by sentenced prisoners.

Legal advice

98.1 Untried prisoners shall be informed explicitly of their right to legal advice.

98.2 All necessary facilities shall be provided to assist untried prisoners to prepare their defence and to meet with their legal representatives.

Contact with the outside world

99. Unless there is a specific prohibition for a specified period by a judicial authority in an individual case, untried prisoners:

- a. shall receive visits and be allowed to communicate with family and other persons in the same way as convicted prisoners;
- b. may receive additional visits and have additional access to other forms of communication; and
- c. shall have access to books, newspapers and other news media.

Work

100.1 Untried prisoners shall be offered the opportunity to work but shall not be required to work.

100.2 If untried prisoners elect to work, all the provisions of Rule 26 shall apply to them, including those relating to remuneration.

Access to the regime for sentenced prisoners

101. If an untried prisoner requests to be allowed to follow the regime for sentenced prisoners, the prison authorities shall as far as possible accede to this request.

Part VIII

Objective of the regime for sentenced prisoners

102.1 In addition to the rules that apply to all prisoners, the regime for sentenced prisoners shall be designed to enable them to lead a responsible and crime-free life.

102.2 Imprisonment is by the deprivation of liberty a punishment in itself and therefore the regime for sentenced prisoners shall not aggravate the suffering inherent in imprisonment.

Implementation of the regime for sentenced prisoners

103.1 The regime for sentenced prisoners shall commence as soon as someone has been admitted to prison with the status of a sentenced prisoner, unless it has commenced before.

103.2 As soon as possible after such admission, reports shall be drawn up for sentenced prisoners about their personal situations, the proposed sentence plans for each of them and the strategy for preparation for their release.

103.3 Sentenced prisoners shall be encouraged to participate in drawing up their individual sentence plans.

103.4 Such plans shall as far as is practicable include:

- a. work;
- b. education;
- c. other activities; and
- d. preparation for release.

103.5 Social work, medical and psychological care may also be included in the regimes for sentenced prisoners.

103.6 There shall be a system of prison leave as an integral part of the overall regime for sentenced prisoners.

103.7 Prisoners who consent to do so may be involved in a programme of restorative justice and in making reparation for their offences.

103.8 Particular attention shall be paid to providing appropriate sentence plans and regimes for life sentenced and other long-term prisoners.

Organisational aspects of imprisoning sentenced prisoners

104.1 As far as possible, and subject to the requirements of Rule 17, separate prisons or separate sections of a prison shall be used to facilitate the management of different regimes for specific categories of prisoners.

104.2 There shall be procedures for establishing and regularly reviewing individual sentence plans for prisoners after the consideration of appropriate reports, full consultations among the relevant staff and with the prisoners concerned who shall be involved as far as is practicable.

104.3 Such reports shall always include reports by the staff in direct charge of the prisoner concerned.

Work by sentenced prisoners

105.1 A systematic programme of work shall seek to contribute to meeting the objective of the regime for sentenced prisoners.

105.2 Sentenced prisoners who have not reached the normal retirement age may be required to work, subject to their physical and mental fitness as determined by the medical practitioner.

105.3 If sentenced prisoners are required to work, the conditions of such work shall conform to the standards and controls which apply in the outside community.

105.4 When sentenced prisoners take part in education or other programmes during working hours as part of their planned regime they shall be remunerated as if they had been working.

105.5 In the case of sentenced prisoners part of their remuneration or savings from this may be used for reparative purposes if ordered by a court or if the prisoner concerned consents.

Education of sentenced prisoners

106.1 A systematic programme of education, including skills training, with the objective of improving prisoners' overall level of education as well as their prospects of leading a responsible and crime-free life, shall be a key part of regimes for sentenced prisoners.

106.2 All sentenced prisoners shall be encouraged to take part in educational and training programmes.

106.3 Educational programmes for sentenced prisoners shall be tailored to the projected length of their stay in prison.

Release of sentenced prisoners

107.1 Sentenced prisoners shall be assisted in good time prior to release by procedures and special programmes enabling them to make the transition from life in prison to a law-abiding life in the community.

107.2 In the case of those prisoners with longer sentences in particular, steps shall be taken to ensure a gradual return to life in free society.

107.3 This aim may be achieved by a pre-release programme in prison or by partial or conditional release under supervision combined with effective social support.

107.4 Prison authorities shall work closely with services and agencies that supervise and assist released prisoners to enable all sentenced prisoners to re-establish themselves in the community, in particular with regard to family life and employment.

107.5 Representatives of such social services or agencies shall be afforded all necessary access to the prison and to prisoners to allow them to assist with preparations for release and the planning of after-care programmes.

Part IX

Updating the Rules

108. The European Prison Rules shall be updated regularly.

Note ¹ When this recommendation was adopted, and in application of Article 10.2c of the Rules of Procedure for the meetings of the Ministers' Deputies, the Representative of Denmark reserved the right to comply or not with Rule 43, paragraph 2, of the appendix to the recommendation because it is of the opinion that the requirement that prisoners held under solitary confinement be visited by medical staff on a daily basis raises serious ethical concerns regarding the possible role of such staff in effectively pronouncing prisoners fit for further solitary confinement.

Convention (III) relative to the Treatment of Prisoners of War. Geneva, 12 August 1949.

Preamble

The undersigned Plenipotentiaries of the Governments represented at the Diplomatic Conference held at Geneva from April 21 to August 12, 1949, for the purpose of revising the Convention concluded at Geneva on July 27, 1929, relative to the Treatment of Prisoners of War, have agreed as follows:

Part I. General Provisions

Art 1. The High Contracting Parties undertake to respect and to ensure respect for the present Convention in all circumstances.

Art 2. In addition to the provisions which shall be implemented in peace time, the present Convention shall apply to all cases of declared war or of any other armed conflict which may arise between two or more of the High Contracting Parties, even if the state of war is not recognized by one of them.

The Convention shall also apply to all cases of partial or total occupation of the territory of a High Contracting Party, even if the said occupation meets with no armed resistance.

Although one of the Powers in conflict may not be a party to the present Convention, the Powers who are parties thereto shall remain bound by it in their mutual relations. They shall furthermore be bound by the Convention in relation to the said Power, if the latter accepts and applies the provisions thereof.

Art 3. In the case of armed conflict not of an international character occurring in the territory of one of the High Contracting Parties, each Party to the conflict shall be bound to apply, as a minimum, the following provisions:

(1) Persons taking no active part in the hostilities, including members of armed forces who have laid down their arms and those placed hors de combat by sickness, wounds, detention, or any other cause, shall in all circumstances be treated humanely, without any adverse distinction founded on race, colour, religion or faith, sex, birth or wealth, or any other similar criteria. To this end the following acts are and shall remain prohibited at any time and in any place whatsoever with respect to the above-mentioned persons:

(a) violence to life and person, in particular murder of all kinds, mutilation, cruel treatment and torture;

(b) taking of hostages;

(c) outrages upon personal dignity, in particular, humiliating and degrading treatment;

(d) the passing of sentences and the carrying out of executions without previous judgment pronounced by a regularly constituted court affording all the judicial guarantees which are recognized as indispensable by civilized peoples.

(2) The wounded and sick shall be collected and cared for.

An impartial humanitarian body, such as the International Committee of the Red Cross, may offer its services to the Parties to the conflict.

The Parties to the conflict should further endeavour to bring into force, by means of special agreements, all or part of the other provisions of the present Convention.

The application of the preceding provisions shall not affect the legal status of the Parties to the conflict.

Art 4. A. Prisoners of war, in the sense of the present Convention, are persons belonging to one of the following categories, who have fallen into the power of the enemy:

(1) Members of the armed forces of a Party to the conflict, as well as members of militias or volunteer corps forming part of such armed forces.

(2) Members of other militias and members of other volunteer corps, including those of organized resistance movements, belonging to a Party to the conflict and operating in or outside their own territory, even if this territory is occupied, provided that such militias or volunteer corps, including such organized resistance movements, fulfil the following conditions: [

(a) that of being commanded by a person responsible for his subordinates;

(b) that of having a fixed distinctive sign recognizable at a distance;

(c) that of carrying arms openly;

(d) that of conducting their operations in accordance with the laws and customs of war.

(3) Members of regular armed forces who profess allegiance to a government or an authority not recognized by the Detaining Power.

(4) Persons who accompany the armed forces without actually being members thereof, such as civilian members of military aircraft crews, war correspondents, supply contractors, members of labour units or of services responsible for the welfare of the armed forces, provided that they have received authorization, from the armed forces which they accompany, who shall provide them for that purpose with an identity card similar to the annexed model.

(5) Members of crews, including masters, pilots and apprentices, of the merchant marine and the crews of civil aircraft of the Parties to the conflict, who do not benefit by more favourable treatment under any other provisions of international law.

(6) Inhabitants of a non-occupied territory, who on the approach of the enemy spontaneously take up arms to resist the invading forces, without having had time to form themselves into regular armed units, provided they carry arms openly and respect the laws and customs of war.

B. The following shall likewise be treated as prisoners of war under the present Convention:

(1) Persons belonging, or having belonged, to the armed forces of the occupied country, if the occupying Power considers it necessary by reason of such allegiance to intern them, even though it has originally liberated them while hostilities were going on outside the territory it occupies, in particular where such persons have made an unsuccessful attempt to rejoin the armed forces to which they belong and which are engaged in combat, or where they fail to comply with a summons made to them with a view to internment.

(2) The persons belonging to one of the categories enumerated in the present Article, who have been received by neutral or non-belligerent Powers on their territory and whom these Powers are required to intern under international law, without prejudice to any more favourable treatment which these Powers may choose to give and with the exception of Articles 8, 10, 15, 30, fifth paragraph, 58-67, 92, 126 and, where diplomatic relations exist between the Parties to the conflict and the neutral or non-belligerent Power concerned, those Articles concerning the Protecting Power. Where such diplomatic relations exist, the Parties to a conflict on whom these persons depend shall be allowed to perform towards them the functions of a Protecting Power as provided in the present Convention, without prejudice to the functions which these Parties normally exercise in conformity with diplomatic and consular usage and treaties.

C. This Article shall in no way affect the status of medical personnel and chaplains as provided for in Article 33 of the present Convention.

Art 5. The present Convention shall apply to the persons referred to in Article 4 from the time they fall into the power of the enemy and until their final release and repatriation.

Should any doubt arise as to whether persons, having committed a belligerent act and having fallen into the hands of the enemy, belong to any of the categories enumerated in Article 4, such persons shall enjoy the protection of the present Convention until such time as their status has been determined by a competent tribunal.

Art 6. In addition to the agreements expressly provided for in Articles 10, 23, 28, 33, 60, 65, 66, 67, 72, 73, 75, 109, 110, 118, 119, 122 and 132, the High Contracting Parties may conclude other special agreements for all matters concerning which they may deem it suitable to make separate provision. No special agreement shall adversely affect the situation of prisoners of war, as defined by the present Convention, nor restrict the rights which it confers upon them.

Prisoners of war shall continue to have the benefit of such agreements as long as the Convention is applicable to them, except where express provisions to the contrary are contained in the aforesaid or in subsequent agreements, or where more favourable measures have been taken with regard to them by one or other of the Parties to the conflict.

Art 7. Prisoners of war may in no circumstances renounce in part or in entirety the rights secured to them by the present Convention, and by the special agreements referred to in the foregoing Article, if such there be.

Art 8. The present Convention shall be applied with the cooperation and under the scrutiny of the Protecting Powers whose duty it is to safeguard the interests of the Parties to the conflict. For this purpose, the Protecting Powers may appoint, apart from their diplomatic or consular staff, delegates from amongst their own nationals or the nationals of other neutral Powers. The said delegates shall be subject to the approval of the Power with which they are to carry out their duties.

The Parties to the conflict shall facilitate to the greatest extent possible the task of the representatives or delegates of the Protecting Powers.

The representatives or delegates of the Protecting Powers shall not in any case exceed their mission under the present Convention. They shall, in particular, take account of the imperative necessities of security of the State wherein they carry out their duties.

Art 9. The provisions of the present Convention constitute no obstacle to the humanitarian activities which the International Committee of the Red Cross or any other impartial humanitarian organization may, subject to the consent of the Parties to the conflict concerned, undertake for the protection of prisoners of war and for their relief.

Art 10. The High Contracting Parties may at any time agree to entrust to an organization which offers all guarantees of impartiality and efficacy the duties incumbent on the Protecting Powers by virtue of the present Convention.

When prisoners of war do not benefit or cease to benefit, no matter for what reason, by the activities of a Protecting Power or of an organization provided for in the first paragraph above, the Detaining Power shall request a neutral State, or such an organization, to undertake the functions performed under the present Convention by a Protecting Power designated by the Parties to a conflict.

If protection cannot be arranged accordingly, the Detaining Power shall request or shall accept, subject to the provisions of this Article, the offer of the services of a humanitarian organization, such as the International Committee of the Red Cross to assume the humanitarian functions performed by Protecting Powers under the present Convention.

Any neutral Power or any organization invited by the Power concerned or offering itself for these purposes, shall be required to act with a sense of responsibility towards the Party to the conflict on which persons protected by the present Convention depend, and shall be required to furnish sufficient assurances that it is in a position to undertake the appropriate functions and to discharge them impartially.

No derogation from the preceding provisions shall be made by special agreements between Powers one of which is restricted, even temporarily, in its freedom to negotiate with the other Power or its allies by reason of military events, more particularly where the whole, or a substantial part, of the territory of the said Power is occupied.

Whenever in the present Convention mention is made of a Protecting Power, such mention applies to substitute organizations in the sense of the present Article.

Art 11. In cases where they deem it advisable in the interest of protected persons, particularly in cases of disagreement between the Parties to the conflict as to the application or interpretation of the provisions of the present Convention, the Protecting Powers shall lend their good offices with a view to settling the disagreement.

For this purpose, each of the Protecting Powers may, either at the invitation of one Party or on its own initiative, propose to the Parties to the conflict a meeting of their representatives, and in particular of the authorities responsible for prisoners of war, possibly on neutral territory suitably chosen. The Parties to the conflict shall be bound to give effect to the proposals made to them for this purpose. The Protecting Powers may, if necessary, propose for approval by the Parties to the conflict a person belonging to a neutral Power, or delegated by the International Committee of the Red Cross, who shall be invited to take part in such a meeting.

Part II. General Protection of Prisoners of War

Art 12. Prisoners of war are in the hands of the enemy Power, but not of the individuals or military units who have captured them. Irrespective of the individual responsibilities that may exist, the Detaining Power is responsible for the treatment given them.

Prisoners of war may only be transferred by the Detaining Power to a Power which is a party to the Convention and after the Detaining Power has satisfied itself of the willingness and ability of such transferee Power to apply the Convention. When prisoners of war are transferred under such circumstances, responsibility for the application of the Convention rests on the Power accepting them while they are in its custody.

Nevertheless, if that Power fails to carry out the provisions of the Convention in any important respect, the Power by whom the prisoners of war were transferred shall, upon being notified by the Protecting Power, take effective measures to correct the situation or shall request the return of the prisoners of war. Such requests must be complied with.

Art 13. Prisoners of war must at all times be humanely treated. Any unlawful act or omission by the Detaining Power causing death or seriously endangering the health of a prisoner of war in its custody is prohibited, and will be regarded as a serious breach of the present Convention. In particular, no prisoner of war may be subjected to physical mutilation or to medical or scientific experiments of any kind which are not justified by the medical, dental or hospital treatment of the prisoner concerned and carried out in his interest.

Likewise, prisoners of war must at all times be protected, particularly against acts of violence or intimidation and against insults and public curiosity.

Measures of reprisal against prisoners of war are prohibited.

Art 14. Prisoners of war are entitled in all circumstances to respect for their persons and their honour.

Women shall be treated with all the regard due to their sex and shall in all cases benefit by treatment as favourable as that granted to men.

Prisoners of war shall retain the full civil capacity which they enjoyed at the time of their capture. The Detaining Power may not restrict the exercise, either within or without its own territory, of the rights such capacity confers except in so far as the captivity requires.

Art 15. The Power detaining prisoners of war shall be bound to provide free of charge for their maintenance and for the medical attention required by their state of health.

Art 16. Taking into consideration the provisions of the present Convention relating to rank and sex, and subject to any privileged treatment which may be accorded to them by reason of their state of health, age or professional qualifications, all prisoners of war shall be treated alike by the Detaining Power, without any adverse distinction based on race, nationality, religious belief or political opinions, or any other distinction founded on similar criteria.

Part III. Captivity

Section 1. Beginning of Captivity

Art 17. Every prisoner of war, when questioned on the subject, is bound to give only his surname, first names and rank, date of birth, and army, regimental, personal or serial number, or failing this, equivalent information.

If he wilfully infringes this rule, he may render himself liable to a restriction of the privileges accorded to his rank or status.

Each Party to a conflict is required to furnish the persons under its jurisdiction who are liable to become prisoners of war, with an identity card showing the owner's surname, first names, rank, army, regimental, personal or serial number or equivalent information, and date of birth. The identity card may, furthermore, bear the signature or the fingerprints, or both, of the owner, and may bear, as well, any other information the Party to the conflict may wish to add concerning persons belonging to its armed forces. As far as possible the card shall measure 6.5 x 10 cm. and shall be issued in duplicate. The identity card shall be shown by the prisoner of war upon demand, but may in no case be taken away from him.

No physical or mental torture, nor any other form of coercion, may be inflicted on prisoners of war to secure from them information of any kind whatever. Prisoners of war who refuse to answer may not be threatened, insulted, or exposed to unpleasant or disadvantageous treatment of any kind.

Prisoners of war who, owing to their physical or mental condition, are unable to state their identity, shall be handed over to the medical service. The identity of such prisoners shall be established by all possible means, subject to the provisions of the preceding paragraph.

The questioning of prisoners of war shall be carried out in a language which they understand.

Art 18. All effects and articles of personal use, except arms, horses, military equipment and military documents, shall remain in the possession of prisoners of war, likewise their metal helmets and gas masks and like articles issued for personal protection. Effects and articles used for their clothing or feeding shall likewise remain in their possession, even if such effects and articles belong to their regulation military equipment.

At no time should prisoners of war be without identity documents. The Detaining Power shall supply such documents to prisoners of war who possess none.

Badges of rank and nationality, decorations and articles having above all a personal or sentimental value may not be taken from prisoners of war.

Sums of money carried by prisoners of war may not be taken away from them except by order of an officer, and after the amount and particulars of the owner have been recorded in a special register and an itemized receipt has been given, legibly inscribed with the name, rank and unit of the person issuing the said receipt. Sums in the currency of the Detaining Power, or which are changed into such currency at the prisoner's request, shall be placed to the credit of the prisoner's account as provided in Article 64.

The Detaining Power may withdraw articles of value from prisoners of war only for reasons of security; when such articles are withdrawn, the procedure laid down for sums of money impounded shall apply.

Such objects, likewise sums taken away in any currency other than that of the Detaining Power and the conversion of which has not been asked for by the owners, shall be kept in the custody of the Detaining Power and shall be returned in their initial shape to prisoners of war at the end of their captivity.

Art 19. Prisoners of war shall be evacuated, as soon as possible after their capture, to camps situated in an area far enough from the combat zone for them to be out of danger.

Only those prisoners of war who, owing to wounds or sickness, would run greater risks by being evacuated than by remaining where they are, may be temporarily kept back in a danger zone.

Prisoners of war shall not be unnecessarily exposed to danger while awaiting evacuation from a fighting zone.

Art 20. The evacuation of prisoners of war shall always be effected humanely and in conditions similar to those for the forces of the Detaining Power in their changes of station.

The Detaining Power shall supply prisoners of war who are being evacuated with sufficient food and potable water, and with the necessary clothing and medical attention. The Detaining Power shall take all suitable precautions to ensure their safety during evacuation, and shall establish as soon as possible a list of the prisoners of war who are evacuated.

If prisoners of war must, during evacuation, pass through transit camps, their stay in such camps shall be as brief as possible.

Section II. Internment of Prisoners of War

Chapter I. General Observations

Art 21. The Detaining Power may subject prisoners of war to internment. It may impose on them the obligation of not leaving, beyond certain limits, the camp where they are interned, or if the said camp is fenced in, of not going outside its perimeter. Subject to the provisions of the present Convention relative to penal and disciplinary sanctions, prisoners of war may not be held in close confinement except where necessary to safeguard their health and then only during the continuation of the circumstances which make such confinement necessary.

Prisoners of war may be partially or wholly released on parole or promise, in so far as is allowed by the laws of the Power on which they depend. Such measures shall be taken particularly in cases where this may contribute to the improvement of their state of health. No prisoner of war shall be compelled to accept liberty on parole or promise.

Upon the outbreak of hostilities, each Party to the conflict shall notify the adverse Party of the laws and regulations allowing or forbidding its own nationals to accept liberty on parole or promise. Prisoners of war who are paroled or who have given their promise in conformity with the laws and regulations so notified, are bound on their personal honour scrupulously to fulfil, both towards the Power on which they depend and towards the Power which has captured them, the engagements of their paroles or promises. In such cases, the Power on which they depend is bound neither to require nor to accept from them any service incompatible with the parole or promise given.

Art 22. Prisoners of war may be interned only in premises located on land and affording every guarantee of hygiene and healthfulness. Except in particular cases which are justified by the interest of the prisoners themselves, they shall not be interned in penitentiaries.

Prisoners of war interned in unhealthy areas, or where the climate is injurious for them, shall be removed as soon as possible to a more favourable climate.

The Detaining Power shall assemble prisoners of war in camps or camp compounds according to their nationality, language and customs, provided that such prisoners shall not be separated from prisoners of war belonging to the armed forces with which they were serving at the time of their capture, except with their consent.

Art 23. No prisoner of war may at any time be sent to, or detained in areas where he may be exposed to the fire of the combat zone, nor may his presence be used to render certain points or areas immune from military operations.

Prisoners of war shall have shelters against air bombardment and other hazards of war, to the same extent as the local civilian population. With the exception of those engaged in the protection of their quarters against the aforesaid hazards, they may enter such shelters as soon as possible after the giving of the alarm. Any other protective measure taken in favour of the population shall also apply to them.

Detaining Powers shall give the Powers concerned, through the intermediary of the Protecting Powers, all useful information regarding the geographical location of prisoner of war camps.

Whenever military considerations permit, prisoner of war camps shall be indicated in the day-time by the letters PW or PG, placed so as to be clearly visible from the air. The Powers concerned may, however, agree upon any other system of marking. Only prisoner of war camps shall be marked as such.

Art 24. Transit or screening camps of a permanent kind shall be fitted out under conditions similar to those described in the present Section, and the prisoners therein shall have the same treatment as in other camps.

Chapter II. Quarters, Food and Clothing of Prisoners of War

Art 25. Prisoners of war shall be quartered under conditions as favourable as those for the forces of the Detaining Power who are billeted in the same area. The said conditions shall make allowance for the habits and customs of the prisoners and shall in no case be prejudicial to their health.

The foregoing provisions shall apply in particular to the dormitories of prisoners of war as regards both total surface and minimum cubic space, and the general installations, bedding and blankets.

The premises provided for the use of prisoners of war individually or collectively, shall be entirely protected from dampness and adequately heated and lighted, in particular between dusk and lights out. All precautions must be taken against the danger of fire.

In any camps in which women prisoners of war, as well as men, are accommodated, separate dormitories shall be provided for them.

Art 26. The basic daily food rations shall be sufficient in quantity, quality and variety to keep prisoners of war in good health and to prevent loss of weight or the development of nutritional deficiencies. Account shall also be taken of the habitual diet of the prisoners.

The Detaining Power shall supply prisoners of war who work with such additional rations as are necessary for the labour on which they are employed.

Sufficient drinking water shall be supplied to prisoners of war. The use of tobacco shall be permitted.

Prisoners of war shall, as far as possible, be associated with the preparation of their meals; they may be employed for that purpose in the kitchens. Furthermore, they shall be given the means of preparing, themselves, the additional food in their possession.

Adequate premises shall be provided for messing.

Collective disciplinary measures affecting food are prohibited.

Art 27. Clothing, underwear and footwear shall be supplied to prisoners of war in sufficient quantities by the Detaining Power, which shall make allowance for the climate of the region where the prisoners are detained. Uniforms of enemy armed forces captured by the Detaining Power should, if suitable for the climate, be made available to clothe prisoners of war.

The regular replacement and repair of the above articles shall be assured by the Detaining Power. In addition, prisoners of war who work shall receive appropriate clothing, wherever the nature of the work demands.

Art 28. Canteens shall be installed in all camps, where prisoners of war may procure foodstuffs, soap and tobacco and ordinary articles in daily use. The tariff shall never be in excess of local market prices.

The profits made by camp canteens shall be used for the benefit of the prisoners; a special fund shall be created for this purpose. The prisoners' representative shall have the right to collaborate in the management of the canteen and of this fund.

When a camp is closed down, the credit balance of the special fund shall be handed to an international welfare organization, to be employed for the benefit of prisoners of war of the same nationality as those who have contributed to the fund. In case of a general repatriation, such profits shall be kept by the Detaining Power, subject to any agreement to the contrary between the Powers concerned.

Chapter III. Hygiene and Medical Attention

Art 29. The Detaining Power shall be bound to take all sanitary measures necessary to ensure the cleanliness and healthfulness of camps and to prevent epidemics.

Prisoners of war shall have for their use, day and night, conveniences which conform to the rules of hygiene and are maintained in a constant state of cleanliness. In any camps in which women prisoners of war are accommodated, separate conveniences shall be provided for them.

Also, apart from the baths and showers with which the camps shall be furnished prisoners of war shall be provided with sufficient water and soap for their personal toilet and for washing their personal laundry; the necessary installations, facilities and time shall be granted them for that purpose.

Art 30. Every camp shall have an adequate infirmary where prisoners of war may have the attention they require, as well as appropriate diet. Isolation wards shall, if necessary, be set aside for cases of contagious or mental disease.

Prisoners of war suffering from serious disease, or whose condition necessitates special treatment, a surgical operation or hospital care, must be admitted to any military or civilian medical unit where such treatment can be given, even if their repatriation is contemplated in the near future. Special facilities shall be afforded for the care to be given to the disabled, in particular to the blind, and for their rehabilitation, pending repatriation.

Prisoners of war shall have the attention, preferably, of medical personnel of the Power on which they depend and, if possible, of their nationality.

Prisoners of war may not be prevented from presenting themselves to the medical authorities for examination. The detaining authorities shall, upon request, issue to every prisoner who has undergone treatment, an official certificate indicating the nature of his illness or injury, and the duration and kind of treatment received. A duplicate of this certificate shall be forwarded to the Central Prisoners of War Agency.

The costs of treatment, including those of any apparatus necessary for the maintenance of prisoners of war in good health, particularly dentures and other artificial appliances, and spectacles, shall be borne by the Detaining Power.

Art 31. Medical inspections of prisoners of war shall be held at least once a month. They shall include the checking and the recording of the weight of each prisoner of war.

Their purpose shall be, in particular, to supervise the general state of health, nutrition and cleanliness of prisoners and to detect contagious diseases, especially tuberculosis, malaria and venereal disease. For this purpose the most efficient methods available shall be employed, e.g.

periodic mass miniature radiography for the early detection of tuberculosis.

Art 32. Prisoners of war who, though not attached to the medical service of their armed forces, are physicians, surgeons, dentists, nurses or medical orderlies, may be required by the Detaining Power to exercise their medical functions in the interests of prisoners of war dependent on the same Power. In that case they shall continue to be prisoners of war, but shall receive the same treatment as corresponding medical personnel retained by the Detaining Power. They shall be exempted from any other work under Article 49.

Chapter IV. Medical Personnel and Chaplains Retained to Assist Prisoners of War

Art 33. Members of the medical personnel and chaplains while retained by the Detaining Power with a view to assisting prisoners of war, shall not be considered as prisoners of war. They shall, however, receive as a minimum the benefits and protection of the present Convention, and shall also be granted all facilities necessary to provide for the medical care of, and religious ministrations to prisoners of war.

They shall continue to exercise their medical and spiritual functions for the benefit of prisoners of war, preferably those belonging to the armed forces upon which they depend, within the scope of the military laws and regulations of the Detaining Power and under the control of its competent services, in accordance with their professional etiquette. They shall also benefit by the following facilities in the exercise of their medical or spiritual functions:

(a) They shall be authorized to visit periodically prisoners of war situated in working detachments or in hospitals outside the camp. For this purpose, the Detaining Power shall place at their disposal the necessary means of transport.

(b) The senior medical officer in each camp shall be responsible to the camp military authorities for everything connected with the activities of retained medical personnel. For this purpose, Parties to the conflict shall agree at the outbreak of hostilities on the subject of the corresponding ranks of the medical personnel, including that of societies mentioned in Article 26 of the Geneva Convention for the Amelioration of the Condition of the Wounded and Sick in Armed Forces in the Field of August 12, 1949. This senior medical officer, as well as chaplains, shall have the right to deal with the competent authorities of the camp on all questions relating to their duties. Such authorities shall afford them all necessary facilities for correspondence relating to these questions.

(c) Although they shall be subject to the internal discipline of the camp in which they are retained, such personnel may not be compelled to carry out any work other than that concerned with their medical or religious duties.

During hostilities, the Parties to the conflict shall agree concerning the possible relief of retained personnel and shall settle the procedure to be followed.

None of the preceding provisions shall relieve the Detaining Power of its obligations with regard to prisoners of war from the medical or spiritual point of view.

Chapter V. Religious, Intellectual and Physical Activities

Art 34. Prisoners of war shall enjoy complete latitude in the exercise of their religious duties, including attendance at the service of their faith, on condition that they comply with the disciplinary routine prescribed by the military authorities.

Adequate premises shall be provided where religious services may be held.

Art 35. Chaplains who fall into the hands of the enemy Power and who remain or are retained with a view to assisting prisoners of war, shall be allowed to minister to them and to exercise freely their ministry amongst prisoners of war of the same religion, in accordance with their religious conscience. They shall be allocated among the various camps and labour detachments containing prisoners of war belonging to the same forces, speaking the same language or practising the same religion. They shall enjoy the necessary facilities, including the means of transport provided for in Article 33, for visiting the prisoners of war outside their camp. They shall be free to correspond, subject to censorship, on matters concerning their religious duties with the ecclesiastical authorities in the country of detention and with international religious organizations. Letters and cards which they may send for this purpose shall be in addition to the quota provided for in Article 71.

Art 36. Prisoners of war who are ministers of religion, without having officiated as chaplains to their own forces, shall be at liberty, whatever their denomination, to minister freely to the members of their community. For this purpose, they shall receive the same treatment as the chaplains retained by the Detaining Power. They shall not be obliged to do any other work.

Art 37. When prisoners of war have not the assistance of a retained chaplain or of a prisoner of war minister of their faith, a minister belonging to the prisoners' or a similar denomination, or in his absence a qualified layman, if such a course is feasible from a confessional point of view, shall be appointed, at the request of the prisoners concerned, to fill this office. This appointment, subject to the approval of the Detaining Power, shall take place with the agreement of the community of prisoners concerned and, wherever necessary, with the approval of the local religious authorities of the same faith. The person thus appointed shall comply with all regulations established by the Detaining Power in the interests of discipline and military security.

Art 38. While respecting the individual preferences of every prisoner, the Detaining Power shall encourage the practice of intellectual, educational, and recreational pursuits, sports and games amongst prisoners, and shall take the measures necessary to ensure the exercise thereof by providing them with adequate premises and necessary equipment.

Prisoners shall have opportunities for taking physical exercise, including sports and games, and for being out of doors. Sufficient open spaces shall be provided for this purpose in all camps.

Chapter VI. Discipline

Art 39. Every prisoner of war camp shall be put under the immediate authority of a responsible commissioned officer belonging to the regular armed forces of the Detaining Power. Such officer shall have in his possession a copy of the present Convention; he shall ensure that its provisions are known to the camp staff and the guard and shall be responsible, under the direction of his government, for its application.

Prisoners of war, with the exception of officers, must salute and show to all officers of the Detaining Power the external marks of respect provided for by the regulations applying in their own forces.

Officer prisoners of war are bound to salute only officers of a higher rank of the Detaining Power; they must, however, salute the camp commander regardless of his rank.

Art 40. The wearing of badges of rank and nationality, as well as of decorations, shall be permitted.

Art 41. In every camp the text of the present Convention and its Annexes and the contents of any special agreement provided for in Article 6, shall be posted, in the prisoners' own language, in places where all may read them. Copies shall be supplied, on request, to the prisoners who cannot have access to the copy which has been posted.

Regulations, orders, notices and publications of every kind relating to the conduct of prisoners of war shall be issued to them in a language which they understand. Such regulations, orders and publications shall be posted in the manner described above and copies shall be handed to the prisoners' representative. Every order and command addressed to prisoners of war individually must likewise be given in a language which they understand.

Art 42. The use of weapons against prisoners of war, especially against those who are escaping or attempting to escape, shall constitute an extreme measure, which shall always be preceded by warnings appropriate to the circumstances.

Chapter VII. Rank of Prisoners of War

Art 43. Upon the outbreak of hostilities, the Parties to the conflict shall communicate to one another the titles and ranks of all the persons mentioned in Article 4 of the present Convention, in order to ensure equality of treatment between prisoners of equivalent rank. Titles and ranks which are subsequently created shall form the subject of similar communications.

The Detaining Power shall recognize promotions in rank which have been accorded to prisoners of war and which have been duly notified by the Power on which these prisoners depend.

Art 44. Officers and prisoners of equivalent status shall be treated with the regard due to their rank and age.

In order to ensure service in officers' camps, other ranks of the same armed forces who, as far as possible, speak the same language, shall be assigned in sufficient numbers, account being taken of the rank of officers and prisoners of equivalent status. Such orderlies shall not be required to perform any other work.

Supervision of the mess by the officers themselves shall be facilitated in every way.

Art 45. Prisoners of war other than officers and prisoners of equivalent status shall be treated with the regard due to their rank and age.

Supervision of the mess by the prisoners themselves shall be facilitated in every way.

Chapter VIII. Transfer of Prisoners of War after their Arrival in Camp

Art 46. The Detaining Power, when deciding upon the transfer of prisoners of war, shall take into account the interests of the prisoners themselves, more especially so as not to increase the difficulty of their repatriation.

The transfer of prisoners of war shall always be effected humanely and in conditions not less favourable than those under which the forces of the Detaining Power are transferred. Account shall always be taken of the climatic conditions to which the prisoners of war are accustomed and the conditions of transfer shall in no case be prejudicial to their health.

The Detaining Power shall supply prisoners of war during transfer with sufficient food and drinking water to keep them in good health, likewise with the necessary clothing, shelter and medical attention. The Detaining Power shall take adequate precautions especially in case of transport by sea or by air, to ensure their safety during transfer, and shall draw up a complete list of all transferred prisoners before their departure.

Art 47. Sick or wounded prisoners of war shall not be transferred as long as their recovery may be endangered by the journey, unless their safety imperatively demands it.

If the combat zone draws closer to a camp, the prisoners of war in the said camp shall not be transferred unless their transfer can be carried out in adequate conditions of safety, or unless they are exposed to greater risks by remaining on the spot than by being transferred.

Art 48. In the event of transfer, prisoners of war shall be officially advised of their departure and of their new postal address. Such notifications shall be given in time for them to pack their luggage and inform their next of kin.

They shall be allowed to take with them their personal effects, and the correspondence and parcels which have arrived for them. The weight of such baggage may be limited, if the conditions of transfer so require, to what each prisoner can reasonably carry, which shall in no case be more than twenty-five kilograms per head.

Mail and parcels addressed to their former camp shall be forwarded to them without delay. The camp commander shall take, in agreement with the prisoners' representative, any measures needed to ensure the transport of the prisoners' community property and of the luggage they are unable to take with them in consequence of restrictions imposed by virtue of the second paragraph of this Article.

The costs of transfers shall be borne by the Detaining Power.

Section III. Labour of Prisoners of War

Art 49. The Detaining Power may utilize the labour of prisoners of war who are physically fit, taking into account their age, sex, rank and physical aptitude, and with a view particularly to maintaining them in a good state of physical and mental health.

Non-commissioned officers who are prisoners of war shall only be required to do supervisory work. Those not so required may ask for other suitable work which shall, so far as possible, be found for them.

If officers or persons of equivalent status ask for suitable work, it shall be found for them, so far as possible, but they may in no circumstances be compelled to work.

Art 50. Besides work connected with camp administration, installation or maintenance, prisoners of war may be compelled to do only such work as is included in the following classes:

- (a) agriculture;
- (b) industries connected with the production or the extraction of raw materials, and manufacturing industries, with the exception of metallurgical, machinery and chemical industries; public works and building operations which have no military character or purpose;
- (c) transport and handling of stores which are not military in character or purpose;
- (d) commercial business, and arts and crafts;
- (e) domestic service;
- (f) public utility services having no military character or purpose.

Should the above provisions be infringed, prisoners of war shall be allowed to exercise their right of complaint, in conformity with Article 78.

Art 51. Prisoners of war must be granted suitable working conditions, especially as regards accommodation, food, clothing and equipment; such conditions shall not be inferior to those enjoyed by nationals of the Detaining Power employed in similar work; account shall also be taken of climatic conditions.

The Detaining Power, in utilizing the labour of prisoners of war, shall ensure that in areas in which such prisoners are employed, the national legislation concerning the protection of labour, and, more particularly, the regulations for the safety of workers, are duly applied.

Prisoners of war shall receive training and be provided with the means of protection suitable to the work they will have to do and similar to those accorded to the nationals of the Detaining Power. Subject to the provisions of Article 52, prisoners may be submitted to the normal risks run by these civilian workers.

Conditions of labour shall in no case be rendered more arduous by disciplinary measures.

Art 52. Unless he be a volunteer, no prisoner of war may be employed on labour which is of an unhealthy or dangerous nature.

No prisoner of war shall be assigned to labour which would be looked upon as humiliating for a member of the Detaining Power's own forces.

The removal of mines or similar devices shall be considered as dangerous labour.

Art 53. The duration of the daily labour of prisoners of war, including the time of the journey to and fro, shall not be excessive, and must in no case exceed that permitted for civilian workers in the district, who are nationals of the Detaining Power and employed on the same work.

Prisoners of war must be allowed, in the middle of the day's work, a rest of not less than one hour.

This rest will be the same as that to which workers of the Detaining Power are entitled, if the latter is of longer duration. They shall be allowed in addition a rest of twenty-four consecutive hours every week, preferably on Sunday or the day of rest in their country of origin. Furthermore, every prisoner who has worked for one year shall be granted a rest of eight consecutive days, during which his working pay shall be paid him.

If methods of labour such as piece work are employed, the length of the working period shall not be rendered excessive thereby.

Art 54. The working pay due to prisoners of war shall be fixed in accordance with the provisions of Article 62 of the present Convention.

Prisoners of war who sustain accidents in connection with work, or who contract a disease in the course, or in consequence of their work, shall receive all the care their condition may require. The Detaining Power shall furthermore deliver to such prisoners of war a medical certificate enabling them to submit their claims to the Power on which they depend, and shall send a duplicate to the Central Prisoners of War Agency provided for in Article 123.

Art 55. The fitness of prisoners of war for work shall be periodically verified by medical examinations at least once a month. The examinations shall have particular regard to the nature of the work which prisoners of war are required to do.

If any prisoner of war considers himself incapable of working, he shall be permitted to appear before the medical authorities of his camp. Physicians or surgeons may recommend that the prisoners who are, in their opinion, unfit for work, be exempted therefrom.

Art 56. The organization and administration of labour detachments shall be similar to those of prisoner of war camps.

Every labour detachment shall remain under the control of and administratively part of a prisoner of war camp. The military authorities and the commander of the said camp shall be responsible, under the direction of their government, for the observance of the provisions of the present Convention in labour detachments.

The camp commander shall keep an up-to-date record of the labour detachments dependent on his camp, and shall communicate it to the delegates of the Protecting Power, of the International Committee of the Red Cross, or of other agencies giving relief to prisoners of war, who may visit the camp.

Art 57. The treatment of prisoners of war who work for private persons, even if the latter are responsible for guarding and protecting them, shall not be inferior to that which is provided for by the present Convention. The Detaining Power, the military authorities and the commander of the camp to which such prisoners belong shall be entirely responsible for the maintenance, care, treatment, and payment of the working pay of such prisoners of war.

Such prisoners of war shall have the right to remain in communication with the prisoners' representatives in the camps on which they depend.

Section IV. Financial Resources of Prisoners of War

Art 58. Upon the outbreak of hostilities, and pending an arrangement on this matter with the Protecting Power, the Detaining Power may determine the maximum amount of money in cash or in any similar form, that prisoners may have in their possession. Any amount in excess, which was properly in their possession and which has been taken or withheld from them, shall be placed to their account, together with any monies deposited by them, and shall not be converted into any other currency without their consent.

If prisoners of war are permitted to purchase services or commodities outside the camp against payment in cash, such payments shall be made by the prisoner himself or by the camp administration who will charge them to the accounts of the prisoners concerned. The Detaining Power will establish the necessary rules in this respect.

Art 59. Cash which was taken from prisoners of war, in accordance with Article 18, at the time of their capture, and which is in the currency of the Detaining Power, shall be placed to their separate accounts, in accordance with the provisions of Article 64 of the present Section.

The amounts, in the currency of the Detaining Power, due to the conversion of sums in other currencies that are taken from the prisoners of war at the same time, shall also be credited to their separate accounts.

Art 60. The Detaining Power shall grant all prisoners of war a monthly advance of pay, the amount of which shall be fixed by conversion, into the currency of the said Power, of the following amounts:

Category I : Prisoners ranking below sergeants: eight Swiss francs.

Category II : Sergeants and other non-commissioned officers, or prisoners of equivalent rank: twelve Swiss francs.

Category III: Warrant officers and commissioned officers below the rank of major or prisoners of equivalent rank: fifty Swiss francs.

Category IV : Majors, lieutenant-colonels, colonels or prisoners of equivalent rank: sixty Swiss francs.

Category V : General officers or prisoners of war of equivalent rank: seventy-five Swiss francs.

However, the Parties to the conflict concerned may by special agreement modify the amount of advances of pay due to prisoners of the preceding categories.

Furthermore, if the amounts indicated in the first paragraph above would be unduly high compared with the pay of the Detaining Power's armed forces or would, for any reason, seriously embarrass the Detaining Power, then, pending the conclusion of a special agreement with the Power on which the prisoners depend to vary the amounts indicated above, the Detaining Power:

(a) shall continue to credit the accounts of the prisoners with the amounts indicated in the first paragraph above;

(b) may temporarily limit the amount made available from these advances of pay to prisoners of war for their own use, to sums which are reasonable, but which, for Category I, shall never be inferior to the amount that the Detaining Power gives to the members of its own armed forces.

The reasons for any limitations will be given without delay to the Protecting Power.

Art 61. The Detaining Power shall accept for distribution as supplementary pay to prisoners of war sums which the Power on which the prisoners depend may forward to them, on condition that the sums to be paid shall be the same for each prisoner of the same category, shall be payable to all prisoners of that category depending on that Power, and shall be placed in their separate accounts, at the earliest opportunity, in accordance with the provisions of Article 64. Such supplementary pay shall not relieve the Detaining Power of any obligation under this Convention.

Art 62. Prisoners of war shall be paid a fair working rate of pay by the detaining authorities direct. The rate shall be fixed by the said authorities, but shall at no time be less than one-fourth of one Swiss franc for a full working day. The Detaining Power shall inform prisoners of war, as well as the Power on which they depend, through the intermediary of the Protecting Power, of the rate of daily working pay that it has fixed.

Working pay shall likewise be paid by the detaining authorities to prisoners of war permanently detailed to duties or to a skilled or semi-skilled occupation in connection with the administration, installation or maintenance of camps, and to the prisoners who are required to carry out spiritual or medical duties on behalf of their comrades.

The working pay of the prisoners' representative, of his advisers, if any, and of his assistants, shall be paid out of the fund maintained by canteen profits. The scale of this working pay shall be fixed by the prisoners' representative and approved by the camp commander. If there is no such fund, the detaining authorities shall pay these prisoners a fair working rate of pay.

Art 63. Prisoners of war shall be permitted to receive remittances of money addressed to them individually or collectively.

Every prisoner of war shall have at his disposal the credit balance of his account as provided for in the following Article, within the limits fixed by the Detaining Power, which shall make such payments as are requested. Subject to financial or monetary restrictions which the Detaining Power regards as essential, prisoners of war may also have payments made abroad. In this case payments addressed by prisoners of war to dependents shall be given priority.

In any event, and subject to the consent of the Power on which they depend, prisoners may have payments made in their own country, as follows: the Detaining Power shall send to the aforesaid Power through the Protecting Power, a notification giving all the necessary particulars concerning the prisoners of war, the beneficiaries of the payments, and the amount of the sums to be paid, expressed in the Detaining Power's currency. The said notification shall be signed by the prisoners and countersigned by the camp commander. The Detaining Power shall debit the prisoners' account by a corresponding amount; the sums thus debited shall be placed by it to the credit of the Power on which the prisoners depend.

To apply the foregoing provisions, the Detaining Power may usefully consult the Model Regulations in Annex V of the present Convention.

Art. 64 The Detaining Power shall hold an account for each prisoner of war, showing at least the following:

(1) The amounts due to the prisoner or received by him as advances of pay, as working pay or derived from any other source; the sums in the currency of the Detaining Power which were taken from him; the sums taken from him and converted at his request into the currency of the said Power.

(2) The payments made to the prisoner in cash, or in any other similar form; the payments made on his behalf and at his request; the sums transferred under Article 63, third paragraph.

Art 65. Every item entered in the account of a prisoner of war shall be countersigned or initialled by him, or by the prisoners' representative acting on his behalf.

Prisoners of war shall at all times be afforded reasonable facilities for consulting and obtaining copies of their accounts, which may likewise be inspected by the representatives of the Protecting Powers at the time of visits to the camp.

When prisoners of war are transferred from one camp to another, their personal accounts will follow them. In case of transfer from one Detaining Power to another, the monies which are their property and are not in the currency of the Detaining Power will follow them. They shall be given certificates for any other monies standing to the credit of their accounts.

The Parties to the conflict concerned may agree to notify to each other at specific intervals through the Protecting Power, the amount of the accounts of the prisoners of war.

Art 66. On the termination of captivity, through the release of a prisoner of war or his repatriation, the Detaining Power shall give him a statement, signed by an authorized officer of that Power, showing the credit balance then due to him. The Detaining Power shall also send through the Protecting Power to the government upon which the prisoner of war depends, lists giving all appropriate particulars of all prisoners of war whose captivity has been terminated by repatriation, release, escape, death or any other means, and showing the amount of their credit balances. Such lists shall be certified on each sheet by an authorized representative of the Detaining Power.

Any of the above provisions of this Article may be varied by mutual agreement between any two Parties to the conflict.

The Power on which the prisoner of war depends shall be responsible for settling with him any credit balance due to him from the Detaining Power on the termination of his captivity.

Art 67. Advances of pay, issued to prisoners of war in conformity with Article 60, shall be considered as made on behalf of the Power on which they depend. Such advances of pay, as well as all payments made by the said Power under Article 63, third paragraph, and Article 68, shall form the subject of arrangements between the Powers concerned, at the close of hostilities.

Art 68. Any claim by a prisoner of war for compensation in respect of any injury or other disability arising out of work shall be referred to the Power on which he depends, through the Protecting Power. In accordance with Article 54, the Detaining Power will, in all cases, provide the prisoner of war concerned with a statement showing the nature of the injury or disability, the circumstances in which it arose and particulars of medical or hospital treatment given for it. This statement will be signed by a responsible officer of the Detaining Power and the medical particulars certified by a medical officer.

Any claim by a prisoner of war for compensation in respect of personal effects monies or valuables impounded by the Detaining Power under Article 18 and not forthcoming on his repatriation, or in respect of loss alleged to be due to the fault of the Detaining Power or any of its servants, shall likewise be referred to the Power on which he depends. Nevertheless, any such personal effects required for use by the prisoners of war whilst in captivity shall be replaced at the expense of the Detaining Power. The Detaining Power will, in all cases, provide the prisoner of war with a statement, signed by a responsible officer, showing all available information regarding the reasons why such effects, monies or valuables have not been restored to him. A copy of this statement will be forwarded to the Power on which he depends through the Central Prisoners of War Agency provided for in Article 123.

Section V. Relations of Prisoners of War With the Exterior

Art 69. Immediately upon prisoners of war falling into its power, the Detaining Power shall inform them and the Powers on which they depend, through the Protecting Power, of the measures taken to carry out the provisions of the present Section. They shall likewise inform the parties concerned of any subsequent modifications of such measures.

Art 70. Immediately upon capture, or not more than one week after arrival at a camp, even if it is a transit camp, likewise in case of sickness or transfer to hospital or to another camp, every prisoner of war shall be enabled to write direct to his family, on the one hand, and to the Central Prisoners of War Agency provided for in Article 123, on the other hand, a card similar, if possible, to the model annexed to the present Convention, informing his relatives of his capture, address and state of health. The said cards shall be forwarded as rapidly as possible and may not be delayed in any manner.

Art 71. Prisoners of war shall be allowed to send and receive letters and cards. If the Detaining Power deems it necessary to limit the number of letters and cards sent by each prisoner of war, the said number shall not be less than two letters and four cards monthly, exclusive of the capture cards provided for in Article 70, and conforming as closely as possible to the models annexed to the present Convention. Further limitations may be imposed only if the Protecting Power is satisfied that it would be in the interests of the prisoners of war concerned to do so owing to difficulties of translation caused by the Detaining Power's inability to find sufficient qualified linguists to carry out the necessary censorship. If limitations must be placed on the correspondence addressed to prisoners of war, they may be ordered only by the Power on which the prisoners depend, possibly at the request of the Detaining Power. Such letters and cards must be conveyed by the most rapid method at the disposal of the Detaining Power; they may not be delayed or retained for disciplinary reasons.

Prisoners of war who have been without news for a long period, or who are unable to receive news from their next of kin or to give them news by the ordinary postal route, as well as those who are at a great distance from their homes, shall be permitted to send telegrams, the fees being charged against the prisoners of war's accounts with the Detaining Power or paid in the currency at their disposal. They shall likewise benefit by this measure in cases of urgency.

As a general rule, the correspondence of prisoners of war shall be written in their native language. The Parties to the conflict may allow correspondence in other languages.

Sacks containing prisoner of war mail must be securely sealed and labelled so as clearly to indicate their contents, and must be addressed to offices of destination.

Art 72. Prisoners of war shall be allowed to receive by post or by any other means individual parcels or collective shipments containing, in particular, foodstuffs, clothing, medical supplies and articles of a religious, educational or recreational character which may meet their needs, including books, devotional articles, scientific equipment, examination papers, musical instruments, sports outfits and materials allowing prisoners of war to pursue their studies or their cultural activities.

Such shipments shall in no way free the Detaining Power from the obligations imposed upon it by virtue of the present Convention.

The only limits which may be placed on these shipments shall be those proposed by the Protecting Power in the interest of the prisoners themselves, or by the International Committee of the Red Cross or any other organization giving assistance to the prisoners, in respect of their own shipments only, on account of exceptional strain on transport or communications.

The conditions for the sending of individual parcels and collective relief shall, if necessary, be the subject of special agreements between the Powers concerned, which may in no case delay the receipt by the prisoners of relief supplies. Books may not be included in parcels of clothing and foodstuffs. Medical supplies shall, as a rule, be sent in collective parcels.

Art 73. In the absence of special agreements between the Powers concerned on the conditions for the receipt and distribution of collective relief shipments, the rules and regulations concerning collective shipments, which are annexed to the present Convention, shall be applied.

The special agreements referred to above shall in no case restrict the right of prisoners' representatives to take possession of collective relief shipments intended for prisoners of war, to proceed to their distribution or to dispose of them in the interest of the prisoners.

Nor shall such agreements restrict the right of representatives of the Protecting Power, the International Committee of the Red Cross or any other organization giving assistance to prisoners of war and responsible for the forwarding of collective shipments, to supervise their distribution to the recipients.

Art 74. All relief shipments for prisoners of war shall be exempt from import, customs and other dues.

Correspondence, relief shipments and authorized remittances of money addressed to prisoners of war or despatched by them through the post office, either direct or through the Information Bureaux provided for in Article 122 and the Central Prisoners of War Agency provided for in Article 123, shall be exempt from any postal dues, both in the countries of origin and destination, and in intermediate countries.

If relief shipments intended for prisoners of war cannot be sent through the post office by reason of weight or for any other cause, the cost of transportation shall be borne by the Detaining Power in all the territories under its control. The other Powers party to the Convention shall bear the cost of transport in their respective territories. In the absence of special agreements between the Parties concerned, the costs connected with transport of such shipments, other than costs covered by the above exemption, shall be charged to the senders.

The High Contracting Parties shall endeavour to reduce, so far as possible, the rates charged for telegrams sent by prisoners of war, or addressed to them.

Art 75. Should military operations prevent the Powers concerned from fulfilling their obligation to assure the transport of the shipments referred to in Articles 70, 71, 72 and 77, the Protecting Powers concerned, the International Committee of the Red Cross or any other organization duly approved by the Parties to the conflict may undertake to ensure the conveyance of such shipments by suitable means (railway wagons, motor vehicles, vessels or aircraft, etc.). For this purpose, the High Contracting Parties shall endeavour to supply them with such transport and to allow its circulation, especially by granting the necessary safe-conducts.

Such transport may also be used to convey:

(a) correspondence, lists and reports exchanged between the Central Information Agency referred to in Article 123 and the National Bureaux referred to in Article 122;

(b) correspondence and reports relating to prisoners of war which the Protecting Powers, the International Committee of the Red Cross or any other body assisting the prisoners, exchange either with their own delegates or with the Parties to the conflict.

These provisions in no way detract from the right of any Party to the conflict to arrange other means of transport, if it should so prefer, nor preclude the granting of safe-conducts, under mutually agreed conditions, to such means of transport.

In the absence of special agreements, the costs occasioned by the use of such means of transport shall be borne proportionally by the Parties to the conflict whose nationals are benefited thereby.

Art 76. The censoring of correspondence addressed to prisoners of war or despatched by them shall be done as quickly as possible. Mail shall be censored only by the despatching State and the receiving State, and once only by each.

The examination of consignments intended for prisoners of war shall not be carried out under conditions that will expose the goods contained in them to deterioration; except in the case of written or printed matter, it shall be done in the presence of the addressee, or of a fellow-prisoner duly delegated by him. The delivery to prisoners of individual or collective consignments shall not be delayed under the pretext of difficulties of censorship.

Any prohibition of correspondence ordered by Parties to the conflict, either for military or political reasons, shall be only temporary and its duration shall be as short as possible.

Art 77. The Detaining Powers shall provide all facilities for the transmission, through the Protecting Power or the Central Prisoners of War Agency provided for in Article 123 of instruments, papers or documents intended for prisoners of war or despatched by them, especially powers of attorney and wills.

In all cases they shall facilitate the preparation and execution of such documents on behalf of prisoners of war; in particular, they shall allow them to consult a lawyer and shall take what measures are necessary for the authentication of their signatures.

Section VI. Relations Between Prisoners of War and the Authorities

Chapter I. Complaints of Prisoners of War Respecting the Conditions of Captivity

Art 78 Prisoners of war shall have the right to make known to the military authorities in whose power they are, their requests regarding the conditions of captivity to which they are subjected.

They shall also have the unrestricted right to apply to the representatives of the Protecting Powers either through their prisoners' representative or, if they consider it necessary, direct, in order to draw their attention to any points on which they may have complaints to make regarding their conditions of captivity.

These requests and complaints shall not be limited nor considered to be a part of the correspondence quota referred to in Article 71. They must be transmitted immediately. Even if they are recognized to be unfounded, they may not give rise to any punishment.

Prisoners' representatives may send periodic reports on the situation in the camps and the needs of the prisoners of war to the representatives of the Protecting Powers.

Chapter II. Prisoner of War Representatives

Art 79. In all places where there are prisoners of war, except in those where there are officers, the prisoners shall freely elect by secret ballot, every six months, and also in case of vacancies, prisoners' representatives entrusted with representing them before the military authorities, the Protecting Powers, the International Committee of the Red Cross and any other organization which may assist them. These prisoners' representatives shall be eligible for re-election.

In camps for officers and persons of equivalent status or in mixed camps, the senior officer among the prisoners of war shall be recognized as the camp prisoners' representative. In camps for officers, he shall be assisted by one or more advisers chosen by the officers; in mixed camps, his assistants shall be chosen from among the prisoners of war who are not officers and shall be elected by them.

Officer prisoners of war of the same nationality shall be stationed in labour camps for prisoners of war, for the purpose of carrying out the camp administration duties for which the prisoners of war are responsible. These officers may be elected as prisoners' representatives under the first paragraph of this Article. In such a case the assistants to the prisoners' representatives shall be chosen from among those prisoners of war who are not officers.

Every representative elected must be approved by the Detaining Power before he has the right to commence his duties. Where the Detaining Power refuses to approve a prisoner of war elected by his fellow prisoners of war, it must inform the Protecting Power of the reason for such refusal.

In all cases the prisoners' representative must have the same nationality, language and customs as the prisoners of war whom he represents. Thus, prisoners of war distributed in different sections of a camp, according to their nationality, language or customs, shall have for each section their own prisoners' representative, in accordance with the foregoing paragraphs.

Art 80. Prisoners' representatives shall further the physical, spiritual and intellectual well-being of prisoners of war.

In particular, where the prisoners decide to organize amongst themselves a system of mutual assistance, this organization will be within the province of the prisoners' representative, in addition to the special duties entrusted to him by other provisions of the present Convention.

Prisoners' representatives shall not be held responsible, simply by reason of their duties, for any offences committed by prisoners of war.

Art 81. Prisoners' representatives shall not be required to perform any other work, if the accomplishment of their duties is thereby made more difficult.

Prisoners' representatives may appoint from amongst the prisoners such assistants as they may require. All material facilities shall be granted them, particularly a certain freedom of movement necessary for the accomplishment of their duties (inspection of labour detachments, receipt of supplies, etc.).

Prisoners' representatives shall be permitted to visit premises where prisoners of war are detained, and every prisoner of war shall have the right to consult freely his prisoners' representative.

All facilities shall likewise be accorded to the prisoners' representatives for communication by post and telegraph with the detaining authorities, the Protecting Powers, the International Committee of the Red Cross and their delegates, the Mixed Medical Commissions and the bodies which give assistance to prisoners of war. Prisoners' representatives of labour detachments shall enjoy the same facilities for communication with the prisoners' representatives of the principal camp. Such communications shall not be restricted, nor considered as forming a part of the quota mentioned in Article 71.

Prisoners' representatives who are transferred shall be allowed a reasonable time to acquaint their successors with current affairs.

In case of dismissal, the reasons therefor shall be communicated to the Protecting Power.

Chapter III. Penal and Disciplinary Sanctions

I. General Provisions

Art 82. A prisoner of war shall be subject to the laws, regulations and orders in force in the armed forces of the Detaining Power; the Detaining Power shall be justified in taking judicial or disciplinary measures in respect of any offence committed by a prisoner of war against such laws, regulations or orders. However, no proceedings or punishments contrary to the provisions of this Chapter shall be allowed.

If any law, regulation or order of the Detaining Power shall declare acts committed by a prisoner of war to be punishable, whereas the same acts would not be punishable if committed by a member of the forces of the Detaining Power, such acts shall entail disciplinary punishments only.

Art 83. In deciding whether proceedings in respect of an offence alleged to have been committed by a prisoner of war shall be judicial or disciplinary, the Detaining Power shall ensure that the competent authorities exercise the greatest leniency and adopt, wherever possible, disciplinary rather than judicial measures.

Art 84. A prisoner of war shall be tried only by a military court, unless the existing laws of the Detaining Power expressly permit the civil courts to try a member of the armed forces of the Detaining Power in respect of the particular offence alleged to have been committed by the prisoner of war.

In no circumstances whatever shall a prisoner of war be tried by a court of any kind which does not offer the essential guarantees of independence and impartiality as generally recognized, and, in particular, the procedure of which does not afford the accused the rights and means of defence provided for in Article 105.

Art 85. Prisoners of war prosecuted under the laws of the Detaining Power for acts committed prior to capture shall retain, even if convicted, the benefits of the present Convention.

Art 86. No prisoner of war may be punished more than once for the same act or on the same charge.

Art 87. Prisoners of war may not be sentenced by the military authorities and courts of the Detaining Power to any penalties except those provided for in respect of members of the armed forces of the said Power who have committed the same acts.

When fixing the penalty, the courts or authorities of the Detaining Power shall take into consideration, to the widest extent possible, the fact that the accused, not being a national of the Detaining Power, is not bound to it by any duty of allegiance, and that he is in its power as the result of circumstances independent of his own will. The said courts or authorities shall be at liberty to reduce the penalty provided for the violation of which the prisoner of war is accused, and shall therefore not be bound to apply the minimum penalty prescribed.

Collective punishment for individual acts, corporal punishment, imprisonment in premises without daylight and, in general, any form of torture or cruelty, are forbidden.

No prisoner of war may be deprived of his rank by the Detaining Power, or prevented from wearing his badges.

Art 88. Officers, non-commissioned officers and men who are prisoners of war undergoing a disciplinary or judicial punishment, shall not be subjected to more severe treatment than that applied in respect of the same punishment to members of the armed forces of the Detaining Power of equivalent rank.

A woman prisoner of war shall not be awarded or sentenced to a punishment more severe, or treated whilst undergoing punishment more severely, than a woman member of the armed forces of the Detaining Power dealt with for a similar offence.

In no case may a woman prisoner of war be awarded or sentenced to a punishment more severe, or treated whilst undergoing punishment more severely, than a male member of the armed forces of the Detaining Power dealt with for a similar offence.

Prisoners of war who have served disciplinary or judicial sentences may not be treated differently from other prisoners of war.

II. Disciplinary Sanctions

Art 88. The disciplinary punishments applicable to prisoners of war are the following:

- (1) A fine which shall not exceed 50 per cent of the advances of pay and working pay which the prisoner of war would otherwise receive under the provisions of Articles 60 and 62 during a period of not more than thirty days.
- (2) Discontinuance of privileges granted over and above the treatment provided for by the present Convention.
- (3) Fatigue duties not exceeding two hours daily.
- (4) Confinement.

The punishment referred to under (3) shall not be applied to officers.

In no case shall disciplinary punishments be inhuman, brutal or dangerous to the health of prisoners of war.

Art 90. The duration of any single punishment shall in no case exceed thirty days. Any period of confinement awaiting the hearing of a disciplinary offence or the award of disciplinary punishment shall be deducted from an award pronounced against a prisoner of war.

The maximum of thirty days provided above may not be exceeded, even if the prisoner of war is answerable for several acts at the same time when he is awarded punishment, whether such acts are related or not.

The period between the pronouncing of an award of disciplinary punishment and its execution shall not exceed one month.

When a prisoner of war is awarded a further disciplinary punishment, a period of at least three days shall elapse between the execution of any two of the punishments, if the duration of one of these is ten days or more.

Art 91. The escape of a prisoner of war shall be deemed to have succeeded when:

- (1) he has joined the armed forces of the Power on which he depends, or those of an allied Power;
- (2) he has left the territory under the control of the Detaining Power, or of an ally of the said

Power;

(3) he has joined a ship flying the flag of the Power on which he depends, or of an allied Power, in the territorial waters of the Detaining Power, the said ship not being under the control of the last named Power.

Prisoners of war who have made good their escape in the sense of this Article and who are recaptured, shall not be liable to any punishment in respect of their previous escape.

Art 92. A prisoner of war who attempts to escape and is recaptured before having made good his escape in the sense of Article 91 shall be liable only to a disciplinary punishment in respect of this act, even if it is a repeated offence.

A prisoner of war who is recaptured shall be handed over without delay to the competent military authority.

Article 88, fourth paragraph, notwithstanding, prisoners of war punished as a result of an unsuccessful escape may be subjected to special surveillance. Such surveillance must not affect the state of their health, must be undergone in a prisoner of war camp, and must not entail the suppression of any of the safeguards granted them by the present Convention.

Art 93. Escape or attempt to escape, even if it is a repeated offence, shall not be deemed an aggravating circumstance if the prisoner of war is subjected to trial by judicial proceedings in respect of an offence committed during his escape or attempt to escape.

In conformity with the principle stated in Article 83, offences committed by prisoners of war with the sole intention of facilitating their escape and which do not entail any violence against life or limb, such as offences against public property, theft without intention of self-enrichment, the drawing up or use of false papers, or the wearing of civilian clothing, shall occasion disciplinary punishment only.

Prisoners of war who aid or abet an escape or an attempt to escape shall be liable on this count to disciplinary punishment only.

Art 94. If an escaped prisoner of war is recaptured, the Power on which he depends shall be notified thereof in the manner defined in Article 122, provided notification of his escape has been made.

Art 95. A prisoner of war accused of an offence against discipline shall not be kept in confinement pending the hearing unless a member of the armed forces of the Detaining Power would be so kept if he were accused of a similar offence, or if it is essential in the interests of camp order and discipline.

Any period spent by a prisoner of war in confinement awaiting the disposal of an offence against discipline shall be reduced to an absolute minimum and shall not exceed fourteen days.

The provisions of Articles 97 and 98 of this Chapter shall apply to prisoners of war who are in confinement awaiting the disposal of offences against discipline.

Art 96. Acts which constitute offences against discipline shall be investigated immediately.

Without prejudice to the competence of courts and superior military authorities, disciplinary punishment may be ordered only by an officer having disciplinary powers in his capacity as camp commander, or by a responsible officer who replaces him or to whom he has delegated his disciplinary powers.

In no case may such powers be delegated to a prisoner of war or be exercised by a prisoner of war.

Before any disciplinary award is pronounced, the accused shall be given precise information regarding the offences of which he is accused, and given an opportunity of explaining his conduct and of defending himself. He shall be permitted, in particular, to call witnesses and to have recourse, if necessary, to the services of a qualified interpreter. The decision shall be announced to the accused prisoner of war and to the prisoners' representative.

A record of disciplinary punishments shall be maintained by the camp commander and shall be open to inspection by representatives of the Protecting Power.

Art 97. Prisoners of war shall not in any case be transferred to penitentiary establishments (prisons, penitentiaries, convict prisons, etc.) to undergo disciplinary punishment therein.

All premises in which disciplinary punishments are undergone shall conform to the sanitary requirements set forth in Article 25. A prisoner of war undergoing punishment shall be enabled to keep himself in a state of cleanliness, in conformity with Article 29.

Officers and persons of equivalent status shall not be lodged in the same quarters as non-commissioned officers or men.

Women prisoners of war undergoing disciplinary punishment shall be confined in separate quarters from male prisoners of war and shall be under the immediate supervision of women.

Art 98. A prisoner of war undergoing confinement as a disciplinary punishment, shall continue to enjoy the benefits of the provisions of this Convention except in so far as these are necessarily rendered inapplicable by the mere fact that he is confined. In no case may he be deprived of the benefits of the provisions of Articles 78 and 126.

A prisoner of war awarded disciplinary punishment may not be deprived of the prerogatives attached to his rank.

Prisoners of war awarded disciplinary punishment shall be allowed to exercise and to stay in the open air at least two hours daily.

They shall be allowed, on their request, to be present at the daily medical inspections. They shall receive the attention which their state of health requires and, if necessary, shall be removed to the camp infirmary or to a hospital.

They shall have permission to read and write, likewise to send and receive letters. Parcels and remittances of money however, may be withheld from them until the completion of the punishment; they shall meanwhile be entrusted to the prisoners' representative, who will hand over to the infirmary the perishable goods contained in such parcels.

III. Juridicial Proceedings

Art 99. No prisoner of war may be tried or sentenced for an act which is not forbidden by the law of the Detaining Power or by international law, in force at the time the said act was committed.

No moral or physical coercion may be exerted on a prisoner of war in order to induce him to admit himself guilty of the act of which he is accused.

No prisoner of war may be convicted without having had an opportunity to present his defence and the assistance of a qualified advocate or counsel.

Art 100. Prisoners of war and the Protecting Powers shall be informed as soon as possible of the offences which are punishable by the death sentence under the laws of the Detaining Power.

Other offences shall not thereafter be made punishable by the death penalty without the concurrence of the Power on which the prisoners of war depend.

The death sentence cannot be pronounced on a prisoner of war unless the attention of the court has, in accordance with Article 87, second paragraph, been particularly called to the fact that since the accused is not a national of the Detaining Power, he is not bound to it by any duty of allegiance, and that he is in its power as the result of circumstances independent of his own will.

Art 101. If the death penalty is pronounced on a prisoner of war, the sentence shall not be executed before the expiration of a period of at least six months from the date when the Protecting Power receives, at an indicated address, the detailed communication provided for in Article 107.

Art 102. A prisoner of war can be validly sentenced only if the sentence has been pronounced by the same courts according to the same procedure as in the case of members of the armed forces of the Detaining Power, and if, furthermore, the provisions of the present Chapter have been observed.

Art 103. Judicial investigations relating to a prisoner of war shall be conducted as rapidly as circumstances permit and so that his trial shall take place as soon as possible. A prisoner of war shall not be confined while awaiting trial unless a member of the armed forces of the Detaining Power would be so confined if he were accused of a similar offence, or if it is essential to do so in the interests of national security. In no circumstances shall this confinement exceed three months.

Any period spent by a prisoner of war in confinement awaiting trial shall be deducted from any sentence of imprisonment passed upon him and taken into account in fixing any penalty.

The provisions of Articles 97 and 98 of this Chapter shall apply to a prisoner of war whilst in confinement awaiting trial.

Art 104. In any case in which the Detaining Power has decided to institute judicial proceedings against a prisoner of war, it shall notify the Protecting Power as soon as possible and at least three weeks before the opening of the trial. This period of three weeks shall run as from the day on which such notification reaches the Protecting Power at the address previously indicated by the latter to the Detaining Power.

The said notification shall contain the following information:

- (1) Surname and first names of the prisoner of war, his rank, his army, regimental, personal or serial number, his date of birth, and his profession or trade, if any;
- (2) Place of internment or confinement;
- (3) Specification of the charge or charges on which the prisoner of war is to be arraigned, giving the legal provisions applicable;
- (4) Designation of the court which will try the case, likewise the date and place fixed for the opening of the trial.

The same communication shall be made by the Detaining Power to the prisoners' representative.

If no evidence is submitted, at the opening of a trial, that the notification referred to above was received by the Protecting Power, by the prisoner of war and by the prisoners' representative concerned, at least three weeks before the opening of the trial, then the latter cannot take place and must be adjourned.

Art 105. The prisoner of war shall be entitled to assistance by one of his prisoner comrades, to defence by a qualified advocate or counsel of his own choice, to the calling of witnesses and, if he deems necessary, to the services of a competent interpreter. He shall be advised of these rights by the Detaining Power in due time before the trial.

Failing a choice by the prisoner of war, the Protecting Power shall find him an advocate or counsel, and shall have at least one week at its disposal for the purpose. The Detaining Power shall deliver to the said Power, on request, a list of persons qualified to present the defence. Failing a choice of an advocate or counsel by the prisoner of war or the Protecting Power, the Detaining Power shall appoint a competent advocate or counsel to conduct the defence.

The advocate or counsel conducting the defence on behalf of the prisoner of war shall have at his disposal a period of two weeks at least before the opening of the trial, as well as the necessary facilities to prepare the defence of the accused. He may, in particular, freely visit the accused and interview him in private. He may also confer with any witnesses for the defence, including prisoners of war. He shall have the benefit of these facilities until the term of appeal or petition has expired.

Particulars of the charge or charges on which the prisoner of war is to be arraigned, as well as the documents which are generally communicated to the accused by virtue of the laws in force in the armed forces of the Detaining Power, shall be communicated to the accused prisoner of war in a language which he understands, and in good time before the opening of the trial. The same communication in the same circumstances shall be made to the advocate or counsel conducting the defence on behalf of the prisoner of war.

The representatives of the Protecting Power shall be entitled to attend the trial of the case, unless, exceptionally, this is held in camera in the interest of State security. In such a case the Detaining Power shall advise the Protecting Power accordingly.

Art 106. Every prisoner of war shall have, in the same manner as the members of the armed forces of the Detaining Power, the right of appeal or petition from any sentence pronounced upon him, with a view to the quashing or revising of the sentence or the reopening of the trial. He shall be fully informed of his right to appeal or petition and of the time limit within which he may do so.

Art 107. Any judgment and sentence pronounced upon a prisoner of war shall be immediately reported to the Protecting Power in the form of a summary communication, which shall also indicate whether he has the right of appeal with a view to the quashing of the sentence or the reopening of the trial. This communication shall likewise be sent to the prisoners' representative concerned. It shall also be sent to the accused prisoner of war in a language he understands, if the sentence was not pronounced in his presence. The Detaining Power shall also immediately communicate to the Protecting Power the decision of the prisoner of war to use or to waive his right of appeal.

Furthermore, if a prisoner of war is finally convicted or if a sentence pronounced on a prisoner of war in the first instance is a death sentence, the Detaining Power shall as soon as possible address to the Protecting Power a detailed communication containing:

- (1) the precise wording of the finding and sentence;
- (2) a summarized report of any preliminary investigation and of the trial, emphasizing in particular the elements of the prosecution and the defence;
- (3) notification, where applicable, of the establishment where the sentence will be served.

The communications provided for in the foregoing sub-paragraphs shall be sent to the Protecting Power at the address previously made known to the Detaining Power.

Art 108. Sentences pronounced on prisoners of war after a conviction has become duly enforceable, shall be served in the same establishments and under the same conditions as in the case of members of the armed forces of the Detaining Power. These conditions shall in all cases conform to the requirements of health and humanity.

A woman prisoner of war on whom such a sentence has been pronounced shall be confined in separate quarters and shall be under the supervision of women.

In any case, prisoners of war sentenced to a penalty depriving them of their liberty shall retain the benefit of the provisions of Articles 78 and 126 of the present Convention. Furthermore, they shall be entitled to receive and despatch correspondence, to receive at least one relief parcel monthly, to take regular exercise in the open air, to have the medical care required by their state of health, and the spiritual assistance they may desire. Penalties to which they may be subjected shall be in accordance with the provisions of Article 87, third paragraph.

Part IV. Termination of Captivity

Section I. Direct Repatriation and Accommodation in Neutral Countries

Art 109. Subject to the provisions of the third paragraph of this Article, Parties to the conflict are bound to send back to their own country, regardless of number or rank, seriously wounded and seriously sick prisoners of war, after having cared for them until they are fit to travel, in accordance with the first paragraph of the following Article.

Throughout the duration of hostilities, Parties to the conflict shall endeavour, with the cooperation of the neutral Powers concerned, to make arrangements for the accommodation in neutral countries of the sick and wounded prisoners of war referred to in the second paragraph of the following Article. They may, in addition, conclude agreements with a view to the direct repatriation or internment in a neutral country of able-bodied prisoners of war who have undergone a long period of captivity.

No sick or injured prisoner of war who is eligible for repatriation under the first paragraph of this Article, may be repatriated against his will during hostilities.

Art 110. The following shall be repatriated direct:

- (1) Incurably wounded and sick whose mental or physical fitness seems to have been gravely diminished.
- (2) Wounded and sick who, according to medical opinion, are not likely to recover within one year, whose condition requires treatment and whose mental or physical fitness seems to have been gravely diminished.
- (3) Wounded and sick who have recovered, but whose mental or physical fitness seems to have been gravely and permanently diminished.

The following may be accommodated in a neutral country:

- (1) Wounded and sick whose recovery may be expected within one year of the date of the wound or the beginning of the illness, if treatment in a neutral country might increase the prospects of a more certain and speedy recovery.
- (2) Prisoners of war whose mental or physical health, according to medical opinion, is seriously threatened by continued captivity, but whose accommodation in a neutral country might remove such a threat.

The conditions which prisoners of war accommodated in a neutral country must fulfil in order to permit their repatriation shall be fixed, as shall likewise their status, by agreement between the Powers concerned. In general, prisoners of war who have been accommodated in a neutral country, and who belong to the following categories, should be repatriated:

- (1) Those whose state of health has deteriorated so as to fulfil the condition laid down for direct repatriation;
- (2) Those whose mental or physical powers remain, even after treatment, considerably impaired.

If no special agreements are concluded between the Parties to the conflict concerned, to determine the cases of disablement or sickness entailing direct repatriation or accommodation in a neutral country, such cases shall be settled in accordance with the principles laid down in the Model Agreement concerning direct repatriation and accommodation in neutral countries of wounded and sick prisoners of war and in the Regulations concerning Mixed Medical Commissions annexed to the present Convention.

Art 111. The Detaining Power, the Power on which the prisoners of war depend, and a neutral Power agreed upon by these two Powers, shall endeavour to conclude agreements which will enable prisoners of war to be interned in the territory of the said neutral Power until the close of hostilities.

Art 112. Upon the outbreak of hostilities, Mixed Medical Commissions shall be appointed to examine sick and wounded prisoners of war, and to make all appropriate decisions regarding them. The appointment, duties and functioning of these Commissions shall be in conformity with the provisions of the Regulations annexed to the present Convention.

However, prisoners of war who, in the opinion of the medical authorities of the Detaining Power, are manifestly seriously injured or seriously sick, may be repatriated without having to be examined by a Mixed Medical Commission.

Art 113. Besides those who are designated by the medical authorities of the Detaining Power, wounded or sick prisoners of war belonging to the categories listed below shall be entitled to present themselves for examination by the Mixed Medical Commissions provided for in the foregoing Article:

- (1) Wounded and sick proposed by a physician or surgeon who is of the same nationality, or a national of a Party to the conflict allied with the Power on which the said prisoners depend, and who exercises his functions in the camp.
- (2) Wounded and sick proposed by their prisoners' representative.
- (3) Wounded and sick proposed by the Power on which they depend, or by an organization duly recognized by the said Power and giving assistance to the prisoners.

Prisoners of war who do not belong to one of the three foregoing categories may nevertheless present themselves for examination by Mixed Medical Commissions, but shall be examined only after those belonging to the said categories.

The physician or surgeon of the same nationality as the prisoners who present themselves for examination by the Mixed Medical Commission, likewise the prisoners' representative of the said prisoners, shall have permission to be present at the examination.

Art 114. Prisoners of war who meet with accidents shall, unless the injury is self-inflicted, have the benefit of the provisions of this Convention as regards repatriation or accommodation in a neutral country.

Art 115. No prisoner of war on whom a disciplinary punishment has been imposed and who is eligible for repatriation or for accommodation in a neutral country, may be kept back on the plea that he has not undergone his punishment.

Prisoners of war detained in connection with a judicial prosecution or conviction, and who are designated for repatriation or accommodation in a neutral country, may benefit by such measures before the end of the proceedings or the completion of the punishment, if the Detaining Power consents.

Parties to the conflict shall communicate to each other the names of those who will be detained until the end of the proceedings or the completion of the punishment.

Art 116. The cost of repatriating prisoners of war or of transporting them to a neutral country shall be borne, from the frontiers of the Detaining Power, by the Power on which the said prisoners depend.

Art 117. No repatriated person may be employed on active military service.

Section II. Release and Repatriation of Prisoners of War at the Close of Hostilities

Art 118. Prisoners of war shall be released and repatriated without delay after the cessation of active hostilities.

In the absence of stipulations to the above effect in any agreement concluded between the Parties to the conflict with a view to the cessation of hostilities, or failing any such agreement, each of the Detaining Powers shall itself establish and execute without delay a plan of repatriation in conformity with the principle laid down in the foregoing paragraph.

In either case, the measures adopted shall be brought to the knowledge of the prisoners of war.

The costs of repatriation of prisoners of war shall in all cases be equitably apportioned between the Detaining Power and the Power on which the prisoners depend. This apportionment shall be carried out on the following basis:

(a) If the two Powers are contiguous, the Power on which the prisoners of war depend shall bear the costs of repatriation from the frontiers of the Detaining Power.

(b) If the two Powers are not contiguous, the Detaining Power shall bear the costs of transport of prisoners of war over its own territory as far as its frontier or its port of embarkation nearest to the territory of the Power on which the prisoners of war depend. The Parties concerned shall agree between themselves as to the equitable apportionment of the remaining costs of the repatriation. The conclusion of this agreement shall in no circumstances justify any delay in the repatriation of the prisoners of war.

Art 119. Repatriation shall be effected in conditions similar to those laid down in Articles 46 to 48 inclusive of the present Convention for the transfer of prisoners of war, having regard to the provisions of Article 118 and to those of the following paragraphs.

On repatriation, any articles of value impounded from prisoners of war under Article 18, and any foreign currency which has not been converted into the currency of the Detaining Power, shall be restored to them. Articles of value and foreign currency which, for any reason whatever, are not restored to prisoners of war on repatriation, shall be despatched to the Information Bureau set up under Article 122.

Prisoners of war shall be allowed to take with them their personal effects, and any correspondence and parcels which have arrived for them. The weight of such baggage may be limited, if the conditions of repatriation so require, to what each prisoner can reasonably carry. Each prisoner shall in all cases be authorized to carry at least twenty-five kilograms.

The other personal effects of the repatriated prisoner shall be left in the charge of the Detaining Power which shall have them forwarded to him as soon as it has concluded an agreement to this effect, regulating the conditions of transport and the payment of the costs involved, with the Power on which the prisoner depends.

Prisoners of war against whom criminal proceedings for an indictable offence are pending may be detained until the end of such proceedings, and, if necessary, until the completion of the punishment. The same shall apply to prisoners of war already convicted for an indictable offence.

Parties to the conflict shall communicate to each other the names of any prisoners of war who are detained until the end of the proceedings or until punishment has been completed.

By agreement between the Parties to the conflict, commissions shall be established for the purpose of searching for dispersed prisoners of war and of assuring their repatriation with the least possible delay.

Section III. Death of Prisoners of War

Art 120. Wills of prisoners of war shall be drawn up so as to satisfy the conditions of validity required by the legislation of their country of origin, which will take steps to inform the Detaining Power of its requirements in this respect. At the request of the prisoner of war and, in all cases, after death, the will shall be transmitted without delay to the Protecting Power; a certified copy shall be sent to the Central Agency.

Death certificates, in the form annexed to the present Convention, or lists certified by a responsible officer, of all persons who die as prisoners of war shall be forwarded as rapidly as possible to the Prisoner of War Information Bureau established in accordance with Article 122. The death certificates or certified lists shall show particulars of identity as set out in the third paragraph of Article 17, and also the date and place of death, the cause of death, the date and place of burial and all particulars necessary to identify the graves.

The burial or cremation of a prisoner of war shall be preceded by a medical examination of the body with a view to confirming death and enabling a report to be made and, where necessary, establishing identity.

The detaining authorities shall ensure that prisoners of war who have died in captivity are honourably buried, if possible according to the rites of the religion to which they belonged, and that their graves are respected, suitably maintained and marked so as to be found at any time. Wherever possible, deceased prisoners of war who depended on the same Power shall be interred in the same place.

Deceased prisoners of war shall be buried in individual graves unless unavoidable circumstances require the use of collective graves. Bodies may be cremated only for imperative reasons of hygiene, on account of the religion of the deceased or in accordance with his express wish to this effect. In case of cremation, the fact shall be stated and the reasons given in the death certificate of the deceased.

In order that graves may always be found, all particulars of burials and graves shall be recorded with a Graves Registration Service established by the Detaining Power. Lists of graves and particulars of the prisoners of war interred in cemeteries and elsewhere shall be transmitted to the Power on which such prisoners of war depended. Responsibility for the care of these graves and for records of any subsequent moves of the bodies shall rest on the Power controlling the territory, if a Party to the present Convention. These provisions shall also apply to the ashes, which shall be kept by the Graves Registration Service until proper disposal thereof in accordance with the wishes of the home country.

Art 121. Every death or serious injury of a prisoner of war caused or suspected to have been caused by a sentry, another prisoner of war, or any other person, as well as any death the cause of which is unknown, shall be immediately followed by an official enquiry by the Detaining Power.

A communication on this subject shall be sent immediately to the Protecting Power. Statements shall be taken from witnesses, especially from those who are prisoners of war, and a report including such statements shall be forwarded to the Protecting Power.

If the enquiry indicates the guilt of one or more persons, the Detaining Power shall take all measures for the prosecution of the person or persons responsible.

PART V. Information Bureaux and Relief Societies for Prisoners of War

Art 122. Upon the outbreak of a conflict and in all cases of occupation, each of the Parties to the conflict shall institute an official Information Bureau for prisoners of war who are in its power. Neutral or non-belligerent Powers who may have received within their territory persons belonging to one of the categories referred to in Article 4, shall take the same action with respect to such persons. The Power concerned shall ensure that the Prisoners of War Information Bureau is provided with the necessary accommodation, equipment and staff to ensure its efficient working. It shall be at liberty to employ prisoners of war in such a Bureau under the conditions laid down in the Section of the present Convention dealing with work by prisoners of war.

Within the shortest possible period, each of the Parties to the conflict shall give its Bureau the information referred to in the fourth, fifth and sixth paragraphs of this Article regarding any enemy person belonging to one of the categories referred to in Article 4, who has fallen into its power. Neutral or non-belligerent Powers shall take the same action with regard to persons belonging to such categories whom they have received within their territory.

The Bureau shall immediately forward such information by the most rapid means to the Powers concerned, through the intermediary of the Protecting Powers and likewise of the Central Agency provided for in Article 123.

This information shall make it possible quickly to advise the next of kin concerned. Subject to the provisions of Article 17, the information shall include, in so far as available to the Information Bureau, in respect of each prisoner of war, his surname, first names, rank, army, regimental, personal or serial number, place and full date of birth, indication of the Power on which he depends, first name of the father and maiden name of the mother, name and address of the person to be informed and the address to which correspondence for the prisoner may be sent.

The Information Bureau shall receive from the various departments concerned information regarding transfers, releases, repatriations, escapes, admissions to hospital, and deaths, and shall transmit such information in the manner described in the third paragraph above.

Likewise, information regarding the state of health of prisoners of war who are seriously ill or seriously wounded shall be supplied regularly, every week if possible.

The Information Bureau shall also be responsible for replying to all enquiries sent to it concerning prisoners of war, including those who have died in captivity; it will make any enquiries necessary to obtain the information which is asked for if this is not in its possession.

All written communications made by the Bureau shall be authenticated by a signature or a seal.

The Information Bureau shall furthermore be charged with collecting all personal valuables, including sums in currencies other than that of the Detaining Power and documents of importance to the next of kin, left by prisoners of war who have been repatriated or released, or who have escaped or died, and shall forward the said valuables to the Powers concerned. Such articles shall be sent by the Bureau in sealed packets which shall be accompanied by statements giving clear and full particulars of the identity of the person to whom the articles belonged, and by a complete list of the contents of the parcel. Other personal effects of such prisoners of war shall be transmitted under arrangements agreed upon between the Parties to the conflict concerned.

Art 123. A Central Prisoners of War Information Agency shall be created in a neutral country. The International Committee of the Red Cross shall, if it deems necessary, propose to the Powers concerned the organization of such an Agency.

The function of the Agency shall be to collect all the information it may obtain through official or private channels respecting prisoners of war, and to transmit it as rapidly as possible to the country of origin of the prisoners of war or to the Power on which they depend. It shall receive from the Parties to the conflict all facilities for effecting such transmissions.

The High Contracting Parties, and in particular those whose nationals benefit by the services of the Central Agency, are requested to give the said Agency the financial aid it may require.

The foregoing provisions shall in no way be interpreted as restricting the humanitarian activities of the International Committee of the Red Cross, or of the relief societies provided for in Article 125.

Art 124. The national Information Bureaux and the Central Information Agency shall enjoy free postage for mail, likewise all the exemptions provided for in Article 74, and further, so far as possible, exemption from telegraphic charges or, at least, greatly reduced rates.

Art 125. Subject to the measures which the Detaining Powers may consider essential to ensure their security or to meet any other reasonable need, the representatives of religious organizations, relief societies, or any other organization assisting prisoners of war, shall receive from the said Powers, for themselves and their duly accredited agents, all necessary facilities for visiting the prisoners, for distributing relief supplies and material, from any source, intended for religious, educational or recreative purposes, and for assisting them in organizing their leisure time within the camps. Such societies or organizations may be constituted in the territory of the Detaining Power or in any other country, or they may have an international character.

The Detaining Power may limit the number of societies and organizations whose delegates are allowed to carry out their activities in its territory and under its supervision, on condition, however, that such limitation shall not hinder the effective operation of adequate relief to all prisoners of war.

The special position of the International Committee of the Red Cross in this field shall be recognized and respected at all times.

As soon as relief supplies or material intended for the above-mentioned purposes are handed over to prisoners of war, or very shortly afterwards, receipts for each consignment, signed by the prisoners' representative, shall be forwarded to the relief society or organization making the shipment. At the same time, receipts for these consignments shall be supplied by the administrative authorities responsible for guarding the prisoners.

Part VI. Execution of the Convention

Section I. General Provisions

Art 126. Representatives or delegates of the Protecting Powers shall have permission to go to all places where prisoners of war may be, particularly to places of internment, imprisonment and labour, and shall have access to all premises occupied by prisoners of war; they shall also be allowed to go to the places of departure, passage and arrival of prisoners who are being transferred. They shall be able to interview the prisoners, and in particular the prisoners' representatives, without witnesses, either personally or through an interpreter.

Representatives and delegates of the Protecting Powers shall have full liberty to select the places they wish to visit. The duration and frequency of these visits shall not be restricted. Visits may not be prohibited except for reasons of imperative military necessity, and then only as an exceptional and temporary measure.

The Detaining Power and the Power on which the said prisoners of war depend may agree, if necessary, that compatriots of these prisoners of war be permitted to participate in the visits.

The delegates of the International Committee of the Red Cross shall enjoy the same prerogatives. The appointment of such delegates shall be submitted to the approval of the Power detaining the prisoners of war to be visited.

Art 127. The High Contracting Parties undertake, in time of peace as in time of war, to disseminate the text of the present Convention as widely as possible in their respective countries, and, in particular, to include the study thereof in their programmes of military and, if possible, civil instruction, so that the principles thereof may become known to all their armed forces and to the entire population.

Any military or other authorities, who in time of war assume responsibilities in respect of prisoners of war, must possess the text of the Convention and be specially instructed as to its provisions.

Art 128. The High Contracting Parties shall communicate to one another through the Swiss Federal Council and, during hostilities, through the Protecting Powers, the official translations of the present Convention, as well as the laws and regulations which they may adopt to ensure the application thereof.

Art 129. The High Contracting Parties undertake to enact any legislation necessary to provide effective penal sanctions for persons committing, or ordering to be committed, any of the grave breaches of the present Convention defined in the following Article.

Each High Contracting Party shall be under the obligation to search for persons alleged to have committed, or to have ordered to be committed, such grave breaches, and shall bring such persons, regardless of their nationality, before its own courts. It may also, if it prefers, and in accordance with the provisions of its own legislation, hand such persons over for trial to another High Contracting Party concerned, provided such High Contracting Party has made out a prima facie case.

Each High Contracting Party shall take measures necessary for the suppression of all acts contrary to the provisions of the present Convention other than the grave breaches defined in the following Article.

In all circumstances, the accused persons shall benefit by safeguards of proper trial and defence, which shall not be less favourable than those provided by Article 105 and those following of the present Convention.

Art 130. Grave breaches to which the preceding Article relates shall be those involving any of the following acts, if committed against persons or property protected by the Convention: wilful killing, torture or inhuman treatment, including biological experiments, wilfully causing great suffering or serious injury to body or health, compelling a prisoner of war to serve in the forces of the hostile Power, or wilfully depriving a prisoner of war of the rights of fair and regular trial prescribed in this Convention.

Art 131. No High Contracting Party shall be allowed to absolve itself or any other High Contracting Party of any liability incurred by itself or by another High Contracting Party in respect of breaches referred to in the preceding Article.

Art 132. At the request of a Party to the conflict, an enquiry shall be instituted, in a manner to be decided between the interested Parties, concerning any alleged violation of the Convention.

If agreement has not been reached concerning the procedure for the enquiry, the Parties should agree on the choice of an umpire who will decide upon the procedure to be followed.

Once the violation has been established, the Parties to the conflict shall put an end to it and shall repress it with the least possible delay.

Section II. Final Provisions

Art 133. The present Convention is established in English and in French. Both texts are equally authentic.

The Swiss Federal Council shall arrange for official translations of the Convention to be made in the Russian and Spanish languages.

Art 134. The present Convention replaces the Convention of July 27, 1929, in relations between the High Contracting Parties.

Art 135. In the relations between the Powers which are bound by the Hague Convention respecting the Laws and Customs of War on Land, whether that of July 29, 1899, or that of October 18, 1907, and which are parties to the present Convention, this last Convention shall be complementary to Chapter II of the Regulations annexed to the above-mentioned Conventions of the Hague.

Art 136. The present Convention, which bears the date of this day, is open to signature until February 12, 1950, in the name of the Powers represented at the Conference which opened at Geneva on April 21, 1949; furthermore, by Powers not represented at that Conference, but which are parties to the Convention of July 27, 1929.

Art 137. The present Convention shall be ratified as soon as possible and the ratifications shall be deposited at Berne.

A record shall be drawn up of the deposit of each instrument of ratification and certified copies of this record shall be transmitted by the Swiss Federal Council to all the Powers in whose name the Convention has been signed, or whose accession has been notified.

Art 138. The present Convention shall come into force six months after not less than two instruments of ratification have been deposited.

Thereafter, it shall come into force for each High Contracting Party six months after the deposit of the instrument of ratification.

Art 139. From the date of its coming into force, it shall be open to any Power in whose name the present Convention has not been signed, to accede to this Convention.

Art 140. Accessions shall be notified in writing to the Swiss Federal Council, and shall take effect six months after the date on which they are received.

The Swiss Federal Council shall communicate the accessions to all the Powers in whose name the Convention has been signed, or whose accession has been notified.

Art 141. The situations provided for in Articles 2 and 3 shall give immediate effect to ratifications deposited and accessions notified by the Parties to the conflict before or after the beginning of hostilities or occupation. The Swiss Federal Council shall communicate by the quickest method any ratifications or accessions received from Parties to the conflict.

Art 142. Each of the High Contracting Parties shall be at liberty to denounce the present Convention.

The denunciation shall be notified in writing to the Swiss Federal Council, which shall transmit it to the Governments of all the High Contracting Parties.

The denunciation shall take effect one year after the notification thereof has been made to the Swiss Federal Council. However, a denunciation of which notification has been made at a time when the denouncing Power is involved in a conflict shall not take effect until peace has been concluded, and until after operations connected with release and repatriation of the persons protected by the present Convention have been terminated.

The denunciation shall have effect only in respect of the denouncing Power. It shall in no way impair the obligations which the Parties to the conflict shall remain bound to fulfil by virtue of the principles of the law of nations, as they result from the usages established among civilized peoples, from the laws of humanity and the dictates of the public conscience.

Art 143. The Swiss Federal Council shall register the present Convention with the Secretariat of the United Nations. The Swiss Federal Council shall also inform the Secretariat of the United Nations of all ratifications, accessions and denunciations received by it with respect to the present Convention.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF the undersigned, having deposited their respective full powers, have signed the present Convention.

DONE at Geneva this twelfth day of August 1949, in the English and French languages. The original shall be deposited in the Archives of the Swiss Confederation. The Swiss Federal Council shall transmit certified copies thereof to each of the signatory and acceding States.

Annex I. Model Agreement Concerning Direct Repatriation and Accommodation in Neutral Countries of Wounded and Sick Prisoners of War.(see Art 110.)

I. Principles for Direct Repatriation and Accommodation in Neutral Countries

A. DIRECT REPATRIATION

The following shall be repatriated direct:

(1) All prisoners of war suffering from the following disabilities as the result of trauma: loss of a limb, paralysis, articular or other disabilities, when this disability is at least the loss of a hand or a foot, or the equivalent of the loss of a hand or a foot.

Without prejudice to a more generous interpretation, the following shall be considered as equivalent to the loss of a hand or a foot:

- (a) Loss of a hand or of all the fingers, or of the thumb and forefinger of one hand; loss of a foot, or of all the toes and metatarsals of one foot.
- (b) Ankylosis, loss of osseous tissue, cicatricial contracture preventing the functioning of one of the large articulations or of all the digital joints of one hand.
- (c) Pseudarthrosis of the long bones.
- (d) Deformities due to fracture or other injury which seriously interfere with function and weight-bearing power.

(2) All wounded prisoners of war whose condition has become chronic, to the extent that prognosis appears to exclude recovery--in spite of treatment--within one year from the date of the injury, as, for example, in case of:

- (a) Projectile in the heart, even if the Mixed Medical Commission should fail, at the time of their examination, to detect any serious disorders.
- (b) Metallic splinter in the brain or the lungs, even if the Mixed Medical Commission cannot, at the time of examination, detect any local or general reaction.

- (c) Osteomyelitis, when recovery cannot be foreseen in the course of the year following the injury, and which seems likely to result in ankylosis of a joint, or other impairments equivalent to the loss of a hand or a foot.
- (d) Perforating and suppurating injury to the large joints.
- (e) Injury to the skull, with loss or shifting of bony tissue.
- (f) Injury or burning of the face with loss of tissue and functional lesions.
- (g) Injury to the spinal cord.
- (h) Lesion of the peripheral nerves, the sequelae of which are equivalent to the loss of a hand or foot, and the cure of which requires more than a year from the date of injury, for example: injury to the brachial or lumbosacral plexus median or sciatic nerves, likewise combined injury to the radial and cubital nerves or to the lateral popliteal nerve (N. peroneus communis) and medial popliteal nerve (N. tibialis); etc. The separate injury of the radial (musculo-spiral), cubital, lateral or medial popliteal nerves shall not, however, warrant repatriation except in case of contractures or of serious neurotrophic disturbance.
- (i) Injury to the urinary system, with incapacitating results.

(3) All sick prisoners of war whose condition has become chronic to the extent that prognosis seems to exclude recovery--in, spite of treatment-- within one year from the inception of the disease, as, for example, in case of:

- (a) Progressive tuberculosis of any organ which, according to medical prognosis, cannot be cured or at least considerably improved by treatment in a neutral country.
- (b) Exudate pleurisy.
- (c) Serious diseases of the respiratory organs of non-tubercular etiology, presumed incurable, for example: serious pulmonary emphysema, with or without bronchitis; chronic asthma *; chronic bronchitis * lasting more than one year in captivity; bronchiectasis *; etc.
- (d) Serious chronic affections of the circulatory system, for example: valvular lesions and myocarditis *, which have shown signs of circulatory failure during captivity, even though the Mixed Medical Commission cannot detect any such signs at the time of examination; affections of the pericardium and the vessels (Buerger's disease, aneurisms of the large vessels); etc.
- (e) Serious chronic affections of the digestive organs, for example: gastric or duodenal ulcer; sequelae of gastric operations performed in captivity; chronic gastritis, enteritis or colitis, having lasted more than one year and seriously affecting the general condition; cirrhosis of the liver; chronic cholecystopathy *; etc.
- (f) Serious chronic affections of the genito-urinary organs, for example: chronic diseases of the kidney with consequent disorders; nephrectomy because of a tubercular kidney; chronic pyelitis or chronic cystitis; hydronephrosis or pyonephrosis; chronic grave gynaecological conditions; normal pregnancy and obstetrical disorder, where it is impossible to accommodate in a neutral country; etc.
- (g) Serious chronic diseases of the central and peripheral nervous system, for example: all obvious psychoses and psychoneuroses, such as serious hysteria, serious captivity psychoneurosis, etc., duly verified by a specialist *; any epilepsy duly verified by the camp physician *; cerebral arteriosclerosis; chronic neuritis lasting more than one year; etc.
- (h) Serious chronic diseases of the neuro-vegetative system, with considerable diminution of mental or physical fitness, noticeable loss of weight and general asthenia.
- (i) Blindness of both eyes, or of one eye when the vision of the other is less than 1 in spite of the use of corrective glasses; diminution of visual acuity in cases where it is impossible to restore it by correction to an acuity of 1/2 in at least one eye *; other grave ocular affections, for example:

glaucoma, iritis, choroiditis; trachoma; etc.

(k) Auditive disorders, such as total unilateral deafness, if the other ear does not discern the ordinary spoken word at a distance of one metre *; etc.

(l) Serious affections of metabolism, for example: diabetes mellitus requiring insulin treatment; etc.

(m) Serious disorders of the endocrine glands, for example: thyrotoxicosis; hypothyrosis; Addison's disease; Simmonds' cachexia; tetany; etc.

(n) Grave and chronic disorders of the blood-forming organs.

(o) Serious cases of chronic intoxication, for example: lead poisoning, mercury poisoning, morphinism, cocainism, alcoholism; gas or radiation poisoning; etc.

(p) Chronic affections of locomotion, with obvious functional disorders, for example: arthritis deformans; primary and secondary progressive chronic polyarthritis; rheumatism with serious clinical symptoms; etc.

(q) Serious chronic skin diseases, not amenable to treatment.

(r) Any malignant growth.

(s) Serious chronic infectious diseases, persisting for one year after their inception, for example: malaria with decided organic impairment, amoebic or bacillary dysentery with grave disorders; tertiary visceral syphilis resistant to treatment; leprosy; etc.

(t) Serious avitaminosis or serious inanition.

[NOTE] * The decision of the Mixed Medical Commission shall be based to a great extent on the records kept by camp physicians and surgeons of the same nationality as the prisoners of war, or on an examination by medical specialists of the Detaining Power.

B. ACCOMMODATION IN NEUTRAL COUNTRIES

The following shall be eligible for accommodation in a neutral country:

(1) All wounded prisoners of war who are not likely to recover in captivity, but who might be cured or whose condition might be considerably improved by accommodation in a neutral country.

(2) Prisoners of war suffering from any form of tuberculosis, of whatever organ, and whose treatment in a neutral country would be likely to lead to recovery or at least to considerable improvement, with the exception of primary tuberculosis cured before captivity.

(3) Prisoners of war suffering from affections requiring treatment of the respiratory, circulatory, digestive, nervous, sensory, genito-urinary, cutaneous, locomotive organs, etc., if such treatment would clearly have better results in a neutral country than in captivity.

(4) Prisoners of war who have undergone a nephrectomy in captivity for a non-tubercular renal affection; cases of osteomyelitis, on the way to recovery or latent; diabetes mellitus not requiring insulin treatment; etc.

(5) Prisoners of war suffering from war or captivity neuroses. Cases of captivity neurosis which are not cured after three months of accommodation in a neutral country, or which after that length of time are not clearly on the way to complete cure, shall be repatriated.

(6) All prisoners of war suffering from chronic intoxication (gases, metals, alkaloids, etc.), for whom the prospects of cure in a neutral country are especially favourable.

(7) All women prisoners of war who are pregnant or mothers with infants and small children.

The following cases shall not be eligible for accommodation in a neutral country:

(1) All duly verified chronic psychoses.

(2) All organic or functional nervous affections considered to be incurable.

(3) All contagious diseases during the period in which they are transmissible, with the exception of tuberculosis.

II. General Observations

(1) The conditions given shall, in a general way, be interpreted and applied in as broad a spirit as possible. Neuropathic and psychopathic conditions caused by war or captivity, as well as cases of tuberculosis in all stages, shall above all benefit by such liberal interpretation. Prisoners of war who have sustained several wounds, none of which, considered by itself, justifies repatriation, shall be examined in the same spirit, with due regard for the psychic traumatism due to the number of their wounds.

(2) All unquestionable cases giving the right to direct repatriation (amputation, total blindness or deafness, open pulmonary tuberculosis, mental disorder, malignant growth, etc.) shall be examined and repatriated as soon as possible by the camp physicians or by military medical commissions appointed by the Detaining Power.

(3) Injuries and diseases which existed before the war and which have not become worse, as well as war injuries which have not prevented subsequent military service, shall not entitle to direct repatriation.

(4) The provisions of this Annex shall be interpreted and applied in a similar manner in all countries party to the conflict. The Powers and authorities concerned shall grant to Mixed Medical Commissions all the facilities necessary for the accomplishment of their task.

(5) The examples quoted under (1) above represent only typical cases. Cases which do not correspond exactly to these provisions shall be judged in the spirit of the provisions of Article 110 of the present Convention, and of the principles embodied in the present Agreement.

Annex II. Regulations Concerning Mixed Medical Commissions (see Art 112.)

Art 1. The Mixed Medical Commissions provided for in Article 112 of the Convention shall be composed of three members, two of whom shall belong to a neutral country, the third being appointed by the Detaining Power. One of the neutral members shall take the chair.

Art 2. The two neutral members shall be appointed by the International Committee of the Red Cross, acting in agreement with the Protecting Power, at the request of the Detaining Power. They may be domiciled either in their country of origin, in any other neutral country, or in the territory of the Detaining Power.

Art 3. The neutral members shall be approved by the Parties to the conflict concerned, who shall notify their approval to the International Committee of the Red Cross and to the Protecting Power. Upon such notification, the neutral members shall be considered as effectively appointed.

Art 4. Deputy members shall also be appointed in sufficient number to replace the regular members in case of need. They shall be appointed at the same time as the regular members or, at least, as soon as possible.

Art 5. If for any reason the International Committee of the Red Cross cannot arrange for the appointment of the neutral members, this shall be done by the Power protecting the interests of the prisoners of war to be examined.

Art 6. So far as possible, one of the two neutral members shall be a surgeon and the other a physician.

Art 7. The neutral members shall be entirely independent of the Parties to the conflict, which shall grant them all facilities in the accomplishment of their duties.

Art 8. By agreement with the Detaining Power, the International Committee of the Red Cross, when making the appointments provided for in Articles 2 and 4 of the present Regulations, shall settle the terms of service of the nominees.

Art 9. The Mixed Medical Commissions shall begin their work as soon as possible after the neutral members have been approved, and in any case within a period of three months from the date of such approval.

Art 10. The Mixed Medical Commissions shall examine all the prisoners designated in Article 113 of the Convention. They shall propose repatriation, rejection, or reference to a later examination. Their decisions shall be made by a majority vote.

Art 11. The decisions made by the Mixed Medical Commissions in each specific case shall be communicated, during the month following their visit, to the Detaining Power, the Protecting Power and the International Committee of the Red Cross. The Mixed Medical Commissions shall also inform each prisoner of war examined of the decision made, and shall issue to those whose repatriation has been proposed, certificates similar to the model appended to the present Convention.

Art 12. The Detaining Power shall be required to carry out the decisions of the Mixed Medical Commissions within three months of the time when it receives due notification of such decisions.

Art 13. If there is no neutral physician in a country where the services of a Mixed Medical Commission seem to be required, and if it is for any reason impossible to appoint neutral doctors who are resident in another country, the Detaining Power, acting in agreement with the Protecting Power, shall set up a Medical Commission which shall undertake the same duties as a Mixed Medical Commission, subject to the provisions of Articles 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 8 of the present

Regulations.

Art 14. Mixed Medical Commissions shall function permanently and shall visit each camp at intervals of not more than six months.

Annex III. Regulations Concerning Collective Relief (See Art 73.)

Art 1. Prisoners' representatives shall be allowed to distribute collective relief shipments for which they are responsible, to all prisoners of war administered by their camp, including those who are in hospitals, or in prisons or other penal establishments.

Art 2. The distribution of collective relief shipments shall be effected in accordance with the instructions of the donors and with a plan drawn up by the prisoners' representatives. The issue of medical stores shall, however, be made for preference in agreement with the senior medical officers, and the latter may, in hospitals and infirmaries, waive the said instructions, if the needs of their patients so demand. Within the limits thus defined, the distribution shall always be carried out equitably.

Art 3. The said prisoners' representatives or their assistants shall be allowed to go to the points of arrival of relief supplies near their camps, so as to enable the prisoners' representatives or their assistants to verify the quality as well as the quantity of the goods received, and to make out detailed reports thereon for the donors.

Art 4. Prisoners' representatives shall be given the facilities necessary for verifying whether the distribution of collective relief in all subdivisions and annexes of their camps has been carried out in accordance with their instructions.

Art 5. Prisoners' representatives shall be allowed to fill up, and cause to be filled up by the prisoners' representatives of labour detachments or by the senior medical officers of infirmaries and hospitals, forms or questionnaires intended for the donors, relating to collective relief supplies (distribution, requirements, quantities, etc.). Such forms and questionnaires, duly completed, shall be forwarded to the donors without delay.

Art 6. In order to secure the regular issue of collective relief to the prisoners of war in their camp, and to meet any needs that may arise from the arrival of new contingents of prisoners, prisoners' representatives shall be allowed to build up and maintain adequate reserve stocks of collective relief. For this purpose, they shall have suitable warehouses at their disposal; each warehouse shall be provided with two locks, the prisoners' representative holding the keys of one lock and the camp commander the keys of the other.

Art 7. When collective consignments of clothing are available, each prisoner of war shall retain in his possession at least one complete set of clothes. If a prisoner has more than one set of clothes, the prisoners' representative shall be permitted to withdraw excess clothing from those with the largest number of sets, or particular articles in excess of one, if this is necessary in order to supply prisoners who are less well provided. He shall not, however, withdraw second sets of underclothing, socks or footwear, unless this is the only means of providing for prisoners of war with none.

Art 8. The High Contracting Parties, and the Detaining Powers in particular, shall authorize, as far as possible and subject to the regulations governing the supply of the population, all purchases of goods made in their territories for the distribution of collective relief to prisoners of war. They shall similarly facilitate the transfer of funds and other financial measures of a technical or administrative nature taken for the purpose of making such purchases.

Art 9. The foregoing provisions shall not constitute an obstacle to the right of prisoners of war to receive collective relief before their arrival in a camp or in the course of transfer, nor to the possibility of representatives of the Protecting Power, the International Committee of the Red Cross, or any other body giving assistance to prisoners which may be responsible for the forwarding of such supplies, ensuring the distribution thereof to the addressees by any other means that they may deem useful.

Annex V. Model Regulations Concerning Payments Sent by Prisoners to their Own Country (See Art 63.)

(1) The notification referred to in the third paragraph of Article 63 will show:

(a) number as specified in Article 17, rank, surname and first names of the prisoner of war who is the payer;

(b) the name and address of the payee in the country of origin;

(c) the amount to be so paid in the currency of the country in which he is detained.

(2) The notification will be signed by the prisoner of war, or his witnessed mark made upon it if he cannot write, and shall be countersigned by the prisoners' representative.

(3) The camp commander will add to this notification a certificate that the prisoner of war concerned has a credit balance of not less than the amount registered as payable.

(4) The notification may be made up in lists, each sheet of such lists being witnessed by the prisoners' representative and certified by the camp commander.

SECTION IX SUPPLEMENTAL INFORMATION

Working With Specific Religious Groups

ISLAMIC SANCTIONS IN ISLAMIC SOCIETIES

By Gary Hill

Historical Perspective

The devout Muslim will tell you that Islam began long before the prophet Muhammad introduced it in 610 A.D. Others trace the origin of Islam to 7th century Saudi Arabia when Muhammad in 610 A.D. experienced what he called an angelic visitation. Muhammad dictated the Qur'an, the sacred book of Islam, but it was not originated by him. The Qur'an itself says that it was given by God through the angel Gabriel to the prophet Muhammad.

The Qur'an defines standards of human conduct, but it does not contain a detailed legal code. Only a few verses in the Qur'an actually deal with legal issues. Muhammad helped clarify the law by interpreting provisions in the Qur'an and acting as a judge in legal cases. After the death of Muhammad in 632 A.D., as the Muslim Empire expanded through conquest, parts of Jewish, Greek, Roman, Persian, and Christian church law were used in the development of Sharia. Sharia is an Arabic word meaning "the right path" and refers to traditional Islamic law.

The Umayyad dynasty caliphs (political-religious rulers), who took control of Muslim Empire in 661 A.D., appointed Islamic judges, kadis, to decide cases involving Muslims. Non-Muslims kept their own system. In 750 A.D., the Umayyads were overthrown and replaced by the Abbasids who transferred a large part of the criminal law from the kadis to the government. By around 900 A.D., handbooks for judges to use in making decisions had been produced.

Criminal procedure that had developed over time followed due process, including the right to remain silent, presumption of innocence and a fair and public trial before an impartial judge. The use of preventive detention is to be severely limited. Interrogation should only be conducted by designated officials of good character and the use of intimidation is not allowed.

The 1800's brought either control or influence to the region by colonial powers and Western-style laws, courts, punishments modified or, in some cases such as Turkey, replaced Sharia. Beginning around 1980, nations such as Iran and others with Islamic regimes attempted to bring back classic Sharia. There is a body of Islamic legal scholars who believe that Sharia can be adapted to modern conditions without abandoning the spirit of Islamic law or its religious foundations.

Islamic Penal Systems

Islamic penal systems, like those of any other kind of system, are generally based on and governed by a specific theory or philosophy. The typical Islamic penal system is primarily a religious system, so it deals with "sin" and "culpability." "Speaking of goodness and shunning evil" represents the philosophical background for every system governing social relations in Islam. In the final analysis, this background reflects the social solidarity of the Islamic world in its move to reach its ultimate goal, the idealistic society and the idealistic human being.

The idealistic society must be based on mutual aid and goodness. Allah (God of Islam) said, "Help ye one another in rightness and piety, but help ye not one another in sin and rancor." Social solidarity has many aspects in the Islamic world, solidarity for existence and protection of society, solidarity in settling any dispute or contract between Muslims.

Idealistic society as a final goal must depend on social justice and social defense; consequently the criminal policies in Islamic society seek the determination of individual responsibility to confirm the guilty and to apply sanctions cited in the Koran (Qur'an - holy book of Islam) and the Sunna (traditional Moslem law).

Legislative Objectives

One of the objectives of Islamic legislation is maintaining the essential basic needs of the individual because depriving them of any of these items would disrupt their lives. There are five basic needs: the religion, the soul, the mind, the descendants, and the property. Therefore, incrimination is related to the object-matter of the crime. Major crimes like apostasy and transgression affect religion; adultery and slander affect descendants; alcoholism affects the mind; crimes against property affect property and public security, etc.

Sanctions can be divided in most of the Arab criminal law to principal sanctions and complementary sanctions.

Principal sanctions are those cited in the criminal code and implemented by the court. Complementary sanctions are those that "makes perfect" the principal sanctions. They are to seek preventive goals such as deprivation of rights and privileges, interdiction of certain occupation or profession, police control and confiscation. Criminal doctrine considers principal sanctions as typical and essential for treating criminality and criminals, but complementary ones are marginal and additional, so they cannot be implemented alone.

Sanctions in Arab societies are governed by Sharia Islamic Law and are used according to the trichotomy qualifications: Hedud crimes (serious crimes or violations to the rights of God), Taazir crimes (real criminal code or violations to the rights of the collective), and Kasas crimes (vendetta or violations to the rights of the individual).

Alternative Sanctions

Alternative compensative sanctions, such as Dia (blood money paid to the relatives of the victim on condition for them not to ask for vendetta) are normal substitutes not only in Islamic society, but also in customary laws among tribes. Another is Arsh, a moral compensation declaring culpability without demanding equal punishment. It is a sort of pardon and mercy. The Islamic doctrine does not permit Kasas to be combined with Dia. Dia is an essential tool to realize the balance between tribes, and it still governs social relations in Yemen, Jordan, and Egypt. Hashm (another form of compensation) is a sanction for involuntary homicide paid beside the Dia calculated according to Sharia.

Two essential principles govern the law: one deals with legality and the other deals with responsibility. The principle of "No crime, no penalty, unless quoted" is accounted for in Islamic legislation. Hedud and Kasas crimes and their penalties are accounted for in the Koran and Sunna; as for Taazir crimes, the majority of penalties are left to the State's authority to be assigned according to the seriousness of the offense. Legality is supported in the following Sura (section from the Koran), "Our Lord! Impose not on us that which we have not the strength to hear!" Responsibility is supported in the Sura, "Every soul is a pledge for its own deeds." Another supports equality before the law saying, "Oh God, if Fatima, daughter of Mohammed, stole she would cut her hand off."

Suspending Consequences

The "cut her hand off" statement above is probably the best known and least understood example of the realities of Islamic law. The severe penalties in the Islamic system were formulated in such a way that society was compelled to proceed for mitigation which "de facto" suspends its unpleasant consequences. Hedud penalties usually lead to corporal sanctions governed by the "law of evidence" strictly applied by judges. Consequently those corporal sanctions are rarely applied by the judges because of the principle "In dubio pro Reo" (when in doubt find in favor of the offender). For example, the penalty for adultery (a Hedud offense) for unmarried men or women is 100 stripes (flogging), and for the married man or woman the penalty is death. However, it is necessary that there be four eye-witnesses to the adultery, or the judge can qualify the act as Taazir. Thus there is a tendency to restrict the application of the Hedud punishments as much as possible. So the severeness of the penalty is counteracted with the need for an attested proof to insure that the penalty is rightfully inflicted. Another example of mitigation can be found in Kasas crimes involving homicide and bodily harm. The corporal punishment will be replaced with Dia or other compensation, if the harmed party allows it. Pardon is another form of mitigation which opens the door to friendly settlement. In the above example, it should be noted that the term "adultery" in Western law is defined as voluntary sexual intercourse of a married person with a person other than the offender's husband or wife. In Islam, adultery is called Zena and has the general meaning of all kinds of unlawful intercourse.

Crime Classification

Penalties sanctioned in Islamic sources are correlated with a specific classification of crime. Hedud crimes represent a majority of acts considered a violation of God's rights, duly restricted by God. The second group is Kasas which deals with acts considered a violation of individual rights. Taazir are the third kind of crimes and sanctions. These are left to be determined by the leaders of the Islamic society with a specific goal of reformation and correction. Hedud crimes are the object of discussion between Islamic scholars. Some cite seven offenses (adultery, alcoholism, theft, robbery, apostasy, transgression). Others accept only four offenses in this category (adultery/Zena, slander, theft, and highway robbery -). There are five Kasas crimes (premeditated murder, quasi-premeditated murder, negligent murder, intended crimes which cause injury other than homicide, and unintended crimes which cause injury other than homicide). Taazir can be compared with other modern crimes and the sanctions are developed by the caliph or the ruler of the Islamic society, in line with what is felt to be society's needs.

By restrictive ordinance in the Hedud, restrictive penalties exist: death penalty either by stoning or crucifixion or with the sword; cutting off of the hand or foot; and flogging with a varied number of lashes. For Kasas, punishment is the subject of private claims and generally executed according to the principle of "life for the life, eye for the eye, nose for the nose, ear for the ear, tooth for the tooth, and for wounds, retaliation." There are several preventive or punitive measures in the case of Taazir besides corporal punishment including banishment, imprisonment, confiscation, blame, losing a job.

The following table shows alternatives available for the various stages of Islamic law:

INSTITUTION → ALTERNATIVES

1 Pre-trial stage → Detention pending trial → Bail

2. Sentencing Stage

A. Hedud → Corporal Punishment (flogging, stoning, decapitation) → Imprisonment.

B. Kasas → Death → Dia (Blood Money)

C. Taazir → Imprisonment → Advising, Warning, Reprimand, or Monetary Penalties.

3. Post-Judicial Stage → Prison → Pardon, Amnesty .

A survey was conducted in 1994 by Mohamed Zeid of the Global Security Foundation with 60 respondents from Saudi Arabia, Egypt, Jordan, Syria, Sudan, Tunisia, North Yemen, Libya and Iraq. The survey was in the form of hypothetical situations (i.e. A person breaks and enters into an apartment and steals 40 Saudi Riyals (standard currency units) worth of property; a parent beats his son pretending that he educates him, but the child is hurt and spends a few days in the hospital; two workers kidnap a young virgin girl and commit sexual assault in an abandoned place, etc.}. The survey asked what would be suitable to serve as sanctions or measures or both for convicted offenders in each of the cases given. Those completing the survey were highly qualified experts (i.e. professors of Sharia, criminal law, criminology, penology, and police, judges, and district attorneys). The results, which of course varied with specific questions, tended towards Taazir penalties (imprisonment) as opposed to Hedud penalties (amputation for example) due to the difficulty in obtaining the evidence required to prove a Hedud offense.

The use of prisons in Islamic societies, like in the Western World, seems to have become the punishment of choice. However, in nations characterized by the West as practicing the strictest form of Islam, a comparison of their prison populations is instructive, Saudi Arabia has an incarceration rate of 110 per 100,000 and Kuwait 102 per 100,000. Those compare favorably to those in Europe. Iran has an incarceration rate of 226 per 100,000, high by Western European standards, but well below those of Eastern Europe and the United States.

The implementation and re-application of Sharia, even modified by Western influence, will be interesting to watch and, hopefully, learn from. One thing we all might learn from comes from the Prophet Muhammad who said, “Prevent punishment in case of doubt, release the accused if possible, for it is better that the ruler be guilty of the wrong of forgiving than wrong of punishment.”

THE RELIGIOUS RIGHTS, DUTIES AND CUSTOMS OF MUSLIM INMATES IN PRISON

A GUIDE FOR CRIMINAL JUSTICE PERSONNEL

Compiled by Gary Hill, Information Director
United Nations Alliance on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice in consultation with The Arab Security Studies and Training Center, Riyadh, Saudi Arabia as part of the work of Resource Committee Five of the International Scientific and Professional Advisory Council of the United Nations for Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice (ISPAC)

BACKGROUND:

During a series of seminars and training sessions conducted by the International Scientific and Professional Advisory Council of the United Nations (ISPAC), it was found that administrative and security personnel in many prisons throughout the world do not understand the religious rights and duties of the Muslim inmates they hold. Good correctional practice is built upon a recognition of, and respect for, fundamental human values such as respect for the rights and duties of all individuals. This includes the need to respect the social, cultural and religious differences of individual offenders. Thus the following was prepared from information provided by the Arab Security Studies and Training Center (ASSTC), an Arab Regional Center in Riyadh, Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. The ASSTC carefully reviewed and approved all the material pertaining to Religious Rights and Duties. The material was further refined by adding suggestions to help justice personnel find ways to permit observant Muslim inmates to practice as many of their religious duties as good prison practice allows.

RELIGIOUS DUTIES OF EVERY MUSLIM

1. It is forbidden to Muslims to eat ham or pork as meat, soup or gravy.

Explanation: Muslims can eat all other types of meat, fish, vegetables and fruit unless they are cooked in pork fat or contain pork in the gravy or has any pork products mixed with it during the cooking or serving. It is further forbidden to Muslims to eat meat which is not slaughtered according to Islamic Law.

Implementation suggestions: If the main menu contains ham or pork in any form or has used pork fat in the cooking process, a separate menu or alternative food source should be provided for Muslim inmates. Those alternative meals can be either cooked separately in the prison kitchen or can be obtained from outside prison sources (such as pre-packaged food found in the normal grocery stores) or can be composed of bread, cheese, alternative luncheon meat, peanut butter or other normal staples found in the prison kitchen. It is also possible that all of the regular meal being served to the general inmate population, except the course containing the pork or pork products, also be given to the Muslim inmates and that only the offending part of the meal be substituted with an alternative, such as those mentioned above. A local Muslim leader should be consulted to find an appropriate source for meat which has been slaughtered according to Islamic Law. If no local Muslim leader can be found, the embassy of Saudi Arabia or other Muslim nation should be contacted to find an appropriate source or to help answer any questions.

2. It is forbidden to Muslims to drink alcohol or eat food cooked in alcohol

Explanation: No alcoholic beverages are used in any Muslim personal, social or religious life. Its use is a sin. No alcohol is used by Muslims in cooking and eating food cooked with alcohol as one of the ingredients is considered the same as drinking the alcohol.

Implementation suggestions: This is self explanatory and generally not a problem in a correctional setting. However, some cultures use alcoholic beverages (such as wine or rum) in cooking or in religious or cultural settings. Care must be taken, where some form of alcoholic beverages are permitted, to inform cooks, visitors who bring food for inmates, and staff about this prohibition and to have alternate foods available for Muslim prisoners and detainees.

3. Every Muslim is required to pray five times each day

Explanation: This applies to both male and female Muslims. The prayers come at prescribed times:

- (1) Just after dawn and before sunrise
- (2) At mid-day
- (3) About three and one-half hours after the midday prayer and before a reasonable time from sunset
- (4) Just after sunset
- (5) About one and one-half hours after the sunset prayer and before dawn

Though not mandatory, many Muslims also pray at other times, especially at night.

In prayers, Muslims face the Kaaba (a small cube-shaped structure in the courtyard of al-Haram- the "inviolable place" - the great mosque of Mecca). A single unit of prayer consists of standing posture, then a genuflection followed by two prostrations, and finally a sitting posture. In each of these postures prescribed prayers and portions of the Koran are recited. All five prayers in Islam are congregational and are to be offered in a mosque, but they may be offered individually if, for some reason, a person cannot be present with a congregation.

Muslim prisoners should be able to assemble for group prayer in the morning (20 minutes after sunrise) of the first day of the feast of Ramadan and the first day of the Grand Bairam (Haj) which occurs about 2 months and 10 days after Ramadan.

Each Friday, at noon prayer, Muslim prisoners should be allowed to listen to a Muslim religious preacher's speech and have a group prayer.

In prayers, Female Muslims are completely dressed except for face and hands, Female and Male Muslims wear clean dresses.

Implementation suggestions: An alarm clock or other method of indicating the time should be provided to the inmate. In some cases, the officer on watch in the course of performing his or her normal duties can notify the inmate of the approach of prayer time. The officials of the institution, either by consulting a community Muslim source or a proper map, should insure that all Muslim prisoners know the direction of Mecca from within whatever room they are likely to be confined during prayer times. Because of the genuflection, prostration and sitting on the floor or ground the inmate should be allowed to have a small "prayer rug" or a suitable floor covering should be provided. Wherever the facilities and security permit, group or congregational prayer should be facilitated. Men and women must have separate facilities or should be able to be located separate from each other in the group prayer room. It is not appropriate for Muslim men and women to pray together. If a Muslim religious preacher is not available, tapes or copies of speeches may be obtained from an Islamic Center within the nation or by contacting the Saudi Arabia embassy or the embassy of other Muslim nations.

4. Every Muslim (male and female) should have access to the Holy Koran

Explanation: Study and even memorization of the Koran and reading Islamic books is an important part of the religion. Muslims should be allowed visits from religious preachers and leaders.

Implementation suggestions: Inmates should be allowed to purchase their own Koran or have one provided to them by others. Prison libraries should contain copies of the Koran and other Islamic religious books. Local or national Islamic centers or mosques can help provide such material. Because the original language of the Koran is Arabic, where educational material is available, Muslim inmates who desire should be permitted to learn Arabic using either, if necessary, volunteer instructors and/or self-study material. Muslim prisoners should also be allowed to meet with Islamic religious leaders to facilitate their study of the religion. Contact with competent Islamic authorities in the local area or from the closest mosque should help verify the credentials of individuals purporting to be a qualified Islamic leader or teacher.

5. Every Muslim (male and female) has to fast the month of Ramadan every year.

Explanation: Because the Islamic calendar is lunar, Islamic festivals are not confined to any one season. Even during hot summers, most Muslims meticulously observe fasting. During the fasting month, a Muslim must refrain from eating, drinking, smoking and sexual intercourse from dawn until sunset. The Muslim, during this time, eats two meals - one after sunset and the other any time before dawn. Two additional fasts are recommended for Muslims, they are:

- 1.) Starting three days after the termination of the month of Ramadan for six days.
- 2.) The 9th, 11th, 12th and 13th of Zilhigga (roughly 2 months and 10 days after Ramadan).
- 3.) Muslims may also fast on Monday and Thursday of every week and at any other time - this is not mandatory for all, but a personal choice.

Implementation suggestions: The date of Ramadan is generally well known and indicated on national and international news. However, contact with any Muslim mosque or organization can provide the exact dates. Muslim inmates can be allowed to have a late feeding time if the normal feeding time is prior to sunset or they should be allowed to have food in their housing area that they can eat after sunset. Additional food (juice, fruit, bread, etc.) can be kept by the inmate for consumption prior to dawn of the next day. No special food is required.

6. Every Muslim (male and female) is required to wash his or her limbs (hands, face, head, ears, arms and feet) before every prayer and before handling the Holy Koran.

Explanation: In addition, every Muslim has to clean the rest of his or her body at least once a week.

Implementation suggestions: The provision of soap and water at a place convenient to where the inmate will pray or handle the Koran should present no additional problems in a prison environment where water for washing is normally available to the prisoners at all times. In prisons where the inmate is locked in an area away from washing facilities, arrangements must be made to allow them to use the wash facilities prior to the times prescribed for prayer. A container of water, soap, a basin and towel can also be left with the prisoner to use prior to prayer or handling the Koran if moving them to a washing facility is not possible due to normal prison regime or physical layout.

7. Female Muslim prisoners must be completely dressed, except for face and hands, in front of other males or females. Male Muslim prisoners are not to be naked in front of others (male or female)

Explanation: A partially uncovered woman or a naked man is an insult to the dignity of a Muslim.

Implementation suggestions: Dressing, bathing and toilet facilities should be provided with a door or curtain for both male and female Muslim inmates. If a security search is deemed necessary it should be done out of the sight of other inmates and staff and only the amount of clothes absolutely necessary to conduct the search should be removed. Use of professional clothed body searching techniques should be employed and carefully conducted to avoid, as much as possible, the need for clothing removal. Metal and drug detectors, dogs capable of sniffing drugs and/or intensified observation of those suspected of carrying contraband should be employed before a body search requiring removal of clothing is conducted. In no case should female staff search male Muslim inmates nor should male staff search female inmates.

8. Muslims have the right to be alone with their wife or husband in a private room

Explanation: It is a strong Muslim tradition (and practiced in prisons in Saudi Arabia, for example) to be able to marry and to visit their husband or wife for the purpose of sexual relations at least once a month. If security does not permit a furlough for an inmate to meet with his or her spouse in their home, then a private facility within the prison should be considered. It is normal, in many parts of the world, for prisons to have special rooms, decorated tastefully, and away from potential harassment of staff and inmates, where spouses can meet privately.

Also, common in many prisons housing females around the world, and especially important for Muslim women, is the ability for those with small children, who desire to do so, to be able to keep those children with them until the child reaches an age of two.

AN INFORMATION GUIDE ABOUT THE RELIGIOUS RIGHTS AND RELIGIOUS WAY OF LIVING OF JEWISH INMATES IN PRISONS

A GUIDE FOR PRISON STAFF
AUGUST 2001

BACKGROUND

The contents of this Guide was prepared by Gary Hill, Scientific Coordinator of the International Scientific and Professional Advisory Council of the United Nations (ISPAC), in cooperation with the Government of Israel, Ministry of Public Security.

No doubt, good correctional practice is that which is built upon a recognition of, and respect for fundamental human values such as respect for the rights and duties of all individuals. This includes the need to respect the social, cultural and religious differences of individual offenders.

This publication is not meant as a Guide to good religious practice for Jews. Rather, it is intended to help correctional practitioners understand what observant Jews believe and practice. Many people, of all religions, choose not to observe all the customs or practices of their religion, but those who do should be allowed to do so and, in most cases, can practice without causing extra expense or security concerns to correctional systems. It is hoped that the cataloguing of the Jewish practices in this booklet will help correctional personnel understand what some Jewish prisoners see as their religious duties and that the sections on Implementation Suggestions will help authorities permit their practice.

INTRODUCTION

To be Jewish is a way of life that obligates the Jewish person (regardless of situation and or circumstances) to behave in a certain way. It includes things the person can do and cannot do. The laws of Judaism cover the ways of thinking, acting and relating to other people and to the environment.

This is not a guide on Judaism, but includes only those items that may be of concern to the security or cost of the penal institution. Jewish religious leaders in the community should be consulted for more detailed information.

The Guide is set up to explain the religious right and/or duty of the Jews and will explain the religious/philosophical rationale as well as giving practical guidance to the prison staff on how the inmates may be allowed to fulfill their duty.

Jewish duties are divided between those a Jew must do as an individual and those between a Jew and other people. What a Jew must do between himself and his God include such things as praying, eating kosher food and keeping the Sabbath and other religious holidays.

1. It is forbidden for a Jew to eat foods that are not kosher

Explanation: “Kosher” mean conforming to dietary laws so all food is ‘ritually pure’. Kosher food is prepared, stored and eaten in accordance with strict dietary laws. For example, meat can only come from certain animals (such as cattle and sheep) that must be slaughtered and prepared in a certain manner. Even if the animal is acceptable, some animal parts are not. Only some types of fish are acceptable (no shellfish can be kosher). Milk and meat may not be eaten together and separate dishes and utensils must be used for cooking or serving them. In addition, meat and milk cannot be eaten within a certain period of time from each other. In the case of prepackaged meals or other food cooked in ovens in which non-kosher food is prepared, it is important to make sure the kosher food is double wrapped in order to prevent it from being contaminated by coming in contact with a surfaces that held non-kosher food. It is forbidden to eat worms or grubs, so vegetables such as lettuce must be carefully washed and checked.

Implementation suggestions: The religious laws governing kosher food are very detailed and complex. It is not necessary, nor practical for prison staff to learn them. If possible, food should be allowed to be brought in from the outside – there are several sources of pre-packaged kosher food, including individual meals that can be heated in microwave or conventional ovens. There is no religious prohibition against food brought in from the outside being passed through detectors or screening devices as long as it remains sealed against contamination. To find appropriate sources for kosher food and to help pay for them, the prison administration or chaplain can contact a local Rabbi or Jewish leader. If no local Jewish community exists, an Israeli Embassy can be contacted. If there is no Israeli Embassy in the nation, then contacting an Embassy of the United States, Canada or Great Britain should lead to an appropriate resource. It is also possible to ask representatives of international airlines for help acquiring kosher meals as most offer them to their Jewish passengers. If the correctional facility has the facilities, Jewish prisoners could be allowed to cook their own food with their own utensils.

2. A Jew must observe the Sabbath

Explanation: The Sabbath is a weekly holy day from Friday, 20 minutes before sunset, until Saturday after stars show in the sky (approximately 1 hour 15 minutes after sundown). Exact times are stipulated in Jewish religious calendars.

During the Sabbath a Jew cannot work, do any physically creative work (like writing), participate in sports, light fires, use electronic equipment such as a telephone, radio, or television, get a haircut or ride in a vehicle. The Jew cannot be the recipient of the benefits of work of a non-Jew, such as someone else cooking for him or her (if they had to prepare the food on the Sabbath) – food may be prepared in advance and kept warm -- or turning on a light for them. Activation of electric or electronic devices is considered work and thus prohibited on the Sabbath. The exception is when life is threatened and the person needs to perform “work” such as riding to a hospital, or fighting a fire.

Implementation suggestions: To obtain a Jewish calendar that lists the time the Sabbath begins and ends and the time the Sabbath candles (explained below) should be lit, the prison administration or chaplain can contact a local Rabbi or Jewish leader. If no local Jewish community exists, an Israeli Embassy can be contacted. If there is no Israeli Embassy in the nation, then contacting an Embassy of the United States, Canada or Great Britain should lead to an appropriate resource.

Jewish prisoners could be allowed to stay either in their housing unit or the room used as the synagogue during the Sabbath. That way they will not be placed in a position where they would be subject to opening doors, turning on lights or partaking in other activities which might be considered work. Because it is forbidden for a Jew, who is forbidden from working himself, to benefit from the action of others who are working on the Sabbath, allowing the Jew to stay in his quarters or in an area with open movement will prevent security staff from having to open doors or turn on lights for the inmate. Food can be prepared in advance and, if appropriate, kept warm by some means that will not require turning the unit on or off. Restricting movement will also negate the need for staff to search the Jewish prisoner, an act that is work for the officers involved. If toilets or water faucets are activated electronically or by electricity, water in a pitcher and a basin can be used to supply drinking and washing water during the Sabbath. Also, a portable toilet or bucket can be used for personal sanitation. If such is the case, it must be separated from the living area.

Explanation: In preparation for the Sabbath, the Jew must:

- A. Wash his or her body in warm water, change clothes, and clean his or her living quarters;
- B. Light at least two candles before the Sabbath begins (they burn out naturally);

C. Recite a prayer before the meal (includes a special blessing and drinking of kosher wine or grape juice; and

D. Eat three meals on the Sabbath -- one Friday night, two on Saturday. Each meal needs two full loaves of bread (not sliced) baked according to Jewish law.

Implementation suggestions: Water, preferably warm water, can be kept in or near the living area. Candles, wine or grape juice, bread and food can be acquired as described previously. If the candles would be considered a fire hazard, after they are lit they could be kept in a fireproof or secure area until they burn out naturally. The wine or grape juice must be in a sealed bottle prior to its use on Shabbat.

Explanation: The Sabbath prayers are longer than daily prayers – it is important to pray in a synagogue (common place) with at least nine other Jews. The Havdalah service is at the end of the Sabbath and includes a blessing on wine or kosher grape juice, smelling spices and lighting of a special candle.

Implementation suggestions: To find appropriate sources for the special Havdalah candles, spice and spice holder, wine or grape juice, and to help pay for them, the prison administration or chaplain can contact a local Rabbi or Jewish leader. If no local Jewish community exists, an Israeli Embassy can be contacted. If there is no Israeli Embassy in the nation, then contacting an Embassy of the United States, Canada or Great Britain should lead to an appropriate resource.

A policy could be established that might be as follows:

“The Director after consultation with the Facility Chaplains or Coordinating Chaplain shall provide suitable areas for scheduled worship services and scheduled religious programs by the approved religious groups. Adequate time shall be allowed. All spaces in facilities that are designated as places for religious worship are to be reserved for religious use only. Always, the spaces designated for religious purposes are to be dealt with in a respectful manner.”

“In some facilities, because of space limitations, religious activities might be scheduled in multipurpose or all-purpose spaces such as classrooms or meeting halls. Where this practice is required, respect should always be given to the sometime sacred and religious use of the space. Shared areas for worship and programs should not include fixed symbols, mirrors, etc. If a serious question arises regarding the appropriateness of a given activity for a religious space, the matter should be presented to a local Rabbi or knowledgeable, observant Jew for resolution.”

Explanation: Other factors to consider for Jewish prisoners in regards to the Sabbath:

1. Cannot release a Jewish prisoner on the Sabbath – must be before or after the Sabbath;
2. Cannot transport a Jewish inmate in a car on the Sabbath, unless it is a life-threatening emergency; and
3. Must provide Jewish inmates who are given a furlough time to get to where they need to go before the Sabbath begins and return after the Sabbath ends.

3. Jewish Holidays

Explanation: Jewish Holidays are observed according to the Hebrew calendar that is different than the calendar used in most nations. Each holiday begins at sundown of the previous evening and extends until sundown as defined with regards to Sabbath, above. The holidays and requirements unique to each of them are listed below. All holidays have the same work restrictions as the Sabbath, unless stipulated otherwise. Four holidays require the person not to shave or cut his hair.

Implementation suggestions: To obtain a Jewish calendar that lists the Jewish holidays and when each begins and ends, the prison administration or chaplain can contact a local Rabbi or Jewish leader. If no local Jewish community exists, an Israeli Embassy can be contacted. If there is no

Israeli Embassy in the nation, then contacting an Embassy of the United States, Canada or Great Britain should lead to an appropriate resource. For all special items mentioned below, use the contacts mentioned in this paragraph to help obtain them.

Explanation: The Jewish Holidays are:

1. Rosh Hashanah (Jewish New Year) – 1st and 2nd day of Tishri (1st month of Jewish calendar, which usually occurs between late September to mid-October) – is celebrated in the synagogue and the service uses a Shofar (ram’s horn) and requires at least 10 Jewish males to be in attendance. Ten days prior to the beginning of the Jewish New Year is Slichot (in the Jewish month of Elul). Jews from some parts of the world celebrate Slichot for the entire month of Elul. During Slichot, the observant Jew will begin prayers very earlier in the morning and ask forgiveness.

2. Yom Kippur -- tenth day of Tishri, even outside of Israel, lasts one day only. On Yom Kippur the Jew must fast (not even water) from 18 minutes before sundown the evening before until 45 minutes after sundown the day of Yom Kippur, the exact times for any given year are listed in the Jewish Calendar – all rules that apply to the observance of the Sabbath apply, plus no leather shoes are to be worn. Because of the fast, a big meal is eaten the afternoon before Yom Kippur. At the conclusion of Yom Kippur is the Havdalah service (the same as mentioned under the Sabbath previously). At the conclusion of Yom Kippur is a Break-the-Fast-Meal.

3. Succoth – begins on the 15th day of Tishri (five days after Yom Kippur) and lasts for eight days plus one more day for an additional holiday (Simhat Torah) that immediately follows Succoth. Observant Jews abstain from work the first two days and the last two days of the holiday. The holiday is characterized by the building of a hut (called a Sukka) made of branches. An observant Jew is required to eat the evening meal on the first night of Succoth in the Sukka. The holiday service involves the use of a Lulav (special branch made up of three plants) and Etrog (fruit of the citron shrub). The Lulav is constructed of specific material and follows prescribed religious rules – therefore, one must be obtained from a Rabbi or outside source.

4. Hanukkah – 25th of Kislev (usually occurs in early to mid-December) and lasts eight days. There is no limitation on work or other activities. Each evening the Jew lights a candle, adding one more each night. The candles are usually placed in a special eight-branched candelabrum called a Menorah.

5. Purim – 15th of Adar (usually occurs in late February or early March). There is no limitation on work or other activities. Reading the Purim story from a special book called the Megillah marks the holiday and gifts are usually sent to the poor.

6. Passover – 15th of Nissan (usually occurs sometime between late-March and mid-April). Passover lasts for eight days and observant Jews abstain from work during the first two and last two days of the holiday. No breads or other foods containing leavened grains may be eaten or even kept in a person's room. Because of the unique food restrictions, special dishes and utensils are used. The first night in Israel and the first two nights outside of Israel, a Seder (special service that includes a meal) takes place and a special book called a Haggadah is used. During the Seder, Jews eat matzo (an unleavened bread). Special foods and wine (can be non-alcoholic or grape juice) are part of the celebration at the Seder.

7. Shavuot – sixth of Sivan (usually occurs in May or June). There are no special obligations for this holiday, but it is considered a major holiday and is dedicated to studying the Torah. Some Jews may want to stay up all night to study, if so they will need enough light to be able to read.

Implementation suggestions: In addition to obtaining advice, food, books and special items as mentioned before, the following may be helpful ideas for observing specific holidays:

Succoth – the sukka could be built by the inmates with material furnished from outside sources and could be placed in a secure interior or exterior yard.

Purim – Allow a special meal for the day and let inmate send items (edible) to another Jewish inmate or the poor to help fulfill part of his religious obligation.

Passover – To overcome the potential problem of having to use dishes and utensils different from the ones used normally, use disposable dishes. During the time between Passover and Shavuot, the observant Jew does not shave or get a haircut. The Jew must be able to clean his or her cell before the start of Passover and complete a special ceremony to “sweep out” all bread (leavened grains) and burn it.

Shavuot – allow synagogue attendance or individual study in the living area

4. Fasting day

Explanation: Healthy Jews must fast. That normally means no eating or drinking from sunrise until the stars come out. However, on the holidays of Yom Kippur and Tisha Be-Av (on the ninth day of the Jewish month of Av), the fast starts the day before at sundown.

In addition to the fasts on Yom Kippur and Tisha Be-Av, other fast days are the day after Rosh Hashanah, 10th of Tevet, 13th of Adar (day before Purim) and 17th of Tammuz. On fast days there should be no work and the Jew will wear a Tallit and Tefillin during the morning service. The Tallit and Tefillin will be explained later. During Tisha Be-Av (and the nine days prior to it), the observant Jew will not eat meat, drink wine, shave. On Tisha Be-Av observant Jews will not wear leather shoes.

Implementation suggestions: A hot meal should be provided before and after the fast. Religious services should be in the synagogue and at least 10 Jewish males must be present.

5. Mourning

Explanation: A Jew is required to mourn the death of a father, mother, brother, sister, son, daughter, husband, or wife. The day of the funeral, the person should participate in the funeral. That includes a symbolic cutting of the mourner’s clothes. The observant Jew, during the initial seven days of mourning will not leave his house and will not wear shoes or shave. They are not permitted to work or listen to music. A special (yhrtzeit) candle is lit and remains burning for seven days. At the end of seven days the mourner goes back to the cemetery to the grave, for a short service and then the mourner may work and wash.

For the first 30 days after the funeral, the mourner does not shave, get a haircut or cut nails. During the first year of mourning for parents, the mourner will not attend any joyous occasions. He will not cut his hair for three months. For 11 months, the mourner will say, at daily prayer, a special prayer (the Kaddish) and those services should have at least 10 Jews in attendance. At the end of one year the person goes back to the cemetery for a short service.

Implementation suggestions: Allow the mourner to go to the funeral and, if possible, give the inmate a 7-day furlough to allow him or her to mourn with his or her family. If that is not possible, allow the prisoner to sit in his or her room in prison without work for the initial seven days of mourning (called sitting shivah).

6. Normal Living

Explanation: The Jewish religion includes religious rituals and beliefs along with a code of ethical behavior. It also incorporates and reflects the ancient history of the Jews as a nation in its rituals, ceremonies and celebrations. Following are the more common obligations of observant Jews in their daily lives:

1. Hand washing and shaving – A Jew must wash in an area outside of the lavatory after waking up and before going to sleep, before eating bread, upon coming out from the toilet, before prayer and Torah study, and after touching a body part that is normally covered. A Jew should not use a straight edge razor; rather, an electric or safety razor should be used. A Jew should be allowed to grow a beard and some wear payais (side curls) that should not be cut.

2. Special Clothing:

- A. A man and a married woman must cover his or her hair during all hours of daylight. A man does this by wearing a “yarmulke” – a close-fitting skull-cap that can be made of cloth, knitted or crocheted, multicolored or single colored. A married woman covers her head with either a wig or a scarf.

- B. A man wears, during the day, a Tallit Katan (a fringed undergarment).
- C. Jews cannot wear clothes made of a mixture of wool and cotton; nor can they use blankets made of mixed wool and cotton.
- D. During morning prayer, a man wears a Tallit (large prayer shawl, approximately 66" x 66") and puts on Tefillin (two cubes, containing prayers, with black leather straps – one is placed on the head and the other is wrapped on the arm)

Implementation suggestions: The religious items – Tallit, Tefillin, Tallit Katan, Yarmulke – can be obtained by contacting a local Rabbi or Jewish leader. If no local Jewish community exists, an Israeli Embassy can be contacted. If there is no Israeli Embassy in the nation, then contacting an Embassy of the United States, Canada or Great Britain should lead to an appropriate resource.

3. Prayer in a Synagogue

A Jew prays in a synagogue three times a day – in the morning for approximately one hour, afternoon for approximately 20 minutes and in the evening for about 20 minutes. It is common to have the afternoon prayer timed so it ends a short time before the evening prayers begin. That way, only two separate visits to the synagogue are required each day. The exact times of the evening service can be found listed in most Jewish calendars. At the end of Sabbath another prayer (Havdalah) is added. A Jew prays facing towards Jerusalem and men and women are kept separate from each other during prayer (that separation requires a divider between them, the divider being tall enough to prevent the tallest person from seeing over it).

If it is not possible for a Jewish prisoner to pray in a synagogue on a daily basis with at least nine other Jews, then he may pray alone. The use of the Tallit and Tefillin is the same whether the Jew prays in the synagogue or in his own area. If possible, however, praying in a synagogue is especially desirable on Monday and Thursday morning and on Saturday morning in order to accommodate the reading from the Torah, which does require at least ten Jews to be in attendance. If a Torah is provided the prison by the Jewish community, it must be kept in a safe place and in an appropriate fashion befitting a holy book.

If no formal synagogue is available, the Jews can pray on their own in a clean place where there is no odor, no obscene pictures and is separate from toilets.

Implementation suggestions: The following policy might be considered:

“An inmate in keeplock (maximum-security confinement such as disciplinary segregation) status or confined to his or her cell or room shall be notified in writing in a language he or she can understand, upon commencement of such keeplock or confinement, that he or she may request permission to attend regularly scheduled religious services.

Such requests shall be made in writing to the designated prison official at least 48 hours before the scheduled service. However, if the inmate has been placed in keeplock less than 48 hours before the scheduled service, a request may be submitted 24 hours prior to the scheduled service. A separate request must be submitted for each service that the inmate desires to attend. The final decision to permit attendance rests with the prison authorities.”

Implementation suggestions: In a Jewish cell there should be a separation between housing and toilet, especially during time of prayer. If such a separation is not possible on a permanent basis, a barrier should be allowed during times of prayer.

4. Torah study

Explanation: Religious study is most important in Judaism. It can be done individually or in public. Preferably, it takes place in a group in a synagogue. Study should be in a clean place with no odor, no pictures or other distractions. Books such as the Torah (Pentateuch or the Pentateuch scroll for reading in the synagogue), Talmud (compendium of discussions on the Jewish Oral Law), Midrash (interpretations of the Scripture to elucidate legal points) and other religious and educational books.

Implementation suggestions: A local rabbi or Jewish religious leader could be asked to come and give lessons. Books can be obtained from outside sources mentioned previously and kept in either a special library or the regular prison library.

5. Modesty

Explanation: An observant Jew should not be in same room with a woman not his wife if there is a closed door that leaves them alone. People of opposite sex should be modestly covered in front of each other and should not touch each other unless they are married.

Implementation suggestions: Dressing, bathing and toilet facilities should be provided with a door or curtain for both male and female Jewish inmates. If a security search is deemed necessary it should be done out of the sight of other inmates and staff and only the amount of clothes absolutely necessary to conduct the search should be removed. Use of professional clothed-body searching techniques should be employed and carefully conducted to avoid, as much as possible, the need for clothing removal. Metal and drug detectors, dogs capable of sniffing drugs and/or intensified observation of those suspected of carrying contraband should be employed before a body search requiring removal of clothing is conducted. In no case should female staff search male Jewish inmates nor should male staff search female inmates.

6. Death of inmate

If a Jewish inmate dies, the closest Jewish community should be notified immediately as Jewish tradition requires specific actions in the preparation of the body for burial and the funeral must take place very quickly, usually within a day of the death.

7. Special events

The birth of a child, marriage and the bar or bat mitzvah (special ceremony when a child reaches 13 years of age) are accompanied by special religious ceremonies which a Jewish parent should be able to attend. In such cases a furlough would be the ideal solution, but if that is not possible a local rabbi or religious leader should be consulted to find a suitable alternative.

THE TREATMENT OF FOREIGN PRISONERS

By Gary Hill
January 2004

FORWARD

When diplomats, people-of-means, missionaries or adventurers used to visit foreign lands they would comment on the unique culture and the hard-to-understand differences of the local people. When people from small villages or towns traveled to their nations' capital they would return with stories of seeing people in strange dress or hearing languages they could not understand or eating strange food from another land. This was a time not so long ago – less than 50 years. Even after World War Two, travel was the province of the relatively few, other than some immigrants. Immigrants also were restricted to a few nations and were not something known to many peoples of the world.

Improvements in communications, advancements in the availability of transportation and access to news from and about foreign lands have made travel more attainable. These same developments have allowed many more to travel for entertainment, business or education. Many living in conditions of poverty, degradation or even in conditions below what they have heard exists elsewhere have sought new homes in distant lands. The world truly has “shrunk” and even in the most distant lands has become more accessible.

It is no surprise that the increase in foreign visitors has been accompanied by an increase in crime committed by foreigners. Also, the lack of language skills, or confusion about cultural differences or laws dealing with customs, adds to the potential of foreigners violating local laws.

When the numbers were small, often the solutions were simple – the person was taken to the border and turned loose. That has now changed. It is not uncommon to find prison populations in some nations consisting of nearly 50% foreign nationals. It also is not uncommon for those foreign prisoners to come from several different nations.

At the same time, prisons around the world have increased populations and often nations have had to stretch their national resources to cover a multitude of services. The summary of this, though far from unique to prisons, means more clients who need more diverse services, from a more sophisticated staff with fewer resources from which to draw. To argue the merits of more resources for prisons is a needed exercise for the political leaders and social lobbyists of the nations. However, those charged with running the prisons and jails must work with what they have today. The purpose of this booklet is twofold:

1. To help define what should, by international standards and common sense, be provided for foreign prisoners and some suggestions on how to obtain those services without burdening existing financial and staff resources.
2. To provide information for consideration by those who have been arrested or detained in a foreign nation and for their families and friends.

Many people from different walks of life and countries of origin will end up in prison or jail. All corrections professionals know that the basic principles of respect and ensuring the dignity of the individual and protecting human rights apply to all incarcerated people. However, foreign nationals might need some policies and procedures put in place to ensure they are treated properly. This document is intended for anyone interested in conditions of incarceration, be they correctional administrators, line-level staff, legislators, judicial personnel, citizens or offenders and their families.

For purposes of this document, a “prisoner” is defined as a person who is deprived, by a governing authority, of his or her liberty upon any action, civil or criminal. This does not include prisoners of war.

THE BASIC INTERNATIONAL RECOMMENDATIONS ON THE TREATMENT OF FOREIGN PRISONERS

Adopted in 1984 by the United Nations Committee on Crime Prevention and Control:

1. The allocation of a foreign prisoner to a prison establishment should not be effected on the grounds of his nationality alone.
2. Foreign prisoners should have the same access as national prisoners to education, work and vocational training.
3. Foreign prisoners should in principle be eligible for measures alternative to imprisonment, as well as for prison leave and other authorized exits from prison according to the same principles as nationals.
4. Foreign prisoners should be informed promptly after reception into a prison, in a language which they understand and generally in writing, of the main features of the prison regime, including relevant rules and regulations.
5. The religious precepts and customs of foreign prisoners should be respected.
6. Foreign prisoners should be informed without delay of their right to request contacts with their consular authorities, as well as of any other relevant information regarding their status. If a foreign prisoner wishes to receive assistance from a diplomatic or consular authority, the latter should be contacted.
7. Foreign prisoners should be given proper assistance, in a language they can understand, when dealing with medical or program staff and in such matters as complaints, special accommodations, special diets and religious representation and counseling.

8. Contacts of foreign prisoners with families and community agencies should be facilitated, by providing all necessary opportunities for visits and correspondence, with the consent of the prisoner. Humanitarian international organizations should be given the opportunity to assist foreign prisoners.
9. The conclusion of bilateral and multilateral agreements on supervision of and assistance to offenders given suspended sentences or granted parole could further contribute to the solution of the problems faced by foreign offenders.

It is easy to see that most of the above recommendations do not involve additional expenditures or much in the way of extra staff resources. Most can be accomplished with minor rule changes, community volunteers or resources available from foreign diplomatic, missionary or business personnel or government agencies responsible for attracting foreign business and tourism.

It must be noted that the above recommendations are a direct result of a nearly six-year effort by a Select Committee of the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe. The findings, recommendations and some of the commentary of that Select Committee are noted where appropriate.

The Select Committee pointed out that though the situation of foreign prisoners differs according to whether they have gone abroad as occasional visitors (tourists, students, businessmen) or for the purpose of taking up employment or settling permanently (migrant workers, second generation immigrants), a number of problems are common to most foreign prisoners and those are what precipitated the specific recommendations.

The recommendations of the Council of Europe (Recommendation No. R(84) 12 included an Appendix which defines the term “foreign prisoners” for the purpose of the recommendations as prisoners of a different nationality. However, this definition is qualified: the principles apply only to those foreigners who, on account of such factors as language, customs, cultural background or religion, may face specific problems. They do not therefore apply to foreigners who, for instance through long residence in the country of detention, have a command of its language, are assimilated to its culture and customs and have family and other social ties in that country.

The Council of Europe aim of the recommendations is to promote the social resettlement of foreign prisoners and they should be applied so as to ensure that the treatment of foreign prisoners is conducive to that aim. Thus, the preamble to the recommendations contained: “In implementing these principles, account should be taken of the requirements of the prison administration, including prison security, and the availability of resources according to the Council of Europe document. The principles should be applied so as to ensure that the treatment of foreign prisoners is conducive to their social resettlement. This might require adopting particular measures in relation to particular categories of foreign prisoners, taking into account such factors as nationality, language, religious precepts and customs, cultural background, length of sentence, and liability to expulsion. Every reasonable effort should be made to ensure that the treatment of foreign prisoners does not lead to their being disadvantaged.”

PRACTICAL CONSIDERATIONS AND IMPLEMENTATION STRATEGIES

1. The allocation of a foreign prisoner to a prison establishment should not be effected on the grounds of his nationality alone.

A. Implementation Concerns

It is possible that the normal isolation of a foreign national can be somewhat ameliorated by placing all those of the same culture, language ability or nation together. In nations with a limited number of staff having foreign language capabilities or with limited food preparation facilities, the provision of services needed by large numbers of inmates with the same religious food requirements or access to translation/interpretation services could be hampered by spreading foreign inmates out among several prisons or parts of a large single prison.

B. Implementation Strategies

The wording of the Principles Concerning Foreign Prisoners of the Council of Europe provides one of the best guidelines any nation might follow:

“The allocation of a foreign prisoner to a prison establishment should not be effected on the grounds of his nationality alone. If his allocation to a prison establishment is likely to alleviate his situation of isolation and to facilitate his treatment it may be effected according to his specific needs, particularly with regard to his communications with persons of the same nationality, language, religion or culture.”

Having said that, however, the Council of Europe goes on to say,

“When a foreign prisoner is likely to be able to remain in the country of detention and wishes to be assimilated into the culture of that country, the prison authority should assist him in doing so.”

2. Foreign prisoners should have the same access as national prisoners to education, work and vocational training.

A. Implementation Concerns:

The availability of qualified personnel with the necessary language skills to supervise, educate and train the foreign inmates could present some logistical and financial concerns.

B. Implementation Strategies

Contact with civic, religious, business and governmental agencies within the nation of detention may produce a wealth of individuals and resources able to help in acquiring language-specific material from the nation of the foreign prisoner. Volunteers can also be recruited from groups such as a local chapter of the United Nations Association to help compile a list of local resources that the prison administration can call on for help in this area. The building of such a list of human resources and the acquisition of appropriate printed material is an on-going process and one that should start long before the actual help is needed. All embassies and consulates within the nation should also be contacted to see what help they are willing and capable of providing nationals from their nation who are incarcerated.

3. Foreign prisoners should in principle be eligible for measures alternative to imprisonment, as well as for prison leave and other authorized exits from prison according to the same principles as nationals.

A. Implementation Concerns:

Where the majority of nationals are likely to have family, friends or organizations willing to sponsor their leaves or to provide appropriate places for them to go, it is likely that foreign nationals might not be able to compile a list of eligible sponsors or find those same types of resources usually required to the granting of prison leave.

B. Implementation Strategies

The responsibility for reaching out to the community may lie with the correctional administration to compile a list of people and organizations that would act as sponsors for foreign prisoners (as well as nationals located far from family and friends). Some places, such as Spain, have organizations that have set up apartments for inmates who have no other places to go during a furlough. Churches often have available accommodations for their clergyman and guests. Some military bases and other government entities have guest housing that might be used under some type of cooperative agreement. Again, establishing such a system takes time and coordination and needs to be on going.

4. Foreign prisoners should be informed promptly after reception into a prison, in a language which they understand and generally in writing, of the main features of the prison regime, including relevant rules and regulations.

A. Implementation Concerns:

With people from so many nations traveling to various nations, having the capability to provide translation/interpretation services in a variety of languages, at all times foreigners are brought into jails or prisons, might cause some difficulties.

B. Implementation Strategies

The list of potential language resources referred to above should be augmented to insure compliance with this one. Prison rules should be sent to foreign governments, universities, trade commissions and similar sources asking that they be translated so they will be immediately available for foreign prisoners brought into the system. Even after such a library is acquired, it must be augmented with local individuals fluent in foreign languages to be able to work with foreign inmates who are illiterate in their own language.

5. The religious precepts and customs of foreign prisoners should be respected.

A. Implementation Concerns:

The ignorance of the various customs that accompany many religions, along with the vast array of “new” religions that often contain provisions about length of hair, types of dress, use of wine or narcotics in ceremonies, use of sweat lodges and special diets, can cause confusion. The potential of inmates to claim a particular religion in order to acquire certain rights or to challenge existing prison rules can be of concern to the institution.

B. Implementation Strategies

Establishing ties with ethnic minority and various religious groups within the local community can help acquire the needed personnel, resources and expertise to help meet this rule. Where religious practice conflicts with sound security concerns, the security of the institution takes precedence. However, it is possible that discrimination might be carried out in the name of security or by staff not being willing to exert extra efforts. Examples of a valid security concern might be the refusal to allow inmates to use drugs or alcohol for a religious ceremony in the prison. On the other side, the refusal to find ways to insure diets that meet the religious needs of prisoners, such as finding alternatives for those who cannot eat pork, is not acceptable. Religious locks or particular cuts of hair or beards or wearing certain garments for religious reasons have, in some correctional facilities, been eliminated for what was considered security concerns. Good searching techniques can overcome such concerns if the staff are well trained and do their job with precision. After all, in most pretrial or remand centers, prisoners’ hair and dress is subject to only limited restrictions. Thus, this is a rule that can generally be met if the prison administration is willing to look for ways to accomplish it.

6. Foreign prisoners should be informed without delay of their right to request contacts with their consular authorities, as well as of any other relevant information regarding their status. If a foreign prisoner wishes to receive assistance from a diplomatic or consular authority, the latter should be contacted.

A. Implementation Concerns:

Other than the previously mentioned potential difficulties of obtaining translation/interpretation services, this should present no special concern.

B. Implementation Strategies

The 1987 European Prison Rules include a provision that states:

“Prisoners who are nationals of states without diplomatic or consular representation in the country and refugees or stateless persons shall be allowed similar facilities to communicate with the diplomatic representatives of the state which takes charge of their interests or national or international authority whose task it is to serve the interests of such persons.”

If the detainee requests, it is the duty of the detaining authority to notify the consular authority without delay.

If the foreign prisoners has applied for asylum and there is no diplomatic relations with his/her country of origin, the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) can be contacted for guidance. UNHCR can be contacted at:

7. Foreign prisoners should be given proper assistance, in a language they can understand, when dealing with medical or program staff and in such matters as complaints, special accommodations, special diets and religious representation and counseling.

A. Implementation Concerns:

This presents challenges in having the financial and staff resources to provide the necessary translation/interpretation services at the times they are needed. For some religions with a relatively small following, finding appropriate local religious representation might prove problematic.

B. Implementation Strategies

Cooperative arrangements with the general community, especially in the area of having translation available when dealing with medical services, should be pursued. Tourists and business people from foreign nations have the same needs when they get sick while visiting or when they have an encounter with the police. In their cases, hotels, hospitals, members of the International Bar Association and chambers of commerce provide referral help. International telephone companies also have on-line translation/interpretation services available in more than 100 languages and dialects. International credit card companies offer their card holders referral help, in a multitude of languages for a multitude of difficulties they might face while traveling. Cooperative arrangements should be explored with those and similar companies. Also, internet-based translation software is becoming more sophisticated and might provide some help in this area.

8. Contacts of foreign prisoners with families and community agencies should be facilitated, by providing all necessary opportunities for visits and correspondence, with the consent of the prisoner. Humanitarian international organizations should be given the opportunity to assist foreign prisoners.

Note: For the purposes of this recommendation, “Community Agencies” are agencies other than consulates, such as probation and social services, International Committee of the Red Cross, religious, after-care and welfare organizations both in the country of detention and in the prisoners' home country.

A. Implementation Concerns:

This presents no special implementation concerns that do not exist for all prisoners held within the system.

B. Implementation Strategies

The 1987 European Prison Rules reminds prison administrations, "In the case of foreign nationals, links with people of their own nationality in the outside community are to be regarded as equally important."

The Council of Europe Principles Concerning Foreign Prisoners says, "With a view to according adequate assistance to foreign prisoners, prison authorities should grant community agencies all necessary opportunities for visits and correspondence, provided that the prisoner consents to these contacts."

When postal and telephone communications are disrupted or not available, foreign prisoners can inform their families of their situation and keep in touch with them by means of Red Cross messages. In time of conflict, the delegation of the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) can be contacted to facilitate such a service. In any other situation, the Red Cross or Red Crescent National Society collects and forwards such messages. The exchange of correspondence by this mean continues until either normal means of communication are restored, or the prisoner has been released.

9. The conclusion of bilateral and multilateral agreements on supervision of and assistance to offenders given suspended sentences or granted parole could further contribute to the solution of the problems faced by foreign offenders.

A. Implementation Concerns:

This poses only those "normal" implementation problems associated with the passage of any national legislation and the signing of any international treaty or agreement.

B. Implementation Strategies

This is covered extensively in a later section of this booklet. Note that the transfer of sanction treaties require the consent of the prisoner as well as the countries involved. A person should not be repatriated to a country where he/she will face persecution.

As should be obvious, though the implementation of some of these regulations brings additional work and expense, the only real barrier to their implementation would be a lack of desire on the part of the administrative entity. These are the types of rules that cry for cooperation with the civilian community and bring support to the corrections system beyond just the work with their foreign prisoners.

CONSULAR NOTIFICATION

The following is presented as an example. It comes from the United States.

The Vienna Convention on Consular Relations, along with bilateral agreements, conventions, or treaties, make up the body of international instruments that cover the following obligations of U.S. correctional personnel:

When foreign nationals are arrested or detained, they must be advised of their right to have their consular officer notified.

In some cases, the nearest consular office must be notified of the arrest or detention of a foreign national, regardless of the national's wishes.

Consular officials are entitled to access to their nationals in detention, and are entitled to provide consular assistance.

When a government official becomes aware of the death of a foreign national, consular officials must be notified.

A consular officer is a citizen of a foreign country employed by a foreign government and authorized to provide assistance on behalf of that government to that government's citizens in a foreign country. Consular officers are generally assigned to the consular section of a foreign government's embassy in Washington, D.C., or to consular offices maintained by the foreign government in locations throughout the United States. In some cases the nation involved may use an "honorary consul" who is a citizen or lawful permanent resident of the United States who has been authorized by a foreign government to perform official functions on its behalf in the United States. At times a nation may authorize a diplomat (an officer of a foreign nation assigned to an embassy in Washington, D.C.) to perform consular functions. Diplomatic and consular officers (including consuls and honorary consuls) have identification cards issued by the U.S. Department of State. The identification cards contain the person's photograph and identify it as an "Identification Card". If there is any doubt about the authenticity of a State Department identification card, it can be verified by calling the State Department's Office of Protocol at (202) 647-1985 during normal business hours or (202) 647-7277 at other times.

A consular officer may do a variety of things to assist a foreign national. The consular officer may speak with the detained foreign national over the phone and/or arrange one or more consular visits to meet with the detainee about his/her situation and needs. A consular officer may assist in arranging legal representation, monitor the progress of the case, and seek to ensure that the foreign national receives a fair trial (e.g., by working with the detainee's lawyer, communicating with the prosecutors, or observing the trial). The consular officer may speak with prison officials about the detainee's conditions of confinement, and may bring the detainee reading material, food, medicine, or other necessities, if permitted by prison regulations. A consular officer frequently will be in touch with the detainee's family, particularly if they are in the country of origin, to advise them of the detainee's situation, morale, and other relevant information. The actual services provided by the consular officer will vary depending upon the country's level of representation in the U.S. and available resources.

Consular officers are not permitted to practice law in the U.S. and cannot act as the legal counsel for a detained alien. However, they may act as "friends of the court" and assist in the alien's preparation of his or her defense. They may help obtain an attorney for the alien, but U.S. authorities should not assume that to be the case.

Consular officers are entitled to visit and to communicate with their detained nationals, even if the foreign national has not requested a visit. The consular officer must refrain from taking action on behalf of the foreign national if so requested by the national, however. Law enforcement authorities may make reasonable regulations about the time, place and manner of consular visits to detained foreign nationals. Those regulations cannot, however, be so restrictive that the purpose of the assistance is defeated. The U.S. Department of State is very clear in its urging law enforcement authorities to grant foreign consular officials liberal access to detained persons, granting consular officers every courtesy and facility consistent with local laws and regulations. Liberal visiting privileges are particularly important when consular officers have to travel long distances to visit their nationals. Consular officers have to comply with normal prison security regulations including searches prior to visiting an inmate. However, those searches should not be unnecessarily intrusive. Consular officers who question having to follow particular security rules should be advised to address their questions to the U.S. Department of State, but in all cases they should be treated with respect when conducting prison visits.

A consular officer generally has the right to meet privately with the detained foreign national, but if security necessitates, correctional personnel can observe those visits. If the consular officer insists on a private meeting but the detained national objects to meeting privately, the U.S. Department of State should be contacted for guidance.

The guiding principle the U.S. Department of State suggests correctional personnel should follow is: In general you should permit a consular officer the same access to a foreign national that you would want an American consular officer to have to an American citizen in a similar situation in a foreign country.

Informing the foreign national of the right to consular notification and access is the responsibility of the arresting or detaining officer. Notification must be given if the foreign national is arrested or committed to prison or to custody pending trial or is detained in any other manner. Though a routine traffic stop would not trigger the need for consular notification, requiring a foreign national to accompany a law enforcement officer to a place of detention would if the detention lasts for a number of hours or overnight. This is true even if the foreign national is detained (not free to leave) in a hospital or detox facility.

In all cases, the foreign national must be told of the right of consular notification and access. The foreign national then has the option to decide whether he/she wants consular representatives notified of the arrest or detention, unless the foreign national is from a “mandatory notification” country. If a detained foreign national is a national of a country not on the mandatory notification list, the requirement is that the foreign national be informed without delay of the option to have his or her government’s consular representatives notified of the detention. If the detainee requests notification, a responsible detaining official must ensure that notification is given to the nearest consulate or embassy of the detainee’s country without delay.

In some cases, “mandatory notification” must be made to the nearest consulate or embassy “without delay,” “immediately,” or within the time specified in a bilateral agreement between the United States and a foreign national’s country, regardless of whether the foreign national requests such notification. Mandatory notification requirements arise from different bilateral agreements whose terms are not identical. Privacy concerns or the possibility that a foreign national may have a legitimate fear of persecution or other mistreatment by his/her government may exist in some mandatory notification cases. The notification requirement should still be honored, but it is possible to take precautions regarding the disclosure of information. For example, it may not be necessary to provide information about why a foreign national is in detention. Moreover, under no circumstances should any information indicating that a foreign national may have applied for asylum in the United States or elsewhere be disclosed to that person’s government.

Summary of Requirements Pertaining to Foreign Nationals

When foreign nationals are arrested or detained, they must be advised of the right to have their consular officials notified.

In some cases, the nearest consular officials must be notified of the arrest or detention of a foreign national, regardless of the national's wishes.

Consular officials are entitled to access to their nationals in detention and are entitled to provide consular assistance.

When a government official becomes aware of the death of a foreign national, consular officials must be notified.

When a guardianship or trusteeship is being considered with respect to a foreign national who is a minor or incompetent, consular officials must be notified.

When a foreign ship or aircraft wrecks or crashes, consular officials must be notified.

Steps to Follow When a Foreign National is Arrested or Detained

1. Determine the foreign national's country of origin and citizenship. In the absence of other information, assume this is the country on whose passport or other travel document the foreign national travels.

2. If the foreign national's country is not on the mandatory notification list:

Offer, without delay, to notify the foreign national's consular officials of the arrest/detention. If the foreign national asks that consular notification be given, notify the nearest consular officials of the foreign national's country without delay.

3. If the foreign national's country is on the list of mandatory notification countries: Notify that country's nearest consular officials, without delay, of the arrest/detention. Tell the foreign national that you are making this notification.

4. Keep a written record of the provision of notification and actions taken.

The U.S. Department of State says it another way: These are mutual obligations that also pertain to American citizens abroad. In general, you should treat a foreign national as you would want an American citizen to be treated in a similar situation in a foreign country. This means prompt, courteous notification to the foreign national of the possibility of consular assistance, and prompt, courteous notification to the foreign national's nearest consular officials so that they can provide whatever consular services they deem appropriate.

INTERNATIONAL PRISONER TRANSFER TREATIES

One of the most effective methods for assisting offenders incarcerated in foreign jails that has been developed is the promulgation of treaties on the transferability of penal sanctions, which are commonly known as prisoner transfer treaties. Although these treaties do very little to solve the problems of prisoners while they are in foreign countries, they do allow those individuals to return home to serve out their sentences once their trials have been completed.

Generally, prisoner transfer treaties require that an individual must be a citizen of the country to which transfer is requested. However, the Council of Europe Treaty permits "nationals" to qualify and further permits each state to define "national." This permits the potential inclusion of a broader range of individuals. In addition, pursuant to the Council of Europe Treaty the transfer process may be initiated by either the sentencing state or the receiving state.

In order to use a prisoner transfer treaty, the prisoner must have been sentenced and must have completed or waived all appeals and collateral proceedings. The sending country, the receiving country and the prisoner each must consent to the transfer.

The individual generally must also have committed an offense that is punishable as a crime under the laws in the home country (dual criminality) and must have at least six months left to serve on the sentence. Further, many treaties have certain offenses which are not transferable (e.g., military offenses).

The United States has bilateral transfer treaties with Bolivia, Canada, France, Hong Kong, Panama, Peru, Thailand and Turkey, and is party to the multilateral Council of Europe convention on the Transfer of Sentenced Persons. The Organization of American States has a multilateral treaty called the Inter-American Convention on Serving Criminal Sentences Abroad which the United States ratified on May 25, 2001. The United States also has prisoner transfer agreements with the Federated States of Micronesia, the Marshall Islands, and the Republic of Palau.

Countries with which prisoner transfer treaties of United States citizens are in effect are:

Azerbaijan, Albania, Armenia, Austria, Bahamas, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Bulgaria, Canada, Chile, Costa Rica, Croatia, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Georgia, Germany, Greece, Hong Kong, Hungary, Iceland, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Latvia, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Malta, Marshall Islands, Mexico, Micronesia, Netherlands (including Netherlands Antilles and Aruba), Norway, Palau, Panama, Peru, Poland, Portugal, Romania, Slovakia, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Thailand, Trinidad/Tobago, Turkey, Ukraine, United Kingdom (including B.V.I., Cayman Islands, other territories), and Venezuela.

Countries using the treaties offer advice and assistance to prisoners desiring to transfer. The consular officials in each involved country offer advice and help with the procedures. For more information the United States Department of Justice recommends the following web sites:

ADVICE FOR INCARCERATED FOREIGN NATIONALS AND THEIR FAMILIES

The following general information and advice comes from information provided to Canadian citizens by their government. It should be adjusted as necessary for those from other nations.
Detainee/Prisoner

If you break the laws of another country, you are subject to the judicial system of that country. Being a foreigner or not knowing the local laws is not an excuse. Your country can neither protect you from the consequences of your actions nor override the decisions of local authorities.

If you are detained or arrested in a foreign country and you choose to talk to your consular officials, any information you give them may remain confidential if your nation has enacted an appropriate privacy act. If so, any information you give your consular officials will remain completely confidential and will not be passed on to anyone without your permission, other than consular officials concerned with your case. Canadians have the right, for example, to determine who will be notified of their situation, and who may act as their representative. Family and friends will not have access to any information without your consent. However, your national police have their own international contacts and may know of your circumstances through other sources.

If you are detained or arrested abroad and you wish to have your consular officials notified, you should clearly make that request to the arresting authorities. It is important to realize that the arresting authorities do not have an obligation to inform the diplomatic or consular officials of your nation of your detention or arrest unless you request it. Page 16 of this booklet indicated your rights under The Vienna Convention on Consular Relations.

Family and Friends

As a family member or friend of a person detained or imprisoned abroad, you should contact the Consular Affairs section in your nation. A consular official can provide you with general information about the country involved, prison conditions and the local justice system. You will not be given any details of the detention or arrest, or told how to establish communications with the person, unless the detainee/prisoner has authorized it.

You should resist the urge to take immediate action, such as visiting the detainee/prisoner, or sending money or parcels. You should discuss such actions with a consular official in your nation. That person will advise you on the feasibility of such initiatives and how best to proceed.

It is important to note that in many countries mail sent or received by detainees/prisoners will be opened and read by prison authorities. It is also not unusual for telephone conversations to be monitored. Care should be taken, therefore, not to discuss or put in writing anything that you would not wish to become public.

To the extent possible, you should make every effort to maintain direct contact with the detainee/prisoner through normal channels. Advice and information is available from consular officials both in your nation and at diplomatic or consular missions abroad; however, the range of other services will be determined by your own ability to provide support and assistance.

Hiring a Foreign Lawyer

The choice of legal representation in the country of your detention or arrest can be critically important and should be made with care and caution. As a first step, you should make contact with a consular official from your home country who is located in the country of your detention or arrest.

Consular officials can provide a list of lawyers who have expertise in your particular type of case, and who may have represented others from your nation in the past. They cannot, however, make recommendations. You may, of course, prefer to engage a lawyer who is not on the list. The decision to hire a specific lawyer remains your responsibility. In either event, you may wish to consider whether a lawyer is:

Experienced in your type of case;

Well regarded in the local legal community;

Able to communicate in your language of choice; and

Willing to agree on a fee structure for the duration of the case, including any appeal procedures.

Should you be unable to raise sufficient funds to hire a lawyer, consular officials can give you advice on the availability of legal aid in the country in which you are detained or imprisoned.

Consular officials may also help facilitate communications between you or someone you designate and your lawyer. However, all decisions affecting the conduct of the case must be made by you or your representative.

GLOSSARY, DEFINITIONS AND ACRONYMS USED BY THE UNITED NATIONS

The following definitions shall apply to this Guidance Manual:

Correction (Prison) System - the national civilian corrections system responsible for the management of pre-trial and convicted persons who have been committed to imprisonment by lawful order of a court of competent jurisdiction. This includes the system responsible for supervision of persons who have been convicted and placed on community based programs (e.g. probation or community service) and those who have been released from prison prior to the expiration of a sentence and subject to supervision in the community (e.g. parole). It does not include management of facilities under military or police jurisdiction except where the domestic corrections system is managed as a part of the police service, and then only to that part of the system which accommodates persons who have been subject to the proceedings of an authorized civilian. It does not, generally, include the juvenile detention system except where this is a part of the national adult system.

Corrections Capacity Building Support Program – the program of activity which supports the re-establishing and/or strengthening of the national corrections system. Undertaken by the international corrections personnel, it is comprised of strategies for the transfer of skills and knowledge sufficient to enable the national officials to manage and sustain a viable, safe, secure and humane corrections system, including strategies to rehabilitate the physical infrastructure and the provision of equipment.

Civil Society – non-profit, organized groups, clubs and associations in society that operate independently from the government and state. Examples of groups in civil society include universities, non-governmental organizations, organized local communities and trade unions.

Executive Peace Keeping Missions – where the Mission Mandate from the Security Council gives the ability to perform active corrections functions. This would allow the Corrections Advisory Unit (CAU) to do more than passively advise and mentor an essentially dysfunctional institution. Where the host government is incapable of performing its duties, providing the CAU with executive authority would allow them to engage in necessary corrections activities, including directly supervising prisoners, providing field supervision, transporting prisoners if necessary, and releasing them from custody if they have not been legally detained.

HIV/AIDS - HIV/AIDS—Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV) and Acquired ImmunoDeficiency Syndrome (AIDS). HIV is the virus that causes AIDS. Immunodeficiency means having a faulty immune system so that a person can become very ill or die from a disease that others can fight off. HIV is passed from person to person through blood or other bodily fluids, either through a transfusion of infected blood, to a baby from its mother, through use of contaminated hypodermic needles, or through sexual contact with a person who has the disease.

International Correction Personnel – individuals with expertise in civilian corrections systems. This includes custodial and non-custodial officers, specialist and administration officers working in the corrections components of peacekeeping operations. For purposes of this Manual it does not include host country corrections personnel.

National Correction Personnel – persons who have a role in the administration and management of the prison system within host countries. It includes custodial and non-custodial officers, other specialists and administration officers.

Non-executive Missions – where the Mission Mandate of the CAU, established by negotiations with the host nation factions, is to assist with the restoration and maintenance of law and order by providing operational support, such as being present in prisons and working alongside host nation officers and mentoring and providing advice to the them. It does not provide CAU personnel with the authority to perform correctional duties without specific permission from the host nation government.

Note Verbale - A formal diplomatic communication delivered orally to an official representative of another country. The written form is a demarche.

Secondment - the detachment of a person from their regular organization for temporary assignment elsewhere.

How can you tell if an interpreter is required especially if the person can speak some English?

Some people can't communicate in English at all or will have such minimal English proficiency that the decision is obvious. However, if there is any doubt, here are some simple tests to help you make your decision.

- Ask a question that requires the person to answer in a sentence. Avoid questions that can be answered with a 'yes' or a 'no' or a very familiar question such as 'Where do you live?'.
- Ask the person to repeat a message that you have just given in his/her own words.

If you consider an interpreter is required then arrange one after discussing this with the other person. Remember the interpreter is there to enable you to do your job competently, not only for the other person.

How do you identify which language the person speaks before requesting an interpreter?

Sometimes the language needed is conveyed to you in advance or the person brings a card naming the language required. However, you may need to seek this information out from the person or via an accompanying relative.

How do you conduct face to face interviews with an interpreter present?

Before an interview

- Arrange a place where the interview can be conducted in private.
- Allow for extra time
- Arrange the seating to allow for easy communication: in a circle or triangle or place the interpreter to the side and just behind you.
- Brief the interpreter prior to the interview where possible.
- Ask the interpreter for any cultural factors that may affect the interview but remember that interpreters do not consider themselves to be cultural experts.

During the interview

General pointers

- Sit facing the person.
- Look at the person and maintain awareness of body language. Avoid looking at the interpreter unless you are directly addressing him/her.

⁵ Modified from a guide for health care workers by the Government of Australia
Draft Basic Training Manual for Correctional Workers – Generic Version – June 2006

- Speak directly to the patient/client as you would with an English speaker.
- Always use the first person eg How are you feeling? not (to the interpreter)

Ask her how she is feeling?

- Don't try to save time by asking the interpreter to summarise.
- Be aware that it may take more words than you've spoken to convey the message.
- Don't let the interpreter's presence change your role in the interview. It is not the interpreter's role to conduct the interview.

Introduction and set up

- Introduce yourself and the interpreter.
- Explain both your and the interpreter's role.
- Stress that both you and the interpreter are bound by codes of ethics to maintain the confidentiality of the interview.
- Explain the purpose of the interview and how it will proceed.

Interview style

- Speak a little more slowly than usual in your normal speaking tone. Speaking louder doesn't help
- Use plain English where possible.
- Pause after 2 or 3 sentences to allow the interpreter to relay the message.
- Stop speaking when the interpreter signals by raising a hand or starting to interpret.
- Summarise periodically when complex issues are involved.
- If the person does not understand it is your responsibility (not the interpreter's) to explain more simply.
- Seek the patient/client's permission if you need to obtain cultural information from the interpreter
- Avoid long discussions with the interpreter. If you need to talk to the interpreter directly then the interpreter should explain to the patient about the nature of the conversation.

Ending the interview

- Check that the patient/client has understood the key messages in your interview. Ask for any questions.
- Thank both the patient/client and the interpreter. Say good-bye formally.
- Debrief the interpreter if the interview was emotionally taxing and clarify any questions you have arising from the interview. This may need to happen later as it may make the patient/client uncomfortable if you are seen to be in detailed conversation with the interpreter.
